

He level it .

Srom the Library of (Professor Samuel Miller in Memory of Judge Samuel Miller Breckinridge (Presented by Samuel Miller Breckinridge Long to the Library of (Princeton Theological Seminary

ан

ILLUSTRATION

0 F

THE DOCTRINES

0 F

THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION,

WITH RESPECT TO Sam! Miller -

FAITH AND PRACTICE,

UPON THE PLAN OF

The Allembly's Shorter Catechilm.

COMPREHENDING

A Complete Body of Divinity.

BY THE LATE REV. AND LEARNED MR THOMAS BOSTON,

MINISTER OF THE GOSPEL AT ETTRICK,

AUTHOR OF THE FOURFOLD STATE, A VIEW OF THE COVENANTS, $\mathfrak{C}_{\boldsymbol{c}_*}$

IN THREE VOLUMES.

VOLUME III.

HOLD FAST THE FORM OF SOUND WORDS .- 2 TIM. i. 13.

THE SECOND EDITION.

EDINBURGH:

PRINTED BY SCHAW AND PILLANS, FOR THE REVEREND JOSEPH JOHNSTON, DRUMMOND STREET.

1796.

CONTENTS

OF THE THIRD VOLUME.

.

Of the fifth commandment, continued	Page 3
The duties of husbands and wives	ib.
The duties of children to parents	6
The duty of parents to children	8
The duty of fervants to masters	17
The duty of masters to servants	22
The duty of people to ministers	25
The duty of ministers to people	27
The duty of ruling elders nd people	28
The duty of magiarates and fubjects	37
The dities of other relations	40
The fins forbidden	16.
Of the reason annexed to this command	44
Of the fixth commandment	51
The duties required	53
The fins forhidden	53 56
Of the feventh commandment	69
I be duties required	ib.
The fins torbidden	74
Of the eighth commandment	80
The duties required	81
The fins torbidden	83
Of the ninth commandment	109
The duties required	ib.
The fins forbidden	114
Of the tenth commandment	131
The duties required	133
The fins forbidden	151
Of man's inability to keep the law perfectly	177
An explanation of Gen. vi. 9. in the notes	183
4	Of

(2)

4

Of fin in its aggravations Pag	e 188
Of the defert of fin	195
Of the means of falvation in general	200
Of faith in Jefus Christ	206
An explanation of Gen. xv. 6. in the notes	212
Of repentance unto life	220
Of Chrift's ordinances in general	226
How the word is made effectual to falvation	232
How the word is to be read and heard	239
The duty of attending on ordinances	247
A caveat against receiving the gospel in vain	257
The danger of not complying with the gospel-call	270
How the facraments become effectual to falvation	277
The nature of the facraments.	283
Gen. xvii. 10. explained in the notes	ib .
I he number of the facraments	289
The nature of baptifm	292
Gen. xvii. 12. explained in the notes	298
Gen. xvii. 14. also explained in the notes	299
The nature of the Lord's supper	301
Of the worthy receiving of the Lord's supper	310
The neceffity of felf-examination The danger of unworthy communicating	320
The danger of unworthy communicating	335
The nature of prayer	352
A discourse on secret prayer	367
Of the rule of direction in prayer	384
The preface of the Lord's prayer	390
The first petition	397
The fecond pctition	- 403
The third petition	42I
The fourth petition	437
The firth petit on	450
The fixth petition	458
Gen. xxii. 1. explained in the notes	459
Extracts from the author's notes on part of Gen. ii. E	5
iii. in the notes	46 I
The conclusion of the Lord's prayer	480
A discourse on the experimental knowledge of Christ	488
Of the right improvement of a time of fickness and mortality	504
Two jorms of perfonal covenanting by the author	517

AN ILLUSTRATION

ΟF

THE DOCTRINES

o f

THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

OF THE FIFTH COMMANDMENT, CONTINUED.

Secondly, I COME to fhew the duties more peculiar to each party.

1. The duties of the hufband of this fort may be reduced to this one, viz. that he carry himfelf towards her as a head for her good, ruling her in the fear of the Lord. It is not a name of power only, but of duty; for he muft be fuch a head to her as Chrift is to the church, Eph. v. 23. And whofo reckon upon the authority of that name without eyeing the duty of it, put afunder what God has joined in his grant, and will join when he calls men to an account.

2. The duties of the wife may be reduced to this one, viz. fubmitting herfelf to her hufband as her head, Eph. v. 22. 23. She is not to lord it over him, but to be fubject to him. And in this refpect there is a reverence and fear of the hufband enjoined the wife, Eph. v. 33. 1 Pet. iii. 2. which is a due regard in the heart to his character as a hufband, feeing in that God has put of his own name upon him, God himfelf being called our hufband; a fear to offend him, flowing from love, venting itfelf in fpeaking and carrying refpectfully to him, 1 Pet. iii. 6.

Now, the hufband as the head of the wife owes her,

1. Protection, fo as the may be as fafe and eafy under the covert of his relation to her as he can make her. For this caufe God has given the hufband as a head to the weaker veffel; and therefore it was an ancient ceremony in marriage for the hufband to fpread his fkirt over his wife, Ruth iii. 9. He is to protect her to the utmost of his power from the injuries of others, 1 Sam. xxx. 18.; and particularly from the infults, whether of children or fervants in the family, as well as neighbours, Gen. xvi. 6. And if fo, furely he himfelf is not to bear hard upon her, but to shew her a peculiar tendernefs as the weaker veffel, a tendernefs to her body and spirit too; and not to fuffer her, far lefs to oblige her, to difirefs herfelf above measure.

for

On the other hand, fhe owes him obedience, a fubmifion to, and compliance with, his admonitions. It is obferved of Job's wife, for as ill as fhe was, when he calls her a fool, fhe does not give him the fame epithet again. Reafon itfelf teaches, that whofo puts himfelf under the protection of another, must be ruled by that other, and not by himfelf.

2. Provision, 1 Tim. v. 8. The hufband ought to provide for his wife, and cheerfully furnish her with what is needful and convenient, according to his station and ability; and lay out himfelf by all lawful means for her comfortable thoroughbearing. And this he should have an eye to, not only for the time of his life, but even after his decease.

And, on the other hand, the wife cught to be helpful to her hufband by her frugal management, Prov. xxxi. 27. And God's word and frequent experiments plainly flew, that a man's thriving or not thriving has a great dependence on his wife's management, Prov. xiv. 1. While he, then, is bufy without doors, fhe fhould be careful within; and therefore it is recommended to women to be much at home, Tit. ii. 5. Yet fhe may well go abroad when her bufinefs calls her, as Abigail did, I Sam. xxv.

3. Laftly, Direction, with calmness instructing her, how the should carry in every thing, both with respect to things of this life and of the other, Prov. ii. 17. He ought to be as eyes to her, which have their place in the head, and so should be capable to guide, 1 Pet. iii. 7.

On the other hand, the wife flould be pliable and teachable, 1 Tim. ii. 11.; yea, and be ready to feek inftruction from her hufband, 1 Cor. xiv. 35. She flould be obedient to his commands and directions, ver 34.; for in every thing wherein the law of God has not bound her up, the hufband's will ought to be complied with, Eph. v. 24. Gen. iii. 16.

The reafons of the hufband's duty are thefe.

1. Becaufe hufbands are appointed to be fuch heads as Chrift

Chrift is to the church, Eph. v. 25. And if men would reflect on this, it would make them very dutiful, and bear with many things, as Chrift doth, elfe we would be ruined.

2. Becaufe thy wife is thy own fleth, thy fecond felf, ver. 28. 29.; and fo undutifulnefs is monftrous.

3. Becaufe the is the weaker veffel, 1 Pet. iii. 7.; for it hath pleafed the Lord to exercise the woman with a special measure of infirmity, both natural and moral.

The reafons of the woman's duty are thefe.

I. Becaufe the woman was created for the man, I Tim. ii, 13. compare I Cor. xi. 9.

2. Becaufe the woman was the first that finned, 1 Tim. ii. 14. compare Gen. iii. 16.

3. Becaufe fhe is the weaker veffel.

Ufe 1. Let all fuch as have been, or are in that relation, be humbled under a fenfe of their fin in that point, and fly to the blood of Chrift for parden. And let every one look on that relation as a ferious matter, in which people muft walk with God, and under which they are bound to fo many duties, of which they muft give an account to the Lord.

2. Let hufbands and wives fludy to make confeience of their duty one to another, and frame their life accordingly. For motives, confider,

(1.) God lays them on. Nature may from at them, but they are God's commands; and whofo breaketh over the hedge, the ferpent will bite.

(2.) Your marriage-vows and voluntary covenant engage to thefe. Though we forget them, God does not, and will not.

(3.) Your own comfort depends upon them; and fo does the happinefs in that relation.

 $La \mathcal{A} / y$, Death comes, and that will diffolve the relation. Therefore, before that awful event, let every one make confcience of performing their refpective duties, that they may die in peace.

As to the relation betwixt parents and children, fee Col. iii. 20. 21. "Children, obey your parents in ail things: for this is well-pleafing unto the Lord. Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, left they be difcouraged."

In the first of these, we have, I. The duty that children owe to their parents; and that is obedience in all things hawful. The word rendered obey, points at obedience flowing from inward respect to them, 2. The reason of it; it is pleasing to God, who has enjoined it. In the next place, we have the duty of parents to their children. Where, 1. There is fomething fuppofed, that they must use their parental power and authority over their children for their good. 2. Something expressed, that they use it moderately, not abuse it to the irritating of them, left they crush them, and make them heartlefs.

Parents and children muft carry to one another as they will be answerable to God, who has given them their orders. Here I shall shew,

1. The duties that children owe to their parents.

2. The duty of parents to their children.

Fir β , I am to flew the duties which children owe to their parents.

1. Singular love to them, as the parents ought to bear to them. This is called natural affection, the want whereof is accounted among the most horrid abominations, Rom. i. 31. Such a natural affection did Joseph shew to his father, Gen. xlvi. 29. when "he went to meet him, fell on his neck, and wept on his neck a good while."

2. Reverence and fear. Their fear is to be fquared with love, and their love falted with fear, Lev. xix. 3. The mother is there particularly mentioned; and that, in the firft place, becaufe, as people are ready to break over the hedge where it is loweft, fo children are most apt to defpife their mother; and they being much about her hand while young, left familiarity breed contempt, God hath expressly provided against it. They must have a conficientious regard to that authority God has given them over them, and fear to offend them, as those who to them are in God's ftead.

3. An outward reverent and refpectful behaviour towards them. They ought not to be treated rudely by their children, as if they were their companions, Mal. i. 6.; but they ought to fpeak refpectfully to them, Gen. xxxi. 35.; and carry refpectfully to them, Prov. xxxi. 28. 'This was Solomon's practice, even when a king, I Kings ii. 19.; for as the candle, if lighted, will fhine through the lantern, to reverence in the heart will appear in the outward carriage.

4. A ready obedience to their lawful commands, Col. iii. 20. If it be not contrary to the command of God, they ought to obey. Subjection and obedience to parents is the honour as well as the duty of children. Jofeph's ready obedience to his tather is recorded to his commendation, Gen. xxxvii. 13. Yea, Chrift himfelf was a pattern to children in this regard to the parental authority, Luke ii. 51.

5. Submiffion. They are to fubmit to their inftructions and directions, readily receiving them, and complying with them, Prov. i. 8. Man being born like a wild afs's colt, has need to be taught. They are to fubmit to their reproofs and admonitions, to take them kindly, and amend what is arnifs, Prov. xiii. 1. Yea, they are to fubmit to their corrections, for the folly bound up in their hearts makes the rod neceffary, Heb. xii. 9. They are children of Belial, indeed, that will not bear this yoke of fubjection.

6. Bearing with their infirmities, and covering them with the wings of love. Whether they be natural or moral infirmities, they would beware of defpifing or infulting them on that account, or any way exposing them, as fome foolifh youngfters are apt to do, Prov. xxiii. 22. Gen. ix. 22.

7. Following their reafonable advice, and taking alongit with them the authority of their parents, in order to their calling or marriage. That children ought not to difpofe of themfelves in marriage without the confent of parents, is the conftant doctrine of the Protestant churches. And the reafons are thefe. (1.) The fcripture gives the power of making marriages for children to the parents, Deut. vii. 3. Jer. xxix. 6. 1 Cor. vii. 37. 38. Yea, even after parties have confented, it is left to the parent, whether to give his abufed daughter to him that has been guilty with her, Exod. xxii. 16. 17. (2.) The most approved examples of marriage in fcripture go this way, Gen. xxiv. 3. 4. xxviii. 1. 2. and xxix. 19. Judg. xiv. 2. Laftly, The reason is plain; for the child cannot give away any thing that is his parents against their will. Now, the child himself is the parents, a part of their felf-moving fubstance, in which they have a most undoubted property. So, when the devil was permitted to fall upon what was Job's, he fell upon his children, and killed them in the first place. Yet, upon the other hand, no parent can force a child to marry fuch and fuch a perfon; for confent makes marriage, and that which is forced is no confent. The child muft be fatisfied as well as the parent, Gen. xxiv. 57. So the fhort of it is, that the confent of both is necessary, and that the parent must neither force the child, nor the child rob the parent.

8. Readinefs to requite their parents when they are in need of it; that as they did for them when young, fo they muit muft do for them when old, or reduced to poverty. This God requires of children, 1 Tim. v. 4. It is a piece of that honour to parents which the fifth command enjoins, Matth. xv. 4. 5. 6. So did Jofeph, Gen. xlvii. 12. This was a piece of duty which the Lord performed to his mother while he hung on the crofs, John xix. 27.

9. Lafly, In a word, children fhould fo live as they may be an honour to their parents; for according as they are, their parents are either credited or afhamed. Yea, and when they are dead and gone, they fhould be reverently remembered, their wholefome advices religioufly followed, and their debts fatisfied, fo as no body may get occafion to reproach them when they are away.

U/e 1. This may ferve for conviction and humiliation to us all, who either have had parents fince we came to the years of difference on yet have them. Who can fay in this, I have made my heart clean?

2. I exhort fuch as have parents, whether one or more, to be dutiful to them, according to the word. There is indeed a great difference betwixt children in their father's family, and those forisfamiliated, who, by tacit or express confent, are left to their own disposal; but the duty of filial affection, reverence, and gratitude, abideth. For motives, confider,

(1.) That parents, with refpect to their children, do in an efpecial manner bear an image of God, as he is our Creator, Provifor, and Ruler. So are parents those from whom, under him, we had our being, by whose care and government God provided for us, when we could neither provide for nor rule ourfelves.

(2.) Hence it is evident, that do what we can to them, or for them, we can never make a full recompence, but, after all, must die in their debt. But how little is this confidered by many, who look on what they do for their parents in a magnifying glass, while they are blind to what their parents have done for them !

(3.) Laflly, Confider, that God takes fpecial notice how ye carry to your parents, Col. iii. 20. It is a piece of duty which God readily regardeth according to his promife; and the neglect thereof uleth not to be overlooked, but as it difpofeth to an ill life otherwife, fo God readily pays it home, fo as the fin may be read in the punifhment.

Secondly, I come to confider the duty of parents to their children; and I may take up this under five heads, viz. while while they are yet in the womb, while in their infancy, from they time they come to the use of reason, at all times, and when a-dying.

1. The duty which parents owe to their children while yet in the womb.

1/t, Parents are obliged to use all care for the prefervation of the child, to beware of any thing that may harm the child in the belly, and especially that may procure abortion, Judg. xiii. 4.

2*dly*, Dealing with God in behalf of the child, praying for its prefervation, and for its foul, as foon as it is known to be a living foul. I think that no fooner fhould the mother or father know a living foul to be in the womb, but as foon, with Rebekah, they fhould go to God for it, Gen. xxv. 21. 22. If Hannah could devote her child to God before it was conceived, I Sam. i. 11. Chriftian parents may and ought to devote their children to God when quickened in the womb. Whofo neglect this, confider not that then the child is a finful creature, under the wrath of God, and the curfe of the law; that it is capable of fanctification, muft live for ever in heaven or hell, and that poffibly it may never fee the light.

Laftly, Labouring by all means that it may be born within the covenant; which is to be done by parents making fure their own being within the covenant; for fo runs the promife, "I will be thy God, and the God of thy feed."

2. The duty they owe to them in their infancy.

1/1 Parents fhould blefs God for them when they are born, Luke i. 67. &c. Children are God's heritage; the key of the womb is in his hand; he gives them to fome, and withholds them from others; and they fhould be received with thankfulnefs from the Lord's hand.

2*dly*, Giving them up to the Lord as foon as they are born, renewing the dedication of them to God, and accepting of the covenant for them; and procuring to them the feal of the covenant, without any unneceffary delay. Under the Old Teftament, infants were to receive the feal on the eighth day. Now there is no fet time, but common equity bids take the first opportunity, and not delay it needlefsly. The undue delay of circumcifion was punished in Moses, Exod. iv. 24.; and the delay of baptism cannot but be displeasing to God too, as a flighting of his ordinance.

В

Vol. III.

3dly, Tender care of them, doing all things neceffary for them, while they are not capable to do for themfelves, If. xlix. 15. And here it is the duty of the mother to nurfe the child herfelf, if fhe be able, Hof. ix. 14. And this care of infants, the burden of which lies moft on the mothers, is one great piece of their generation-work, wherein they are ufeful for God, and which they ought to look on as fpecial fervice for their comfort in the trouble which therein they have.

3. The duties they owe to them from the time they come to the ufe of reafon, and fo forward.

1/2, They are to provide for them, and that aye and until they be in a capacity to provide for themfelves, I Tim. v. 8. This arifes from the natural obligation and inftinct that is common to men with beafts whereof the wildeft will feed their young till they be able to do for themfelves. Thus parents are, (1.) To provide fuitable maintenance for their children for the prefent, and to lay out themfelves for it, though with the fweat of their brows. (2.)And, as God prospers them, they are to lay up fomething for them, 2 Cor. xii. 14.; for though the poffession be their parent's entirely, yet he is ftinted to the use of a part, according to what is neceffary. Only no man is to take from present necessities for future provisions; but what God has given, let men take the comfortable ufe of it; and what remains, let them lay by for their children, Eccl. ii. 18. 19. 24. But for people to deny themfelves things neceffary and comely, that they may lay them up for their children, is a curfe; and if their children should follow their example, to deny themfelves the ufe thereof, to transmit them to theirs, the use of it should never be had: but ordinarily what the parents narrowly gather, and keep fo as they cannot take the convenient use of it themselves, the children quickly run through.

2*dly*, Civil education, that they may be useful members of the commonwealth. This we may take up in these three things.

(1.) Parents fhould polifh the rude natures of their children with good manners, fo as they may carry comely and differently before themfelves or others, Prov. xxxi. 28. It is the diffhonour of parents to fee children rude and altogether unpolifhed as young beafts; and religion is an enemy to rudenefs and ill manners, I Pet. iii. 8.

(2.) They fhould give them learning according to their ability, ability, and fee that at leaft they be taught to read the Bible, 2 Tim. iii. 15. What is it that makes fo many ignorant old people, but that their parents have neglected this? But where parents have neglected this, grace and good nature would make a fhift to fupply this defect.

(3.) They fhould train them up to do fomething in the way of fome honeft employment, whereby they may be ufeful to themfelves or others. To nourifh children in idlenefs is but to prepare them for prifons or correction-houfes, or to be plagues to fome one family or another, if Providence do not mercifully interpofe, Prov. xxxi. 27. Chriftians should train up their daughters to do virtuoufly, ver. 29. For their own fakes, let them be capable to make their hands fufficient for them, feeing none know what ftraits they may be brought And for the fake of others to whom he may be joined, to. let them be virtuoufly, frugally, and actively educated, otherwife what they bring with them will hardly quit the coft of the mifchief that their unthriftinefs and fillinefs will produce, Prov. xiv. 2. Whether ye can give them fomething or nothing, let them not want Ruth's portion, a good name, a good head, and good hands, Ruth iii, 11. Sons flould be brought up to fome honeft employment, whereby they may be worth their room in the world, Gen. iv. 2. This is fuch a neceffary piece of parents duty to their children, that the Athenians had a law, That if a fon was brought up to no calling at all, in cafe his father fhould come to poverty, he was not bound to maintain him, as otherwife he was.

3dly, Religious education, Eph. vi. 4. If parents provide not for their children, they are worfe than beafts to their young; if they give them not civil education, they are worfe than heathens; but if they add not religious education, what do they more than civilifed heathens? When God gives thee a child, he fays, as Pharaoh's daughter to Mofes's mother. " Take this child and nurfeit for me," Exod. ii. 9. Though we be but fathers of their flesh, we must be careful of their fouls, otherwife we ruin them.

(1.) Parents ought to inftruct their children in the principles of religion, and to fow the feeds of godlinefs in their hearts, as foon as they are able to fpeak, and have the use of reafon, Deut. vi. 6. 7. Such early religious education is a bleffed mean of grace, I Kings xviii. 12. compare ver. 3. Not only is this the duty of fathers, who fhould teach their children, Prov. iv. 3. 4.; but of mothers, who, while the children are young about their hand, fhould be dropping B 2 fomething fomething to them for their fouls good. Solomon had not only his father's leffon, but the prophecy his mother taught him, Prov. xxxi. 1. See chap. i. 8.

11

(2.) They fhould labour for that end to acquaint them with the fcriptures, 2 Tim. iii. 15. to caufe them to read them. Let the reading of their chapters be a piece of their daily tafk; and caufe them read the fcriptures in order, that they may be acquainted both with the precepts and hiftories of the Bible. Let them be obliged to learn their Catechifm, and catechife them yourfelves, according to your ability. For teaching by way of queftion and answer is most easy for them.

(3.) If they afk you any queftions concerning thefe things, do not difcourage them, but take pains to anfwer all their queftions, however weakly they may be proposed, Deut. vi. 20. 21. Children are often found to have very missingen notions of divine things; but if they were duly encouraged to speak, they might vent their thoughts, which parents thus get occasion to rectify.

4tb/y, Labour to deter them from fin. The neglect of this was Eli's fin, for which God judged his houfe, I Sam. iii. 13. Endeavour to poffefs their hearts with an abhorrence of finful practices, and a dread of them. Carefully check their lying, fwearing, curfing or banning, and Sabbath-breaking. If they learn these while young, they will be fair to accompany them to gray hairs. Let them not dare to meddle with what is another man's, if it were not worth a farthing. Encourage them in taking up little things, and they may come in time to bring themselves to an ill end, and you to difgrace.

sthly, Stir them up to the duties of holinefs, and the practice of religion. Often inculcate on them the doctrine of their finful and miferable ftate by nature, and the remedy provided in Chrift. Shew them the neceffity of holinefs, pointing out Chrift to them as the fountain of fanctification. Commend religion to them, and prefs them to the ftudy of it, as the main thing they have to do in the world, Prov. iv. 4. &c.

6tbly, Pray with them, and teach them to pray. For this caufe let not the worfhip of God be neglected in your families; but for your childrens fake maintain it. No wonder that those children feek not God who never fee their parents bow a knee. Ye fhould take them alone, and pray with them, and teach them to pray, laying the materials of prayer often before before them; and let them learn the Lord's prayer, and use it as a form till fuch time as they can conceive a prayer by that directory. For though we do not think the Lord has bound us to that form, (if he has, the forms of the English liturgy are most impertinent, which intrude themselves on us, and do not leave us to it), yet that it may not be used as a prayer, or as a form, I know none that do affirm; though it is plain it is principally intended for a directory in prayer, Matth. vi. 9.

Laftly, They fhould often be put in mind of their baptifmal vows: and I judge it advifeable, that when ye have been at pains to inftruct them in the principles of religion, and they have attained to a tolerable measure of knowledg:, fo that with judgment they may perfonally confent to the covenant, as a child religiously educated may be able to do betwixt nine and twelve years of age, if not before; it would be profitable to call them before you, and folemnly declare how ye have laboured to do your duty to them, as ye engaged in their baptism, and require them expressly to confent unto the covenant for themselves; taking them perfonally engaged to be the Lord's.

4. Correction, Eph. vi. 4. The Greek word there fignifies both correction and inftruction; and fo does the Englifh word nurture. They muft go together; for inftruction without correction will hardly fucceed. Parents muft keep their children in fubjection; if they lofe their authority over them, the children will be children of Belial indeed, without a yoke, the end of which will be fad, Prov. xxix. 15. They muft not only be corrected by reproof, but, when need is, with ftripes, Prov. xix. 18. Begin early, as foon as they are capable to be bettered by it; and let your love to them engage you to it, and not reftrain you, Prov. xiii. 24. As ever ye would keep them out of hell, correct them, Prov. xxiii. 13. 14. I offer the following advices in this point.

(1.) Take heed ye correct not your children just to fatisfy your own passion; for the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God. That is revenge, not correction. Let the end of your correction be the child's good. It were good that parents, if they find themselves in a passion, would first beat down their own difordered spirits before the beat the child.

(2.) Let them know well wherefor ye correct them: for if the child know not what he has done amifs, he can never be bettered by the correction. And therefore pains thould be be taken to convince them of the evil of the thing ; otherwife we deal not with them as rational creatures.

(3.) Confider well the difpofition of the child. That feverity may be neceffary for one, that will quite crufh another. A man will not take his ftaff to threfh his corn, nor yet his flail to beat out kail-feed. Meafure your correction, then, by the child's difpofition.

(4.) Go about the work with an eye to the Lord for fuccefs. Correct thy child in faith of the promife, Prov. xxii. 15. "Foolifhnefs is bound in the heart of a child, but the rod of correction fhall drive it far from him," viz. as a mean appointed and bleffed of God for that end. It is our belief, and not our blows, that will do the bufinefs. And no doubt the neglect of this is one main caufe why correction oft-times does no good.

Lafly, Take heed ye correct not your children only for faults againft yourfelves, letting them pafs with their fins againft God. Many will give them a blow for a difrefpectful word againft themfelves, who for lying, banning, Sabbath-breaking, will never touch them. Their children's crofting of them muft not go unpunifhed, but it will be long ere they correct them for their fins againft God.

5. The caffing them the copy of a good example, Pfal. ci. 2. Children are apt to imitate their parents, but efpecially in evil. He that fins before a child, fins twice, for he may expect that his fin fhall be acted over again. Let them, then, not fee you do any thing ye would not have them to do, nor fpeak words ye would not have them to follow you in. Your good precept will not flick, if it be not fastened with a good example.

6. Encouraging of them to do well; and when they do well, with kind looks, fpeeches, and actions, 1 Chron. xxviii. 20. Ingenuous fpirits are but abufed, when they are always driven by way of authority, and not drawn in the way of kindnefs. The name of a father and mother founds of bowels of kindnefs; it is a pity it fhould ever degenerate into the nature of mere mafterly authority.

7. Laftly, Seafonable disposing of them in marriage, if need be, Ruth iii. 1. 1 Cor. vii. 36. So did Abraham with his fon Isaac, Gen. xxiv.; and Isaac with his fon Jacob, Gen. xxviii.; always confulting their own inclinations, not forcing them to this or that marriage against their will, which is but either to oblige them to disobey their parents, or to make themselves milerable to please them. The neglect glect of this duty may prove a fnare to the child, and bring grief and forrow to both.

4. There is a duty they owe to them at all times; and that is praying for them. Sometimes this is all they have accefs to do for them. But be they never fo far away, they thould not be forgotten. Though they be out of your family, they fhould not be out of your prayers, as Job's children were not, Job i. 5. And parents thould confider the feveral cafes of their children, and be very particular before the Lord for them. It is marked of Job, that " he offered burnt-offerings according to the number of them all," ib. And though in fome cafes this may not be convenient in family-prayers, yet, in fecret, parents fhould have their particular petitions for their particular children, according to their particular cafes.

5. Lafly, The duty that parents when a-dying owe to their children. We must all die, and leave our children, else they will leave us before. Lay up these few advices, then, for that time.

(1.) If Providence furprife you not, call together your children, that you may do them good by your advice at your latter end, as Jacob did, Gen. xlix. 1. And do it time-oufly, left, if you delay, you be not able to fpeak to them when you would. A word from a deathbed has ufually more influence than ten words in a time of health; and words fpoken with the dying breath of a parent are fair to flick.

(2.) Lay over your children whom ye are to leave, on the Lord himfelf; and whether ye have any thing to leave them or not, leave them on your covenanted God by faith, Jer. xlix. 11. Accept of the covenant now, renew it then, and lay the ftrefs of their through-bearing on that God on whom ye have laid the ftrefs of your own fouls.

(3.) Give them your teftimony for God, againft fin, and concerning the vanity of the world. If ye have had any experience of religion, commend Chrift, and the way of the Lord, to them from your own experience, Gen xlviii, 15. 16. If ye have had experience of the evil and bitternefs of fin, fhew them the ill of it. What courfes ye have found profitable for your foul, and what hurtful; mark thefe to them particularly. If experience fail, yet confcience may help you out, if awakened, to this teftimony.

(4.) Give them your dying advice to make choice of Chrift

Chrift as their portion, and holinefs as their way, to cleave to it, living and dying in it. And what faults ye know are in any of them, which ye could not before get reformed, let your dying lips again reprove, exhort, obteft, and teftify againft, if fo be they may be perfuaded to hearken at laft.

(5.) Blefs them, in praying for them to God, the fountain of bleffing; declaring withal, that they shall be bleffed, if they keep the way of the Lord.

(6.) Let your temporal affairs be fo ordered, as that after your decease they may not be a fnare to your children, a bone of contention, or an occasion of grudge, one of them against another, If. xxxviii. 1.

U/e 1. This ferves for conviction and humiliation to those that are in that relation. In these things we offend all, both in the matter and manner of duty; which may fend us to the Father of mercies, through Christ, for grace to remove our guilt, and to fit us to reform.

2. I exhort parents to be dutiful to their children, according to the will of God laid before you in his word. For motives, confider,

(1.) The firong tie of natural affection laid upon you. Our children are parts of ourfelves, and therefore our bowels fhould yearn towards them, moving us to do to them all the good we can. There are three things that may make our affection work towards dutifulnefs to them.

[1.] They have fin conveyed to them by natural generation, Pfal. li. 5. We may rejoice in them, indeed, as God's gifts; but, alas! we may mourn over them as bearing naturally our own finful image. As they are our children, they are children of wrath; they have a corrupt finful nature conveyed unto them. Did they derive fome hereditary bodily difeafe from us, how would we pity them, and do what in us lies to help them? but they derive a hereditary foul difeafe from Adam by us, and fhould we not pity and pray for them ?

[2.] Great is the danger they are in, if we do not our duty to them. They are in a world of fnares; if we be not eyes to them, they may fall to their ruin. If the wild afs's colt be not tamed by education, they are in a fair way to be ruined in time by a finful life, Prov. xxix. 15.; and if mercy prevent it not, they are in a fair way to be ruined to eternity.

[3.] Education is a bleffed mean of grace. So was it to good Obadiah, I Kings xviii. 12.; and fo it was to Timothy, 2 Tim. 2 Tim. iii. 15. compare chap. i. 5. Why, becaufe it is a mean appointed of God for that end, and therefore may be followed in faith of the promite, Prov. xxii. 6. "Train up a child in the way he fhould go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Chap. xxiii. 14. "Thou fhalt beat him with the rod, and fhalt deliver his foul from hell." Augustine's mother was a good woman; but fuch was his life, that it coit her many prayers and tears; and weeping to one about his cafe, "Go thy way (faid he to her), for it cannot be that a fon of these tears can perifh;" and fo it was.

(2.) This is a great part of our generation-work, the work that we have to do for the honour of God in the world, Pfal. lxxviii. 3. 4. to do our endeavour to hand down religion and honefty to the fucceeding generation. And we must give an account to God of it. And as kings must account to God for what they have done for him in their kingdoms, and ministers in their congregations, fo must parents account to him for what they have done in their families.

(3.) The vows of God are upon us for that caufe. Thefe are little minded by many, but God does not forget them. As Sarah was under the bond of the covenant by her hufband's circumcifion; fo mothers are under the bond of the covenant by the vows taken on by their hufbands; and are therefore obliged to ufe their utmoft endeavours to fulfil thefe vows in the education of their children.

And the due confideration of this might engage children to be obedient and pliable to the commands, infructions, and directions of their parents, for their good.

I come now to the relation betwixt mafters and fervants, for which you may read Col. iii. 22. & iv. 1. "Servants, obey in all things your mafters according to the fleth; not with eye-fervice, as men-pleafers, but in finglenefs of heart, fearing God. Mafters, give unto your fervants that which is just and equal, knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven."

The fervants duty is laid down, ver. 22. "Servants, obey in all things your mafters," &c. Wherein confider, (1.) The duty enjoined them, "obedience". (2.) The extent of it, "in all things," in things religious and civil, in eager or harder pieces of fervice; nothing is excepted but what is finful; and that is excepted in that claufe, "your mafters according to the flefh;" that is, the outward man, to diftinguifh them from the great Lord and Mafter of the con-Vol. III. C fcience; in which refpect we are forbidden to be "fervants of men," I Cor. vii. 23.; and to "call no man mafter," Matth. xxiii. 8. Therefore Jofeph is commended for refufing the folicitations of his miftrefs to uncleannefs, and Saul's fervants that they would not flay the Lord's priefts. (3.) The manner of it; negatively, "not with eye fervice;" that is, when the mafter's eye is the meafure of their work, bufy before him; but if he turn his back, they flacken their hand: pofitively, " in finglenefs of heart;" that is, faithfully, as under the eye of God, to whom they muft give account.

The mafter's duty is laid down, chap. iv. I. Wherein, (I.) We have the duty they owe to their fervants. It is taken up in two general heads. [I.] They are to "give them what is juft;" that is, what they are obliged to give them by ftrict law or condition; give them what they owe them by ftrict juftice. [2.] "What is equal;" that is, what they are tied to by the law of charity and Chriftian meeknefs, though not of ftrict juftice. (2.) The reafon enforcing it is, becaufe mafters on earth " have a Mafter in heaven, to whom they muft give an account, as of other things, fo of how they do to their fervants.

Before I come to the duties of fervants and mafters, two things are to be confidered, viz. who are meant by fervants, and who by mafters.

1. Who are meant by fervants. Not to fpeak of bondfervants or flaves, whole bodies are perpetually under the power of their mafters, there being no fuch fervitude among us; fervants, who are mercenary, or hirelings, are of two forts. (1.) Domeftic fervants, who live in their mafter's family. (2.) Extra-domeftic fervants, who, though they live not in their mafter's family, but by themfelves, yet receive his wages, whether for a few days, as day-labourers, men or women; or for certain terms, as herds, hinds, &c. All thefe come under the name of fervants, and owe a duty to their mafters, according to the law of God.

2. Who are meant by mafters. (1.) There is the principal mafter, the mafter of the family, who pays the wages. (2.) There are fubordinate mafters. Such are, [1.] The miftrefs of the family, Pfal. cxxiii. 2. [2.] Fellow-iervants, or others deputed by, and having power from, the principal mafter, to overfee others, Gen. xxiv. 2. Thefe must be obeyed, as having the mafter's authority, unlefs it be known that that they go crofs to the will and interest of the principal master. And here I shall confider,

1. The duty fervants owe to their mafters.

2. The duty of mafters with respect to their fervants.

First, I am to fhew the duty which fervants owe to their matters. They owe,

1. Inward reverence towards them, and fear of them, 1 Pet. ii. 18. Mal. i. 6. They should have a hearty respect to the character of a master, with a confcientious regard to the superiority that God has given them over them, wherein they are, so far, to them in the place of God, Eph. vi. 5. " as unto Christ." They should fear to offend them, to displease them by doing or omitting any thing which they know will offend them, Eph. vi. 5.

2. Honour, Mal. i. 6. They ought outwardly to carry refpectfully to them, whatever they be, if they be their mafters, and that both in word and deed. An humbly fubmiffive and refpectful countenance and carriage towards a mafter, is an excellent ornament of a fervant. Neither the badnefs of the mafter, nor his goodnefs and piety, leaves fervants a latitude in this point. Though they be bad men, yet they are mafters, 1 Tim. vi. 1.; and if they be fellow Chriftians, that takes not way the diffance of flations, ver. 2.

3. Carefulnefs to maintain the credit of the family, not difclofing the fecrets thereof, nor blazing abroad their infirmities. The king of Syria was troubled to think that any of his fervants fhould be as fpies upon him, 2 Kings vi. 11. And furely tale-bearing fervants muft be a great plague to a family. It is reckoned among the mifchiefs of an evil time, when there is no trufting of any body, that a man's enemies are those of his own house, Micah vii. 6. It is a Judas-like treachery, when men or women are brought into a house to eat their bread and work their work, to go abroad among others and wound their reputation.

4. Standing to the mafter's allowance, both in things determined by condition and not determined. Some things are determined by condition, that the fervants may require; and when the mafter allows that, though the fervant may think it too little, he ought not to take more at his own hand. So when fervants are allowed to keep fo many beafts; and no more, it is their fin to keep more; though they may think it is no fault if they can get it kept fecret, it does no great wrong to the mafter. But that is injuffice to the mather, and your fin before God, in whofe fight it will be rec-C 2 koned koned theft, Gen. xxx. 23. And in things not determined by condition, as the measure of diet and liberty, certainly the master's allowance in that is to be ftood to. As to their diet, it is observed of the virtuous woman, Prov. xxxi. 15. "She giveth meat to her household:" they do not take it at their own hand. The fecret waste that fome make in the houses of others for their bellies, is oft-times, I believe, punished with hungry bellies when they come to their own. As for their liberty and time, it is carved out by the masters, not by the fervants, ver. 15. 18. And for fervants to take their mafter's time to employ for themselves, without their master's allowance, is injustice.

5. Meek and patient fubmiffion to the checks and rebukes of the mafter, not anfwering again, Tit. ii. o. The ears of fervants are bored to hear, and their tongues not filed to fpeak. It is very good reafon, will ye fay, when we are in a fault; though many will not take a word in that cafe, without giving the mafter as good as he brings. But if they have done no fault, they think they are not obliged to bear a rebuke. But the Spirit of God does not teach fo, I Pet. ii. 18. 19. 20. " Servants, be fubject to your mafters, with all fear, not only to the good and gentle, but alfo to the froward. For this is thank-worthy, if a man for confcience toward God endure grief, fuffering wrongfully. For what glory is it, if, when ve be buffeted for your faults, ye fhall take it patiently ? but if, when ye do well, and fuffer for it, ye take it patiently; this is acceptable with God." It may be the mafter's fin to chide unreasonably, but it is the fervant's fin not to bear it meekly. Sarah dealt harldly with her maid, which was her fin; yet the angel will not allow Hagar to take her heels for it, but obliges her to return and fubmit, Gen. xvi. 9.

9. Laftly, Serving them conficientioufly and honeftly. If fervants expect their wages, they owe their mafter fervice; and God will have them to make conficience of their fervice. If we look to the word of God, there is much that goes to this.

(1.) Servants must be obedient and pliable to the commands of the mafter in all lawful things, Tit. ii. 9. Though the fervice required may be painful and hard, yet they ought not to refufe it. Thus Jacob ferved Laban, Gen. xxxi. 40. 41. without confidering, that he was as good a man as his mafter was. They that put their necks under the yoke, fhould refolve to bear it.

(2.) Ye fhould follow the mafter's direction in the management nagement of the work, not only doing what you are bidden, but as ye are bidden, Pfal. cxxiii. 2. The mafter is the eye to direct, and the fervant the hand to do what is directed. That the fervant may calmly advife the mafter, there is no doubt; but they that will do nothing pleafantly, if they get not their own way of it, forget themfelves and their duty.

(3.) Ye fhould do your bufinefs cheerfully, Col. iii. 23. Such a fervant was Jacob to his uncle Laban, Gen. xxix. 20. Sullennefs and going about bufinefs grudgingly, makes it unacceptable, though otherwife well done.

(4.) Ye fhould do your business fingly. This a fervant does when he does not confult his own ease and humour, but his master's true interest, truly aiming at the thriving of his affairs, carefully avoiding every thing that may tend to his loss; and therefore pursuing his interest when the master is absent as well as when present, aiming at his duty as under the eye of God.

(5.) Ye fhould do your bufinefs faithfully. Faithfulnefs is a neceffary qualification in a good fervant, Matth. xxiv. 45. Servants having their mafter's fubftance among their hands, had need to be faithful, they having occation to wrong him eafily, if they have no respect to confcience. But the fear of God will make people faithful to men in little and in great things. They must not take of their mafter's goods to their own ufe, without his allowance, Tit. ii. 10. They must be faithful in their accounts, and not give up falfe accounts, as the unjust fteward did, Luke xvi. 6.; nor alledge falfe commiffions from their mafter, as Gehazi did, 2 Kings v. 22. Jacob's faithfulnefs was his comfort, that though he had his mafter's flocks among his hands, he was free of them, Gen xxxi. 38.

6. Diligence and carefulnefs about their mafter's bufinefs, Prov. xxii. ult. Negligence and carelefinefs is a piece of injuftice, whereby fervants defraud their mafters, Prov. xviii. 9.; for the lofs may be all one to the mafter, whether it be procured wilfully or through carelefinefs.

7. Lafly, Readinefs and quicknefs in the difpatch of bufinefs. A flothful lazy fervant is most uneasly, Prov. x. 26. Such a one, quick and ready, was Abraham's fervant, Gen. xxiv. 33. 56. It is an apostolical precept, Rom. xii. II. "Not flothful in bufinefs; fervent in fpirit;" for fervants should ply their work, and honefily employ their firength for their master's behoof, Gen. xxxi, 6.

SECONDLY,

SECONDLY, I come now to fhew the duty of mafters with refpect to their fervants, 1. In the choice of them; and, 2. When they have got them.

Fir/l, In the choice of fervants, two things are to be noticed.

1. Chriftian mafters fhould look to the converfation of thofe whom they take to be their fervants, that they be pioufly inclined, as David did, Pfal. ci. 6. left they bring an Achan into their camp. A pious fervant may bring a bleffing to the mafter, as in Jofeph's cafe. It is obfervable, that Potiphar faw that God was with Jofeph, ere he entrufted him with his bufinefs, Gen. xxxix. 3. 4. When Jonah came to the fhipmafter, he took him into his fhip without afking queftions, but ere all was done he was made to do it, Jonah i. 8.

2. They fhould look to their fitnefs and ability for their fervice, Pfal. cxii. 5. So Laban had knowledge of what Jacob could do before he engaged with him; for he flaid with him a month, Gen xxix. 14. 15.

Secondly, When they have got them. There are two things in the general that they owe unto them.

1. That which is juft. Juft things must be done to all, and particularly to those that are under us. God takes special notice of injustice done by superiors to inferiors, who cannot so well get themselves righted. And by the law of strict justice masters are,

(1.) To allow their fervants fufficient maintenance, whether within or without the houfe, Prov. xxvii. 27. If mafters get their work, it is just they should allow them food convenient, whereby they may be fitted for their work. The mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn was not to be muzzled; for our fakes doubtlefs God faith it, that those who work should eat fufficiently.

(2.) To give them payment of their wages, the keeping back whereof is a great opprefilon and crying fin, Jam. v. 4. Mafters fhould beware of all fraud and deceit in this. It thands as a blot on Laban's memory, that he did not keep conditions with Jacob, but changed his wages ten times, Gen. xxxi. 41.; for which he might make fome plaufible pretence as well as others. To pay them what is infufficient, putting them off with any thing that may make up account, is unjuft, Amos viii. 6. Nay, the keeping it up, and delaying to pay them, when it is in the power of our hand, is contrary to juffice, Deut. xxiv. 14. 15.

(3.)

(3.) They fhould require no more of them than they are able to do. Servants fhould not be kept idle, Prov. xxix. 21.; neither fhould they be rigoroufly prefied above their power, but allowed convenient time for reft and refrefiment, Lev. xxv. 43. It is just, not only because they are fellowcreatures, but fellow Christians.

(4.) Overfight and direction in what they found do, Prov. xxxi. 27. Thus Boaz is found in the field with his reapers. It is very unjust to find fault with what fervants do, while men will not be at pains to tell them how they would have their business done.

2. They owe them that which is equal by the law of Christian meekness and charity. Now, thus they owe unto them these things.

(1.) Mafters ought to rule their fervants gently and meekly, as being of the fame blood with themfelves, Eph. vi. 9. A proud and imperious carriage does not become Christianity. They should moderate or relax threatening, not do all with them with boatting and terror, but by meeknefs draw them on.

(2.) They fhould be ready to hear them in what they have to fay. It is the character of a Nabal, that "he was fuch a fon of Belial, that a man could not fpeak to him," I Sam. xxv. 17. Job declares himfelf to have been of another temper, Job. xxxi. 13. The advice of a fervant, modeftly propofed, is not to be flighted, 2 Kings v. 13. 14.; and if there be any thing they have to complain of, mafters fhould hearken thereto, and do them right, as they would have God to hearken to themfelves.

(3.) They should be wary of hearkening to ill tales concerning them, Prov. xxix. 12. An easiness to believe every tale makes an uneasy life, especially ill tales concerning those in whom people are particularly concerned.

(4.) They ought to take care of them when they are fick, efpecially when they have none other to care for them. It is highly reafonable that they flould be cared for in their ficknefs by those in whose fervice they have fpent their ftrength, Matth. viii. 6. It is noted as a piece of the cruelty of an Amalekite, that he left his fervant when ficknefs overtook him, I Sam. xxx. 13.

(5.) They fhould encourage and fhew special favour, even by letting fomething beyond condition fall to sfaithful and diligent fervants. This is very equal; reason, interest, and religion, religion, call for it, Prov. xiv. ult. For a faithful fervant is one of the beft of friends.

(6.) Lastly, They should be concerned for the good of the fouls of their fervants. For in this cafe mafters are inftead of parents to them. They fhould inftruct them in the principles of religion, and labour to train them up in the ways of godlinefs, fetting them on and ftirring them up to duty, Gen. xviii. 19. They should daily pray with them and for them, by keeping up religious duties in their family, Jer. x. And they fhould labour to bring them to the public 25. ordinances, Jofh. xxiv. 15.; reftrain them by their authority from fcandalous and finful words or deeds, as from profaning of the Sabbath, &c.; and reprove them for their fins against God, as well as faults against themselves; and if they will not refrain they ought to turn them out of their family, Pfal. ci. 7.

U/e 1. This may ferve to convince and humble both mafters and fervants.

Ule 2. I exhort fervants to be dutiful to their masters. For motives, confider,

1. That in your fervice ye have two mafters, one on earth, and another in heaven, Col. iii. 23. Your mafter on earth fays, Do this fo or fo; and your Mafter in heaven fays, "Whatfoever he faith unto you do it," John ii. 5. And here know, (1.) That your Mafter in heaven has given you his orders how ye must carry in fervice to men, as well as in praying, &c. to himfelf. (2.) He fees how ye obey these orders. His eye is always on you. (3.) He will call you to an account how ye obey thefe. (4.) He will account the fervice faithfully done, fervice to himfelf; and, on the other hand, undutifulness to men, undutifulness to himfelf.

2. God himfelf will be your paymafter, according as ye carry yourfelves in your flation. (1.) God will reward dutiful fervants. There is a temporal reward that God ordinarily beftows on fuch, Prov. xvii. 2. " A wife fervant fhall have rule over a fon that caufeth shame, and shall have part of the inheritance among the brethren." And that is what Providence lays to the hands of honeft fervants, that are not fincere Chriftians. But true Chriftian fervants shall get the reward of the heavenly inheritance, Col. iii. 24. (2.) God will reward undutiful fervants too, ver. 25. Ordinarily God writes his indignation against their undutifulness in their lot in the world; but if they repent not, the quarrel is purfued to another world. That is a fad word, Luke xvi. 11. "If ye ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your truft the true riches?"

τ

Let mafters be dutiful to their fervants according to the will of God. For motives, confider,

1. Ye are as fathers to them. The fifth command fuppofeth this; and fo the fcripture elfewhere teacheth, 2 Kings v. 13. Ye are civil fathers, and inftead of natural fathers to them. They are committed to your charge, as under your roof and power. God would have all fuperiors to put on fatherly bowels towards their inferiors, as he who is fupreme Lord calls himfelf " Our Father which is in heaven." If mafters would thus look on themfelves, it would engage them to their duty towards their fervants. When God brings a fervant into a houfe, efpecially those of the younger fort, either wanting parents, or leaving them to ferve you, he fays, as John xix. 26. 27. " Man, behold thy fon 5" and to the fervant, " Behold thy father."

2. Ye have a mafter which is over you and your fervants too, to whom ye muft give account, Col. iv. 1. And there is no refpect of perfons with him. He has given a law to the mafter as well as to the fervant; and in judging of them he will not favour the mafter more than the fervant. Pride makes men imperious and oppreffive. Here is a fovereign remedy to curb it. Let us remember that we have a Mafter in heaven, Job xxxi. 13. 14. And fo much for family-relations.

I come now to confider the relation betwixt ecclefiaftical fathers and their children. These fathers are preaching and ruling elders. Here I shall confider, 1. The duties of ministers and people; and, 2. Those of ruling elders and people.

FIRST, I shall shew the duties of ministers and people. First, I shall shew the duty people owe to their ministers.

1. They owe them fingular reverence, and that becaufe of that honourable fration wherein Chrift has placed them, fending them to deal with finners in his own flead, I Cor. iv. 1. 2 Cor. v. 20. This founds that debt of reverence, Rom. x. 15.; and fhould be expressed in word and deed. They are the flars whom Chrift holds in his right-hand; and though they fhine not fo clear as ye would wish, people would beware of treading them under foot, feeing Chrift bolds them in his right-hand, Rev. i. 20. compare chap. ii. 4. 14. 20. &c.

2. Endeared love to them for their work's fake, 1 Thefl. v. 13. Gal. iv. 14. 15. The gefpel is the greatest benefit Vol. III. D that that men can partake of; and it is very natural to love those who are the inftruments by whom the Lord conveys great benefits to us. And as minifters muft lay their account with the hatred of those that hate the light, so those that get good of ordinances will as naturally love them as the child does the father and mother. But as there are unnatural children in the family, who little regard the father that begat them, or the mother that bare them; so it is not to be wondered, that there are unnatural children in the church, that reject those by whose means they have got any acquaintance with religion that they have, and cast reproaches on the breasts of ordinances, in fucking of which they grew up.

3. Diligent attendance on ordinances of all forts difpenfed by them, as word, facraments, catechifing, &c. Heb. x. 25. Luke x. 16. In vain do thefe ftars fhine, if their be none to receive their light. The fame word that obliges minifters to difpenfe ordinances, muft needs oblige people to attend them; and that even though they may lie at a confiderable diffance from them, 2 Kings iv. 22. 23. The woman there mentioned had fixteen miles to go to the man of God.

4. Submiffion to them in things pertaining to their office, Heb. xiii. 17.; fubmitting to difcipline exercifed by them in the name of Chrift; to their infructions, cordially receiving them from the word; to their reproofs, whether public or private; to their exhortations and charges, wherein they hold forth to you the will of God, ib. Jam. i. 21. They who do otherwife, fin againft their own fouls, as well as difcourage minifters by their untractablenefs, and do but lay up witneffes againft themfelves, to be led againft them at the great day. It is not the hearers of the word, but the doers thereof, that are juftified. It will be no advantage to you to have heard, but never complied.

5. Praying for them, I Theff. v. 25. The work in which they are engaged is a great work. Who is fufficient for it? They have need of prayers for them. Your own interest may engage you to it. They may do their work, but the fuccess of it must be fetched from heaven by prayer, I Cor. x. 4. We have the fword, but how shall we get the arm? We may compass Jericho, and give the shout; but it is the power of God that must make the walls to fall. Like Gideon's three hundred men, we may bear the lamps in our empty pitchers, blow with the trumpet, and the earthen pitchers may be broken in the cause, but God only can do the work, Judges vil.

6. People

6. People fhould be very tender of the reputation of miniiters; it being a tender thing, fo much interwoven with the fuccels of the gofpel. The Spirit of God, feeing that the devil would be very ready to mark at their reputation in a fpecial manner, by a wicked world and falfe brethren, has fet a double hedge about it, I Tim. v. 19. "Againft an elder receive not an accufation, but before two or three witneffes." So that ye ought not only not to flander them, but to be loath to receive those flanders vented by others againft them, believing nothing therein without proof.

7. Lafly, Maintenance. This by divine right is due from people to their ministers, 1 Cor. ix. 14.

Secondly, I shall shew the duty of ministers to their people.

1. They owe tender love to the fouls of their people.— They fhould be full of bowels towards them, 1 Theff. ii. 7. 8.; which fhould appear in their preaching, and all parts of their work.

2. Diligent and faithful difpenfing of all gofpel-ordinances to them, word, facraments, &c. It is a labour, and they must take it fo, willing to fpend and be fpent in the fervice of their Lord, and of precious fouls. And indeed they are as lighted candles, which while they thine wafte, 2 Tim. iv. 2. i Theff. ii. 3. 4.

3. Behaving fo as they may be examples of holinefs and tendernefs, Tit. ii. 7.; for precept, without example, will have little influence.

4. Watching over their flocks, that being ready to be acquainted with their flate and cafe, they may be in capacity to inftruct, comfort, and admonish them, &c. as the cafe requires, Heb. xiii. 7.

5. Lastly, Praying for them, Eph. i. 15. 16.

SECONDLY, I come to fnew the duties of ruling elders and the people over whom they are appointed overfeers. And as we are this day to ordain fome to that office, I shall difcourfe of this subject a little more fully than 1 would otherwise have done, in a catechetical exercise. I propose to difcourfe on this occasion, from that text,

D 2

1 Tim.

I Tim. v. 17.—Let the elders that rule well, be counted worthy of double bonour, especially they who labour in the word and destrine.

THE church is the kingdom of Chrift, and the holy fcriptures are the book of the manner of the kingdom. There the inflitution of church-officers, their work, and the dutics owing them by others, are only to be found. And whatever officers of the church men pretend to be, if their office be not found there, they have no due call to their work, but are ufurpers and intruders.

In the words read, the apoftle gives us the work affigned by Jefus Chrift to elders of the church, and what is due for it unto them from the church: Let the elders that rule well, be counted worthy of double bonour. Here he diffinguishes two forts of elders of the church.

1. Ruling elders. The word elder originally is a name of age; but here, and in many other places of feripture, it is evident, that it is the name of an office, being the name of ruling church-officers, becaufe ufually taken out of the elder fort, or that, though of the younger, yet they ought to be men of gravity and authority. Here confider,

(1.) The work of thefe elders, from whence their defignation is taken. It is to rule, and govern the church, as those who are fet over it by the Lord. For the Lord has not left his church in a flate of anarchy and confusion, but appointed fome to rule, and others to be ruled.

(2.) How they ought to manage their work, well; i.e. rightly, worthily, according to the rules preferibed them by Chrift, the chief Bishop.

(3.) What is due from the church to thole who fo manage it; double, i. e. abundant konour. This honour implies two things, v(x, (1,)) Maintenance. This is evident from ver. 18. (2.) Effect and reputation, Phil. ii. 29.

Epifcopalians, as they have given us the prelate, an officer whom Chrift never appointed, fo they rob us of the ruling elder, which the text fo plainly difcovers to be a church-officer of divine inflitution. To evite the force of which, they turn this elder into various fhapes : but in vain. For by the elders that rule well, cannot be underflood fuperannuated miniflers, as fome fay ; for it is evident that the preaching elder is to have more honour than this elder. But it is flocking to the common fenfe of the people of God, to honour and effeem a young laborious minister more than an old one, who has fpent his ftrength in the work. Nor by them are to be understood magiltrates, as others fay; for at this time they were not fo much as members of the church. Nor are deacons meant hereby, as others fay; for their work is not to rule the church, but to ferve tables, Acts vi. 2. Nor are we to underftand by them the fixed paftors of flocks, in opposition to those that travelled up and down to vifit and confirm the churches, whom they underftand by those that labour, namely, to wearines, in the last part of the verfe. For the work of the fixed paftor is fuch a labour too, 1 Theff. v 12. Nor vet fuch as were unfit for preaching, yet administered the facraments, prayed with the church, and privately admonifhed the unruly. But fuch an officer, I am fure, is unknown to the Bible. It remains, then, that they are those whom we call ruling elders, whose work is, as in the text, to govern the church, but not to preach the word ; and therefore they are diffinguished from preaching elders, as is plain from the particle efpecially; as Phil. iv. 24. " All the faints falute you, chiefly they that are of Cæfar's houfehold." Chiefly is the fame word in the Greek that is here rendered efpecially; and it plainly implies, that there were fome faints at Rome not of Cæfar's houfehold. So here are defcribed fome elders that rule well, and do not labour in word and doctrine.

28

2. Preaching elders : Their work is to preach the gofpel; to labour in the word and doctrine. To them in a fpecial manner, by the text, double bonour is due, i. e. maintenance and respect, forasmuch as their office is greater and more honourable, not only in ruling of the church, as the others do, but preaching of the gofpel befides. Where, by the by, we may fee, that if Paul's doctrine had place in the world, the preaching parish-minister would have more honour than the non-preaching bilhop, who contents himfelf with ruling, but puts not his fhoulders to the labour in the word and doctrine. Maintenance, we fee, is due to both fort of elders, by divine right. But it is no fin for either to quit their right in certain circumstances. And with us the ruling elders are allowed no maintenance, but the preaching elders are. The reafon of this is the poverty of the church that cannot bear it; and that our ruling elders are not taken off their fecular employments, as ministers are.

The

The doctrine deducible from the text is,

Doct. "Ruling elders rightly difcharging their duty, are worthy of abundant honour."

Having fufficiently cleared the divine inflitution of ruling elders from the text, which is clear alfo from Rom. xii. 8. 1 Cor. xii. 28. I fhall, in profecution of the doctrine, fhew,

I. What is the duty of thefe officers.

II. What it is to difcharge the duties of that office well.

III. What is the honour that people owe to their ruling elders.

IV. Apply.

I. I am to fhew what is the duty of these officers.

The apofile tells us in the general, that their work as tuling elders is to rule the church. The keys of jurifdiction and government are not given to one, but to the unity of church-officers acting together; fo, together with the paftor, they are to rule the congregation. God fetting a minifter in a congregation, fays to him, It is not meet the man fhould be alone, 1 will make him an help meet for him.— And a fociety of diligent and faithful elders are a meet help indeed. And without that the weight of a congregation is too heavy for the fhoulders of one, as Exod. xviii. 18. But more particularly,

1. They are to be careful overfeers of the manners of the people. Hence the apoftle fays to the elders of Ephefus, Acts xx. 28. " Take heed therefore unto yourfelves, and to all the flock over which the Holy Ghoft hath made you overfeers, to feed the church of God." And as minifters are a mouth to the church, fo they are to be inflead of eyes. And therefore it is neceffary, for the good of a congregation, that there be of them in every corner. For they are truly watchmen, whom the Holy Ghoft has fet over the flock, as well as minifters are. And they ought to acquaint themfelves with the way of the people, that fo they may encourage these that do well, and warn those that do evil. And unlefs elders do fo, and communicate their help in that matter to the paftor, he may be long in a congregation, and yet be a ftranger to many under his charge ; and fo ministerial visitations may be very useles.

2. Though they are not to preach the word, yet they are to apply the word privately to people by virtue of their office. They are to have a mouth to fpeak, as well as eyes to take heed to the flock of God, I Tim. iii. 2.—" Apt to teach." There There is a word pat to this purpole, I Theff. v. 12.—" Are over you, and admonifh you." It is the fame word in our text. The word admonifb there used, is far from expressing the full meaning of the word the Holy Ghost useth here, used also Eph. vi. 4. It properly fignifies to " put into the mind." And fo it implies a fivefold duty.

(1.) Exciting people to their duty. Observing negligence, they ought to ftir up people to their duty; e. g. those that neglect family-prayer, fecret prayer, attending regularly on ordinances, or are negligent of their fouls state any way, they should drop a word to stir them up.

(2.) Rebuking of fin. Reproofs of wifdom are as neceffary for church-members as falt is to keep meat from corrupting. It is neceffary to difcourage fin and wickednefs in the church, which fhould be a holy fociety. And there wants not occasion enough for this, in fwearing, lying, profaning of the Sabbath, drunkennefs, ftrife, variance, and whatfoever is contrary to the rules of the gofpel.

(3.) Warning fuch as they fee in hazard of fin; to tell them of the fnare, their hazard and danger, and fo to prevent people's falling into it, as far as lies in their power. Sometimes people may be different ftaggering, and a word then duly put into their mind may, by the bleffing of God, keep them from falling.

(4.) Comforting those that are cast down, and strengthening the weak. It was the practice of holy Job, chap. iv. 4. "Thy words have upholden him that was falling, and thou hast strengthened the feeble knees." And church-rulers ought always to have a special eye upon those that are the weak and distressed in Christ's flock, to labour to support them in the Lord.

(5.) Inftructing and informing them privately. And indeed rule without inftruction is dumb, and not agreeable to the way of our Lord's governing his houfe; and excitations, rebukes, &c. can never be rightly managed without information of the mind. For if we would gain our errd in dealing with people, we must not think it enough to tell them their duty or their fin, but by reafoning with them to convince their confciences.

Thefe things are the duty of all church-members, however little it is laid to heart. Only what others are bound to by the common band of Christianity, we are bound to by our office, Lev. xix. 17. I Theff v. 14.

.3. They are to vifit the fick, and fhould be fent for, for that that end, Jam. v. 14. 15. But otherwife differentian and Chriftian love may engage them to go even when they are not fent for. They ought to pray with them and for them. And, by the fame reafon, they are to counfel, inftruct, and comfort them, according to the grace beftowed on them, and as they fee the party's cafe does require. This would be a means to render the office more effected than, alas ! it is with many. And it needs not hinder the paftor's vifits.

4. They are to concur with the paftor in the exercise of difcipline, according to the word of God, and the conftitutions of the church agreeable thereto. For minifters and elders make up that church, having the power of cenfures, Matth. xviii. 17. And thus they are to delate fcandalous perfons to the judicatory, either when their private admonitions will not do, or where the offence is in its own nature public, and cannot be paffed with private admonition. And in the managing of matters in the judicatory, they are not only to give their opinion and vote according to their light, but to reafon the matter calmly, for the finding out of the beft expedient. Admiffion to, and debarring from, the facrament of the Lord's fupper, is a weighty piece of this work, belonging to the kirk-feffion, wherein all tendernefs, caution, and wifdom should be used, to separate as far as we can betwixt the precious and the vile, that holy things be not caft to dogs.

As for the collecting and diffributing of the church's money, it is fo far from being the main work of ruling elders, that it is no part of their work as elders at all, but belongs to the deacons, which is an inferior office. But the fuperior offices of the church including the inferior ones, the elders may do it, and muft do it, where there are not deacons.

II. I come now to fhew, what it is to difcharge the duties of that office well.

1. It is to difcharge it faithfully, 1 Cor. iv. 2. It is a great truft the Mafter puts us in, and we muft act in it with that faithfulnefs to our own fouls, and the fouls of those who are under our charge, as our conficience may not have wherewith to reproach us.

2. Diligently, Rom. xii. 8. The flothful fervant that clofeth his eyes, and gives up his watch, will never be approved of God. Be diligent in your duty, and it will not want its reward.

3. Zealoufly, Pfal. lxix. 9. Zeal for the Mafter's honour, 2 and and advancing the kingdom of Chrift in real holinefs, and fuppreffing the devil's kingdom in fin and wickednefs, in the congregation, and otherwife as we have accefs, is well becoming church-officers effectially.

4. Prudently, Matth. xxiv. 45. Church-officers had need to join the wifdom of the ferpent with the fimplicity of the dove. And they will find it neceffary many a time to fweeten with prudent management the bitter pills they must give, Gal. vi. 1.

III. I proceed to fhew, what is that honour that people owe to their ruling elders.

1. They ought to efteem and refpect them for their work's fake, 1 Thefl. v. 12. 13. Their work is honourable, their Mafter whom they ferve in that work is great, and the advantage of their work redounds to the church. People's efteem of them is but a neceffary encouragement to them in the work they have undertaken, without any profpect of worldly advantage. And if people efteemed the Lord's work, they would even efteem the workers too.

2. Obedience and fubmiffion to them in their doing the work of their office, Heb. xiii. 17. If it be their duty to watch over you, excite and admonifh you, &c. ye ought not to account them meddling in what belongs not to them, when they inquire into your way. Ye ought to fall in with the duties they excite you to; meekly to receive their rebukes, admonitions, and warnings; honourably to receive their confolations, as those that have a commiffion from the Lord; and heartily to to receive their good admonition and counfel; and fubjecting yourfelves as Christ's fubjects to the difcipline of his houfe.

3. They ought to pray to God for them, 1 Theff. v. 15. It is a great work we have in hand, and your intereft is concerned in our right difcharge of it; which therefore fhould make you to give us a fhare in your prayers.

4. Shutting your ears against reproaches cast on them, and being backward to receive ill reports of them, staving them off, unlefs there be fufficient evidence, 1 Tim. v. 19. Churchofficers are those whom Satan mainly aims to difcredit, and therefore stirs up rotten-hearted hypocrites, false brethren, and a profane generation, to cast dirt upon them, that so their work may be marred in their hands, religion despised, and finners hardened.

U/e 1. As to you that are already in this honourable office, Vol. III. E and and you that are now to be ordained to it, I exhort you to labour rightly to difcharge your duty. To prefs this exhertation, I offer the following motives.

Mot. 1. Confider it is a facred office in the houfe of God, to which God has called you; and therefore let us together take that exhortation, Acts xx. 28. "Take heed therefore unto yourfelves, and to all the flock over which the Holy Ghoft has made you overfeers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchafed with his own blood." The office is honeurable in itfelf, however the world efteem of it. David, though a king, would have thought it no difparagement to him, when he faid, "A day in thy courts is better than a thoufand: I had rather be a door-keeper in the houfe of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickednefs," Pfai. Ixxxiv. 10. But it has work annexed to it; and being facred, it is not to play with. Labour to approve yourfelves to your Lord and Mafter.

Mot. 2. Ye have thereby a fair occasion to be ferviceable to God, and to advance Chrift's kingdom, and fupprefs that of the devil, in the congregation. And O what fhould we not do to do good to fouls? Jam. v. 20. " Let him know, that he which converteth the finner from the error of his way, fhall fave a foul from death, and fhall hide a multitude of fins," I think that now, of a confiderable time, I and my brethren of the eldership might have faid, "The ftrength of the bearers of burdens is decayed, and there is much rubbifh, fo that we are not able to build the wall," Neh. iv. 10.; and it has gone near to the finking of fome of our fpirits. But now that God has inclined the hearts of fo many to come over and help us; if we take courage in our Matter's work, to ply it faithfully, diligently, zealoufly, and prudently, and the Lord blefs us with unity among ourfelves, and real zeal for his honour, to put to our fhoulders jointly to the work, we may hope, by the bleffing of God, to fee a more promifing face on this congregation, fin more difcouraged, and piety more increafed.

Mot. ult. You and I muft give an account to our great Mafter, how we have carried ourfelves in his work, Heb. xiii. 17. If we be faithful, we fhall not want our reward from the chief Shepherd, who will give us a crown of life. If we be unfaithful, wo will be unto us for betraying our truft.

I give you a few advices.

1. Remember always that it is God whom ye have to do with.

with. This will make you little to regard men's feud or favour, if ye do your work agreeable to God's will.

2. Study to act in dependence on the Lord; for he fends none a-warfare on his own charges. Eye his promifed affiftance, when ye fet about your work.

3. Labour to believe, that the way of uprightnefs and faithfulnefs is the fure way. "When a man's ways pleafe the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him," Prov. xvi. 7. "He that rebuketh a man, afterwards fhall find more favour than he that flattereth him," Prov. xxviii. 23. Let men's corruptions fay what they will, their conficiences will fpeak in favour of faithful dealing.

4. Watch over your own perfons, that in your perfonal walk ye be blamelefs and exemplary, I Tim. iii. I. 2. 3. If ye be untender in your walk, ye will do more hurt than ye can do good. Being honoured to be governors in the houfe of a holy God, ye must be holy as the Master is holy; tender in your words, circumspect in your actions, and therefore watchful over your hearts.

5. Watch over your families. Every one that has a family is obliged to this, and you in a fpecial manner, 1 Tim. iii. 4. 5. The finful practices of those of your family will reflect a peculiar diffuonour on you, and by you on your Lord and Master. Therefore your families should be a church, wherein God is to be duly worshipped morning and evening; and good difcipline kept up, by admonition, reproof, and watchfulnefs.

6. Ye must watch over one another, each over his fellow-elders, knowing, that any thing fcandalous in one of the fociety reflects a diffonour on the whole, and by them on the Lord himfelf. And if ye be not careful on that fide, there will be little good of your watching over the flock. And therefore ftrict difcipline among yourfelves is abfolutely neceffary.

Use II. As to you the people, I would exhort you to make conficience of your duty towards your officers. Alas! for the little conficience that is made of that among us. I am fure we may find matter of mourning this day in that matter.

Instead of honouring of them, many defpife and pour contempt on them, more than otherwife they would do; thus vilely treating their facred office.

Inftead of fubmiffion and obedience, what refractorinefs and fpurning of difcipline for fcandalous offences! Some cannot endure to be told of their faults; but if we admonifh or reprove them, even privately, they are made worfe inftead of better; and rather than take a reproof, they will give up with ordinances.

E 2

Inftead of being careful of their reputation, fome will bawl out upon them, and abufe them on every occasion. And there is nothing with many more readily received, than the vomit of malicious and fpiteful fpirits against ministers and elders, which is greedily licked up, I Cor. iv. 13.

Hence it is, that men's hands are weakened, and they are difcouraged in their work, while they fee the people of that temper, Hof. iv. 4. And hence it is, that it is fo very hard to get men to undertake the office of elders; for they fee, that if they engage therein, they muft be the very butt of the malice and fpite of bitter fpirits; and that if they will be faithful, they engage themfelves in a fighting life, and that the ftream will go againft them. But allow me to put you in mind of three things.

1. Whofe part you act in that matter. It is the part of Satan against these men and yourselves too. Can you fall upon a more expedite way to advance the kingdom of the devil in the congregation, than to discourage and weaken the hands of those that are set over you in the Lord? Is there a fairer way to rout the army, than to make their leaders useles?

2. Whofe fervants they are. They are clothed with a commiffion from the King of the church; and the contempt poured on them reaches to their Mafter: "He that defpifeth you (fays he), defpifeth me," Luke x. 16. Will the laws of the land avenge the affronts done to a petty officer, who comes to execute the fentence of a civil court? did David feverely avenge on the Ammonites their maltreating of his fervants, whom he fent on a congratulatory meffage to them, as ye find in 2 Sam. x.? and will not the Lord Jefus refent in his wrath the maltreatment of those that are clothed with his commiffion?

3. Loft/y, Are ye not the profeffed fubjects of the kingdom of Chrift? Why then will ye not fubmit yourfelves to the laws of his houfe? Why will ye not be obedient in the Lord to thofe whom he fets over you, complying with their exhortations, admonitions, and rebukes? Luke xix. 27. Why do not ye ftrengthen their hands in the Lord's work? If ye ye have any interest in Zion's King, it is the work of our common Lord, which you are obliged to in a private way, as well as they by virtue of their office; and therefore ye are bound to co-operate with them in what serves to promote the interest of that King, whose servents you profess to be.

I proceed now to confider the relation betwixt political fathers and their children; that is, magiftrates and fubjects.

First, I shall shew the duty of subjects to magistrates.

1. They owe them fingular refpect and honour, 1 Pet. ii. 17. They are to be honoured by us in our hearts, thinking of and efteeming them reverently, and carrying a reverent fear and awe of them within our breafts, 1 Sam. xxvi. 16. 17. Prov. xxiv. 21. And this is to be expressed in a respectful behaviour towards them in word and deed.

The grounds of this are fpecially two. (1.) The ordinance of God, whereby they are fet above us in the way of power and authority, Rom. xiii.; and fubjects ought to walk in a confcientious regard to the fuperiority that God has given their rulers over them. (2.) The image of God that thines in their dominion and eminency above their fubjects, Pfal. lxxxii. 6. They are God's vicegerents on earth, whofe office bears a reprefentation of God's dominion.

2. Subjects owe them the charity to conftruct the beft of their actions that they will bear, and to beware of paffing a rash judgment of their administrations. Notable is the inftance of it in David, I Sam. xxvi. 19. "Now therefore. I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his fervant : if the Lord have flirred thee up against me, let him accept an offering: but if they be the children of men, curfed be they before the Lord; for they have driven me out this day from abiding in the inheritance of the Lord, faying, Go ferve other gods." The liberty that many take in fpeaking of magistrates, and wresting their actions still to the worft fide, is what proceeds not from the fpirit of the gospel, but is contrary to the word, an effect of their own pride and prefumption, Exod. xxii. 28. Eccl. x. 20. 2 Pet. ii. 10. Jude 8. This is alfo highly reafonable, and hath thefe grounds. (1.) That candour and charity we owe to all men, but in a fpecial manner to our fuperiors, requires it, I Cor. xiii. 5.7. (2.) Our unacquaintedness with the fprings of public bufinefs, fecrets of government, and reafons of ftate, Prov. xxv. 3. And natural modefty, as well as religion, teaches teaches men not to anfwer a matter before they hear it, Prov. xviii. 13. This dutiful children will allow to their parents, wives to their hufbands, fervants to their mafters, and inferiors to their fuperiors; and why fhould not magiftrates have it too?

3. Subjection, loyalty, and obedience to their juft laws and commands. It is bad religion where loyalty to the magistrate must stand in place of all religion towards God; but it is also bad religion where people's pretended religion towards God justles out their loyalty to the magistrate, Rom. xiii 5. This duty Papists excem churchmen from; and no wonder, for it is a part of the character of Antichrist, 2 Thesf. ii. 4.; but the scripture subjects ministers to the magistrates, as having fouls as well as others, Rom. xiii. "Let every foul be subject to the higher powers."

4. The payment of their tribute, Rom. xiii. 6. 7. This is a debt of thankfulnefs, and juffice too, for the benefits of government which the fubjects enjoy, without which the government cannot be fupported, but all would go into confusion.

5. Defending of them in danger, each one according to his flation, 2 Sam. xviii. 3. I Sam. xxvi. 15.

6. Lafly, Prayer to God for them; fupplications for fupply of wants, prayers for good things to them, interceffions for turning away of evil from them, and thankfgivings for mercies beflowed on them, I Tim. ii. I. 2. There is a reafon for it too; for the welfare of fubjects is wrapt up in theirs, ib. Much depends on their management, God's honour, our own good; and their high place has many dangers, difficulties, fnares, and temptations.

USE. Let me therefore exhort you in the words of the apostle, I Pet. ii. 13. 14. " Submit yourfelves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's fake: whether it be to the king, as fupreme; or unto governors, as unto them that are fent by him for the punishment of evil-doers, and for the praife of them that do well." Let us honour and dutifully fubject ourfelves, according to the will of God, to our gracious Sovereign King George, our rightful and lawful King by virtue of the laws of Scotland, pointed at in the claim of right, and upon which was founded the late happy Revolution. Let us adore that bountiful Providence, by which his grandfather [Frederick Elector Palatine of the Rhine] having loft one kingdom [that of Bohemia], befides his private eftate, in the caufe of the Protestant religion, three kingdoms are now conferred on the grandfon. Let us thank our God, who who did fo feafonably bring him to the throne, and that in peace, to the furprife of all parties, fo as we were like men that dreamed. Let us fuppofe that the Popish Pretender had effectuated his purpofe, what a cafe had we been in this day! Yet rejoice with trembling; it is hard to fay that Heaven and these finful nations are become friends yet. Let us be dutiful to fubordinate magistrates under him, and honour those whom God has honoured by their office, faying to them, Ye are gods. Let us not flumble atheifts, Jacobites, and malignants, against our holy religion, by contempt of the magistrate. We read the Bible, where subjection is commanded to fubjects oft and again, even to magistrates that were enemics to Christianity. We are the followers of that Jefus who paid his tribute, and taught the people of the Jews, who were more folemnly covenanted with God, and more flrictly bound up in the choice of their kings, than any nation under heaven, yet not to deny their tribute to Cæfar, the Heathen Roman emperor, who then was their chief magiftrate, Matth. xxii. 19.-21.

Secondly, I shall shew the duty of magistrates to their subjects, which I shall only name.

1. They ought to establish good laws among their subjects, and to see them duly executed, Zech. viii. 16. 2 Chron. xix. 5. 6. 7.

2. To govern them with wifdom, juffice, and clemency, 2 Chron. i. 10.

3. To punifh evil-doers, and encourage them that do well, Rom. xiii. 3.

4. To protect them, and provide for their common fafety, 1 Tim. ii. 2.; to fee to their profperity, and not to opprefs them, Prov. xxviii. 16.

5. Laftly, They ought to promote true religion, and advance the intereft of Chrift's kingdom among their fubjects, If. xlix. 23. Some will have the magiftrate to be the fountain of church-power. Others leave him nothing to do in religion but to defend the church, and execute her acts. Thus go the Papifts. Truth goes the middle way, allowing the magiftrate a cumulative, though not a privative, power in church-matters; and though he ought not to exercife a fpiritual function, yet he can command and oblige minifters and other church-officers to do their duty, authoritatively call them to do it. And this is no more to ufurp church-power, than a minifter's charging magiftrates from the word, is to ufurp civil power. See Confefion of Faith.

There

There are other relations that import a mere preference; as, betwixt the aged and the younger, the weaker in gifts and the ftronger, and between equals.

Firft, As to the relation betwixt the aged and the younger,

1. I shall confider very briefly the duties of the younger to the aged, for these are fathers and mothers in scripturelanguage, I Tim. v. I.

(1.) They ought to fubmit to them, fo as to follow their wife advice, and not to ftand upon the points with them, but to be ready to yield to them, where lawfully it may be done, I Pet. v. 5.

(2.) They ought to honour them, and carry refpectfully to them. The Ancient of days commands us to honour old age, Lev. xix. 32.

2. The aged ought, (1.) To be ready to profit the younger fort by their good advice, to tutor them, as Eli did young Samuel, 1 Sam. iii. 9. (2.) To give them the example of a virtuous and holy life, Tit. ii. 2.

Secondly, The duties of the weaker in gifts to the ftronger are,

(1.) To reverence and refpect them for the gifts of God in them, Gen. xlv. 8. (2.) To be willing and ready to learn of them. (3.) To beware of judging harfhly of them in things wherein they have a greater liberty than them, Rev. xiv. 3.

The duties of the stronger in gifts are, (1.) To communicate cheerfully to them what God has given them, and fo to help them by their gifts. (2.) To encourage them, and bear with their infirmities, Rom. xv. 1.

Lafly, The duties of equals are, (1.) To regard the dignity and worth of each other, and carry respectfully to them. 1 Pet. ii. 17. (2.) To carry modefuly towards one another, preferring in honour each other, Rom. xii. 10. (3.) To endeavour after and rejoice in one another's welfare as their own, ver. 15. 16.

II. I proceed now to fhew, what is forbidden in the fifth commandment. According to our Catechifm, it forbids " the neglecting of, or doing any thing against the honour and duty which belongeth to every one in their feveral places and relations."

This queftion is a field as large, or rather larger than the former, in fo far as to one duty feveral fins are oppofed : but fearing that ye cannot bear enlargement, having heard fo to much already on these relations, I shall contract my discourse on this into a very narrow compass.

This command is broken, (1.) By neglect of the duties we owe to our relations, which ye have heard. (2.) By doing any thing against and contrary to these duties.

Fir/l, Hufbands and wives break this command, and fin against one another, many ways. As particularly,

1. Against that tender conjugal love they owe to one another, is all unkindness, whereby, laying aside, and divesting themselves of natural association, they are furly to, careless of, and unconcerned for their relatives, or their comfort. Of this fort are their bitter speeches, reproaching and reviling one another. That felsishness, whereby they are at no pains to please one another in lawful things, and void of sympathy in one another's joys and griefs; unreasonable fusicions and jealouss, whatever be done to please them; blazing abroad their own shame, in speaking to the discredit of their relatives; contempt of and despising one another. All these are quite opposite to conjugal love.

2. Against that faithfulness they owe to one another, in respect of their bodies, is infidelity in the gross breach of the marriage-contract, deferting and leaving one another, and defrauding one another. In respect of their means, is all idleness, mismanagement, and wastery; and in respect of their fouls, is unconcernedness about them, being at no pains to instruct, admoniss, and watch over one another; and if at any time they tell them of their faults, it is to their reproach, being before others, or in their passion, fo that it can do no good. And much more when they become fnares and hinderances to one another, instead of meet helps, leading and provoking their relatives to fin against God, and ruin their own fouls.

Wives particularly fin against their husbands, by caffing off all reverence to them, carrying themselves imperiously towards them, being difobedient, wilful, and untractable, and, like Vashti, Efth. i. 10. 11. 12. who would not come to the king, when fent for by him, will not go an inch by their own will to please them. It is not their honour to command, whose province God has made it to obey, Ezek. xvi. 30. Eph. v. ult.

Hufbands fin against their wives in dealing untenderly with them, tyrannifing and domineering over them in a masterful way, not protecting them from theinfults of others, nor-providing for them; giving them that are their wives

Vol. III.

no

no truft, but making them, like Nabal, accountable to the utmoft farthing; nor encouraging and praifing them when they do well; moft of all in beating them, in use only with furious or mad men, Eph. v. 25. 29.

Secondly, As to parents and children :

1. Children fin against their parents by difobedience to them. Such are in the midft of the black roll, Rom. i. 30.; and are in a near way to ruin, Prov. xxx. 17. So do they by all irreverence to them, and flighting and difhonouring them in word and deed, Deut. xxvii. 16.; and much more by curfing of them, Exod. xxi. 17. Many, again, fin againft God and their parents, being unteachable, and will not hearken to their instruction, Prov. v. 7. ; they will not take a fharp word from them, but their hearts rife against them and it too, Prov. xiii. 18.; and others, though they will bear with words, yet they are flubborn, and will not fubmit to correction, Deut. xxi. 18. 19. And what will we fay of those that, like curfed Ham, make a jest of their parents infirmities, waste their substance, and prove unnatural and hard-hearted to them when they are old and in diffrefs? Prov. xix. 26. Finally, they fin by -difpofing of themfelves to callings, or in marriage, without confent of their parents. Gen. xxvi. 34. 35.

2. Parents fin against their children many ways, while they are not concerned for them while infants; but many are carelels as to the bringing up of their children to fome honeft employment, but, by encouraging them in idlenefs, prove a fnare to them. Most men, if they bring their children to be able to fhift for a livelihood to themfelves, think they have done enough, while they have not been at pains to bring them up for God. Many will learn them to work that will not learn them to read, pray, &c. What shall we fay of those that will learn them to ban, fwear, lie, pick and fteal, and encourage them in fuch things? Some kill their children by cockering of them; they indulge them fondly to their ruin. And how indifcretely will parents dote on one child by another, where it is not grace, but mere fancy, that makes the difference? Gen. xxv. 28. Some, on the other hand, are wofully harfh to their children, and break their fpirits, by holding them fo fhort by the head that they are driven to extremities, using them as drudges rather than as children, immoderately beating them when they are in a fault, and inveighing against them with bitter words, Col. 111.

iii. 21.; indifcreet and untender dealing with them with refpect to their callings or marriages.

Thirdly, As to mafters and fervants :

1. Servants fin against their masters by irreverent, difrespectful, and faucy carriage towards them, without any refpect to the honour which God calls them to give to their mafters. Many are difficult, and will plainly tell, that they will not do what they are bidden; or if they do it, they will do it in fuch a manner, as shall vent their pride and passion. Though the fcripture commands not to answer again, they will anfwer, and have the laft word too, and by no means will fubmit to reproofs. Many are unfaithful to their mafters, their fervice is eye-fervice, unfaithful fervice, either by their negligence and floth bringing their mafter to lofs, or by difhonefty in that which is under their hands. Some profeffing fervants are by their way a fcandal to religion in families where they are. Others are a plague to the family by the averfion they fhew to every good thing or religious duty, as if their mafters were no more concerned in them, if they work their work, Eph. v. 5. 5.

2. Mafters fin against their fervants, not allowing them fufficient maintenance, but niggardly pinching them, keeping back their wages from them in whole or in part, and to opprefling the hireling; rigoroufly keeping them at work, not allowing them convenient time for reft, nor worfhipping of God in fecret, or attending on public ordinances. And fo they fin against them by continual chiding and uneafiness to them, and careless with respect to their fouls good, Eph. vi. 9.

Fourthly, As to ministers and people :

1. People fin against their ministers by their flighting and defpiting them, and nowife treating them as the meffengers of Christ; going on in their evil ways over the belly of all warnings and reproofs, being stubborn, and refusing subjection to discipline; flandering of them, creating them trouble, by forsaking of ordinances, &c. or any wife making their work burdensome, or them to drive heavily in it; and reftraining prayer for them.

Minifters in against people by an unconcernedness about their fouls cafe, laziness, and unfaithfulness in discharge of their duty, proving stumbling-blocks to their people by a loofe walk, and not being earness in prayer for them, for the bleffing of God on them and their message.

As to ruling elders and people, I have nothing to add to what I faid before.

F 2

Fifthly,

Fifthly, As to magistrates and subjects :

1. Subjects in their against magistrates by carrying differ pectfully to them, rebelling against them, and difobeying their just laws, reviling and speaking despitefully of them, denying them subjection and their just dues, and not praying for them.

2. Magistrates fin against fubjects by using their power to fatisfy their lusts, and giving bad example to others, by tyranny and opprefilion, unjust laws, and discountenancing piety and virtue, and opposing themselves to the kingdom of Christ.

Sixthly, As to the aged and younger: How little refpect do the younger fnew to the aged! Inftead of that honour due to age, people are ready to befool them, if not to account them witches or wizards, forgetting that either they mult come to their age themfelves, or die by the way. On the other hand, few old people carry fo to the younger, as to command refpect by their examplary piety and holinefs; but, on the contrary, gray hairs are often found in the way of wickednefs.

Seventhly, As to the weaker and fironger in gifts: It is often the fin of the weaker to envy the fironger, and if they can to mifreprefent them. The weak judge the firong, and the firong delpife and fumble the weak.

Lafly, Equals fin against one another, undervaluing the worth, envying and grieving at the good of one another, and usurping pre-eminence over one another.

The fpring and fource of all this is, (1.) Want of love to and fear of God; for while people are not in their duty to God, how fhould they be in their duty to man? (2.) Pride and felfifuncis, while every one feeks himfelf, and not the good of others.

These things may be very humbling to all of us. Who can fay his life is clean in any of these relations? But even those who are very dutiful in their feveral relations as to the matter, may be guilty of the breach of this command, in fo far as what they do in these things does not proceed from gracious principles; for indeed the first command must be carried along in all the reft.

III. We come now to the reafon annexed to this command; which is, " A promife of long life and profperity (as far as it thall ferve for God's glory and their own good) to all fuch as keep this commandment."

This

This is a promife to encourage the confcientious performance of the duties here required. The apoftle tells us, that it is " the first command with promife," Eph. v. 2.

Queft. 1. How is this command the first with promise, feeing the fecond has a promise also?

Anf. It is the first command of the fecond table : for it is the most weighty of them all, as comprehending all the reft in it; fo that we cannot fin against the reft, but we must first break over the hedge of this, which encompassed all the reft. For one cannot violate another's life, chaftity, &c. but he first violates the honour due to him by this command. And it is the only command that has a special promife of a particular mercy annexed to it. The promife annexed to the fecond command is but a promife of mercy in the general, and that not particularly to those that keep that command, but all the commandments.

Queft. 2. But does the law promife any thing but to perfect keeping of its commands? and if fo, what are we the better?

Anf. We must diffinguish betwixt the law as a covenant of works, and the law as in the hand of Chrift for a rule of life to believers. As it is a covenant of works, nothing lefs than perfect obedience can interest men in the promise; for the leaft failure knocks off the man's fingers from the promife, by virtue of the curfe, Gal. iii. 10. " Curfed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them." So that we can be nothing the better of this promife. But Chrift being the Surety of the better covenant, having made a new covenant of grace in his blood, he takes the fame law in his hands, and gives out the commands of it as a rule of life to his covenanted people, and renews the promifes of it to their fincere obedience of them, I Tim. iv. 8. " Godlinefs is profitable unto all things, having promife of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." As for the curfe of it, they hear of it no more, he having borne it away himfelf. And fo he crowns the fruits of his own grace in them with bleffed rewards. And as all thefe promifes are yea and amen in him; fo for his fake, through faith in his blood, they are obtained.

In the words we may confider thefe three things; the bleffing promifed, the place where it is to be enjoyed, and the regard the Lord allows his people to have to that bleffing to further them in obedience. FIRST, The bleffing promifed; that is, long life, that the days may be long. It is a temporal mercy, a mercy much defined ordinarily by all men, and promifed to them that keep this commandment. There are four things here to be confidered.

First, What is meant by men's days being long. It denotes two things.

1. Long life, Prov. iv. 10. "The years of thy life fhall be many." Death in its beft colours has fomething frightful about it. It is a diffolution of foul and body, which nature fhivers at. But there is no eviting of it; all muft die; they muft go through that dark valley to their eternal ftate. But the beft that can be made of it is promifed here, viz. that fuch fhall be full of days, and not be taken away till they be ripe for the fickle.

2. Profperity to accompany that life; for non vivere, fed va lere, vita cfl. Long life in miferies is a continued death, rather than life. So that the nature of the thing teaches us, that a profperous long life is here promifed. It is a good old age, Gen. xv. 15. And thus the apofile explains it, Eph. vi. 3. "That it may be well with thee, and thou mayft live long on the earth."

Secondly, That long life is in itfelf a mercy, and therefore is promifed. There are many things that may mortify men's defires of long life. Old age is ordinarily accompanied with a train of miferies; and the longer the godly live, they are the longer kept out of heaven. Yet there are four things that make this long and profperous life here promifed to the godly's keeping of this command, a great mercy.

1. A good old age is an honourable thing, Prov. xvi. 31. "The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteoufnefs." God commands a particular reverence to be given to old men, Lev. xix. 32. "Thou fhalt rife up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man." It is true, fin and wickednefs fpoils the greateft glory, and no man is more like the devil than a wicked old man, If. Ixv. 20. "The finner being an hundred years old, fhall be accurfed." But it is an honourable character which the Spirit of God puts on Mnafon, Acts xxi. 16. "An old difciple." And old godly men are moft like God, Dan. vii. 9. Rev. i. 14.

2. It is profitable for the exercise of godlines, in to far as it makes them proof against many temptations which youth often carries men headlong unto, 2 Tim. ii. 22. The frothinets nefs and fire of youth dying out through time, their grace is the better it wants them. Young people's grace may be more bulky, but old people's grace, though of lefs bulk, is more worth, becaufe it is more folid. Though new liquor may work and fwell up more, the old is better. John was the longeft lived of the apoftles, and wrote laft of them. In his younger years he could have burnt whole rowns for Chrift, Luke ix. 54.; but if ye will look to his epiftles written in his older days, they breathe nothing but love, meeknefs, and folid godlinefs.

3. Long life makes way for the more proofs and experiences of the goodnefs of God on the earth, I John ii. I3. The young foldier may be more mettled and venturous; but the old foldier is more to be trufted, becaufe of his experience and fkill. It is no finall advantage to have been an eyewitnefs of the feveral appearances God has made for his church, and of feveral froms that have gone over her head.

4. Lafly, They have the larger opportunity of glorifying God here, and being ferviceable in their generation, the longer they live on the earth; and therefore shall have a larger measure of glory hereafter, as they have been more ferviceable for God than others, 2 Cor. ix. 6. How many are cut off in their early days, while they were just budding for the honour of God and the fervice of the church! It is better for themselves that they are foon taken away; but the church is lefs the better of them, Phil. i. 23. 24. The Spirit of God takes notice of this in the old men that outlived Jothua, how uteful their age was for God and his church, Joth. xxiv. 31. " And Ifrael ferved the Lord all the days of Jofhua, and all the days of the elders that overlived Jofhua, and which had known all the works of the Lord that he had done for Ifrael." And though glory is not the merit of good works, yet according to the fowing, fo shall the harvest be.

Thirdly, A holy walk, particularly in the confcientious performance of relative duties, is the way to a long and proiperous life. Holinefs, and particularly relative holinefs, is the way to a long and happy life in the world.

I. As to holinefs in general, it is clear from two things.

(1.) From the promife of God in his life-giving word. "Man lives by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." The unbelieving world may think a foripture-promite but a poor fence for a man's life. Give them good enterrainment, eafe, medicine, they will lay more weight on their thefe than on a clufter of promifes; but yet a promife from the Lord is better than all thefe, Dan. i. 15.; for " man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God," Matth. iv. 4. Now, it has the promife, 1 Tim. iv. 8. It has the promife of health, wealth, and long life, Prov. iii. 7.—10. & 16.

(2.) From the nature of the thing. A holy walk keeps us back from those things that hurt and ruin the body. And no man's body is so little abused to its hurt, as his whose soul has respect to walk within the hedge of God's precepts. Drunkenness and gluttony devours more than the fword doth. Covetous care and anxiety wastes the body. Inordinate affections are the confuming of the constitution. Holiness, that represses these things, must then be as health to the flesh, Prov. iv. 22.

2. As for dutifulness to our relatives : Confider,

(1.) It hath God's promife for it in the text, which hath been made out to many in their fweet experience, as in the cafe of Ruth, and that of the Rechabites, Jer. xxxv. 19. And fo the contrary is threatened, Prov. xxx. 17. " The eye that mocketh at his father, and defpifeth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley fhall pick it out, and the young eagles fhall eat it;" and has been fulfilled in many to the full extent.

(2.) Dutifulnefs of that fort procures the bleffing of relatives; it natively draws out their hearts in thankfulnefs to God for them, and in prayers to God for them, which under God is a mean to bring down a bleffing upon them. The bleffing of them that were ready to perifh was not in vain to Job; it fprung up in a liberal increase.

(3.) Such perfons are of a meck difposition, and fuch have a peculiar promife to inherit the earth, Matth. v. 6. It is the want of the fpirit of meeknefs, and pride and felfishnefs in the room of it, that mars relative dutifulnefs.

4. Laftly, The nature of the thing leads to it; for that is the ready way to make relations comfortable; and the comfort that people find in their relatives does good like a medicine, while the contrary is as rottennefs in the bones.

There are two objections that lie against this doctrine.

Object. 1. Have not wicked men, that caft off all perfonal and relative holinefs, off-times a long and profperous life?

Anf. It is fo indeed. Job obferved it long ago, ch. xxi. 7. "Wherefore do the wicked live, become old, yea, are mighty in power?" But there is one thing that makes the difference difference wide enough; i. e. they have it not by promife. What of that ? will ye fay. There is very much in it. (t.) He cannot have the comfort of it as a godly man can have, no more than he can have the comfort of a well-furnished houfe, that knows not but every day he may be turned out of it, while he knows no where elfe to go to, in comparison of one that has a tack of it; and is to move to a better when the tack expires. (2.) There is a fecret curfe in it that deftroys and ruins him; fo that the morfel may be fair, but there is a bone in it that will flick in his throat, Prov. i. 32. 33. (3.) Lafly, The last difh spoils the feast. No man can be faid to live a long and happy life, that dies a miferable unhappy death, as all wicked men do. Can that life be profperous and happy that has fuch a black hinder end? Does not death foon catch that man, that catches him ere his falvation be fecured.

Object. 2. Are there not many godly people whofe life in the world is neither long nor profperous, and have neither much health, wealth, nor long life? The anfwer to this brings us, Fourthly, To fnew how this promife is to be underftood. It is to be understood, as all other temporal promifes are, not abfolutely, as if in no cafe it could be otherwife; but with these two limitations: (1.) As far as it shall ferve for God's glory; and God may be more glorified in their early death than their long life. The honour of God is the immoveable rule by which thefe things muft be all meafured. (2.) As far as it shall ferve for their good; and fo it may be a greater mercy to them to be hid in the grave, than to be left on earth; and furely it is no breach of promife to give one what is better than what was promifed. And thefe two are not to be feparated, but joined together; for whatever is most for God's honour, is most for the godly man's good. Now, upon this we may lay down thefe conclutions.

1. Upon this promife the godly, walking in the way of perfonal and relative holinefs, may confidently expect from God as much long life and profperity in the world as fhall be for the honour of God, and their good to enjoy. And to have any more would be no favour.

2. A fhort and afflicted life may be more for their good than a long and profperous one, Pfal. cxix. 71. If. lvii. 1. And why fhould men quarrel with their bleffings, or caft at their mercies? Good Jofiah was foon taken away, becaufe Vol. III. G

the

the Lord would not have him to fee the evil that was coming on.

3. Many of the children of God may be guilty of fuch breaches of this command in the mifmanagement of their relative duties, that they may, by their own fault, fall fhort of the mercy promifed here in the latter, Pfal. xcix. 8. and fo need not wonder if they reap that correction which themfelves have fowed. And though others, that have managed worfe than they, may efcape, no wonder either; for God will let that pafs in another, becaufe of an after-reckoning, when he will correct his own children for lefs, becaufe that is to put an end to the quarrel.

4. Laftly, Whatever they want of this, it fhall be made up by what is better. The afflictions of the body fhall be health to their fouls; their croffes fhall not be curfes, but bleffings; and if they be deprived of the refidue of their years here, they fhall get them made up in heaven.

SECONDLY, The place where that bleffing is to be enjoyed; in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee; that is, the land of Canaan. So it refpects the Jews. But as it refpects Chriftians, it refers to any place of God's earth; and fo the apoftle turns it, Eph. vi. 3. "That thou mayft live long on the earth."

LASTLY, That regard which the Lord allows his people to have to that bleffing, to further them in obedience: Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. Though the chief motive to duty fhould be the honour and command of God, yet God allows us to eye the promifed reward, even in temporal things, as a fecondary motive and encouragement to duty.

Úse. Let this recommend to us the living in dutifulnefs to our relatives. This is phyfic of God's appointment for the fick; it is the way to wealth of God's appointment for them that have little; it is the prolonger of life appointed by the Lord of life to those that would see many days, and these good. And there is no fure way to these where the appointment of God lies cross. Religion is the way to make the world happy. God has linked our duty and our interest together, to as there is no separating of them. Relations are the joints of fociety; fin has disjointed the world, and fo no wonder it be miserable; relative holinefs would fet the disjointed world right again.

50

OF THE SIXTH COMMANDMENT.

Exod. xx. 13.-Thou fhalt not kill.

THE fcope of this command is the prefervation of that life which God hath given unto man, which is man's greateft concern. No man is lord of his own or his neighbour's life; it belongs to him alone who gave it, to take it away. It is obfervable, that this and the three following commands are proposed in a word, not because they are of finall moment, but because there is more light of nature for them than those proposed at greater length.

This command respects both our own life and the life of our neighbour. That it respects our neighbour, there can be no doubt; and as little needs there to be of its respecting our own. The words are general, agreeing to both; and fo the fense of them is, Thou shalt not kill thyself, nor any other. He that faid to the jailor, "Do thyself no harm," taught no other thing than what Moses and the prophets did fay. Man is no more lord of his own life than his neighbour's; and he is in hazard of incroaching upon it, as well as that of another; and it is no where guarded, if not here. Nay, the sum of the second table being, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself," whereby love to our neighbour is made the measure of love to ourfelves, it is evident that it respects our own life in the first place.

As every positive command implies a negative, fo every negative implies a positive. Therefore, in fo far as God fays, Thou fhalt not kill, viz. thyfelf or others, he thereby obliges men to preferve their own life and that of others. And feeing all the commands agree together, there can be no keeping of one by breaking of another; therefore the positive part of this command is neceflary to be determined to lowful end yours. Hence the answer to that Quift. "What is required in the fixth commandment?" is plain, viz. "The fixth commandment requireth all lawful endeavours to preferve our own life, and the life of others." The duties of this command may be reduced to two heads. 1. The preferving of our own life. 2. The preferving the life of others. But both these are to be qualified, fo as it be by lawful means and endeavours. For God has given us no fuch law, as for the keeping of one command we may or must break another. Only there is a great difference betwixt positive and negative precepts; the practice of politive duties may be in fome cafes intermitted without fin, as a man attacked in time of prayer, or on the Sabbath day, may lawfully leave the prayer, and external worthip of the day, to defend his life, Luke xiv. 5. But never may a man do an ill thing, be it great or little, though it were even to preferve his own life or that of others, Rom. iii. 8. Is it a thing of which God has faid, Thou shalt not do fo and fo? it must never be done, though a thousand lives depended upon it.

ful

Hence it is evident, that a perfon may not tell a lie, nor do any finful thing whatever, far lefs blafpheme, deny Chrift or any of his truths, commit adultery, or fteal, tho' his own life, or the life of others, may be lying upon it. For where the choice is, Suffer or fin, God requires and calls us in that cafe to fuffer. And therefore the example of fuch things in the faints, as in Ifaac, Rahab, &c. are no more propounded for our imitation, than David's murder, &zc. Peter's denial of Chrift, &c. And tho' we read not of reproofs given in fome fuch cafes, that will no more infer God's approbation of them than that of Lot's inceft, for which we read of no reproof given him. The general law againft fuch things does fufficiently condemn them, in whomfoever they are found.

Object. This a hard faying. A man may be in the power of fome ruffian, that will require on pain of death fome finful thing; and muft one fell his life at fuch a cheap rate, as to refufe to deny his religion, drink drunk with him, lie, or do any fuch thing for the time?

Anf. It is no more hard than that, Luke xiv. 26. " If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and fifters, yea, and his own life alfo, he cannot be my difciple." We muft love God more than our own or others life, and fo muft not redeem it by offending God. Sin ruins the foul; therefore fays our Lord, Matth. x. 28. " Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the foul: but rather fear him which is able to deftroy both foul and body in hell."

Objest.

1

Object. In the cafe of martyrdom in the caufe of Christ, it is very reafonable; but that is not the cafe.

Anf. That is a miltake. The cafe fuppofed is indeed the cafe of martyrdom in the caufe of Chrift. And I confidently aver, that whofoever fuffers for the teftimony of a good confcience, and becaufe he will not break any one of the commands of God, is as true a martyr for the caufe of Chrift, as he that dies on a gibbet for the maintenance of any of the articles of our creed. Is not holinefs the caufe of Chrift? Has not a man in fuch a cafe the caufe of martyrdom by the end ? does he not lofe his life for the fake of Chrift ? has he not the call to martyrdom, Suffer or Sin? may he not look for the martyrs reward? And if he redeem life by finning, falls he not under the fame fearful doom, as in that cafe, Matth. x. 39. "He that findeth his life, thall lofe it : and he that lofeth his life for my fake, fhall find it," Mark viii. 38. " Whofoever therefore shall be athamed of me, and of my words, in this adulterous and finful generation, of him alfo fhall the Son of man be afhamed when he cometh in the glory of his Father, with the holy angels." Are not the ten commands Chrift's words, as well as the articles of faith ? Whatever difference may be betwixt thefe cafes, an impartial confideration will manifest the cafe supposed is a greater trial of faith than the other. And God will furely make up to thefe fecret unknown martyrs at the day of judgment, the honour which the open and manifest martyrs have before-hand.

In difeourfing further from this fubject, I shall shew,

I. What is required in this command.

II. What is forbidden in it.

I. I am to fhew, what is required in this command. It requires, as I faid before, " All lawful endeavours to preferve our own life, or the life of others."

FIRST, It requires, that, by all lawful endeavours, we preferve our own lives. Self-prefervation is the leading duty of this command. Brute creatures have a natural inftinct for it. Our kind God has given man a written law for it, whereby it may appear that we are dearer to our God than to ourfelves. We may take up this in two things.

FIRST, Thou must preferve the life of thine own foul. When God fays, Thou fhalt not kill, doth he only take care for the body? No; doubtlefs of the foul too. He looks not to the cabinet only, overlooking the jewel. The foul is the man, at leaft the beft and most precious part of him. Two things here are in general required.

1. The careful avoiding of all fin, which is the deftruction of the foul, Prov. xi. 19. It is by fin that men wrong their own fouls; whereby they wound them, fill them with poifonous things, and prepare the way for their eternal death, Prov. viii. ult.

2. The careful using of all means of grace and holy exercifes, for the begetting, preferving, and promoting fpiritual life, I Pet. ii. 2. As we must eat and drink for the life of our bodies, fo must we use these for the life of our fouls; eating Chrift's body, and drinking Chrift's blood, by faith, drinking in his word. The foul has its ficknefs, decays, &c. as well as the body. Let it not pine away, but nourish it.

SECONDLY, Thou must by all lawful endeavours preferve the life of thine own body. We may take up this in thefe three things.

1. Just felf-defence against violence offered unto us by others unjuftly, Luke xxii. 36. So a man ought to defend himfelf, if he can, against thieves or robbers; and therefore it is faid, " If a thief be found breaking up, and be fmitten that he die, there shall no blood be shed for him," Exod. Yet this must be only in the cafe of neceffity, XXII. 2. where the violence cannot be efcaped but by a violent repelling it; for all violent courfes muft be the laft remedy, Luke vi. 29. Where a foft reception will ftill the violence offered, it is not the fpirit of Chrift, but of Satan, that repels violence with violence. And when it is neceffary, no greater violence may be offered than what is neceffary to repel the attack, Exod. ii. 2. 31.

2. Furnishing our bodies with whatever is neceffary for their health and welfare, according to our ability; taking the moderate use of the means of health and life unto ourfelves, Eph. v. 20.; for in fo far as we use not the means of preferving them, we are guilty of deftroying them. Therefore it is our duty to allow ourfelves a competent portion of meat and drink, wholefome food, as the Lord lays to our hands; to provide competent houfing and clothing, to refresh ourbodies with a competent measure of reft and fleep; to use moderate labour, exercife, and recreations, and medicine for the removal of diftempers. The use of these is necessary, and the immoderate use of them hurtful; therefore the moderate and temperate use of them is our duty.

3. Keeping our affections regular, fubduing all inordinate and evil affections; for these are deftructive to the body as well as to the foul. So that a patient difposition, a quiet mind mind, and a contented and cheerful fpirit are duties of this command, as neceffary for the welfare of our bodies : whereas inordinate paffions are the ruin of them, Prov. xvii. 22. " A merry heart doth good like a medicine : but a broken fpirit drieth the bones."

2

SECONDLY, This command requires, that by all lawful endeavours we preferve the life of our neighbours. We may alfo take up this in two things.

FIRST, We must endeavour to preferve the life of their fouls,

1. By giving them the example of a holy life, for that edifies and builds up, Matth. v. 16.; whereas a fcandalous walk is a foul-murdering practice.

2. By infructing, warning, reproving, and admonifying them, as we have opportunity, where the cafe of their fin requires it, Jude 23.; and comforting them in diffrefs, I Theff. v. 16.; and praying for them, Gen. xliii. 29. No man mult fay with Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper?" We are required to watch over one another. If our neighbour's ox or his afs fall into the ditch, we muft alfo help them, out : how much more when his foul is in hazard of falling into hell?

SECONDLY, We must by all lawful endeavours preferve the life of our neighbour's body. Here God requires of us,

1. To protect and defend the innocent against unjust violence, according to every one's power, as they have a fair call to exercise the fame, whether it be in respect of their name, goods, or life, Pfal. 1xxxii. 3. 4. Prov. xxiv. 11. 12. And fo it is a duty of this command to repress tyranny, whereof we have a commended example in the interposition of the people to fave the life of Jonathan, 1 Sam. xiv. 45. " And the people faid unto Saul, Shall Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great falvation in Ifrael ? God forbid : as the Lord liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground; for he hath wrought with God this day. So the people refcued Jonathan, that he died not,"

2. To give unto others the neceffaries of life, when in want, according to our ability. For as he that feeds not the fire puts it out, fo unmerciful people that flut up their bowels from the needy, are guilty of their blood before the Lord, Jam. ii. 15. 16.

3. To entertain fuch affections towards our neighbour, as may keep us back from injuring of him, and him from doing harm to himfelf; fuch as, charitable thoughts, love, compafflou fion, meeknefs, gentlenefs, kindnefs. Thefe are as watch to quench fire in us which may burn up others, and as oil unto others to refresh them, Eph. iv. ult.

4. A peaceable, mild, and courteous conversation, Prov. xv. 1. in looks, speech, and behaviour.

5. Lafly, With refpect to injuries, we ought to take all things in the beft fenfe, 1 Cor. xiii. 5. 7. to avoid all occafions of ftrife, yea, even to part fometimes with our right for peace, as Abraham with Lot; to bear real injuries, Col. iii. 12. 13.; to forbear and be ready to be reconciled, and forgive injuries, yea, to requite good for evil, Matth v. 44.

With refpect to both our own life and the life of others, we are called to refift all thoughts, fubdue all paffions, avoid all occations, temptations, and practices tending to the deftruction of our own life, or that of others, of foul or body.

Who can underftand his errors? What fhall come of us_s if God enter into judgment with us? Our omiffions would ruin us, even in those things where we judge ourselves to be in the leaft hazard.

II. I come now to fhew, what is forbidden in the fixth commandment. It forbids "the taking away of our own life, or the life of our neighbour, unjuftly, and whatfoever tendeth thereunto."

Here I thall confider this command as relating to our own life, and the life of our neighbour.

*FIRST, I fhall confider this command as relating to our own life; and that, 1. With refpect to our fouls; and, 2. With refpect to our bodies.

FIRST, Thou shalt not kill thine own foul. Our kind God forbids us to be felf-murderers and foul-murderers. We become guilty of the blood of our own fouls these ways:

1. By neglecting of the means of grace and falvation, Prov. viii. 34. 36. The life of our fouls is a flame that muft be kindled from above, and fed by means of grace. Whofo then neglect them, are guilty of their own blood. Confider this, ye prayerlefs perfors, ye that are at no pains to get knowledge, flighters of public ordinances, private duties, reading, meditation, &c.

2. By oppofing and fighting against the Lord's quickening work in the foul. They that murder convictions, murder their own fouls, as if they were refolved that they should never ftir in them, Prov. xxix. 1. Some, with Felix, put them off with fair promiles; fome, with Cain, with the noife of axes and hammers; which is in effect, they will not let their fouls recover.

ftir

3. By continuing in fin impenitent. God calls by his word and providence to the man, as Paul to the jailor, " Do thyfelf no harm." But, as if he were refolute on his own ruin, he will not forbear these courses. Wilful impenitency is the geoffest felf-murder, because foul-murder, Ezek. xviii, 30. 31. His foul is ftanding under a decayed roof, tell him that it will fall on him; but he will not ftir a foot; is not his blood then on his own head?

4. By unbelief, and not coming to Chrift by faith, John v. 40. Many means are effayed to preferve the foul; but ftill it is ruined, becaufe the main cure is neglected. Let a man ufe never fo many remedies for his health, if he will not ufe the main cure neceflary, he is his own murderer. So refolutions, watchings, engagements, are tried; but if faith, and employing of Chrift for fanctification, is not tried, he is ftill a murderer.

O firs, confider this. Murder, felf-murder, foul-murder, is a crying fin. What wonder the man perifh who will perifh? Will God fpare the fhedding of the blood of that foul, which the man himfelf is fo liberal of?

And hence fee that people not only may, but this command of God obliges them to feek the welfare and good of their fouls. Fear hell, hope for heaven : and let this ftir you up to duty : but do not reft there, go forward and make the love of God your main motive ; and that of itfelf would be fufficient to ftir you up to all the duties of a holy life.

SECONDLY, Thou shalt not kill thine own body. This is fimply and absolutely forbidden. We may take away the life of others in fome cafes justly; but in no cafe our own, unlefs there be a particular divine warrant, which I suppose in Samson's cafe, which is not to be expected by us; for therein he was a type of Christ. There are two things forbidden here.

1. The taking away of our own life, by laying violent hands on ourfelves. This is the horrid fin of direct felf-murder; of which Saul, Ahithophel, and Judas were guilty; and many fad inftances have been of it of late. The law of God utterly condemns it, and nature itfelf abhors it. It is the effect of a defperate envenomed fpirit, rifing from pride and impatience, a horrible leaping into eternity ere the call come from God. It is highly different to God, char-Vot. III.

ging him with cruelty, and refufing to wait his leifure. It is the thing the grand murderer is feeking. Civil laws firike againft it: with us felf-murderers are denied Chriftian burial, their goods are efcheated, that refpect to their families may deter people from it: in other places they have hung them up on gibbets. And though we will not take on us to determine the cafe of all fuch to be hopelefs for eternity, that is fufficient to fcare us, I John iii. 15. "Ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him."

2. Doing any thing that tendeth thereunto. Men may be guilty of killing themfelves indirectly many ways, all which are here forbidden. Here are forbidden, as tending to the murder of the body,

1/1, All entertaining of any thoughts againft our own life, that is heart-killing; wearying of our own life, and fretful withing to be gone, as was Jonah's cafe, chap. iv. 3.; all tampering with temptations of that fort, and not rejecting them with abherrence, Job vii. 15. Our life is a mercy, and not to be wearied of fretfully; for it is God's goodnefs that we are out of hell. And it is horrid ingratitude to account God's gift a burden.

2*dly*, Difcontent, fretfulnels, and impatience. It is a dangerous thing, Pfal. xxxvii. 8. It was that which prevailed with Ahithophel to make away with himfelf. It is like ink caft into a fountain, which makes all the water blackifh. It unfits for fociety with men, and for communion with God; it defiroys the foul and body too; for the fretful man is his own tormentor. We fhould ftudy to be content with our lot, and eafy whatever our circumftances be, Heb. xiii. 5.; and that will fet all our wrongs right, Prov. xv. 15.; for then our fpirit is brought to our lot; and the vulture preys no more on our liver.

3d/y, Immoderate grief and forrow. When we go into the waters of godly forrow for fin, we are out again ere we are well in; but in carnal forrow we will go over the head and ears, 2 Cor. vii. 10. How many have conceived that forrow upon fome crofs which they have met with! fomething within their fancy has been balked, that has ruined their bodies as well as their fouls. We fhould enure ourfelves to a patient bearing of the Lord's hand; and not fmother that fire within our breafts, but lay it out before the Lord, and leave it there, I Sam. i. 18.; and labour to pleafe God, and confult our own welfare by a holy and moderate cheerfulnefs, Prov. xvii. 22.

Atbly.

41hly, Anxiety, diffracting carking cares about the things of this life. As men fearing that they fhall not fleep, do thereby mar their own reft; fo the body is often ruined by too much anxiety for it, Matth. vi. 31. " Take no thought what ye fhall eat, &c." Gr. "Rack not your mind." When the mind is on the tenter-hooks, the body must fmart for it. As the ape kills its fondling by hugging it, fo do men kill themfelves by indulging anxious cares. Let us labour then for a holy carelessines in these matters; let us use lawful means, and leave the fuccefs quietly on the Lord. Though anxiety will not add a cubit to our stature, it may through time take a cubit from it, Phil. iv. 6.

sthly, Neglecting of our bodies, Col. ii. 23. when we do not make a convenient use of the means of life and health; as when people deny themfelves the necessary measure of . food, fleep, exercife, recreations, phyfic, clothes, and houfing. People may be guilty against their own lives this way, (1.) By a careless negligent disposition, Eccl. x. 18. (2.)From the plague of a covetous pinching humour, that they cannot find in their heart to ule the gift of God to them, Eccl. vi. 2. (3.) By means of inordinate paffions, 1 Kings xxi. 4. (4) Sometimes Satan has driven people under conviction to this, fuggefting to them that they have no right to thefe things. But as long as men live, though they have not a covenant-right, they have a common providential right to the means of life; and the command binds, Thou fhalt not kill. It is a duty of this command, then, to take care of our bodies, and provide them neceffaries fo far as we can: they are not ours, but God's.

6thly, Intemperance, when people keep no measure in fatisfying of the flesh, Luke xxi. 34. They pamper the flesh, till the beaft turns furious, and ruins itfelf. When God made man, he imprefied an image of his fovereignty on him. made him lord over the beafts; but now, without the beafts. and within the affections, are turned rebels. This is a monfter with three heads.

(1.) Gluttony, intemperance in eating. Man should eat to live; but fome, like the beafts, live to eat. The law of God will not allow people to cram their bellies, and facrifice to a greedy appetite, Phil. iii. 19. It is a degree of felfmurder; for it cuts fhort people's days, which fobriety would prolong. There is a curle entailed upon it, which is often teen to take effect, Prov. xxiii. 20. 21. " Be not amongst wine-bibers; amongst riotous eaters of flesh. For the H 2 drunkard drunkard and the glutton fhall come to poverty: and drowfinefs fhall clothe a man with rags." The glutton and the drunkard, in fcripture-language, is equivalent to a ne'er-dowell in ours, Deut. xxi. 20. 21. It is a beafily fin. A heathen calls the glutton's belly a fwine's trough. A fcavenger_s whofe occupation is to empty, is to be preferred to the glutton, who lives to fill a privy.

(2.) Drunkennefs, intemperance in drinking, Luke xxi. 34. A fin that makes quick work for the grave, and has carried many thither ere they have lived half their days. Reafon differences men from beafts, but the beaftly fin of drunkennefs takes away that, robbing men of reafon. It is the devil's rack, on which while he has men, they will babble out every thing; for quod in corde fobrii, in ore ebrii. It is an inlet to other fins : for what will a man not do in his drunkennefs, if he have a temptation to it? It deftroys a man's health, wealth, and foul; murders foul and body at once. The Lacedæmonians used to fill their flaves drunk, that their children, feeing the picture of drunkennefs, might loath it. We have the picture of it, Prov. xxiii. 29. &c. (1.) It embroils men in quarrels, " Who hath wo? who hath forrow? who hath contentions ?" Many have wo and forrow that cannot help it; but drunkards wilfully create them to themfelves. When drink is in, wit is out. Thence proceed drunken fcuffles; babbling in fcurrilous language; and from words they go to blows, wounds without caufe. (2.) It ruins their bodies; rednefs of eyes, a fign of inward inflammation, through drink and watching, not through weeping and praying. (2.) It exposes them to uncleannels, ver 33. "Thine eyes shall behold firange women." (4.) It makes their tongues ramble, fpeak contrary to religion, reafon, common civility, yea, nonfenfe. (5.) It befots them; it makes their heads giddy, and they are fearlefs of danger, ver. 34. "Yea, thou fhalt be as he that lieth down in the midft of the fea, or as he that lieth upon the top of a maft." (6.) Laftly, It is a bewitching fin. The man fees the ill of it, but his heart is hardened, he has no power to leave it, ver. 35. "They have firicken me, fhalt thou fay, and I was not fick; they have beaten me, and I felt it not : when fhall I awake? I will feek it yet again." The curfe of God is entailed on it, If. xxviii. 1. 2. 3. "Wo to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, whole glorious beauty is a fading flower, which are on the head of the fat valleys of them that are overcome with wine. Behold, the Lord hath a mighty and and firong one, which as a tempeft of hail and a deftroying florm, as a flood of mighty waters overflowing, fhall catt down to the earth with the hand. The crown of pride, the drunkards of Ephraim fhall be trodden under feet."

(3.) Intemperance in any other fenfual pleafure, Luke viii. 14. The pleafures of the fenfes are often chains to the foul, and fcourges to the body; and intemperance in them will make them fo. Too much pleafing the body may make mourning at laft, Prov. v. 11. A man may fin againft God and his own body in the intemperate ufe of any fenfual pleafure whatfoever, though in itfelf lawful; and no doubt much guilt is contracted in the intemperate ufe of tobacco, and fuch like things, 1 Cor. vi. 12.

7tbly, Immoderate labour and painfulnefs, Eccl. ii. 22. 23. Labour and exercife in moderation is like a fober wind that purifies the air, and is good for the body and foul too: but immoderate labour and exercife is like a violent wind that throws down the houfe, and plucks up the tree by the roots.

Lafly, Exposing of ourselves to unnecessary hazards, Matth. iv. 7. To put ourselves in hazard where we have no call, is to fin against God and ourselves. And in this case, God defines mercy, and not facrifice.

SECONDLY, We will confider this command as relating to our neighbour's life.

FIRST, Thou shalt not kill thy neighbour's foul. It is fin that is the killing thing both to our own and our neighbour's foul. And there are feveral ways how men fall into this guilt of murdering the fouls of others. As,

1. By giving them an example of fin. God forbade to lay a fumbling-block before the blind; but the world is filled with thefe, and fo ruined, Matth. xviii. 7. Men do ill things, and think that if they do ill, it is but to themfelves. No; but thereby thou doft what lies in thee to ruin others.

Yea, example is not only ruining to others in evil things, but alfo, (1.) In doing what has the appearance of evil: therefore we fhould take heed to that, becaufe others may take the appearance for reality, and fo be ruined by us. (2.) By an uncharitable ufe of our Chriftian liberty in things indifferent. Thus the ftrong may ruin the weak, Rom. xiv. 15.

2. By co-operating directly to the fin of our neighbour, which is indeed the lending our deftroying hand to ruin his foul, whereby his blood comes to be charged on us. It is the putting a cup of poifon in his hand to difpatch himfelf, and a reaching reaching of the fword to the madman, which whole do are accellery to his death. Thus men are guilty,

1/t, By commanding others to fin, as Jeroboam made Ifrael to fin. So magiftrates by finful laws, and all fuperiors whatfoever, when they use their authority to oblige another to an ill thing; or whofoever commands another to do what is finful.

2dly, By counfelling others to it, or advising them in it. The world is full of thefe murderers. So that, where a perfon is under temptation, there is often at hand one like Jonadab to give counfel to fome ill courfe, 2 Sam. xiii. 5. Such counfel often has the force of a command. So drunkards murder one another's fouls, Hab. ii. 15.

3*dly*, By joining with others in fin, Pfal. 1. 18. Going alongft with others in their fin, ruins not only ourfelves, but them too.

4tkly, By provoking others to fin, I Kings xxi. 25. Thus people are many ways guilty, by a provoking carriage, by provoking words; and not a few fo devilifh that they take a pleafure to provoke others, that they may get fomething to laugh at. Thefe are like them who ftir up the fire to burn another's houfe, that they may warm themfelves at it.

5thly, By foliciting and downright tempting to fin. Such agents the devil has in the world, who make it their bufinefs to draw others to fin, by and enfnaring carriage or plain words; fo that it is evident they are gone out on the devil's errant, Prov. vii. 18.

6thly, By teaching of fin. When men call truth a lie, and lies truth, when they give out a finful practice to be duty, and a duty to be a tinful practice, they contribute directly to the fin of others, and bring that woe on themfelves, If. v. 20. "Wo unto them that call evil good, and good evil; that put darknefs for light, and light for darknefs; that put bitter for fweet, and fweet for bitter."

By all thefe, two fall at once; for the fin of him that commands, counfels, &c. does not excufe the other.

(1.) By confenting to the fin of others, countenancing them in it, and encouraging them in their fin, Acts ix. 1. We may countenance finners in their duty, but by no means in their fin. Thefe two are very different, but they are often confounded; and the confounding of them is the caufe of much diforder in our church at this day.

3. By neglecting what we owe to our neighbour for the welfare of his foul. In not doing what we ought to preferve or or recover his foul, we are guilty of deftroying it, and fo indirectly operate to his fin. As,

62

1/7, By neglecting the means for preventing of fin in others, Ezek. iii. 18. When people do not teach, warn, and admonifh, thofe whom they fee to be in hazard, or generally neglect to reftrain fin by all lawful means competent to them. Thus Eli finned, I Sam. iii. 13. "His fons made themfelves vile, and he reftrained them not." Thus much guilt is contracted by minifters, magiftrates, hufbands and wifes, parents, mafters. &cc.

2dly, By neglecting the means to recover those that have fallen into fin; fuffering fin to lie on them, and not reproving it, Lev. xix. 17. compare I John iii. 15.; or reproving of them fo imprudently, passionately, or weakly, as that it can do them no good. So did Eli.

3d/y, By not compatitionating the finner, and mourning over his fin before the Lord, but hardening our hearts againft him, and being carelefs what come of his foul, Ezek. ix. 4. O what guilt is contracted this way in fhutting up our bowels of compafiion ! How many will exclaim againft the fins of others, whose conficiences witness that they never had a fore heart for the diffeonour done to God, and the ill to the finner's foul by it.

4thly, By being pleafed with their fin. This is in effect to be pleafed with their ruin, Rom. i. ult. Thus men are guilty,

(1.) By approving the fin of others, Pfal. xlix. 13. This is to fet our flamp on an evil way, that it may pass current.

(2.) By rejoicing at it, and making a jeft of it. It is devilifh mirth that rifeth from our neighbour's ruining himfelf. Yet much of this guilt is in the world, Prov. xiv. 9.

SECONDLY, Thou thalt not kill thy neighbour's body unjuftly. There are three cafes wherein the life of our neighbour may be taken away juftly. (I.) In the cafe of public juftice, Gen. ix. 6. (2.) Of lawful war, Judg. v. 23. (3.) Of neceffary felf-defence, Exod. xxii. 2. 3. The reafon is, becaufe in thefe cafes a man does not take, but God, the Lord of life and death, puts the fword in his hand; fo that judgment in thefe cafes is the Lord's. Unlefs in thefe cafes, it is murder, an unjuft taking away another's life. Now, there are two things here forbidden with refpect to this.

Firft, The taking away of our neighbour's life unjuftly. This is actual and direct murder. This was the fin of Cain. This is a horrible and atrocious crime, for which men's laws condemn condemn the guilty to the gallows, and God's laws condemn them to hell, I John iii. 15. A fin fo flat against nature, that even a natural conficience uses to kindle a hell in the bofom of the murderer; and a crime it is which Providence specially watches to bring to light. This is to be extended not only to what is commonly reckoned murder, but to these three cases.

1. The taking away of men's lives, under colour of law, and forms of juffice, when the law is unjuft, and there is no real crime; as in the cafe of Naboth, 1 Kings xxi. 12. 13. 19. And therefore all the laws of the world will not free perfecutors from the guilt of murder, in their taking away the lives of the martyrs.

2. 'The taking away of men's lives in an unjuft war, Hab. ii. 12. For in fuch a cafe an army is but a company of robbers and murderers, before the Lord; feeing God puts not the fword in men's hands in an unjuft caufe.

3. The taking away of a man's life in a fet duel or combat, which, whether it fall in the hand of him that gives the challenge, or his that accepts it, is downright murder. There is not the leaft fort of approbation thereof in the foriptures. And therefore the laws of duelling, like the laws of drinking, are not given by God, but by the devil. David's combating Goliah was by public authority, in a public caufe, and, befides, from an extraordinary impulfe of the Spirit. Duelling is from the devil, as being the effect of pride and rage; a taking into men's heads the difpofing of that life which God only is Lord of; it is an ufurping of the magiftrate's fword, and invading God's right of vengeance, Rom. xii. 19. And the pretence of honour, the ufual plea for duels, is as far different from God's laws of honour, as hell is from heaven, Prov.xvi. 32. Matth. v. 44.

Secondly, Whatfoever tendeth to the taking away of our neighbour's life unjuftly. This is virtual, interpretative, indirect murder. It is of feveral forts, all here forbidden.

1. There is heart-murder; and of that there are feveral forts.

r/t, Carnal anger and wrath, which is rafh, caufelefs, and exceffive, Matth. v. 22. Some people's anger is like a fire in ftraw, foon blown up and foon out; others like a fire in iron, once kindled, which it is hard to get laid. But of whatever fort it is, it is a flort madnefs; and the longer it is kept, it is fo much the worfe, Eph. iv. 26. 27. "It refteth in the bofom of fools." All murder begins here. It is a fire that kindles the anger of God, and of our neighbour, againft us, and fo cafts all into confusion. Let us fludy meeknefs; which is what will make us like to Christ, Col. iii. 12.

2

2

2d/y, Envy, whereby people grieve and grudge at the good of others. It is the devil's two-edged fword drawn to flay two at once; the envious himfelf, Prov. xiv. 30.; for he is like a ferpent gnawing its own tail, Job. v. 2.; and the party envied, Prov. xxvii. 4. While other fins are entertained for pleafure or profit, this is like a barren field, bringing forth only briers and thorns; there is not a dram of any fort of pleafure in it. But this was it that put Jofeph's brethren on a murdering defign. A charitable frame of fpirit is our duty, Rom. xii. 15.

3d/y, Hatred and malice againft our neighbour. This made Cain imbrue his hands in his brother's blood. And fuch as live in malice and hatred go in his way, I John iii. 15. It is the fad character of perfons eftranged from God, that they are "hateful, and hating one another," Tit. iii. 3. But of all hatred, that is the worft which hates good men for for their goodnefs. However, we may hate every man's faults, but no man's perfon. " Love thy neighbour as thyfelf," is the exprefs command of Heaven.

4thly, Revengeful thoughts and defires; which are fo much the worfe as they are the longer entertained, Rom. xii. 19. That heart is a bloody heart that longs for a heartfight, as they call it, on thole that have wronged them. God fees the most fecret wish of ill to our neighbour, and will call us to an account. Let us learn long-fuffering and patience, to forgive, a disposition and readiness to be reconciled; otherwise our addresses to Heaven for pardon will be vain, Matth. iv. 15.

5thly, Rejoicing at the mifchief that befals others, Prov. xxiv. 17. 18. Nothing makes men liker the devil than that murdering difposition to make the ruin of others our mirth, and their forrow our joy; for man's fin and mifery is what affords pleasure to the devil. We should sympathife and weep with them that weep, as well as rejoice with those that do rejoice.

Laftly, Cruelty, an horrid unrelenting difposition, that is not affected with the milery of others, but carries it on, and adds to it with delight. A disposition most inconfistent with the spirit of the gospel, that teaches tender-heartedness even to the very beasts, Prov. xii. 10. But those that delight in cruel treating of thele, want but an opportunity to exercise it on men.

Vol. III.

light

2. There is tongue-murder. Solomon obferves, that the tongue, however little a member it is, is the lord of life and death, Prov. xviii. 21. and xxi. 23. If it be not well managed, then, no wonder it be fometimes found guilty of murder. The natural fhape of the tongue refembles a flame of fire, and therefore in Hebrew one word fignifies a flame and the tongue; yea, and it is what it feems to be, "a fire, a world of iniquity," Jam. iii. 6. It refembles alfo a fword, and fo it is oft-times, lvii. 4. and Pfal. lix. 7. The mouth and tongue refemble bow and arrow, and fo they are, Pfal. lxiv. 3. The rage of an ill tongue muft needs be dangerous, then, feing fuch an one lays about him with his bow and arrow, and advances with fire and fword, which muft needs bring him in blood-guilty. Now, this fword devours feveral ways.

1/l, By quarrelling, provoking, and contentious fpeeches, Prov. xxiii. 29. Such words have oft-times begun a plea that has ended in blood. And therefore the apoftle compares fuch to beafts, that begin to fnarl and bite one another, till it end in the ruin of either or both, Gal. v. 15. Let us make confcience, then, of peaceable, mild, and gentle fpeeches.

2d/y, By bitter words. Thefe are the impoifoned arrows that tongue-murderers fhoot at their neighbour, Pfal. lxiv. 3.4. Their tongue are dipt in gall, and they pierce to the heart, and give a home-thruft like a fword, Prov. xii. 28. They become not the difciples of the meek Jefus. Lay afide thefe, as ye would not be reckoned murderers in the fight of God, Eph. iv. 31.

3dly, By railing and foolding. This was Shimei's murdering deed, 2 Sam. xvi. 5. 6. 7. for which he died as a murderer in Solomon's days. Thus men and women manage their tongue-battles with eagernels, making their doors or the town-gate the field of battle, where words pierce like fwords to the heart. Thefe are the plagues and the pefts of fociety, whofe bloody mouths proclaim their hearts fearlefs of God. Hear ye what the Lord fays, 1 Pet. iii. 9. "Not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing : but contrariwife, bleffing; knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye thould inherit a bleffing."

athly, By reviling, reproachful, and difdainful fpeeches. Mon think little of thefe; they are but words, and words are are but wind. But they are a wind that will blow people to hell, Matth. v. 22. They are the devil's bellows to blow up the fire of anger; which may make fearful havock ere it be quenched, Prov. xv. 1.

sthly, By mocking, fcoffing, and deriding fpeeches. Thefe are reckoned among the fufferings of the martyrs, Heb. xi. 36. "Others had trial of cruel mockings." The foldiers mocking of Chrift, John xix. 3. is compared to the baiting by dogs, Pfal. xxii. 16. See how children paid for this ufage to the prophet Elifha, 2 Kings ii. 23. 24.

 $L_{a\beta}l_{y}$, By curfings, imprecations, and wrathful withings of ill and mifchief to our neighbour's; which is but throwing up of hellifh fire on others, that comes down and burns up him that threw it, Pfal cix. 18.

3. There is eye-murder, which vents itfelf by a wrathful countenance, and all geftures of that kind, fuch as high and proud looks, and fierce looks, Prov. vi. 17. The Spirit of God takes notice of Cain's countenance, Gen. iv. 5. As there is adultery in looks, fo there may be murder in them, not only angry looks, but looks of fatisfaction on the miferies of others, which God knows the meaning of, Obad. 12.; gnafhing with the teeth, and all fuch geftures of a perfon, denoting a heart boiling with wrath and revenge, Acts vii. 54.

4. There is hand-murder, even where death killeth not. And people may be guilty of this two ways.

1/2, By way of omiffion, when we with-hold and give not help to those that are in distress, to fave their life or living, Judg. v. 2. 3.; neglecting the fick, not visiting and helping them as need requires, Luke x. 31. 32.; not affording means of life to the poor in want, Jam. ii. 15. 16.; for those put out the flame of life that do not feed it. We should then put on bowels of mercy and charity, in imitation of Job, chap. xxxi. 16. &c. It is observable, that the fentence against the wicked runs on unmercifulness to the poor members of Christ, Matth. xxv. 41. &c.

2dly, By way of commission. And fo men are guilty,

(1.) As they firike against the living of others, their means and way of subsistence. This goes under the general name of oppression, a crying fin, Ezek. xxii. 7. Thus this command is broken by extortion, landlords racking of their lands fo as labourers cannot live on them, tenants taking others lands over their heads, fometimes to the ruin of honest families, masters not allowing fervants whereupon to live;

and.

and, generally, by all kind of oppreffion, which in God's account is murder, If. iii. 14. 15. Micah iii. 3.

(2.) As they firike against the body and life itself. Thus men are guilty, by fighting, firiking, and wounding others, Exod. xxi. 18. 22. How many have been guilty as murderers in the fight of men, that have had no defign to go the full length, when they fell to fighting?

Perfecution is a complication of all thefe; and therefore the better the caufe is, the worfe is the deed. It is a main engine of him who was a murderer from the beginning. And God will reckon with them as murderers at the great day, Matth. xxv. 41. 42. &c.

Laftly, Men may be guilty of the blood of others otherwife. As,

(1.) By finful occasioning in others those things whereby our neighbour fins against his own foul, Quod est causa causa, est ctiam causa causati. So people fin by occasioning in others discontent, fretfulness, immoderate forrow, &c. 1 Sam. i. 6. Wherefore we should beware of that, as we would not be guilty of their blood.

(2.) By all the ways we faid men co-operate to the deftroying of others fouls, they may be guilty of killing others bodies; as by commanding, counfelling, or anywife procuring the taking away of men's living or lives unjuftly. So David murdered Uriah by the fword of the Ammonites. So informers againft the Lord's people in time of perfecution are murderers in God's fight, Ezck. xxii. 9. Yea, the approving, or any way confenting to it, makes men guilty, Acts viii. 1.

Now, Sirs, examine yourfelves in this matter; and who will not be brought in blood-guilty, guilty of their own and their neighbour's blood, the blood of their fouls and bodies! God's law is fpiritual, and fees the guilt of blood where we plead Not guilty. Les us be humbled and convinced, and apply to the blood of Chrift, that we may be wafhed from it.

OF THE SEVENTH COMMANDMENT.

Exod. xx. 14.-Thou shalt not commit adultery.

HE fcope of this command is the prefervation of our own and our neighbour's chaftity and purity. God is a holy God, and the devil is an unclean fpirit : we must therefore fludy purity in all manner of conversation. Our Lord puts this command before the fixth, Mark x. 19.; becaufe our chaftity should be as dear to us as our life, and we should be as much afraid of that which defiles the body as that which deftroys it.

This command is a negative precept, and expressly forbids adultery : but under that is comprehended all manner of uncleannefs whatfoever, with all the caufes and occafions leading thereunto. And the positive part of this command is, that we must preferve our own and our neighbour's chaftity by all due means.

In difcourfing further, I fhall confider,

I. The duties required in this command.
II. The fins forbidden therein.
III. Make fome practical improvement.

I. Our first business is to confider what is required in this command; and the Catechism, agreeably to holy scripture, tells us, that it requires "the prefervation of our own and our neighbour's chaftity in heart, speech, and behaviour."

The duties of this command may therefore be reduced to two general heads. I. The prefervation of our own chaftity. 2. The prefervation of that of our neighbour.

FIRST, This command requires us to preferve our own chaftity and purity. There is a twofold chaftity. 1. In fingle life; when it is led in purity, it is like the angelical; when in impurity, it is devilifh. 2. There is conjugal chaftity, when when married performs keep themfelves within the bounds of the law of rbut flate. This lies in two things. (1.) With refped to all others, keeping themfelves pure and uncorrupted. (a.) With respect to another, keeping themfelves within the bounds of Christian fobriety and moderation. In whatfoever thate we are, " this is the will of God, even our fandification, that we flould abftain from formication; that every one of us flould know how to poffels his vefiel in fandification and honour, not in the luft of concupifcence," I Theff. iv. 3. 4. 5.

Now, there is a threefold chaftity required of us, and to be preferved by us.

First, Chaftity in heart, 1 Theff. iv. 5. forecited. God knows the heart, and therefore his laws reach the heart, and he will judge for heart-fins. We must keep our minds pure, that the thoughts be not led astray and corrupted. Hence Job " made a covenant with his eyes," chap. xxxi. 1. And we must keep our affections pure, that they be not vitiated. Job faw this when he appeals to God, " If mine heart have been deceived by a woman," ver. 9. This is to be pure before God, who feeth in fecret, and fearcheth the hidden things of darknefs. The least glance of the heart over this hedge is a crime.

Secondly, Chaftity in fpeech, Col. iv. 6. "Let your fpeech be always with grace, feafoned with falt." As there is tongue-murder, there is tongue-adultery. But our fpeeches muft favour of fobriety and purity; and fo they will, if the heart be pure; for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth fpeaketh. The Holy Ghoft, in the feriptures, gives us a pattern to be imitated in our fpeeches concerning thofe things that have a natural turpitude with them, vailing the fame in modeft exprefions.

Thirdly, Chaftity in behaviour, which comprehends both the keeping of the body undefiled by any grofs act, and a modeft carriage every way, I Pet. iii. 2. Modefty muft appear in the whole of our behaviour, that the purity of the heart may fhine forth thereby, as the candle gives light through the lanthorn.

Now, as this threefold chaftity is required here, fo the proper means for preferving it are also required.

I. Watching over our fenfes. Thefe are the ports at which Satan breaks in, and ruins people's purity. The heart and the fenfes are like a candle-wick, at the end of which lies a heap of powder. Objects fet fire to the fenfes at at the wick, and these carry it along to the heart, where the corruption lies as a heap of powder. Particularly,

70

(1.) The eyes, Job xxxi. 1. Thefe were the gates at which fin first entered into the world; and thefe have been the gates of destruction to many, whereby their fame, body, and fouls, have been destroyed together. It is remarkable that the Sodomites were fmitten with blindnefs, who took fo little care to watch their eyes while they had the use of them. Curious glances of the eye have been fatal to many, as to David, 2 Sam. xi. 2. and to Joseph's mistrefs, Gen. xxxix. 7.

(2.) The ears. The corruption of the heart makes people liable to be chained with Satan's fetters by the ears as well as the eyes; as appears from Prov. vii. 21. 22. "With her much fair fpeech fhe caufed him to yield, with the flattering of her lips fhe forced him. He goeth after her ftraightway, as an ox goeth to the flaughter, or as a fool to the correction of the flocks." And curious liftening to rotten fpeeches, or whatfoever has a tendency to corrupt the heart, is to open the door to let out our purity.

2. Temperance, a fober use of meat, drink, fleep, and recreations. Hence our Lord warns his difciples, Luke xxi. 34. " Take heed to yourfelves, left at any time your hearts be overcharged with furfeiting and drunkennefs." Temperance is a neceffary hedge for chaftity, and the breaking over that hedge is a near way to facrifice the other. See Acts xxiv. 24. 25. " And, after certain days, when Felix came with his wife Drufilla, which was a Jewefs, he fent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in Chrift .---And as he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgement to come, Felix trembled." Why did the apostle chufe that fubject before thefe great perfons? Why, truly it was very fit. Hiftorians tell us, that this Drufilla was a most libidinous woman, and had left her hufband, Aziz king of Emeneffa; and while he was yet living, fhe was married to Felix, who was taken with her beauty; and fo they lived together in adultery. The body being pampered, becomes a luxuriant beaft; and those that cram their bellies with meat or drink, are but one remove from, and in near difpolition to lithinels; for one fenfuality makes way for another.

On this account it is that fafting and prayer may be to people a duty of this command; for, as fome devils are not caft out, fo fome are not held out but by fafting and prayer. They They that would keep themfelves pure, must have their bodies in fubjection, and that may require, in fome cafes, a holy violence, 1 Cor. ix. 27.

3. Keeping of chafte and modeft company. Hence Solomon exhorts, Prov. v. 8. 9. "Remove thy way far from her, and come not nigh the door of her houfe: left thou give thine honour unto others, and thy years unto the cruel." How many have been ruined by the company they have fallen into, worfe than they had fallen into a den of lions and wolves? Ill company wears off infenfibly the impreffions of virtue on people's fpirits; and if they be not at war with them, the maintaining of peace and converfe will make people like them.

4. Being bufied in fome honeft employment. Those that would be virtuous indeed, must not eat the bread of idlenefs. Honeft labour and bufinefs cuts off many temptations that idle perfons are liable to. Had David been in the field with his army, when he was rifing from off his bed in the evening-tide, 2 Sam. xi. 2. he had preferved his chaftity when he loft it; and fo had Dinah, if the had been at her bufinefs in her father's houfe, when the went cut to fee the daughters of the land, Gen. xxxiv. I.

5. Marriage, by those that have not the gift of continency. Hence fays the apofile, I Cor. vii. 2.9. "To avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband. But if they cannot contain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn."— Neither marriage nor fingle life are in themfelves morally good or evil, but indifferent. But that flate of life is to be chosen by every one, that will most conduce to their leading a holy life. So every particular perfor ought by themfelves to ponder their gift, and other circumffances, which will let them fee what is fin and what is duty in this cafe.

6. Cohabitation and conjugal love and affection betwixt married perfons, without which that flate will be no fence to purity, but a fnare. Hence Solomon fays, Prov. v. 19. 20. "Let her be as the loving hind, and pleafant roe; let her breafts fatisfy thee at all times, and be thou ravifhed always with her love. And why wilt thou, my fon, be ravifued with a firange woman, and embrace the bofom of a firanger?"

7 Laftly, Shunning all occasions, and refifting all temptations, to the contrary, Prov. 5. 8. forecited. So did Joseph, Gen. xxxix. 8. It is a dangerous business to parley with them. The town that is content to capitulate with the enemy, is next door to furrendering. There are two fins that the fcripture bids us flee from. 1. Idolatry, 1 Cor. x. 14. 2. Uncleannefs, 1 Cor. vi. 18. Why? Becaufe they are bewitching evils. It is fafer to flee, than to ftand to fight them.

SECONDLY, This command requires us to preferve the chaftity of others, and that fo far as we can, in their hearts, lips, and lives. For fo far as we might prevent the fin of others, and do it not, and much more when we occasion it, it becomes ours. Befides, that in preferving our own chaflity, we preferve that of others, and fo the means conducing to the one do alfo conduce to the other. Our duty in this point may be reduced to thefe two heads.

1. That we may do nothing which may enfare others: For whofoever lays the fnare is partner in the fin that comes by it. A lamentable inftance of this we have in Judah and his daughter-in-law : they were neither of them careful to preferve the other's chaftity, and fo they fell each by another's fnare, Gen. xxxviii. 14. 15. 16. For this caufe modest apparel is here required, I Tim. ii. 9.; and a careful avoiding of all unfeemly behaviour, which may have a tendency to defile the minds of others, though we ourfelves have no ill intention. Thus, Bathsheba's washing herself in a place where the might be feen of others, was the fad occafion of the fin that David and the were plunged into, 2 Sam. And truly where both grace and good manners are xi. 2. wanting, it is little wonder that people break their necks over one another.

2. That we do every thing incumbent on us to preferve the chaftity of others, in heart, fpeech, and behaviour. Let married perfons live together in due love and affection to one another. Let each one be an example of purity to others. Let those whom ye see in danger be refcued by all means, whether by force or perfuation, as the circumstances require. And let none bring others guilt on their own heads, by being filent when they fee the fmoke, till the flame rife and difcover itfelf. Let parents and mafters do what they can to prevent the ruin of their children and fervants, by rebuking any lightness about them, exhorting them, and praying for them; keeping them out of ill company, not fuffering them to be idle or vague, and featonably difpofing of children in marriage. Our bodies are the Lord's; we are or ought to be the temples of God; the heart is the VOL. III. K molt most holy place of the temple, and our fpeech and behaviour the holy place. Let us take heed we bring in no unclean thing there, but keep his temple pure; for if any defile the temple of God, him will God deftroy.

II. I come now to fhew, what is forbidden in this command. It forbids "all unchafte thoughts, words, and actions."

In nothing more quickly did the corrupt nature of man vent itfelf, than in inordinate concupifcence, which brought fhame along with it, as its juft punifhment; which makes it hard to fpeal: of it, and fo much the rather that corrupt nature is apt, through Satan's influence, to turn the very commandment againft it unto an occafion of fin. Therefore, though there is a neceffity of fpeaking fomething on it, we cannot enlarge with that freedom upon it that we can do on other commands. Sift your hearts, then, as in the prefence of a holy God, who will call us to an account in this matter before his tremendous judgment-feat, and hear his holy law, Thou fbalt not commit adultery.

In this fhort abbreviate of the law of God, where one fin is expressly condemned, under it are forbidden all fins of the fame kind. So here the whole dunghill of filthines is fet before us for our abhorrence, and detertation of our fouls, as we would not bring down the wrath of God on us. Here then all gross acts of filthines are forbidden. As,

1. All unnatural lufts, not to be mentioned without horror; filthy fellowfhip with devils, as the guilty do fuppofe; Sodomy, perfons abufing themfelves with those of their own fex, Rom. i. 24.—27.; beaftiality, Lev. xviii. 22. And to these we may add incess, which is betwixt perfons within the forbidden degrees of confanguinity or affinity, Lev. xviii. 6. Concerning which this is to be observed, that a man must hold at the fame distance from the relations of his wife as his own, and contrariwise, Lev. xx. 14.; and fuch unnatural mixtures can never be fanctified by marriage.

2. Adultery, where one of the parties, or both, are married. In this cafe the aggravations of the fin of the married party will be juftly charged upon the fingle perfon; and for both, "whoremongers and addrerers God will judge." Heb. xiii. 4. And bigamy and poligamy are adultery; for the vile fact cannot be fanctified, but made worfe, by marriage with the adulterer or adulterefs, Hof. iv. 10. "They "fhall commit whoredom, and fhall increafe."

3. Fornication,

The Sins forbidden.

3. Fornication, which is betwixt fingle perfons, Col. iii. 5. 6. " Mortify your members which are upon the earth; fornication, uncleannefs, &c. For which things fake the wrath of God cometh upon the children of difobedience." Whoredom is a fin that without repentance is a fad badge of a fubject of Satan, Eph. v. c. " No whoremonger nor unclean perfon-hath any inheritance in the kingdom of God and Chrift." And a vaft inconfiftencey there is betwixt being a member of Chrift, and that of a harlot, I Cor. vi. 15.

4. Rape, or forcing a perfon to filthinefs, Deut. xxii. 25. This is a capital crime by the laws of God and men.

5. Secret uncleannefs in a perfon by themfelves alone, whether they be waking, Eph. v. 12.; or fleeping, at least to far as they have occasioned it to themselves by their own corrupt imaginations.

6. Lafly, Immoderate and unfeasonable use even of the marriage-bed, and much more of the bed of whoredom. Mark thefe paflages, I Theff. iv. 3. 4. I Cor. vii. 5. If. lviii. 13. Ezek, xxii. 10. and xviii. 6.

Thefe are the feveral kinds of vilenefs here forbidden. But this command goes further, and forbids three forts of uncleanness besides.

1. Uncleannefs in heart, all fpeculative filthinefs, unclean imaginations, thoughts, purposes, and affections, tho' people do not intend to purfue them to the groß act, Matth. v. 28. "Whofoever looketh on a woman to luft after her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart." Chap. xv. 19. " Out of the heart proceed-adulteries, fornications." Thefe fall not under the eye of men, but are open to the eye of God, who will judge accordingly. A voluntary thought of thefe things is dangerous, a delightful rolling of them in the heart is uncleannefs before God, and a vitiated habit, whereby on every light occafion thefe filthy fparks are kindled in the heart, is worft of all, and moft abominable.

2. Uncleannefs in words, all filthy communications and obscene language, Eph. iv. 29. " Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth.". They are the difcoveries of a filthy heart; for "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth fpeaketh," contrary to nature, propaling those things which nature teaches to keep fecret. They are fnares to the hearers; and to fpeak of them for delight, is to act the filthinefs in words, when they cannot do it otherwife. Neither will the art fome have in drefling up their K 2 filthy filthy notions in figurative terms excufe; but thefe in fome fort are most dangerous, because the devilish wit displayed in them makes them more flicking; and so by means of the like phrases occurring in holy exercises, they are the readier even to defile these. Of this fort are filthy songs and ballad-finging; and the delightful listening to such things, as the fimple youth did to the speeches of the adulterous whore, Prov. vii. 18.-21.

3. Uncleannefs in actions. Befides the grofs acts, there are others leading thereunto, which are here alfo forbidden. As,

(1.) Wanton looks: there are "eyes full of adultery," 2 Pet. ii. 14.; "wanton eyes," If. iii. 16. Even a look for unlawful carnal delight is the venting of the impurity of the heart; and though it be only from levity and curiofity, it is finful, as a mean leading to evil.

(2.) Impudent and light behaviour, and immodeft geftures, If. iii. 16. indecent poftures, contrary to religion and good manners. Thefe are hellifh matters of fport, that defile the actors, and those that are witness to them without abhorrence. And on this ground ftage-plays and filthy pictures are amongst the things forbidden in this command, Ezek. xxiii. 14.—16.

(3.) Luxurious embraces and dalliances. Thefe are as fmoke going before the flame, and were practifed by the adulterous whore, Prov. vii. 13.

Now, as all thefe are here forbidden, fo all occafions and incentives to luft are forbidden, all that has a tendency to corrupt our own or neighbour's chaftity.

(1.) Immodeft apparel, Prov. vii. 10. God appointed apparel, [1.] For neceffity, to cover our fhame and nakednefs; [2.] To diffinguifh fexes; [3.] To diffinguifh callings, the more noble from the meaner fort. The devit has found out the fourth, to be enticements to luft.

(2.) Keeping ill company. This has been the ruin of many: therefore Solomon advifes, Prov. v. 8. " Remove thy way far from her," a ftrange woman, or whore; " and come not nigh the door of her houfe." It was Jofeph's commendation, that he fled from his miftrefs. Whatever the company be, people fhould beware that they caft not themfelves into fnares.

(3.) Idlenefs, the nurfery of all filthinefs, Ezek. xvi. 49. This expofeth to many temptations; for Satan will be ready to find idle people work. Gadding and vaguing abroad can hardly mils to have an unfavoury end.

10

76

(4.) Intemperance, gluttony, and drunkennefs. Thefe have a tendency to murder, which is forbidden in the fixth command, and to uncleannefs, forbidden in the one under confideration, Prov. xxiii. 30. 31. 33. Notable to this purpofe is that foripture, Jer. v. 8. "They were as fed horfes in the morning: every one neighed after his neighbour's wife."

(5.) Promifcuous dancing, or dancing of men and women together. This entertainment, however reckoned innocent among many, is evidently an incentive to luft, If. xxiii. 15. 16. 17. It is fuppofed, that it was to a dancing match among the daughters of the land that Dinah went forth, when fhe was dealt with as an harlot. This practice feems to be ftruck at by thefe fcriptures, Rom. xiii. 13. "Let us walk not in chambering and wantonnefs;" I Pet. iv. 3. where mention is made of " walking in revelling." It is offenfive to the grave and pious, is condemned by our church, yea, and has been condemned by fome fober heathens.

(6.) Undue delay of marriage, I Cor. vii. 7. 8. 9.; for they that refue the remedy, ftrengthen the difeafe.

(7.) Unjust divorce, Matth. v. 33.; wilful defertion, 1 Cor. vii. 12. 13.; want of conjugal affection, and all harshness and unkindness betwixt married perfons. These are to be avoided, as incitements to uncleanness.

(8.) Laftly, The Popifh doctrine and practice of forbidding lawful marriages, I Tim. iv. 3.; difpenfing with unlawful marriages, Mark vi. 18.; tolerating of flews or bawdyhoufes, Deut. xxiii. 17.; and entangling vows of fingle life, Matth. xix. 10. 11.

I fhall next make fome improvement of this fubject.

1. Let those that have fallen into the fin of uncleannels, repent, and walk humbly all the days of their life under the fense of it. There are, alas! not a few amongst us to whom this exhortation belongs. And perhaps, if their eyes were opened, they would see fomething in their lot that God has fent to go along with them, as a mark of his displeasure against that their fin; wherein they might with no great difficulty read their old fin in a continued punishment. That fin may be forgotten with us, that is not fo with the Lord.

2. Let those that ftand take heed left they fall. Labour to get your hearts poffeffed with a dread of this fin, and watch watch against it, especially ye that are young people, feesing it is a fin most incident to youth, when the passions are most vigorous; which yet may stick fast with the blue marks of God's displeasure upon you when you come to age. For motives, confider,

(1.) It is not only a fin, but ordinarily, if not always, a plague and punifhment for other fins. It is a mark of God's anger againft the perfon that is permitted to fall into it, Prov. xx. 14. "The mouth of a ftrange woman is a deep pit: he that is abhorred of the Lord, fhall fall therein." This is a heavy mark of God's indignation, which is worfe than to fall into a fever, or fome lingering diftemper; for a perfon may recover of thefe in a fhort time, but it is not fo eafy to recover of the other.

(2.) It is a fin that very few ever get grace to repent of. It ftupifies the confcience, and waftes all fenfe of fin from it, Hof. iv. 11. I have feen, alas! too many that have made public fatisfaction for that fin; but allow me to fay, I have feen very few by whofe repentance I was much edified. Hear what the Spirit of God fays of these unhappy people, Prov. ii. 10. " None that go unto her, return again, neither take they hold of the paths of life." None, that is, very few; but fome indeed do, as among the Corinthians, 1 Cor. vi. o. And be not offended, but cautioned, if I fay, that few 11. women particularly ever get grace to repent of it. Solomon faid it before me, Eccl. vii. 28. " A woman among all those have I not found." And observe what is faid, Acts xxiv. 25. that Felix trembled when Paul preached, though he repented not; but there is not a word of Drufilla's being moved.

3. It diffionours and debafes the body, i Cor. vi. 18. Our bodies are the members of Chrift or fhould be; but how are they debafed, being made members of a harlot? And how low and contemptible a thing is fuch a wretched creature, even in the eyes of those that join with them?

(4.) It leaves an indelible ftain upon their reputation; their honour is funk, and there is no recovering of it, Prov. vi. 33. Though the fin may be pardoned before God, yet the blot lies on their name, while they have a name on the earth. Yea, and when they are dead and gone, their baftard pofterity ftill lie under the ftain, whereof they could be no caufe.

(5.) Poverty and want oft-times follow it. It natively tends to poverty, Prov. v. 10; and there is a fecret curfe of that nature that often accompanies it, Prov. vi. 26. "By means means of a whorifh woman a man is brought to a piece of bread." How many have been made miferable by it, who have had occafion as long as they lived to remember they had ruined themfelves?

(6.) Laftly, It is ruining to the foul, Prov. vi. 32. "He that doth it," commit adultery with a woman, "deftroyeth his own foul." It ruins it here, in fo far as it defiles the conficience, fetters the affections, blinds the mind, utterly unfits for communion with God, till the guilt be wafhed off by the application of Chrift's blood, after a frightful awakening of the conficience. And if they do not repent of this fin, it will deftroy the foul for ever. Let these for for the four of it in the minds of all, Heb. xiii. 4. 1 Cor. vi. 9. Gal. v. 19. 21. Rev. xxi. 8.

I close with a few directions, in fo many words.

1. Give yourfelves away foul and body to Jefus Chrift, and learn to live by faith, fenfible of your own weaknefs, and relying on his promifed ftrength; for without him ye can refift no fin, nor temptation to fin.

2. Beware of a carnal frame, of floth and lazinefs. Labour to be fpiritual and heavenly in the frame of your heart, Gal. v. 16. " Walk in the Spirit, and ye fhall not fulfil the luft of the flefh."

3. Watch over your heart and fenfes. " Make a covenant with your eyes, as Job did, that ye may avoid unlawful looks; and never venture on the devil's ground, otherwife ye will fall into the fnare.

4. Study mortification of all your unruly lufts and paffions, and beware of all occafions and incentives to this wickednefs.

5. Keep at a diftance from immodeft company, and be not too frolicfome and foolifh, light and airy in your difcourfe.

6. Laftly, Pray fervently and importunately, that the Lord may fave you from this foul fin, and all temptations to it; faying with David, Pfal. cxix. 37. "Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity."

OF THE EIGHTH COMMANDMENT.

Exod. xx. 15 .- Thou shalt not steal.

THIS command refpects men's goods and outward effate in the world; and the fcope of it is to procure and further the fame by all good means. And the law of God refpecting this plainly fays, that religion is highly concerned in our civil actions, working, buying, and felling, and all the ways of advancing of the outward effate. In thefe we are hedged about by this command, as well as in natural things by the fixth and feventh. God's law follows us wherever we go, to the houfe or field, bed or board, church or market. This command alfo plainly effablishes diffinct properties, and that there is no univerfal community of goods, but every one has his own portion.

This being a command of the fecond table, it refpects ourfelves as well as our neighbour. And fo the meaning is, Thou fhalt not fteal from thyfelf nor any other; thou fhalt not wrong thyfelf nor others. And as in every negative is implied an affirmative, fo while ftealth or theft is here forbidden, the contrary is required, namely, the procuring and furthering of our own and others welfare in thefe things, but by means only that are lawful.

In difcourfing further from this fubject, I fhall fhew,

I. What is required in this command, viz. " the lawful procuring and furthering the wealth and outward eftate of ourfelves and others."

II. What is forbidden, viz. "Whatfoever doth or may unjuftly hinder our own or our neighbour's wealth or outward eftate."

III. Make application.

2

I.

I. I am to fhew, what is required in this command. And,

FIRST, God requires us in this command, by lawful means, to procure and further our own wealth and outward effate. We may take up this in these feven things.

1. We fhould look unto God for things neceffary and convenient for us. Here we fhould begin our care about temporal things; " for he it is that giveth thee power to get wealth," Deut. viii. 18.; and without his appointment our endeavours will not fucceed, Pfal. cxxvii. All the creatures depend on God's provision, as caged birds on those to whose care they are committed, Prov. xxx. 8. And so our Lord teaches us to pray every day, " Give us this day our daily bread," Matth. vi. 11. feeing God has comprehended this in the promife.

2. A provident care and fludy to get things neceffary and fuitable to our condition, I Tim. v. 8. To pray, and caft off means, is prefumption; to use means, but neglect praying, and looking to the Lord, is atheifm. We should keep the middle way betwixt careless and anxiety, and hold in the way of moderate care in these things; for we are not to expect to be like the lilies that toil not, neither spin, and yet are clothed.

3. For this caufe every body muft have a lawful calling and employment, and duly use it, that fo he may be useful to himfelf, and worth his room in the world, and not like mice and rats, good for nothing but to devour what others labour for. Adam in innocence had a calling, that of dreffing and keeping the garden of Eden, Gen. ii. 15.; and fo had his fons afterwards, though born to greater eftate than any now can pretend to, the one being a keeper of fheep, and the other a tiller of the ground, Gen. iv. 2. But we must be fure it be a lawful calling, Eph. iv. 28. But what avails it if it be not duly used? Therefore God requires of men that they labour to be skilful in it, and not bunglers at what they take in hand, Prov. xiv. 8.; and he allows men to look to himfelf for that end, If. xxviii. 26.; and likewife that they be diligent and industrious in it, and not loiterers, Prov. x. 4.; for lazinefs will make a thief, either directly or indirectly. And this is quite oppofite to God's appointment, Gen. iii. 10.

4. We are to take the moderate comfortable use of the product of our diligence, using and disposing of it for our necessfity and conveniency, according to our condition in the world, Eccl. x. 12. 13. For to what end do men get wealth, if they have no power comfortably to use it? As you. III.

good want it, as not to have the neceffary and convenient use of it. Such steal and rob (in the fense of this command) from their nearest neighbour, that is, themselves.

5. Withal God requires men here to be frugal and honeftly fparing, i. e. to keep a due medium betwixt lavishnefs and niggard pinching, Prov. xxi. 20. This frugality directs to the right managing of what God has given, fo as, (1.) People do not caft out their fubstance on trifles that are for no good purpofe, but on fuch things as there is fome folid use of, If. lv. 2.; and amongst these are to be reckoned extravagant furniture for back and belly, in which people cannot fatisfyingly to confcience answer the queftion, What needs all this wafte? (2.) That of those things which may be useful, there be nothing loft. When Chrift had provided bread enough, he gives particular orders to gather up the fragments, John vi. 12. (3.) That this care proceed not from carnal affection to the world, but from confcience towards God, that we abufe not his benefits, and take care to do good by what is fpared to ourfelves or to others, though it were even to beafts. Laftly, True frugality will be effectual to make us ready to lay out for God on pious uses, to the poor and otherwife, as the best way to fave, Prov. xi. 24.

6. Careful avoiding of whatfoever may embarrals our affairs, and wrong our own wealth and outward effate.— Thus God requires men to take heed that they do not inveigle themfelves in unneceffary pleas and law-fnits, I Cor. vi. 1.—8.; rafh cautionry, Prov. xi. 15. whereby fometimes men ruin themfelves and families, and fo fin againft God, themfelves, and their houfe. Of this fort may be reckoned people's rafh and foolifh engaging in things that they are in no probable cafe rightly to manage, firetching farther than they can well be fuppofed able to reach.

7. Lafly, Moderation of heart with refpect to worldly goods, Phil. iv. 5. (1.) We must moderate our judgment about them, that we put not too high a value and effeem on them, 1 Tim. vi. 17. (2.) We must moderate our wills about them, that we be not among those that will be rich; for that will carry us over this hedge, ver. 9. (3.) We must moderate our affections to them. We must beware of love to them, ver. 10.; for the covetous heart will not flick at undue means. We must moderate our care about them, refting in God's promife, and depending on his providence, Matth.vi.25. 26.; and be content with our lot, Heb. xiii. 5. For they that are not content, have what they will, are always poor; and their eye will be evil towards others alfo.

SECONDLY, God requires in this command, that we, by lawful means, procure and further the wealth and outward citate of others. We are not born for ourfelves, nor muft we live for ourfelves. We are members one of another as mcn, and much more as Chriftians; and felfifhnefs is offenfive to God, and deftructive to fociety. We may reduce this to two general rules of practice, founded on the light of nature, and confirmed by the word.

First, Give every one their due. The natural conficience dictates this, however little it is regarded; and God's word confirms it, Rom. xiii. 7. If ye do it not, ye rob them, or fleal from them. So God will reckon, and fo will men's conficiences reckon at laft. In whatever relation ye fland to them as mafters, fervants, neighbours, or under any particular bargain with them, or obligation to them, give them what is due to them.

Secondly, Do as ye would be done to. This alfo a natural conficience dictates, and the word confirms, Matth. vii. 12. If we muft love our neighbour as ourfelves, we muft not do to him what we would have no body do to us. If ye do otherwife, ye fteal from them, ye wrong them, your own conficiences being judges. For if they would do fo to you, ye declare they are unjuft to you: fo if ye do fo to them, ye muft either find out a law for them, which ye are not under, or elfe your own conficiences will condemn you as breakers of the law of God, which is common to both. To move you to walk by thefe rules, confider,

1. In vain will ye pretend to Chriftianity without it.— This is natural religion, which revelation came not to deftroy, but to confirm, Tit. ii. 12. And the Heathens, who in their Pagan darknefs faw thefe rules of righteoufnefs, and walked more by them than many Chriftians, will rife up in judgment against many that profess the name of Chrift, and yet make fo little confcience that way. People must either walk by them, or quit the name of Chriftians. If they will do neither of them now, Chrift will ftrip them at length out of their player's coat, and make them appear before the world in their proper colours.

2. Ye will never fee heaven without it, 1 Cor. vi. 9. If people get to heaven in another way, they muft frep over all the law and the prophets, Matth. vii. 12. I grant that thefe will not bring people to heaven; people may walk by them; as fome fober heathens have done, and yet go to hell; but without it people will never fee it. For though our good works and honeft dealings with men will not fave us, yet our ill works and unrighteous dealings will damn us, \mathbf{I} Theff. iv. 6. But to be more particular, we may take up this in five things.

as

 I_{A} , God requires of us that we be careful to prevent our neighbour's fkaith and lofs, as we have opportunity, Deut. xxii. 1. For the lofs we fee him get and can prevent, but do it not, is in effect the fame as if we downrightly procured it to him. That which we can hinder, and do not, is our fault before the Lord; and in this fenfe each man is bound to be his brother's keeper.

2dy, That we deal honeftly in all matters between man and man. If we would not come under the guilt of ftealing from them, we muft in all our dealings with them be frict obfervers of truth, faithfulnefs, and juftice; dealing in fimplicity and plainnefs, Pfal. xv. 2. 4. Zech. vii. 4. 10.; whether it be in bargains, buying and felling, in matters of truft concredited to us, or any thing of his we have under our hands. We muft deal with God, as if the eyes of men were on us; and with men, as knowing the eyes of God are on us. A Chriftian indeed will do fo. He will be an upright dealer with men, a flave to his word, a man that never wants a quick-fighted witnefs to his actions. And therefore it will be all one to him whether his party be abfent or prefent, fkilful and that will not be cheated, or fimple and eafily deceived.

3*dly*, Reftitution of goods unlawfully detained from the right owners thereof. This looks efpecially to two cafes.

(1.) Things loft and found ought to be reftored to the owners, and not concealed and kept, Deut. xxii. 2. 3.: for the keeping up of what is another's against the owner's will, is a fort of theft and injuftice, contrary to the rules aforefaid. And therefore it cannot be kept with a good confcience.

(2.) Whatfoever we have wronged our neighbour of, by taking it away from him, ought to be reftored, Lev. vi. 2. 4. There is, [1.] The cafe of truft, wherein a thing committed to him by another is kept up, on fome pretence that it is loft or fo. [2.] In cafe of fellowfhip in trading together, when one puts a thing in his partner's hand, in which cafe it is eafy for one to deceive another. [3.] In cafe of violence, when it is taken away by roberry, ftealth, yea, and opprefilon, I Sam.

2 Sam. xii. 3. [4.] In cafe of cheatery, when by fraud and circumvention it is taken away.

Now, in all thefe cafes, and the like, reftitution is neceffary. It is true, actual reftitution is fometimes beyond the power of him that flould reftore; yet in fuch a cafe the party is bound to go all the length he can, as appears from Exod. xxii. 2. But a readine's to reftore to the utmost of our power is abfolutely neceffary. For he does not truly repent of his fin, who is not willing to do all he can to repair the wrong; nor is the love of righteoufnefs and his neighbour in that man, who is not ready to give every one their due. And in this fenfe the rule holds, Non tollitur peccatum, nife reflituitur. It is remarkable that it is made one of the figns of true repentance, Ezek. xxxiii. 15. " If the wicked reftore the pledge, give again that he had robbed, walk in the ftatutes of life without committing iniquity; he shall furely live, he shall not die." And faid Zaccheus, Luke xix. S. "If I have taken any thing from any man by falle acculation, I reftore him fourfold."

Now, the party obliged to make reflicution, is not only the perfon that took a thing away, but he in whofe hand it is found; though he had it not fraudulently, yet upon the difcovery of the thing, he is obliged to return it, becaufe the perfon who (fuppofe) fold it to him, had no right to it, and therefore could give him none. But particularly the perfon himfelf, and his heirs, are bound to reftore, Job xx. 10.; and that the thing itfelf, or the value of it, yea, and a reafonable acknowledgement for the lofs of it, Lev. vi. 5. Luke xix. 8. The reflictution is to be made to the owner, or, if he be dead, to his heirs; and if neither can be found, to the Lord, Numb. v. 6. 7. 8. Luke xix. 8.

In cafe the reputation of the party be in hazard, the reftitution fhould be managed with that prudence, that it may not be unneceffarily blafted; for which caufe they that are in ftraits that way ought to confult fome prudent perfon, either minifter or Chriftian, that will be tender of them.

4thly, Charity and justice in the matter of loans. Here,

(1.) Lending to our neighbour in his neceflity, is a duty we owe him for the welfare of his outward effate, Matth. v. 42.; not only lending upon intereft, which is lawful, fo that it be moderate, Deut. xxiii. 20.; but freely, viz. to those that are poor, and require the loan for prefling neceffity. In that cafe we ought to lend them freely fuch a quantity of money and goods as we can well enough bear the loss of, in cafe they they be rendered incapable to pay it again. And fo is that feripture to be underflood, Luke vi. 35. "Lend, hoping for nothing again."

(2.) Returning or paying again thankfully what is borrowed by us, Exod. xxii. 14. And therefore we are not to borrow more than we are in a probable capacity to pay; which while fome have not regarded, they have liberally lived on other men's fubftance, and in the end have ruined other families, and quite devoured their money, as in another cafe, Gen xxxi. 15.; for no man has more that he can call his own, than what is over and above his debt, Pfal. xxxvii. 21. If the incapacity flow from mere providence, it is their affliction, but not their fin, 2 Kings iv. 1.

Lafly, Giving unto the poor, or those that are in need, according to their neceffity and our ability, Luke xi. 41. They are our neighbours, to whole outward eftate we are obliged to look ; they are to have mercy fhews to them that way. A difposition of foul to help them is requisite in all, even in those that have not a farthing to give, Prov. xi. 25. What people give muft be their own, 1 John iii. 17.; it must be thy bread, Eccl. xi. J. And therefore fuch as have not of their own, they cannot give what is another's, without the tacit confent and approbation or allowance of the owner; neither will God accept their robbery for burntoffering. But even people that muft work hard for their own bread, must work the harder that they may be able to give, Eph. iv. 28. But they to whom God has given a more plentiful meafure of the world's goods, must be fo much the more liberal to the poor; for to whom much is given, of him is much required. In helping of the neceffitous, the apofile's rules are to be observed, that special regard is to be had to our relations that may be in ftraits, I Tim. v. 8.; and that though all that need are to be helped, yet fpecial refpect is to be had to the poor members of Chrift, Gal. vi. 10.; and the greateft need is to be most regarded and most helped.

This duty is to be managed with these qualities.

(1.) People must give to the poor out of conficience towards God, and a defign to honour him, Prov. iii. 9.; not out of vain-glory, elle the work is lost as to acceptance, Matth. vi. 1. 2.

(2.) With an honourable regard to the poor, either as Chriftians, and members of the fame myflical body of Chrift, or at least as of the same blood with ourfelves, and not with contempt, and shaming of them, 1 Cor. xi. 22.

05

(3.) Cheerfully and freely, not grudgingly and as by conftraint, 2 Cor. ix. 7.

(4.) According to the measure of what the Lord has given unto us, 1 Cor. xvi. 2. So the more we have, the more we ought to give. The particular quantity cannot be defined, but by wildom and charity it mult be defined by every one for themfelves, Pfal. cxii. 5.

To engage you to this duty, confider,

[1.] We are not abfolute mafters, but flewards of our goods. The whole world is God's houfehold; and he has made fome flewards to feed others, Luke xvi. 10. 11. 12. We must give account of our flewardship to him, who could have put us in their cafe, and them in ours.

[2.] It is a duty bound on us with ties of nature and revelation. The law of God requires it, 2 Gor. viii. 9. Nature itfelf binds it on us, teaching us to do to others as we would be done by, if in their cafe. Not only Christianity, but humanity calls for it.

[3.] In this duty there is a fingular excellency. For (1.) It is a bleffed thing by the verdict of our bleffed Lord, Acts xx. 35. "It is more bleffed to give than to receive." (2.) The image and likenefs of God fhines forth in it in a peculiar manner, Luke vi. 35. 36. "Love ye your enemies, and do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again: and your reward thall be great, and ye fhall be the children of the Higheft: for he is kind unto the unthankful, and to the evil. Be ye therefore merciful as your Father alfo is merciful." Though Chrift became poor for us, yet he gave to the poor, to commend it to us by his example. (3.) It is particularly taken notice of in the day of judgment, Matth. xxv. 34. 35.

Laftly, It is the most frugal and advantageous way of managing of the world's goods. For,

(1.) It is the way to fecure to ourfelves a through-bearing; there is a good fecurity for it, Prov. xxviii. 27. "He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack."

(2.) It is the beft way to fecure what we have, which is liable to fo many accidents, Eccl. xi. 1. "Caft thy bread upon the waters: for thou fhalt find it after many days." Laying out for God is better fecurity than laying up what God calls for. For fo it is put in a fure hand, that will be fure to pay it again. The poor and needy are God's receivers, Prov. Prov. xix. 17. "He that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given, will he pay him again."

(3.) It is the way to be rich, as the Bible points out the way, Prov. iii. 9. " Honour the Lord with thy fubftance, and with the first fruits of thine increase." Solomon obferves the accomplifhment of it, Prov. xi. 24. " There is that fcattereth, and yet increafeth."

(4.) It is the way to fecure comfort to us in the time when trouble shall overtake us, Pfal. xli. 1. 2. 3. " Bleffed is he that confidereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preferve him, and keep him alive, and he shall be bleffed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will ftrengthen him upon the bed of languishing : thou wilt make all his bed in his ficknefs."

Lafly, God has promifed that fuch shall find mercy, Matth. v. 7.; always taking along what is faid, ver. 3. " Bleffed are the poor in fpirit : for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." See Luke xvi. 9. 1 Tim. vi. 17. 18. 19.

II. I come now to fhew, what is forbidden in the eighth commandment. It " forbids whatfoever doth or may unjufly hinder our own or our neighbour's wealth or outward effate."

The fins forbidden in this command may be reduced to thefe two heads: whatever doth or may hinder our own wealth unjuftly; and whatever doth or may unjuftly hinder our neighbour's wealth or outward eftate.

FIRST, Whatfoever doth or may hinder our own wealth unjustly. This is neceffarily understood: for we may neither do a finful thing to procure our own wealth, nor yet to preferve it. But when there are lawful means which Providence calls us to the use of, and we do not use them, we fin against God and ourfelves. Thus this command favs to each of us, in the first place, Thou shalt not steal from thyself. Thus we are guilty,

1. By idlenefs, when people that are able do not employ themfelves in fome honeft calling or work according to their ability, 2 Theff. iii. 11. The idle man wrongs himfelf, while he exposes himfelf to poverty, and fo to a fnare, by his not using means to preferve and improve his fubftance. And he fins against God, who has appointed, that in the fweat of his face man shall eat bread, Gen. iii. 19. And this is fo although although he have enough of his own, and needs not be bur, denfome to others, Ezek. xvi. 49. He makes himfelf a waif for Satan to pick up.

I

2. By careleffnels, floth, and mifmanagement in our calling, Prov. xviii. 9. Careleffnels lets occafions of furthering our own wealth flip; and flothfulnels in bufinels is next to doing nothing at all. And they that cannot put down their hands to work diligently, will hardly mils fome time or another to put out their hand to fteal. Carelefs and flothful management of bufinels by one hand in a family, may do more milchief than many diligent hands can remedy, Prov. xiv. 1. Religion does not allow either men or women to be drones in their family, good for nothing but to make a noife, take up room, and feed on the product of the diligence of their relatives, Rom. xii. 11.

3. By not owning God in our buinefs, and fo flighting his blefiling, who gives man power to get wealth, Deut. viii. 18. It is he that gives rains and fruitful feafons, that makes the cattle to thrive or to be diminified, and that profpereth the work of our hands. Do they not then ftand in their own light that acknowledge him not in thefe things?

4. By waftefulnefs and prodigality, whereby people foolifhly spend and lavifh away what God has brought to their hands, Prov. xxi. 17. And indeed thefe two ordinarily go together, unthriftinefs and waftery; for readily they that have no hands to gather, have two to fcatter; and they that can do no good to get, are active at putting away. Thus they not only mifapply what God has given them, but take the high way to poverty and ftealing.

5. By rafh engaging in fuch things as may ruin our wealth and outward eftate, as unneceffary inveigling ourfelves in law-pleas, whereby the contentious humours of fome have made them like the afs in the fable, that feeking his, horns loft his ears, I Cor. vi. 6. 7. 8.; as alfo cautionry, which although it be duty in fome cafes, as giving and lending is, yet if it be not managed with prudence and differeion may prove but a plucking the bread out of the mouths of our own, to put it in the mouths of ftrangers, Prov. xi. 15. and vi. 1. &c.

6. By diffruftful and diffracting care in getting and keeping of worldly things, Matth. vi. 31. Can that man be wealthy indeed, who, have what he will, never has enough, and whofe abundance fuffereth him not to fleep? Eccl. iv. 8. This keeps him from the comfort of what he has, that he Vol. III. M robs robs himfelf of, which is the only valuable thing in worldly enjoyments, Prov. x. 22.

7. Laftly, By fordidnels, which is when a man has no power to enjoy the gift of God, Eccl. vi. 1. 2: We can fcarcely fay, have what they will, that they have it, but it has them; for they have not the convenient decent ufe of it. They are of no ufe but to be ferviceable to people's neceflities and conveniencies; fo that where that is wanting, it is as good as if they had them not.

To conclude this: Let us walk confcientioufly in thefe things, knowing that we are accountable to God in them. We are not at our own difpofal, but muft lay out ourfelves as God calls us. Neither may we do with our own what we will; for we are but inferior lords of them, and muft use them agreeably to the will of the great Proprietor.

SECONDLY, Whatfoever doth or may unjuftly hinder our neighbour's wealth or outward eftate, is forbidden here, as theft in God's account. Whatfoever way we wrong others in their outward eftate, comes under this notion of ftealing. So this command fays, Thou fhalt not fteal from others. In refpect of our neighbour, this command is broken two ways.

First, By direct flealing, which is the taking away of what is our neighbour's against his will, to his hurt and loss. If it be done fecretly, without the knowledge of the owner, it is called theft; if it be by violence, it is robbery, whether by fea or land. There are two forts of it.

1. Stealing of perfons, called man-ftealing, 1 Tim. i. 9. 10. It was the ftealing away of men, women, or children, either to use them or fell them for flaves. Slavery having no place among us, there is no practifing of it with us, fo far as I know. But there want not other finful practices participating of the nature of this fin, fuch as running away with perfons for marriage, whereby their parents are robbed of what is their own; enticing away of other people's fervants, to the prejudice of their mafters; and feducing of people's children to vicious and lewd practices. All which are contrary to the golden rule of juffice, "Whatloever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even fo unto them."

2. Stealing of fubftance. Whereof there are three kinds.
(1.) Stealing from the public or commonwealth, whereby the magistrate and nation are wronged. (2.) Stealing from the church, taking away of what is devoted for pious uses, for for maintaining the fervice of God and the poor. It is called facrilege, Rom. ii. 22. Thefe are the worft kinds of theft, in regard of the relation thefe things have to God. (3.) Single theft, whereby private perfons are wronged in their private fubftance. Whether the thing ftolen be little or great, he that takes it away, is a thief, and is therefore excluded out of the kingdom of heaven, I Cor. vi. 9. 10. A man may lofe his foul by the unlawful getting of what is not worth a penny, as well as of what is worth a thoufand. Did men and women believe the curfe of God which they take up with the thing they take away from others, they would fee they had a fad bargain of it, Zech. v. 3. 4.

Secondly, By indirect flealing, which, though not accounted theft among men, yet is fo in the fight of God. And of this there are a great many ways, all here forbidden. People are thus guilty of theft, and break this command,

1. In their hearts, by nourifhing those lufts that have a tendency thereto; for as there is heart-adultery, fo there is heart-theft. And this especially lies in these three things. (1.) Discontent with our condition, Heb. xiii. 5. This lays people open to the worst of fnares. (2.) Envying and grudging at the good of others. This is the evil eye, which devours the fubflance of others. (3.) Covetous heart is that which flretches out the hand to fleal.

2. In their convertation, by taking fuch ways as tend to the wronging of others in their outward effate, and really do wrong them, and take from them unjuffly. This command is broken,

1/t, By the idlenefs and floth of those that are not able otherwise to maintain themselves. Every one is bound by this command to have a calling, and be diligent in it, if they be able. Therefore it is a fin for fuch to give up themfelves to idlenefs, and live without a calling, or to be lazy in it, Eph. iv. 28. 2 Theff. iii. 10. 11. Hence it is evident,

(1.) That flurdy beggars are not to be tolerated; and no perion being able to work for their maintenance can with a good conficience make a trade of begging. They that are able to work, but are not willing, ought to be compelled to it; and it is the fin and fhame of the government that it is not fo. For they directly fet themfelves in oppofition to God's ordinance, Gen. iii. 19. They carry not themfelves either as fubjects or church-members, and difpole them-M 2 felves that way to all manner of wickedness without controul.

(2.) That no perfon can with a good conficience lay the burden of their maintenance on others, further than what they cannot prevent by their own utmost diligence in labouring for themfelves. And therefore those that will rather feek than work, though they be able, are reckoned in God's account to freal it, though they think not fo.

Idle and lazy perfons are guilty of flealth two ways. They wrong them that have, being without neceffity a burden to them. They wrong others that are really poor and unable to help themfelves; for they rob them at leaft in part of what they fhould get; and whereas they ought to labour to help them, they do it not, Eph. iv. 28.

2*dly*, By unlawful, bafe, and unwarrantable ways of geting gain. This the Spirit calls filtby lucre. For men muft not only work, but work that which is good, that they may gain a maintenance. And if they take finful ways to obtain it, it is theft in the fight of God.

(1.) Ufing unlawful arts or trades, Acts xix. 19. 24. 25. Such are not working the thing that is good, but in itfelf evil, and tending to the debauching of mankind.

(2.) By raking together gain by our own fin, or the fin of others, as for gain to play the whore, or to do or help others to any finful thing. Of this fort is the felling drink to those that go to excefs in it, where people are inftrumental in the ruin of the fouls, bodies, and means of others, for their own filthy gain. Of this fort alfo are your fet drinkings to help people to fome flock; which is an occafion of much fin and excefs. It must needs be base gain that is made that way, as being no way warranted by the word of God of helping them that are in need; and ordinarily it is feen to be blaffed, fo that it does little good. Muft men be obliged to abufe themfelves, and God's good creatures, to help others? Is that a way becoming Christian gravity and fobriety for helping thole that need ? But they will caft out their money liberally that way, that will not part with a penny to a poor object. Let those that need ply their hands well; and if that will not do to help them, let them take Chriftian methods for their help otherwife, and not run themselves on the fword-point of the curfe denounced against fuch base gain, Hab. ii. 15. " Wo unto him that giveth his neighbour drink: that putteft thy bottle to him, and makeft him drunken alfo."

alfo." And let men of gravity and fobriety difcourage those ways, and not partake of other men's fins.

(3.) By making merchandife of things that ought not to be fold or bought. If they be fpiritual things, as factaments and church-offices, it is Simony, Acts viii. 20. If it be of juffice, it is bribery, Job xv. 34. Or whatfoever it is that people make merchandife of, which ought neither to be bought nor fold.

(4.) It is a bafe gain that is made by your penny-weddings. as they are commonly managed, being condemned both by the laws of the land and of the church. And for people to begin the world with treading upon the laudable laws of the ftate, and conftitutions of the church, for a little bafe gain, cannot be but a finful way, being offenfive and diforderly, I Cor. x. 32. 2 Theff. iii. 6. Our church, by act of Affembly, has declared them to be fruitful feminaries of all lafeivioufnefs and debauchery, as well by the exceffive number of people convened thereto, as by the extortion of them therein, and licentioufnefs thereat, to the great difhonour of God, the fcandal of our Christian profession, and the prejudice of the country's welfare. And I appeal to your own confciences, if it be not a just character of them. The drinkings, dancings, exceffes, and quarrelings that accompany them, are they fuitable to the rules of Christianity? They are generally reckoned opprefilion, and a gentle way of begging ; but I fear God will reckon them ftealing, as a way of bafe gain. But we have fuch fresh 'experience of your respect to warnings from the Lord's word, that I need not doubt, but if ye had occasion, we should have a penny-wedding next Tuefday, Hof. iv. 4.

(5.) It is bafe gain that is made by playing at cards and dice, or any fuch game of hazard. For the lot being an appeal to God, it is dangerous to make a play of it. They occafion much fin of blafpheming God's providence, under the name of ill luck when peeple lofe, commending their good luck when they win, mifpending of time through a bewitching in the matter, whereby they cannot give over, the winners hoping to win more, and the lofers hoping for better. Surely it is no working of that which is good, Eph. iv. 23. A Popifh dector, in a treatife of his on plays, tells us, that all games of hazard are condemned by Pagans, the fathers, the most able Popifh and Protestant doctors, and that even Jefuit cafuifts find a mortal fin in playing at cards.

(6.) It is bafe gain when people ftand at nothing, whether credit credit or conficience, if they can but reach it. Thus many rechon gain fweet, whatever way they can get it. They will debafe themfelves to the meaneft things to win a little thing, without any neceffity. They will toil themfelves exceffively for what is very inconfiderable; and if charity and gifts be going, they will without neceffity put in for their fhare, to the great prejudice of those that are truly needy, and cannot help themfelves. These and all other ways of base gain are forbidden here as ftealing.

3dly, This command is broken by family-frauds and robbery. For in this cafe one's enemies may be those of their own house. These family-frauds are committed,

(1.) By the husbands fpending and wasting their money or goods, to the detriment of their wives and children. It is abominable robery for men to ware that on their lufts, which should ferve the necessfities and conveniences of their families, as it falls out in the cafe of drunkards, adulterers, and mismanagers. But worst of all, while they themselves are kept full, and their poor families fadly pinched, I Tim. v. 8.

(2.) By wives embezzling and putting away their hufband's goods to his lofs, by which means a man may foon be tholen off his feet, as we term it. It is quite contrary to the character of a virtuous woman, Prov. xxxi. 12. "She will do him [her hufband] good, and not evil, all the days of her life."

(3.) By children embezzling and taking away their parents money or goods without their confent. There is no doubt a child may fteal from his parents, feeing he is not proprietor of their goods, Prov. xxviii. 24. Though they think they may take at their own hand, God's word fays the contrary.

(4) By fervants wronging their mafters in their fubftance that is among their hands. By their employment and truft, they have occasion to fteal from their mafters, if confcience engage them not to honefty. And fo they may be guilty by taking of their mafter's goods, either for themfelves, or to give away to others, Tit. ii. 9. 10.

(5.) Laftly, I will add, by all fuch as tempt or encourage either hufbands, wives, children, or fervants, to wrong their relatives. Thefe are deeply guilty; for, as we fay, there would not be a thief if their was not a refetter, Pfal. 1. 18. Thus hoftlers and others that entertain men to the prejudice of their families; fteal from thefe families. Thus covetous vetous neighbours, who have their intrigues with other people's fervants, and fawning flatterers that draw about people's houfes, to make a prey, whether of fimple wives, children, or fervants, engaging them to rob their hufbands, parents, or mafters, to give them, are thieves in the fight of God, to be avoided as plagues and pefts to a houfe, Prov. xxix. 24.

Athly, This command is broken by injuffice and cheatery in bargains and commerce, I Theff. iv. 6. What is got in that way is ftolen in God's account, Lev. xxv. 14. Thus men are guilty,

(1.) When they take advantage of their neighbour's neceffity, either in buying or felling; as when a perfon is neceffitated to fell a thing, the buyer takes the advantage to gain it much below the worth; or when the feller knows the buyer muft needs have it, then to rack it above the worth to him, Lev. xxv. 14. Indeed, if the feller would not otherwife part with the thing, but to answer that neceffity, or the buyer would not otherwife take it, the cafe alters; for then parting with his money or goods in that cafe requires a rational compendation.

(2.) When the feller commendeth, and the buyer difpraifeth the wares, contrary to their own conficience and knowledge, that fo they may over-reach one another, Prov. xx. 14. So no doubt the way of prigging fo long before people come to the due worth, is an infnaring way of dealing.

(3.) When men take advantage of their neighbour's ignorance in buying or felling. This fometimes falls out in buying, when the feller knows not the value of the thing, but the buyer does, and fo gets it from him far below the worth. Oft-times in felling, when the feller impofes ou the buyer's ignorance, either by express lying, faying the thing is what he really knows it is not, or concealing fraudulently the fault of it, as if, in felling a beaft or any other thing, a man fhould conceal a known fault of the commodity. which he knows if the buyer knew, he would either not have it at all, or not at the price. In this cafe, men think it enough that their neighbour's eye is his merchant. But will ye apply this practice to the golden rule, "Whatfofoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even fo to them," Matth. vii. 12.; and let confcience fay if it be fair dealing or not, Lev. xix. 11. " Ye fhall neither do falfely, nor lie one to another."

(4.) By

(4.) By adulterating of wares, mixing them with worfe, to the prejudice and without the knowledge of the buyer; the commodity perhaps good and fightly, where it appears to the buyer's eye, but full of refufe that is good for little or nothing, but to make weight, or fill up the meafure, which he finds not till he is to make ufe of it, Amos viii. 6.

(5.) By using false weights and measures, Micah vi. 10. 11.; or any deceit whatfoever about weights or measures, whether in buying or felling; as in the case where the party is absent, and therefore it is made feanty, or when men have one to buy with, and another to fell with, or whatever way men take to "falsify the balances by deceit," Amos viii. 5.

(6.) When that which is bought is not precifely delivered, but is vitiated; as by taking away a part of what is good in it; and making it up with what is worfe; fo that though they have the fame weight or meafure which they bought, yet it is not of the fame goodnefs. This is direct ftealth: for what is once fold is no more ours; and with the fame juffice ye might take a fhilling out of your neighbour's pocket, putting in a fixpence for it.

(7.) Unfaithfulnefs in not performing condition, Pfal. xv. 4.; when people make no conficience of keeping their word. This is not to be rigidly interpreted to involve men in guilt, when they ufe all moral diligence to perform their condition, but Providence puts a flop in their way; for in all promifes of that nature, fuch an exception is to be underflood; but when people have a finful hand in not performing exactly according to promife.

(8.) Lafly, When payment is made with uncurrent money, confifting with the knowledge of the payer, Gen xxiii. 16.; or like Ananias and Sapphira, Acts v. keeping back part of the price; a bafe and unjuft cuftom with fome, who ftill eat up a part of what they are obliged to pay, Prov. iii. 27.28.

5thly, This command is broken in fellowfhip, when people trade together, or have a common intereft in one room together, and in the management thereof defraud and go beyond one another; which is the rife and fpring of many brawls and grudges that neighbours have againft one another, Lev. vi. 2. So in over-flenting of ground beyond what falls to their fhare, fhifting to bear proportionable burdens to their profit, breaking over any of the conditions of their fellowfhip, and raifing their own gain out of their neighbour's neighbour's loss, and many fuch things which men do to others that they would not have done to themfelves; and therefore are pieces of injustice, and forts of theft, here condemned.

6thly, It is broken in the matter of neighbourhood, as by removing marches or land-marks, Prov. xxii. 28.; careleffnefs to keep our neighbours from fkaith by us, whereas juftice requires we fhould be as loath to do wrong to our neighbours, as to receive it from them. Far more when it is done defignedly, as for people to fland and feed their beafts on their neighbour's grafs, at times when they know they cannot be catched in the thievifh act. And of this fort is the turning out of beafts in the night-time, when there is no probability but they will be in their neighbour's fkaith, though they refolve to rife early, and fet them right ere they can be noticed.

7thly, It is broken in matters of truft. Treachery under truft is amongft the worft pieces of injuffice. Thus men are guilty when they give hurtful counfel to thofe that truft to them, and fo betray them; when partners in trading are unfaithful one to another; when men have other people's bufinefs among their hands, their fubflance or their work, and prove unfaithful, becaufe it is in the power of their hand. But the worft of all this fort is unfaithfulnefs to poor orphans left to men's care and tutory, whom many hard hearts can treat moft unjuftly, to their lofs or ruin, and to the bringing of a curfe on themfelves, God being the Judge of the fatherlefs in a fpecial manner.

Stbly, It is broken in the cafe of hiring many ways. As, (1.) When men wilfully or carelefsly abufe a thing which they have hired, it is a piece of injuffice. So men may be guilty in abufing the houfe they dwell in, or the horfe they ride on, or the land they poffefs. (2.) When hirelings make no confcience of working honeftly for their wages, as when they take wages for work, they have not fkill to manage to the advantage of those that employ them; or when they fpend time carelefsly, and are not diligent for the advantage of those that employ them; and much more when they defignedly work flightly for their own greater gain. (3.) When the hireling is defrauded in the matter of his wages, either by keeping it from him altogether, or not giving it him in due time, when it is in the power of our hand, or paying him with any infufficient thing, Jam. v. 4.

othly, This command is broken in retaining inftead of re-Vol. III. N floring ftoring what is not ours, but our neighbour's. Thus men are guilty in concealing of things found, and with-holding them from the right owners when they are known, whom, according to the weight of the matter, they fhould be at pains to know; much more when, being found, it is difpatched fo as our neighbour can never have it again, Deut. xxii. 1. 2. So in all cafes where reflitution is neceffary, the retaining is a continued theft; for what we have taken away from others, we fhould be ready to reflore. Indeed the party's giving of it takes away the neceffity of reflitution, and that though it be but rationally prefumable that they do not defire fuch reflitution.

10thly. It is broken in the matter of borrowing and paying again. As, (1.) When people make no confcience of reftoring what they have borrowed for their ufe, or preferving it entire, that it be not notably the worfe of them. Borrowing and lending is a neceffary bond of fociety among neighbours; and as lenders are obliged to be neighbourly, fo borrowers fhould be fo too, Exed. xxii. 14. (2.) Refufing to help our neighbour, by lending where our own affairs will spare it, and he is in ftraits, Matth. v. 42.; and particularly a rigid flanding at a diffance from all lending to those that are low in the world, and under a particular ftrait; for in that cafe, I shewed before that it is duty to lend to fuch, fuch a portion of money or goods as we can well bear the lofs of, though never repaid, Luke vi. 35. (3.)Not paying our just debts, if we able, Pfal. xxxvii. 21. And of this fort is borrowing what we are in no probable condition to pay. (4.) The staving off of payment, and shifting it, and obliging people to vexatious law-fuits for the recovering of their due; for that is a fort of robbery, Prov. iii. 30. And fo is the involving people in law-fuits for an unjust debt. (5.) Laftly, Extortion in compensation for loans, Ezek. xxii. 12. which we call ufury or ocker, Pfal. xv. ult.; and the requiring of all our debts rigidly, without mercy or compaffion, If. lviii. 3.

itbly, It is broken by an uncharitable use of what is our own. The fovereign Proprietor of the world may do what he will; but fo may not we, that are bound to use what is ours in the way of charity towards our neighbour. This is done many ways, particularly by the two following, taken notice of in the Larger Catechifm on this command.

(1.) By unjust inclosures and depopulations, that is, inclosing of grounds and dispeopling them, whereby it comes to to pais that houses are pulled down, and families cash out, to make room for beasts or fo; and so the country is dispeopled; and some one, or a few, are built up on the ruins of many, If. v. 8. Micah ii. 2.

(2.) By ingroffing commodities to enhance the price, whereby one gets fuch a commodity all in his own hand, fo that he makes all that need it depend on him, and makes his own price as he will, feeing people cannot mend themfelves at another hand. Such is the hoarding up of corn and other neceffary things for a dearth, that they will not fell when people frand in need of them, Prov. xi. 26.

12thly, It is broken by opprefion, when a man, by his own power, favour, or intereft, bears down his neighbours, either thrufting them from their right, or with-holding them from their due, or firetches beyond what his own right and title will warrant him, to the prejudice of a weaker party. Thus magiftrates may opprefs their fubjects, mafters their fervants, landlords their tenants, and one powerful tenant or neighbour his weaker neighbour. This is a horrid fin in the fight of God, for men to ufe their power to diffrefs others that are weaker than they. It is a fort of murder, condemned in the fixth command, Micah iii. 2. 3.; and of theft or robbery, condemned in the eighth, Ezek. xxii. 7.

13thly, It is broken by partaking with thieves or unjust perfons, Pfal. 1. 18.; and partakers in fin may lay their account to be partakers in plagues with the finner. Now, partakers with thieves or unjust perfons are,

(1.) All that encourage and tempt them to it: thefe directly concur to the guilt.

(2.) All that receive or harbour ftolen goods, Prov. xxix. 25. Such are all that join with them to hide what is taken away from their neighbours; fuch as wittingly and willingly take them from them as gifts, or that buy them from them, becaufe they get a round pennyworth; but they are the deareft ever they bought, if they knew the matter as it is; fuch as wittingly and willingly receive the profit of them; fo the hufbands, wives, children, and fervants, are guilty of the theft of their relatives in that cafe. Doubly deceitful and cruel are they who receive the pickeries of children.

(3.) Such as do not hinder it when it is in their power; when people fee a perfon at that foul-ruining trade, and let them be doing; certainly know them guilty, and yet will not fo much as tell them of it prudently; though perhaps they will foread it to others, and then fet their foot on it.

Lafly,

Lafly, This command is broken by unmercifulnefs to the poor, flutting up our bowels of compaffion against them, which locks up the hand from giving them in their need. I fhall fay two things of it.

(1.) It is a complication of many fins in one. For,

[1.] It is a theft, Eph. iv. 28. It is a taking from them what is their due by the law of God: for though we have the right of property in our own goods, the truly poor have a right of charity in them, fo far as they need and we can fpare.

[2.] It is ingratitude to God, who has given us fo much, and yet in that cale we will not part with a portion of it, when he requires it back by the poor, his receivers. It is the Lord himfelf that alks of us by the poor, and it is horrid ingratitude to refuse him, Matth. xxv. 40. 41.

[3.] It is perfidioufnefs in the flewardfhip which God has committed to us, Luke xvi. 10. as if a fleward flould ufe all for himfelf, and flarve his mafter's family.

[4.] La fly, It is a fort of murder, I John iii. 15.—17. For as the fire may be put out by with-holding fuel, as well as pouring water on it; fo a man's life may be taken away by denying him the fupports of life, as well as by cutting his throat.

(2.) So it brings on a complication of ftrokes from God. [1.] It is a moth in what a man has, and directly tends to poverty and want, Prov. xi. 24. 25.; for what men thus hold together, God in his anger fcatters. [2.] It is inconfiftent with the love of God, 1 John iii. 17.; and the want of bowels to the poor is the want of pure religion before God, Jam. i. ult. [3.] Lefly, As men deal with the poor unmercifully, fo they may expect God will deal with them, Prov. xxi. 13. Jam. ii. 13.

Thus I have gone through the duties required, and the fins forbidden in this command, as they occurred. But a tender conficience, in applying of this command in practice, will find much more than what I have faid. And when we come to the light of the Lord at the great day, things will be feen required and forbidden in it (I doubt not), that neither you nor I have thought of. Who can understand his errors? O what need of the blood of Christ, and grace to repent, and turn from our evil ways!

I fhall now fhut up my difcourse on this command with two dehortations.

FIRST,

FIRST, I would dehort all and every one from ftealing. Let every one abhor this fin. Let fuch as have ftole, fteal no more, but repent. I with there were no ground to infift on this; but I am convinced that there is. I fhall,

1. Offer fome motives to prefs the forfaking of this fin.

2. Confider fome occasions of it, and expose them.

3. Point out the remedies against it.

FIRST, I shall offer some motives to press the forsaking of this fin.

1. Confider how fhocking it is to nature's light, that teaches us to do to others as we would be done to. So that if conficience be but in the deadthraw with the thief, and not quite dead, he is judged and condemned from within in the very act. No wonder the heart quake, and the hands tremble, when they are put out, over the belly of the conficience, to that unlawful gain,

2. Confider the reproach of it. How difgraceful a name is that of a thief? If confcience have no weight with people, may they not regard their credit? Do not people regard to be hiffed at by others? Job xxx. 5. It is true, they hope to carry it fecretly; but how often is it feen that a bird of the air carrieth the voice, and they are furprifed one time or other with fhame covering their face?

3. It quite mars your acceptance and communion with God. The thief excommunicates himfelf from the prefence of the Lord. He may pray to God, but God will not hear him; may come to fermons, but there is nothing for him there but words of anger. Judas was a thief, and both preached and prayed; but had no intercourfe with God in thefe exercifes. When the thief brings in the ftolen goods, God goes out; and is not that a fad exchange, and are not the things ftolen dear wares? And while he enjoys the fweet of it, it is mixed with the vinegar of God's wrath; till he repent, and reftore too, if he be able, he can have no more accefs to God than the murderer while he has his fword in his neighbour's body, or the adulterer while his whore is in his arms, Jer. vii. 9. 10.

4. Nay, it brings down a curfe inftead of a bleffing. While he fwallows down thefe goods, the curfe goes down with it, which will choke him at length. It brings a curfe on him, and that he has otherwife, Zech. v. 2.--4. Sometimes it works on his own fubftance like a moth, and what he has decays, and do what he will he is always poor. Sometimes it works like like a lion, fo that though he have a full life of it a while by the gains of unrighteoufnefs, yet at length all is fwallowed up from him together, either by the hand of God or of men. However, it makes always a blafted, withered foul.

5. Lafly, It will ruin people eternally. The thief is liable to three tribunals. (1.) Of the ftate, feeing the laws of the land strike against it. Thest is punished with death, how equitably, I shall not fay; for there feems to be no proportion betwixt men's goods and lives. Pickery, or fmall theft, is punished arbitrarily, with difgrace enough. (2.) Of the church; for the difcipline of the church ought to ftrike against it, and they are cenfurable for it even to excommunication, I Cor. v. 11. 12. But it is for the most part fo cleverly carried, that neither church nor flate can touch them. But they will not efcape. (3.) The tribunal of God, who is a Judge that will not want witneffes to prove the fact which no eye faw, while himfelf is omnifcient, and there is a confcience within men's breaft. And therefore I, as a meffenger of that Judge, the eternal God, do in his name and authority fummon, arreft, and bind over, every ftealer, and partaker with stealers, hearing me, or that should be hearing me this day, to answer it before the tribunal of God; denouncing the eternal vengeance of God and everlafting damnation against them, to be assuredly executed against them if they repent not in time. And let the timber and ftones of this houfe, and every one of you, be witneffes to this execution, to be produced when they and I shall stand before that tribunal, 1 Cor. vi. g. 10. And O but it is dear, bought that is got at the rate of eternal burnings!

SECONDLY, I fhall confider fome occasions of this fin, and expose them.

1. Solitude, people dwelling alone, which gives them fair occasion to play their tricks. It is marked of that gracelefs place Laith, Judg. xviii. 7. that they were far from neighbours. Such a tolitary place we live in; and readily folitude produces either great faints or black devils, as in other things, to particularly uncleannets and thievery; and therefore the night is the thief's time, becaufe of the folitude of it. It is no fmall bufinefs to keep a clean confeience on a hill-head or in a glen, or in the black and dark night, where there is an occasion of finning.

But O confider, that God's eye is on you at all times and in all places ! and whatever folitude ye may have to fin in, ye will be called to an account before the throng of the whole world, angels and men, and in broad day-light.

ye

2. Poverty becomes an occasion of it, through the corruption of men's heart, Prov. xxx. 8. 9. Graceless poor bodies can hardly think but they have a difpensation to steal.

But furely God, who will not have the perfons of the poor refpected in judgment, Lev. xix. 15. never gave a difpenfation to them to fteal, but commands them to be content, and to feek for his fake what they have not, and cannot want. Poor thieves are thieves as well as others; and I doubt not but it is that which keeps fome always poor, Job xxx. 3.—5. It is true, Solomon fays, that as his temptation is ftronger, his guilt is lefs than others, Prov. vi. 30.; but ftill he is guilty, ver. 31.; and all that can be expected from this is to have a lefs hot place in hell than others; and that is but cold comfort.

3. Idlenefs and lazinefs, Eph. iv. 20. There is a generation that will not ply themfelves, work and win, and they cannot want, and they muft fieal. They idle away their time when they might be provided as others are, and then the time comes that they cannot want, and they fieal from their neighbours what they provided for themfelves with the fweat of their brows.

Ye have two fins to account for here, your idlenefs and ftealth; the one will not excufe, but aggravate the other. Ye make yourfelves a prey to the devil; and when the devil finds you idle, it is no wonder he puts work in your hands.

4. A fair and eafy opportunity meeting with a covetous heart. When there was a wedge of gold lying for the uptaking before Achan, he could not hold in his hands. People that have a mind to fteal in fuch a place, need not go off their own field, or from their own flock, to fteal; their neighbours goods cannot be kept from mixing with theirs, and there is an opportunity to the wifh of a covetous heart.

But if people would think with themfelves, Now, God in his holy providence is trying me, now the devil is waiting for my enfnaring : fhall I fin becaufe I have an opportunity? May not God fend me to hell then, having fuch an occafion againft me?

5. The fmallnefs of the thing. They think it is but a fmall thing, the owner may well enough fpare that, it will not do him much barm. It is but this and but that.

But be what it will, it will make thee but a thief for ftealing of it. And wilt thou fell thy foul for fuch a fmall thing? The way of fin is down the hill; let the devil get in a finger, and he will have in his hand next. He that for a little will fin, will mend his fervice if the devil will mend his wages. At first perhaps it is but a bit of meat, then a parcel of peats, then a quantity of fodder, and then a fheep, and fo on till they come to the gallows here, and to hell hereafter.

6. The difficulty there is in finding it out It is a work of darknefs, which there use not to be witneffes to, and fo the man or woman defies the world to make out any such thing against them; and so they go on without controul, boatting like Ephraim, "He is a merchant, the balances of deceit are in his hand : he loveth to oppress. And Ephraim faid. Yet I am become rich, I have found me out substance : in all my labours they shall find none iniquity in me, that were fin," Hof. xii. 7. 8.

But O what avails that? Will ye defy the God of heaven, and your own conficience, to make it out before the tribunal? and then ye fay fomething. Till then thou art a criminal before God, and dreadful fhall thy doom be. But take heed, they have been difcovered that thought themfelves fecure becaufe no eye faw them. When a man's day comes to fall in fuch a courfe, God can infatuate him, that he guides not his matters with common fenfe.

7. Lafly, Bearing with them. I will not meddle with them, fays one; and I will not meddle with them, fays another; let them fall in another's hand, and fo on it goes. Juffice is neglected, neighbours are robbed, the fouls of the guilty are ruined, and others involved in their fin, that might prevent the progrefs of it, and will not. It is marked of that Laifh, that there was none in it to put it to fhame, Judg. xviii. 7. Refpect to men's credit more than to their conficiences, is like the tender mercies of the wicked, that are cruel.

THIRDLY, I come now to point out fome remedies against this fin.

1. Let the guilty flee to the Lord Jefus Chrift for his blood and Spirit, to wath away their guilt, and take away their fin. They are no more beyond the reach of mercy than other groß finners are. In the catalogue of the Corinthian finners, were thieves; and yet we are told, that they were wathed, and fanctified, and justified in the name of the 2 Lord Lord Jefus, and by the Spirit of our God, I Cor. vi. 10. 11. Put the covetous heart in his hand, that he may take it away.

2. Labour to awe your hearts with the dread of the allfeeing God, whofe eye is ever on you; and remember, that for all thefe things ye do God will bring you into judgement.

3. Labour to be content with your lot, Heb. xiii. 5. Be content with little, if it be your lot. A little will ferve nature, grace will be content with lefs; but luft will never have enough.

4. Lafly, Lay more ftrefs on the quality than the quantity of what ye have. A little with God's favour, in a righteous way, is better than much with the wrath and curfe of God.

SECONDLY, I would dehort from all injuftice and unrighteous dealing whatfoever, in all the ways I have fhewn that the eighth commandment may be broken, befides by direct ftealing, and any other way whatfoever. Be precifely upright and juft in all you do, and do nothing to others that ye would not have done to you. For motives, confider,

1. Whatever you gain by any unjuft way, it is indirectly ftolen, it is ftolen in effect. Therefore God forbids all thefe, under the name of ftealing. And there is good reafon for it; for no right can be founded in wrong. Injuftice can give no man a title to what is his neighbour's before God; and therefore what you have of him unjuftly, is ftill his, and ye are fraudulent and wrongous poffeffors of it, as well as if ye had directly ftolen it.

2. Just and upright dealing is neceffary to prove you to be faints, Pfal. xv. 1. 2. It is true, it will not prove it alone: men may be just to their neighbours, and yet be no faints. But he can be no faint that makes not conficience of it, be his profession and practice in religion otherwise what it will. This is clear, if you consider,

(1.) Righteoufnefs towards men is an effential part of the image of God, Eph. iv. 24. 25. And as the half-image is no image, fo piety without righteoufnefs is not God's image, nor true piety. Will God ever regard what we give him, when we make no conficience what we take from our neighbour?

(2.) Without it our fervice to God is but half-fervice, Luke iv. 74. 75.; and that can never be fincere, Pfal. cxix. 6. In regeneration, God writes his law on the heart, and not fhreds here and there of the first table : fo that where righteoufnefs, a principal duty of the fecond table, is not, the law of God is not written there.

Vol.III.

2

3. That injuffice in profeffors of religion gives a deep wound to religion itfelf, Rom. ii. 22. 24. And indeed that religion which does not make men juit neighbours to deal with, can hardly be thought to make them faints. That craft, cunning, and fraud, uted by many, how inconfiftent is it with Chriftian fimplicity, the fear of an all-feeing God, and contempt of the world, which religion teaches.

4. How oppofite is it to the nature of God, who is just and righteous, and whom we must follow as dear children? The unjust stand in direct opposition to him who cannot but do right. God has a special love to righteous field, xi. ult. and all injustice is an abomination to him. He has set a particular mark of abhorrence on it, Micah vi. 10. 11. "Are there yet the treasures of wickedness in the house of the wicked, and the scant measure that is abominable? Shall I count them pure with the wicked balances, and with the bag of deceitful weights?" And he has also fet a particular delight in just dealing, Prov. xi. 1. "A just weight is his delight."

5. It brings a blafting curfe along with it, Prov. xiii. 11. "Wealth gotten by vanity, fhall be diminifhed." And although it may profper for a while, it will have a foul hinder end, Prov. xx. 21. "The end thereof thall not be bleffed." It is as a moth in the man's own labours, and fometimes eats away his fubftance, makes wings to it that it leaves him, and often hurries him away from it. That is a heavy word, Jer. xvii. 11. "He that getteth riches, and not by right, thall leave them in the midft of his days, and at his end fhall be a fool."

6. It leaves a fling in the confcience, which will be felt to fmart fooner or later. Confcience is the deputy of a juft God in the foul, which will be able fometimes to act its part, and both accufe, convince, condemn, and torment the unjuft dealer, fo that he will be ready to throw away his unjuft gain, as willingly as ever one ready to be burnt did live coals out of his bofom, and as Judas did his thirty pieces of filver, though perhaps it may be out of time. A Pythagorean bought a pair of fhoes upon truft: the fhoemaker dies: the philofopher is glad, and thinks them gain: but a while after his confcience twitches him: he repairs to the houfe of the dead, cafts in his money with thefe words, "There, take thy " due; thou liveft to me, though dead to all befides."

7. Lafly, It will exclude you out of heaven. There is a bar bar drawn on all unrighteous perfons, that they cannot come there, 1 Cor. vi. 9. The treafures of eternal glory are loft by unrighteous dealing in the world, Luke xvi. 11. Where then is the profit, though a man gain the whole world? It is fad gain where a thoufand times more is loft by it. Peace with God and confcience is loft by it; the foul is loft by it, and that for ever. And they who walk not by the rules of juffice in the world, fhall lie under the firokes of divine juffice eternally.

The occasions that enfnare men into ftealing might be repeated here, as occasions of other pieces of injustice. But to fence you against this evil, I offer these things.

1. Confider your unrighteous nature, and carry it to Chrift to be healed by him. When Adam's nature, and ours in him, was corrupted, it was wholly fo, not only with refpect to the first, but the fecond table. There is need, then, that the plaifter be as wide as the wound, Eph. iv. 24. And he that would remove the bitter fireams, must apply to get the fountain fweetened.

2. Accuftom yourfelves to acknowledge the Lord in your civil actions, Prov. iii. 6. The want of this betrays men into much unfair dealing; for where there is fo little of God, there muft be much of the devil.

(1.) Eye God in these matters, as he who is your witness, and will be your judge in them. Set the Lord before you in your bufinels, and you will fear to ftep wrong. May be thou canft wrong thy neighbour, and he fhall not know it. But God knows it, and it cannot be hid from him. May be he cannot right himfelf for want of witneffes ; but pray remember, that God and thy own confeience are witneffes to all that paffeth betwixt you and others. And though ye may think it is long to that court-day, yet remember that awful declaration, Mal. iii. c. " I will come near to you to judgment, and I will be a fwift witnefs against the forcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false fwearers, and against those that opprefs the hireling in his wages, the widow and the fatherlefs, and that turn afide the ftranger from his right, and fear not me, faith the Lord of hofts." May be thou canft bear him down from his right, but mind the wronged party has a ftrong avenger, 1 Theil. iv. 6. O how well might it go. if men in all their bargains, work, neighbourhood, &c. would fet God thus before them !

(2.) Eye God in these matters as the fountain of ftrength. Alas! most men have no diffidence in themselves in these affairs, but trust themselves as in no hazard there, and thus are the betrayers of themfelves, Prov. xxviii. 26. The leaft of duties are too much for us alone, and in the plaineft way we will go wrong, if we be not led right. Satan has fnares laid for us in thefe things; and therefore we have need of ftrength from the Lord to refift them.

0 2

3. Remember ye are not only to feek your own, but your neighbour's welfare, Phil. ii. 4. Selfifhnefs is the caufe of much unfair dealing. "Lovers of themfelves more than God," and exclusively of our neighbour, are in bad condition. For a man to build up himfelf on another's ruins, is contrary to that love which we owe to our neighbour, as fellow-partakers of the human nature, and as members one of another as Christians, Eph. iv. 25. The goodnefs that is most diffusive and communicative, is most like God.

4. Confider the vanity of the world. It is an overvaluing of earthly advantages that leads people afide into unrighteous ways, Hof. xii. 8. A due imprefion of the vanity and emptinefs thereof, would let you fee that they are not worth a man's going off his way for them. It is not long till very little will ferve us; death comes, and we have no more to do with it, a coffin and a winding-fheet, and a little room in the heart of the earth, which none will grudge us, will be all we will need. What madnefs is it, then, to wound the conficience for fuch a pitiful bufinefs? All the gains of unrighteoufnefs will never quit the coft.

5. Labour to mortify the lnft of covetonfnefs, which being indulged, the conficience will get fore ftretches to fatisfy it, Heb. xiii. 5. It cannot mifs to pierce people through with many forrows. Therefore "love not the world," I John iii. 15.; for whofo follow it too clofely at the heels, it will dafh out their brains at laft.

6. A little well gotten is more worth than much otherwife, Prov. xvi. 8. There is a bleffing in the one, a temporal one at leaft; but their is a curfe in the other. A man may use the one with a good confeience; the other is with an ill confeience, and that is a fad fauce to the meal. The one a man has on free cost, having nothing to pay for it; the fweet of the other is fqueezed out by a dear reckoning following,

7. La/ly, Remember the day is coming wherein all wrongs are to be righted, focret things brought to light, and open violence reckoned for. If men were to have no after-reckoning for thefe things, they might do in them as they lift; but theu shalt be countable for the least farthing. The Remedies against Unjust Dealing. 109

The Judge is infinitely wife, and the moft cunning and tricky will not get him outwitted nor fhifted. He is omnipotent, and they who force their way now through all bands of juftice, fhall not be able to make head againft him. In all temptations that way, then, awe your heart with that meditation, "What then fhall I do when God rifeth up? and when he vifiteth, what fhall I anfwer him?" Job xxxi. 14.

OF THE NINTH COMMANDMENT.

Exod. xx. 16,—Thou fhalt not bear falle witness against thy neighbour.

THE fcope of this command is the prefervation of truth amongft men, which is a neceffary bond of human fociety. And forafmuch as all the commands of the fecond table relate to ourfelves as well as others, the meaning of this is, Thou fhalt not bear falfe witnefs either againft thyfelf or thy neighbour, and fo neither wrong thy own nor thy neighbour's good name.

The politive part of this command is implied in the negative, viz. Thou shalt bear leal and foothfast witnefs (as our law terms it) for thyfelf and thy neighbour, and fo maintain thy own and thy neighbour's good name, fo far as truth will allow. This witness is to be understood not only of judicial, but extrajudicial witness.

Quef. "What is required in the ninth commandment?" Anf. "The ninth commandment requireth the maintaining and promoting of truth between man and man, and of our own and our neighbour's good name, effectially in witnefsbearing."

I fhall confider this commandment, as it relates, I. To truth betwixt man and man in general; II. To our own good name; and, III. To our neighbour's good name.

Į. As

I. As it relates to truth betwixt man and man in the general. Truth is a facred thing, which we are to cleave to as we would to God, who is true effentially, and therefore called truth itfelf. It was a notable faying of a philosopher, that truth is fo great a perfection, that if God would render himfelf vifible, he would chufe light for his body, and truth for his foul. He was not far out, for the fcripture tells us of Christ, in whom the fulness of the Godhead dwells bodily, that he is the light, and the truth. And, on the other hand, it holds out Satan as the prince of darkness and fa-And there is a mighty affinity betwixt light ther of lies. and truth, darknefs and lies. Truth is to the foul as light to the body; and they that walk in the light, will walk in Now, this command requires the maintaining of truth. We may take up this in thefe two things. truth.

1. We must fpeak truth at all times when we fpeak, Eph, iv. 25. "Speak the truth every man with his neighbour." I fay when we fpeak, for we must not be always fpeaking. Nature having drawn a double bar on our tongues, teaches that our tongues must not be in our mouths as a loofe window in the wind, ever clattering. And if diferetion keep the key of the door of our lips, we will not be of those that cannot reft till all the truth that is in be out, Prov. xiv. 33. But we must never fpeak any thing but truth.

What is truth? Pilate afked the queftion at Chrift, but did not ftay for an anfwer, John xviii. 38. Truth is a harmony, a double harmony. Anatomifts obferve, that the tongue in man is tied by a double ftring to the heart. To fpeaking of truth is required, (1.) A harmony of the tongue with the heart. (2.) A harmony of the tongue with the thing itfelf.

(1.) If we think not as we fpeak, we do not fpeak truth; the difcord betwixt the tongue and the heart mars the harmony, Pfal. xv. 2. We must fpeak as we think, then, and the tongue must be a faithful interpreter of the mind, otherwife it is a falfe tongue. So truth may be fpoken by a man, and yet he be a falfe fpeaker, becaufe he thinks not as he fpeaks.

(2.) But that is not all: If we do not fpeak alfo as the thing in itfelf is, we do not fpeak true. For there muft be a harmony betwist our hearts and the thing as it is in itfelf. For we muft not think that our miflaken apprehenfions of things can flamp lies to pafs current for truths, just becaufe we think them fo, 2 Theff. ii. 11.

The fum of the matter lies here : It is our duty to fpeak truth, truth, that is, fo as our mind agree with the matter, and our mouth with our mind. We muft fpeak things as we think them to be, and think them to be what they are. And hence we may fee that modefly is very neceffary to preferve us in the truth, in this our weak and dark condition. Selfconceited ignorance, and weaknefs joined with confidence, whereby people are fo peremptory in their own uptakings of things, without any regard to the different light of others, is a great enemy to truth.

2. We must especially speak the truth at sometimes, that is, in witness-bearing. This is twofold.

1/t, Witnefs-bearing in judgment. This command requires us to bear witnefs, and that faithfully, when called thereto. Now, we are to fpeak the truth judicially, when we are lawfully called thereunto, by the authority, whether of church or flate.

2dly, Extrajudicial witnefs-bearing, wherein a man is called to declare the truth, though there be no human authority obliging him thereto, as often falls out in the cafe of private controverfies betwixt neighbours, where a third perfon is defired to witnefs the truth. Yea, a man may be obliged to this witnefs-bearing where he is not fo much as defired to fpeak, as when we hear our neighbour charged with any thing unjuftly, we are obliged to vindicate his innocency, it being known to us.

Now, the rule in both thefe cafes is this, that then is a man or woman called to declare the truth under the pain of God's difpleafure, when God's glory or their neighbour's good may be procured by it; when the diffeonour of God and their neighbour's hurt, either of foul, body, name, or goods, may be avoided by it.

Both thefe forts of winefs-bearing are neceffary for the maintaining and promoting of truth, the honour of God, and our neighbour's real good, though it appear perhaps to be for his hurt, in difcovering of his wickednefs, or the wrong done by him, Zech. viii. 16.

In judicial witnefs-bearing, God calls men to witnefs the truth, by the mouth of those to whom he has given authority, making them either gods, or ambassadors for God on the earth. And therefore to decline it in that case, is to decline the divine call, and mar the course of justice, If. lix. 14.; and fo the honour of God and the good of our neighbour.

And in the other cafe there is a real call from the Lord unto unto it, as we tender his honour and our neighbour's welfare.

Neither ought people to fcare at witnefs-bearing judicially, becaufe of the oath of God; for a lawful oath, impofed by lawful authority, for the honour of God and the good of our neighbour, is a duty whereby we worship and glorify our God, Jer. iv. 2. Now, in this cafe of witnefsbearing,

1. It is our duty to tell the truth; and, (1.) Not to conceal it, or any part of it known to us, which may make for the clearing of the matter in queffion, 2 Sam. xiv. 18. 19. 20.; that is, to tell it fully. (2.) Freely, not being awed by any perfon, or any evil that may thereby come unto us by the guilty or otherwife, 1 Sam, xix. 4. 5. (3.) Clearly, not mincing, obfcuring, and wrapping up the truth, fo as they who hear it know not what to make of it, Jofh. vii. 19, (4.) Sincerely, 2 Chron. xix. 9.; without any influence of malice, or partial counfel, without feud or favour.

2. It is our duty to tell nothing but the truth ; that were to bear falle witnefs with a witnefs indeed. Truth flands in no need of lies to fupport it, Prov. vi. 19.

II. As it relates to our own good name, we are to maintain and promote it. It fhould be every body's care to procure and maintain their reputation; for a good name is a very precious thing, which we fhould love and be careful of, Prov. xxii. 1. And they who value not their reputation, will hardly be found to value either their fouls or bodies. Now, it must be cared for and maintained in words, and by deeds.

First, In words, and that these three ways.

1. By fpeaking nothing but the truth concerning ourfelves. They that feek a name to themfelves by lying and boafting, ordinarily lofe what they have, inftead of getting more, Prov. xxv. 14. And they that would preferve their name, let them be careful of their word, to fulfil their lawful promifes, Pfal. xv. 4.

2. By concealing prudently thole fecrets concerning ourfelves which we are not obliged to difcover. They fin againft God and themfelves who unneceffarily give another their reputation to keep, Prov. xxv. 9. 10. " Debate thy caufe with thy neighbour himfelf; and difcover not a fecret to another; left he that heareth it, put thee to fhame, and thine infamy turn turn not away." This is not to be extended to the concealing of fcandalous fins, which people are lawfully called to confefs: for in that cafe the name of a confeffing penitent is better than that of an obfinate fcandalous finner, Prov. xxviii. 13. "He that covereth his fins, fhall not profper: but whole confeffeth and forfaketh them fhall have mercy."

3. By defending our good name when it is unjuftly attacked, as our Lord did, when he faid to the Jews, "I have not a devil; but I honour my Father, and ye do difhonour me," John viii. 49. It is a tender point to be wounded in; and if it be done wrongoufly, we are enemies to ourfelves, if we use not all means competent to clear ourfelves.

Secondly, By deeds, we are to care for it practically.

1. If we would maintain our good name, let us not do evil things. An ill name will follow an ill life; who can help it? If a man freal, let him thank himfelf that his good name is loft. A vile practice will at length make a man's name ftink.

2. We muft not do what is like evil, I Theff. v. 22. They who take a liberty to themfelves in fufpicious practices, throw away their own reputation. And if they be innocent as to groß things, they are in the neareft difpofition to be guilty. We fhould follow the apoftle in this cafe, Phil. iv. 8. "Whatfoever things are true, whatfoever things are honeft, whatfoever things are juft, whatfoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praife, think on thefe things." Julius Cæfar having divorced his wife, was called to witnefs againft her; and being interrogated, declared he knew nothing of the bufinefs; and being afked, Why then he had put her away? Becaufe, faid he, I would have all my relations as free from the fufpicion as the guilt of a bad action.

III. As it relates to our neighbour's good name. We are to maintain, and promote it too, as far as is confiftent with truth. And for this caufe there is required of us,

1. A charitable opinion and efteem of our neighbours, 1 Cor. xiii. 7. being ready to hope the best of them, unless the contrary be evident.

2. A defire of, and rejoicing in, their good name and reputation, Rom. i. 8. We are to love them as ourfelves, and therefore fhould be glad of the fweet favour of their name, though their reputation outfhine ours.

Vol. III.

3. Sorrowing

3. Sorrowing and grieving for their faults, 2 Cor. xii. 21_4 The blafting of any body's name by their fins, fhould make us mourn, and the rather that the fame root of bitternefs is in all naturally : and they are the deeper in God's debt that get through the world with an unblemifhed reputation.

4. Covering of their infirmities with the mantle of love, 1 Pet. iv. 8. Every body has fome weak fide, and needs a cover from others in love: and it is a dangerous bufinefs to aggravate and blaze abroad this to their diffuonour.

5. Freely acknowledging of the gifts and graces that are in any, I Cor. i. 4.—7. As none are fo good but they have fome difcernible infirmity, fo hardly is one fo bad but there is fome one thing or another praife-worthy in them. And if it were but one thing, it is our duty frankly to own it.

6. Defending of their innocence, as Ahimelech did David's, 1 Sam. xxii. 14. "Who is fo faithful," fays he, "among all thy fervants, as David, which is the king's fon-inlaw, and goeth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thine houfe?" It is neceffary and just to defend the innocent, efpecially if abfent, against the poisonous bites of a viperous tongue, left we be held confenting to the tongue-murder of him, in God's account.

7. An unwillingnefs to receive an ill report of them, and a readinefs to admit a good report of them, t Cor. xiii. 6. 7. Pfal. xv. 3. Love readily opens the door to a good report of our neighbour, but is not very hafty to let in an evil one, being truly forry if it flould be true.

8. Difcouraging of tale-beavers, flatterers, and flanderers, who go about gathering all the filth they can find to throw upon the name and reputation of others. These fhould be difcouraged as the pests of human fociety, as David did, "Wholo privily flandereth his neighbour," fays he, " him will I cut off," Pfal. ci. 5.

9. Lafly, Watching over one another, giving found and feafonable admonitions, checks, and reproofs, for what is ill or ill-like in others, Lev. xix. 17.; and telling themfelves of it, fo as it may not be blabbed out without neceffity : whereby both their fouls might be timely preferved from the fnare, and their good name preferved too.

Having thus given a view of the duties required in the ninth commandment, I proceed to confider what is forbidden in it.

Queft. "What is forbidden in the ninth commandment.?" Anf. "The ninth commandment forbiddeth whatfoever is prejudicial to truth, or injurious to our own or our neighbour's good name."

The fins forbidden in this commandment are here reduced to three heads.

1. Whatfoever is prejudicial to truth.

2. Whatfoever is prejudicial to our own good name.

2. Whatfoever is prejudicial to our neighbour's good name.

Thefe I fhall confider in order.

I. This command forbids whatfoever is prejudicial to truth. The God of truth has fet this command as a hedge and fence about truth, that it be not wronged. For it cannot be prejudiced but by the fame means that we wrong God and our neighbour too. Now there are two cafes in which truth is apt to fuffer hurt.

First, Judicially, in judgment, in judicatories, whether ecclefiaftical or civil. There truth is to make its most folemn appearance, Zech. viii. 16.; and lies there are most finful. The judges judge for God, and fo the folemnity of the thing ought to ftrike the greater awe on all to do or fay nothing prejudicial to truth. Now, truth is prejudiced in judgment, and this command broken,

1. By judges when they pervert judgment, refpecting perfons, and paffing unjust fentences, Prov. xvii. 15.; calling evil good, and good evil, and rewarding the righteous as the wicked, and the wicked as the righteous : and iniquitous laws can never bear men out in this, If. v. 23. and x. t.

2. By the complainer, while he falfely accufes or charges another, Luke xix. 8.; forges writs, Pfal, cxix. 60.; or fuborns falfe witneffes, Acts vi. 13.

3. By the defender, when he denies a just charge, being called to a free confession, Prov. xxviii. 13. And feeing judges are fet to judge for the Lord, this must be reckoned a lying to the Lord.

4. By the witneffes, and that when they either conceal the truth, not difcovering freely and fully what they know, or when they tell any thing that is not truth, Lev. v. 1. Prov. xix. 9. And thus people may prejudice truth, when they keep up what might make the truth appear, and the caufe go right in judgment.

5. Lafly, By the pleaders, while they appear for an unjust caufe to bear down truth and justice, Acts xxiv. 2. &c.

Secondly, Extrajudicially, in common conversation and otherwife. Wherefoever we go, we fhould carry truth along P 2 with with us; but out of judgment truth is often prejudiced; and that these three ways.

1. By unfaithfulnefs in converfation, when people flip the bond of their word, and make nothing of breaking lawful promifes, Rom. i. 31. A man ought to value his word highly, as a man, and much more as a Chriftian. That is a fad complaint, "There is no truth in the land," Hof. iv. 1.; when men do with their promifes as an ape with its collar, flipping it on and off as it fees meet.

2. By undue filence. Strange is the diforder that fin has brought into the world; as in the tongue, which is often going when it fhould be quiet, and often quiet when it fhould fpeak. Our tongues are our glory; but they are often found wrapt up in a dark cloud of filence, when they fhould be thining forth. Truth is prejudiced by filence, when the honour of God, or the good of our neighbour, either in the way of juffice or charity, calls for the difference of it. Thus men fin against God, the truth, and their neighbour, when they hold their peace, (1.) When iniquity calls for a reproof from them. (2.) When it calls for a complaint to, or giving information thereof, unto others, Lev. v. I. Deut. xiii. 8. God has given men a tongue as a banner to be difplayed for him. To run away then with flying colours, in fuch a cafe, is very diffionourable to God, and dangerous to ourfelves, Mark viii. 38. It is most injurious to our neighbour, whom we think to to gratify, being a fnare to his foul, Lev. xix. 17.; and to ourfelves, by involving us in their guilt, Eph. v. 7. TT.

3. By undue fpeaking. The world is a world of iniquity, and feveral ways fpeaks to the prejudice of truth. Truth may be prejudiced thus,

(t.) By fpeaking it unfeatonably. Truth hath fuffered much prejudice by the unfeatonable venting of it : therefore people must take heed, not only what but when they fpeak; for "there is a time to keep filence, and a time to fpeak," Eccl. iii. 7. "A fool uttereth all his mind; but a wife man keepeth it in till afterwards," Prov. xxix. 11.

(2.) By fpeaking truth malicioufly, as Doeg did. It was both unfeafonable, while Saul was in a rage againft David, 1 Sam. xxii. 8. 9.; and malicious, Pfal. lii. 2. 3. This is the way how the devil fpeaks truth; as he ftirred up the damfel pofleffed with a fpirit of divination, to cry concerning Paul and Silas, "Thefe men are the fervants of the moft high 2 God, God, which fhew unto us the way of falvation," Acts xvi. 16 17.; and this very malicioufly, as the context fhews.

116

(3.) By perverting of truth to a wrong meaning, as the falfe witneffes did against Christ, Matth. xxvi. 60. 61. What he spoke of his body, they turned it to the temple of Jeru-falem. So it is not enough that we speak truth, but it must be feasionable and charitable too.

4. By equivocal expressions to the prejudice of truth or juffice; in which the fense goes doubtfully, either true or false. Of the fame nature are mental refervations. Thus Isaac finned in denying his wife, and calling her his fifter, Gen. xxvi. 7. 9. They are indeed lies, an untruth, spoken with an intention to deceive; for words must be taken according to the common use of them, and answers are understood as given according to the question. The devil, who is the father of lies, brought this manner of speaking into the world, Gen. iii. 5. and that way he was wont to deliver his oracles; for he never speaks truth, but either maliciously or equivocally, as he moved the false prophets to speak in the affair of Ahab's going up to Ramoth-Gilead, I Kings xxii. 6 12.

5. Lafly, By lies, Eph. iv. 25. Lying is prejudicial to truth, as darknefs to light, and is from the devil. But obferve fome fpeeches that are like lies, but are not fo.

(1.) Figurative fpeeches, though not literally true, are not lies, as Chrift's calling himfelf a vine, John xv. 1. Of this fort are allegories and fables, fuch as Jotham's parable, Judg. ix. 8.; parables, Luke xvi.; hyperbolic fpeeches, John xxii. ult.; ironical fpeeches, Gen. iii. 22. 1 Kings xviii. 27. In the former the fende and meaning of them is agreeable to truth, and fables and parables are a fort of fpeech by pictures. In ironies the gefture readily explains the meaning, 1 Kings xxii. 15.

(2.) The telling a part of the truth, and concealing another part of it, when there is no obligation on us from the honour of God or our neighbour to difcover it, is not lying, I Sam. xvi. 2.; for though we are never to tell but the truth, yet we are not always obliged to tell all the truth.

(3.) Speeches according to prefent intention, without prejudicing further liberty, as when one at table refufes fuch a thing, yet changes his mind, and takes it, or on importunity yields, as Gen. xix. 2. 3. 2 Cor. i. 17.

Laftly, Threatenings not executed when the condition underftood is done, and promifes not fulfilled when the condition dition is not performed. Now, thefe being fet afide, confider,

1. Sometimes, though the words agree with the mind of the fpeaker, yet not with the thing itfelf. This is called a material lie, or an untruth, and is finful, as difagreeing with the truth, If. lix. 13.

2. If the words agree not with the mind of the fpeaker, that is a formal lie, the tongue fpeaking contrary to what the mind thinks. Lies are of four forts.

1. Jefting lies; that is, when a perfon fpeaks that which is contrary to the known truth, in a jefting or ludicrous way; and embellifhes his difcourfe with his own fictions, defigning thereby to impose on others. This they are guilty of who invent falfe news, or tell flories for truth, which they know to be falfe, by way of amufement. Hofea complains of this practice, chap. vii. 3. "They make the king glad with their wickednefs, and the princes with their lies."

2. Officious lies; that is, when one fpeaks that which is contrary to truth, and the dictates of his confeience, to do good to himfelf or others thereby, or with a defign to cover a fault, or excufe ourfelves or others, Job xiii. 7. "Will ye fpeak wickedly for God? and talk deceitfully for him?" Rom. iii. 8.

3. Pernicious lies; that is, when a perfon raifes and fpreads a talfe report with a defign to do mifchief to another. This is a complicated crime, and the worft fpecies of this fin, a thing which is an abomination to the Lord, Prov. vi. 17.

4. Rash lies; that is, when a perfon uttereth that which is falle through surprise, inadvertency, and customary looseness, as in the case of the tidings brought to David, that Absalom had flain all the king's fons at the entertainment he had provided for them at Baal-hazor, 2 Sam. xiii. 30.

Concerning all there fpecies of lying, we may fay, that God is a God of truth, but the devil the father of lies, who incites men to imitate him in this ancient hellifh trade, by which he deftroyed the founders of the human race; that the word of God expressly condemns every kind of untruth; and that people thould never reckon that a fmall thing which will land the tranfgreffors in hell, Rev. xxi. 8.

II. This command forbids whatfoever is injurious to our own good name. We ought all to be very careful of ouraeputation, and not to bear falle witnefs for or againft ourfelves. Now, people may be guilty of the breach of this command with refered to themfelves. 1. In their hearts, either by thinking too meanly of themfelves, or too highly. Though people can never be too humble, yet they may be too blind to what God has done for them; and there may be a great deal of baftard felf-denial, which hinders men to be thankful to God, and ufeful to others, as in the cafe of Mofes, Exod. iv. 10.—14. But the most dangerous extreme is thinking too highly of ourfelves, Rom. xii. 16. This is a most dangerous piece of false witness, which the false heart gives in favour of felf.

2. In their actions, when people either do evil, or that which at leaft is evil-like. When Eli's fons loft their tendernefs, and gave themfelves to debauchery, they loft their good name. An unfavoury report followed their vicious and bafe life, I Sam. ii. 24. And there are fuch things as are of evil report, fufpicious practices, evil-like things, that though they be not the worft of things, yet they make way for them; by thefe, perfors throw away their good name, Prov. v. 8. 9.; and witnefs againft themfelves, that they are untender and vicious perfors, in a near difpofition to the greateft evil.

3. In words. And thus men may be guilty by,

(1.) Bearing witnels against themfelves unneceffarily, without a due call, discovering their own fecret faults and infirmities, especially to those who have no true fense of piety, but are ready to improve the fame to the reproach of them, or of religion, or both, Prov. xxv. 9. 10. "Debate thy cause with thy neighbour himself; and discover not a fecret to another : left he that heareth it put thee to shame, and thine infamy turn not away."

(2.) Bearing falfe witnels againft ourfelves, as accufing ourfelves unjuitly, denying the gifts and graces of God in us, as Job fays, chap. xxvii. 5.6. "God forbid that I fhould juftify you: till I die, I will not remove my integrity from me. My righteoufnels I hold faft, and will not let it go: my heart thall not reproach me fo long as 1 live." Pride often puts people on this, that they may appear the more humble. But humility never teaches men to rob God of his praife, or to lie againft the truth. Lying againft our minds can never be good, though it feem to humble us.

(3.) Bearing falfe witnefs for ourfelves. Thus people are guilty, upon being duly called to confefs their fins, they deny them, hide them, and, over the belly of their confeience, caufe their tongues witnefs for them, Prov. xxviii. 13. "He that covereth his fins fhall not profper: but wholo confefieth feffeth and forfaketh them shall have mercy." It is fad witneffing when the confeience within tells people they are lying.

Of this fort is vain-glorious boafting and bragging. There are fome, who, when they fpeak of themfelves, are fure to fpeak very big, as the Pharifeerdid, Luke xviii. 11. A man or woman that is a boafter, will be found to be a liar ordinarily. They will boaft of what they have not, or of doing what they never did, Prov. xxv. 14. "Whofo boafteth of a falfe gift, is like clouds and wind without rain." Yea, fome will accufe themfelves of wickednefs which they did not commit, for the pleafure that they take in boafting of mifchief. And where the man has any ground to walk on in his boafting, he is a liar in magnifying it, as was the cafe of the Pharifee, Luke xviii. 12. It is one of the bafeft offices for a man to trumpet his own praife : It is a great evidence there is little in him, that he makes fo much noife' with it. Such are in the black roll, 2 Tim. iii. 2.

III. I come now to confider this command as it forbids what is injurious to our neighbour and his good name. We may contract guilt in injuring our neighbour, over the belly of this command, feveral ways.

Fir/l, In our hearts; for all the commands of God reach to the heart as well as the outward man. We are injurious in our hearts to our neighbour's good name, by,

1. Unjuft fufpicions of him, 1 Tim. vi. 4. Thus Potiphar injured Jofeph, fufpecting him of that villany which he was far from. Chrift bids us beware of men, and fo not to be credulous. But there is a medium betwixt vain credulity and evil groundlefs fufpicion, which fills men's heads with a forefight of what others will do when they have fuch and fuch temptations, from no light but that of their own uncharitable fpirits.

2. Uncharitable judging and condemning of others in our hearts, Matth, vii. 1. The prevailing of the cenforious humour amongft us, is a fpeaking evidence of this wafpifh difpolition, which is a compound of pride, rafhnefs, harfhnefs, lightnefs, and emptinefs, directly oppolite to the love and charity that we owe to our neighbours, which "beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things, 'r Cor. xiii. 7. I grant, that to call an evil action an evil thing, and an habitual grofsly profane life a mark of a profane heart, is no breach of charity, Gal. v. 19. But to lafh men in our hearts, beyond what the habitual frame of of their lives gives ground for, is that uncharitable judgeing.

It is the product of pride and felf-conceit; for the man makes himfelf the rule, fo all that is beyond him, or does not reach his length, must fall under his condemnatory fentence; he invades the throne of God, fetting up one for himself in his neighbour's heart, not confining himself to his outward actions, Rom. xiv. 10. It is rashness, flowing from want of confideration ; it is harfhnefs, carrying their judgment farther than the matter will bear ; it is lightnefs and emptinels, for they are confident of that which really they do not know. How confident were the barbarians, upon feeing the viper fasten on Paul's hand, that he was a murderer ! &c. Acts xxviii. 4. Thus men condemn the actions of others, merely from their own rafhnefs, as Eli did Hannah; and, which is worft of all, they will judge their flate before God from things atterly unable to bear the weight of their prefumptuous fentence, as Job's friends did; and thrust in themselves to the seerets of their hearts. as those mentioned, Rom. xiv. 4. "Who art thou that judgeft another man's fervant?" judging their confciences : the like whereto was the horrible judgment fome have expreffed touching those that took the oath of abjuration, that they had gone over the belly of their confcience, and in other cafes too. If you think that I am fpeaking for it, ye are uncharitable: but I would not for the world judge other men's confciences at that rate. It is fufficient for me to condemn men's evil actions which I fee, not to judge their confciences, which I neither fee nor can fee. Were the impreffions of the tremendous tribunal of God more on men's fpirits, they would not be fo hafty to judge before the time.

3. Mifconftructing of others, their intentions, words, and actions. No innocence can be a fafeguard against that temper, which is always ready to give the worst turn to the intentions, words, and actions of their neighbour, which they are capable to bear. It is like the corrupted flomach, that corrupts whatever is put into it. See Neh. vi. 6. Rom. iii. 8. Pfal. lxix. 10.

4. Contempt of others in our hearts, undervaluing and thinking bafely of them; when men ftop their eyes from beholding whatever is praife-worthy in their neighbour, and gather together what makes againft them, and fit brooding on that. This is evil in all cales, but efpecially where men contemn others for what is good in them, 2 Sam. vi. 16. Vol. III. Q We We are even in our hearts to give every one their due; and fo far as we with-hold it, we are guilty, Luke xviii. 9. 10. 11.

5. Envying and grieving at the juft and deferved credit or reputation of any. This is a most unchristian and truly Pharifaical temper, Matth. xxi. 15. It is the nature of of envy to torment a man with the good of his neighbour. What refress the charitable spirit, vexes and frets theirs. They are like the moon that turns pale and wan whenfoever the sum begins to finine above the horizon. But if men loved their neighbour as themselves, and their God more than themselves, they would rejoice at their neighbour's reputation, though it should outfinine their own, Numb. xi. 29.

6. Rejoicing in the difgrace and infamy of others, Jer. xlviii. 27. This is a devil-like fin, for duft is the ferpent's meat. Whatever mifchief befals men is the devil's delight; and fo there are many, that if a black cloud be thrown over the reputation of others, it tickles their hearts, they have a fecret fatisfaction in it; their hearts fay within them, Aha! fo we would have it. And many vent their fatisfaction in outward rejoicing at it.

7. Lafly, Fond admiration of men, Jude 16. As the former are fins in defect, fo this is a fin in excefs. And indeed we become guilty by thinking too highly and above what is meet of any man, as well as thinking too meanly of them, 1 Cor. iv. 6. This is both a fin and a fnare: for thofe whom we fondly admire, we are apt to imitate in evil as well as good, and fo to follow them to the prejudice of truth. It is a fad evidence of the corruption of man's heart, that he is ready either to idolize or elfe to defpife others.

Secondly, In our lives and actions. Men may injure the good name of others without speaking a word against them,

1. Men may be guilty of the breach of this command, to the prejudice of their neighbour's good name, by bare geflure of the body, Prov. vi, 13. "He winketh with his eyes, he fpeaketh with his feet, he teacheth with his fingers." A man may with a wink, a nod, a grave look, a figh, &c. flab another's reputation, filling others by these means with fuspicions of him unjuffly; or when one is flandered in our prefence, making fuch figns which import our confent thereto.

2. Drawing others into things that are ill or evil-like, and of bad report. Thus many ruin one another's reputation, tion, till they are made as rotten things laid one upon another, which corrupt each other, till both fend forth a ftinking fmell, Matth. xviii. 7. They that lay the ftumblingblock, and they that fall over it, are both ruined together, though double vengeance abides them who ruin others together with themfelves.

3. By not hindering what we can in others those things that procure an ill name. The evil that befals others which we might have prevented, will justly be laid at our door. This brought the judgments of God on good Eli and his house too, so that they went all to ruin together, I Sam. iii. 13. The Spirit of God records, for the justification of poor Tamor, the care she had of preventing the ill name of herself and of Amnon, 2 Sam. xiii. 12. 13. So that neither by terror nor alurements the could be drawn into the villany, though she was forced, which was her milery, but not her fin.

Thirdly, In our lips. The tongue is the principal mifchievous inftrument whereby people ruin or wound the good name of others. And here come in the fins of the tongue againft our neighbour in a fpecial manner. Thus men injure their neighbour,

1. By filence, when they forbear to fpeak what they ought and can for the credit of their neighbour. Thus men may wrong others by their filence in their neighbour's caufe while he is afperfed, Prov. xxxi. 8. for in that cafe filence is confent. As alfo when their neighbour is juftly commended, the entertaining thereof with filent looks, as if they knew fomething that may juftly mar his reputation. If that be not the fenfe of it, it reflects on the filent perion as grudging the reputation of the perion commended.

2. Our neighbour may be injured by finful fpeaking; and o this command may be broken many ways.

(1.) By unneceffary difcovering of the faults and infirmities of others. O how much guilt is contracted this way, by people's going in the way of curfed Ham, Gen. ix. 22. unavailing inftead of vailing the weakneffes of others, without any neceffity, but to the leffening of their reputation.

(2.) By aggravating of their leffer faults, Matth. vii. 3. 4. 5. Men fee motes like beams in the eyes of others, while beams are as motes in their own. It is a mifchievous tongue that, counting the faults of others, for fifty fets down a hundred, and ftill looks to them through a magnifying glafs. Had we the dexterity of aggravating our own as we have of Q_2 aggravating the faults of others, we would be happy, becaufe very humble people.

(3.) By reviving the memory of our neighbour's crimes which were worn out of mind, efpecially being repented of. Thus many vent their malice against others by casting up their former faults to them, as Shimei did to David. Truth it may be, but it is uncharitably and maliciously spoken, for which the speaker must give an account to God.

(4.) By betraying of fecrets committed to us. It is true, if the honour of God and the good of our neighbour require the difcovering of a fecret, in that cafe, as we ought not to promife, fo we ought not to conceal it. But when we have lawfully promifed to keep it, either expressly or tacitly, we fin against truth, justice, and frieudship, to betray it. And though there be no promife in the cafe, yet when the revealing of it tends to the detriment of our neighbour, it is finful, Prov. xvii. 9. 2 Tim. iii. 4.

(5.) By detracting, or endeavouring any manner of way to impair the deferved credit of our neighbour, Ezek. iv. 12. 13. This is the native refult of envy and ill-will at our neighbour: for those who cannot endure others to fit on high, where they are defervedly placed, will go about one way or other to undermine them.

(6.) By evil reports to the prejudicing of our neighbour unjuftly. In thefe many are involved in guilt. [1.] The raifer of it, Exod. xxiii. 1. Satan has the mouths of many at command for a forge of ill reports, who ftrike that hellifh coin with their ftamp, that it may pafs for current. [2.] The receivers and fpreaders of it, who are guilty here as well as the raifer; for they are to the raifer as the receiver to the thief: Report, fay they, and we will report. If others will gather filth, they will throw it on their neighbours faces, and yet are not innocent, though they can give their authors, Neh. vi. 6. See Pfal. xv. 3.

(7.) By flandering, which is an ill report without all ground, Pfal. 1. 20. This the venom of a wretched tongue, made ufe of to kill and bury alive the innocent. It has been the trial of the people of God in general, and feldom if ever do any of them efcape without it. Satan loves by his agents to vomit out againft them reproaches and flanders, wherewith their good name may be blafted, and efpecially if religion and the caufe of God can be wounded through their fides. The fcourge of the tongue is a fharp fcourge.

(8.) By backbiting and whifpering, Rom. i. 29. 30. Both agree agree in that they fpeak evil behind men's back, accufing them, and loading them with reproach, when they are not prefent to anfwer for themfelves. The backbiter does it openly, and the whifperer does it fecretly.

(9.) By tale-bearing, Lev. xix. 16. This is a fort of pedlar-trade for the devil, driven by many whofe work it is to carry tales out of the houfe or company where they happen to be; and thefe are the wares they have to vent in other houfes or companies, where they will be ready to take up new clafhes and tales to where they go next. Thefe are the plagues of fociety, like Satan fowing difcord among brethren. Hence fecret grudges againft one another, and none knows wherefor; and when they are fearched to the furtheft, it is all grounded on fome talebearer's credit.

(10) By countenancing and encouraging of the black tribe of flanderers, backbiters, &c. Prov. xxix. 12. If thefe merchants for hell got not their wares taken off their hands, they would be afhamed of their trade, and forced to quit it. But many are as ready to take them off their hands as they are to deliver them.

(11.) By ftopping our ears against the just defence of the parties lefed, as the malicious Jews did against Stephen, Acts vii. 57. 58. How rare is it to find a perfon as ready to receive a defence for, as an accufation against their neighbour?

(12.) By fcornful contempt, and fcoffing, and mocking of others. This was the way of Ifhmael's perfecuting of Ifaac, Gal. iv. 29. Thefe viperous tongues work upon the miferies of others, as the foldiers did at Chrift in his fufferings, Matth. xxvii. 28. 29. The natural imperfections of others are their fport, though reproaching the poor they defpife his Maker; yea, and their finful imperfections too, for fools make a mock at fin.

Some have a mighty fondne's for gibing and taunting; their whole converfe runs that way, to make others uneafy and themfelves merry with their taunts. Let them not value themfelves on their talent; if any fpark of tenderne's be left in them, I doubt if they dare look to it as a good gift given them from above, but as an abufe of the good gift of God. It was Ifhmae's way, for which he was caft out of the family of the faithful, Gal. iv. 29.

(13.) Reviling and railing, giving others reproachful and opprobrious names, piercing them with bitter words, and murdering murdering them with their tongues, Matth. v. 22. 1 Cor. vi. 10. Revilers are among those excluded out of heaven.

Thefe are fome of the ways how the wicked tongue gives home-thrufts to others, and pierces like the piercing of the fword, following the example of him who was a liar and a murderer from the beginning. But would ye fee them all gathered together in one, ye have them in, (13.) Lafly, Scolding and rating, an abominable diforder which we are fo much diffurbed with. There their wicked hearts, ftirredup with paffion and revenge, vomit out all at once this filthy ftuff. For there their neighbour's faults are unneceflarily difcovered, aggravated, &c. as if hell's forces were rendezvoufing betwixt them. Wonder not at the expression. See Jude 9. No, the angel durft not engage Satan with thefe weapons, whereof he was the proper master, and at which none can outdo him. If ye take not better heed to your tongues, they will ruin you, Pfal. lii. 2.-5.

There are fome other evils of the tongue here forbidden, the hurt whereof does not fo plainly appear.

1. Talkativenefs, or much fpeaking. Some are ever talking, and are never in their element but when prattling; and when once they loofe, it is as hard to ftop them as to ftop a flood, and turn it another way. Of it I fay,

(1.) It is a fign of a loofe and frothy heart, where the fear of God hath little place, Eccl. v. 2.; for that would make our words few, true, weighty, and uleful. When God has given us two ears, and but one tongue, that we may be fwift to hear and flow to fpeak, it is a pregnant evidence of a naughty heart, to be fwift to fpeak and flow to hear.

(2.) It is the fool's badge, Eccl. v. 3. Talkative perfons, for want of acquaintance with themfelves, thinking to fhew themfelves wife, ordinarily prefent a fool to the company. They will have a flood of words, who have hardly a drop of good fenfe or judgment; fo that they are juft a voice, and no more. They that are given to much fpeaking, can hardly fpeak either true or well; which made an orator afk a double fee of a talkative fcholar, one to learn him to fpeak well, another to learn him to held his peace. It is the character of a virtuous woman, that " fhe openeth her mouth with wifdom," Prov. xxxi. 26. Her mouth is not always open, but duly fhut, and differently opened.

2. Idle fpeaking, Matth. xii. 36. The tongue was given to man to be for the honour of God, and the good of himfelf felf and his neighbour. Though our words, then, be not evil in themfelves, they are evil becaufe they are idle; that is, words fpoken to no good purpofe, tending neither to the honour of God, nor the good of ourfelves or others, neither to his moral good, to make him more holy, nor to his civil good, as not being upon the neceffary concerns of human life, nor his natural good, to maintain the moderate cheerfulnefs of fociety. It may be be comprehended under foolifh talking, rafh, raving, and impertinent difcourfe, doing no good to the hearers, but bewraying the folly of the fpeaker.

3. A trade of jefting, Eph. v. 4. It is not finful to pafs an innocent jeft for begetting of moderate cheerfulnefs. The wife man tells us, "There is a time to weep, and a time to laugh," Eccl. iii. 4. It may in fome cafes be as neceffary to to cheer the fpirits, as a cordial is to reftore them, or a pleafant gale of wind to purify the air. It was not unbecoming the gravity of the prophet to mock Baal's priefts, and to fay, "Cry aloud; for he is a god; either he is talking, or he is purfuing, or he is on a journey; or peradventure he fleepeth, and muft be awakened," I Kings xviii. 27. But finful are,

(1.) Offenfive jefts, which tend to the fhewing a defpifing of our neighbour, to the irritating and provoking of him. And indeed it is often feen, that thofe who are much given that way, their conversation is most offensive, fparing neither friend nor foe, and will rather lose their friend than their jeft.

(2.) Profane jefts, either making a mock of fin, or of that which is holy, particularly wrefting and abufing of fcripture, to express the conceits of their light and wanton wits. It is a dangerous thing to jeft in fuch matters.

(3.) People's being immoderate in jefting. To make every word a jeft, is liker the ftage than Chriftian gravity. This is as abfurd as to prefent a man a difh of falt to feed on; a little of it is good for feafoning, but to give it for the whole entertainment, is abfurd.

4. Laftly, Flattery, Pfal. xii. 3. This is a moft dangerous ftroke, and the more deadly that the wound it gives does not fmart, but by it a man is hugged to ruin. The words of a flatterer are fmoother than oil, yet are they in effect as drawn fwords. It is a compound of lying, abjectnefs of fpirit, and treachery. The flatterer gives the praife that is not due, profeffes the kindnefs that is not real, and fcrews up all to a pitch far above truth; and fo he is a liar. He debafes debafes himfelf to pleafe others, turning himfelf into every fhape to humour the party he is to flatter; and betrays him into felf-conceit and unacquaintednefs with himfelf.

I fhall that all with a twofold dehortation.

Firft, Speak truth, and beware of lying. Lying is a very common fin; repent of that guilt, and beware of it for the future. For motives, confider, Mct. 1. That God is the God of truth, the Author and Lover of truth, fo that he cannot lie; and therefore lying is most contrary to the nature and mind of God: it is therefore fingularly abominable and hateful to him, Pfal. x. 6. Prov. vi. 16. 17. We find that God fuffered Adam's fons to marry their own fifters, and the Ifraelites to fpoil the Egyptians of what they had borrowed of them; but never did the God of truth at any time difpenfe with men's fpeaking lies. Hate that abominable thing, then, which God fo hates.

2. All lies are from the devil in a fpecial manner, John viii. 44. It was he that first broached lies in the world, and ruined mankind with them; and having sped fo well with that engine of hell at first, no wonder he sets himself to keep up the trade. He is the father of lies, that begets them in the false heart, and they are brought forth by the lying tongue. Whom do liars refemble, then, the God of truth, or the father of lies?

3. Lying is a part of the old man of fin, which muft be put off, if we would not be put out of God's prefence, Eph. iv. 24. 25. It is the way to which our corrupt natures do kindly and quickly incline, Pfal. lviii. 3. "The wicked go uftray as foon as they be born, fpeaking lies." Hence children are not to learn this; they have the art of it from their tirft father Adam. But as foon as grace enters the heart, it rectifies it in that point. Hence the Lord's people are called "children that will not lie," If. lxiii. 8.

4. There is a meannels or bafenels in lying beyond what is in other common fins, either becaufe it proceeds from fear, or tends to deceive. Hence liars themfelves cannot endure to be called liars; the bafenels of the fin being formuch acknowledged in the world, that though many bring forth and and cherith the vile brat, none can endure to be reputed the father of it. And no wonder it is reputed fuch a bafe thing; for when once a man is known to make no confeience of truth, he has loft his credit, and is looked upon as a man that cannot be bound with the common ties of fociety, nor trufted.

128

Lafly, It will bring God's wrath heavily on the guilty, Prov. xix. 5. 9. " A falfe witnefs shall not be unpunished, and he that fpeaketh lies shall not escape. A falfe witness fhall not be unpunished; and he that speaketh lies shall perifh." God's truth is impawned for the liar's deftruction, even eternal destruction. Shall liars have access to heaven ? No, they are barred out from thence, Rev. xxi. ult. " There fhall in nowife enter into it any thing that-maketh a lie." Their lodging is appointed to them in another place, with the devil the father of lies, in the lake that burns with fire and brimftone, Rev. xxi. 8. and xxii. 15.

I fhall give you a few advices.

1. Strike at the root of lying, and fo the fruit will wither and come to nought. The great root of all is the corrupt nature, that needs to be mortified by grace from Jefus Chrift. There are also particular lufts on which lies depend. Labour to be humble, for pride and felf-feeking occasions many lies, as the boafter's lie. Some are founded on covetoufnefs, as the lies in bargaining; fome in fear, flavish fear of men, as denying of truth; fome in the vanity and rafhnefs of our natures, whereby lies come to be broached without a formed defign.

2. Accuftom yourfelves to few words, for " in the multitude of words there wanteth not fin," Prov. x. 19. It is but just with God, that idle words be punished by fuffering people to fall into lying words.

2. Remember that God will difcover truth; and that his eye is upon you at all times. And though ye may deceive others with your lies, ye cannot deceive the omnifcient God. He is witnefs to the truth, and will call you to account for your contradicting of it. And indeed the trade of lying is hard to keep up without difcovery. Liars had need of good memories. " A lying tongue is but for a moment," Prov. xii. 19.

Laftly, Curb lying in young ones, out of pity to their fouls, and care of their credit when they come to years. For fome get fuch a habit of it when they are young, that there is no mending of them when they grow old.

Secondly, Beware of carrying an evil tongue. The lying tongue is contrary to truth, the evil tongue to charity and love to our neighbour, being employed in flandering, backbiting, reproaching, reviling, foolding, &c. For motives, VOL. III.

Not.

Mot. 1. Confider the woful perverfenefs that is in an evil tongue. God gave man fpeech, which he denied to other creatures, that by his tongue he might glorify God, and do good to himfelf and others, Pfal. lvii. 9. 10. Shall we thus turn our glory into fhame, and pervert the ends of fpeech? How juft were it that we were ftruck dumb!

2. It is a murdering inftrument. I obferved to you before, that an ill tongue is a parcel of murdering weapons, a bow and fharp arrows to pierce, a fword to ftab, and a fire to devour others. Yea, Solomon obferves, that death and life are in the power of the tongue. It is a fire that kindles ftrife and contention in all focieties, and turns them into confusion; and oft-times returns heavily on the head of those who carry it. The tongues from heaven were cloven, to be the more diffusive of good; but those fired from hell are forked, to be the more imprefive of mifchief.

3. Confider the wickedness of it. It is a world of iniquity Jam. iii. 6. They have much ado that have an ill tongue to guide, a world of iniquity to guide. It is a broad ftream from the fountain of the wickedness of the heart.

4. An unbridled tongue cuts off all pretences to true religion, Jam. i. 26. For where the fear or love of God and our neighbour is in the heart, it will be a bond on the tongue to keep it within the bounds of Chriftian charity.

5. We must give an account of our words at the day of judgment, Matth. xii. 36. 37.

Lafly, An ill tongue will ruin the foul. Bridle your tongues; however unruly they be, they fhall be filent in the grave. And, if repentance prevent it not, the day will come that they will be tormented in hell-flames, Luke xvi.

I fhall conclude with an advice or two.

1. Begin at the heart, if ye would order your tongues aright. Labour to get them cleanfed by the fanctifying Spirit of Chrift. Study love to God and your neighbour, which are the fulfilling of the law. Labour for meeknefs, and patience, and humility, which will be the beft directors of the tongue.

2. Set yourfelves, in the faith of promifed affiftance, to watch over your hearts and tongues. Unwatchfulnefs is dangerous in the cafe of fuch an unruly member as the tongue is. God has guarded it naturally. Do ye alfo watch it.

OF THE TENTH COMMANDMENT.

Exod. xx. 17.—Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that. is thy neighbour's.

THE fcope of this command is to ftrike at the root and first rifings of fin in the heart, in the defires going out of their right line of purity and equity. It is a ftrict boundary fet to the unbounded defires of the heart.

In it, there are, 1. The act. 2. The object. The act, Thou fhalt not covet, or luft, as the apoftle terms it, Rom. vii. 7.; which implies an inordinatenefs of defire, a feverith motion of the foul towards the creature, irregular and diforderly; and fo a diffatisfaction with one's prefent condition, as appears from Heb. xiii. 5. "Let your converfation be without covetoufnefs, and be content with fuch things as ye have."

The object is held forth particularly for example's caufe, thy neighbour's house, thy neighbour's wife, his fervants, and goods. Thou shalt not only not take away thy neighbour's house from him by oppression, nor entice away his fervants, nor steal his goods, nor entertain a fixed and deliberate defire to do him that injury, as is forbidden in the eighth command; but the inordinate defire of having them shall not rife in, nor go through thy heart, however lightly, if it were like a flying arrow, stying, O, that his house, his fervant, his ox and as were mine ! Thou shalt not only not defile his wise, nor deliberately defire to do it, as is forbidden in the feventh commandment; but thou shalt not fay in thine heart, O that fhe were mine! though thou haft no mind, right or wrong, to make her fo.

R 2

thine

This object is held forth univerfally, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's: whereby it appears, that this command looks through all the other commandments of the fecond table, and fo condemns all inordinate defire of any object whatfoever. And therefore the Papifts dividing this command into two is abfurd, and but a trick invented to atone for their confounding the first and fecond. While this command fays, nor any thing, it fays, Thou shalt not only not dishonour thy neighbour by infolent and contemptuous behaviour, but there shall not be a defire in thy heart, faying, O that his place and post were mine, as in the fifth command; nor, O that I had his health and ftrength, as in the fixth; nor his reputation and effeem, as in the ninth; though you have no deliberate defign or defire to wrong him in these.

I do not wonder, if fome are furprifed at this, and fay, Are thefe fins? for indeed this command goes deeper than the reft; and if it did not fo, it would be fuperfluous; for you fee it aims not at any new object, but holds by the objects of the former commands; therefore it muft look to fome more inward and lefs noticed motions of the heart, than the reft do. And therefore Paul, though he learned the law at the fchool of divinity under Gamaliel, a profeffor of it, yet, till he learned it over again at the fchool of the Spirit, holding it out in its fpirituality and extent, he did not know thefe things to be fin, Rom. vii. 7. It was this command brought home to his confcience, that let him fee that luft to be fin which he faw not before.

And feeing this is a command of the fecond table, and ourfelves are our nearest neighbour, the lust or inordinate defire of those things that are our own must be condemned here, as well as lusting after what is not ours.

So much for the negative part of this command, which in effect is this, Thou fhalt not be in the leaft diffatisfied with thy own prefent condition in the world, nor have any inordinate motion in thy heart to that which is thy own or thy neighbour's.

The positive part is implied; and that is, Thou shall be fully content with thy own lot, whatever it be, and arrest thy heart within the bounds that God has inclosed it in, bearing a charitable disposition to thy neighbour and what is his. For all covetousness implies a discentent with our own condition.

Queft.

The Duties required.

Quef. "What is required in the tenth commandment." Anf. "The tenth commandment requireth full contentment with our own condition, with a right and charitable frame of fpirit toward our neighbour, and all that is his."

Here I shall confider the duty of this command, as it respects,

I. Ourfelves.

II. Our neighbour.

III. The root of fin.

I. I fhall confider the duty of this command as it refpects ourfelves. If we confider, that this command forbidding coveting in the general, fays, in effect, thefe two things, I. Thou fhalt not covet or luft after what thou haft; nor, 2. What thou wanteft; the great duty of this command with refpect to ourfelves will appear to be twofold.

Firft, A thorough weanedness from and indifferency to all those things that we have, in which our defires may be too eager. There are fome things whereof our defire cannot be too much, as of God, Chrift, grace, victory over fin; and therefore we read of a holy lufting, Gal. v. 17. The renewed part not only defires, but eagerly and greedily gapes for perfect holinefs and entire victory over fin. This is holy lufting, where there is no fear of excefs, although indeed even that may degenerate, when our own eafe, that is difturbed by fin, may be more in our view than the finfulnefs of fin; and in this respect these luftings are mixed, and therefore finful and humbling in the beft; and they are to far contrary to this command, as they are lufting after eafe, more than conformity to the holy will and nature of God.

There are other things to which our defires may be car, ried out too eagerly and inordinately; and the defire of them is lawful, but the coveting or lufting after them, which is the inordinate defire of them, is here forbidden. Thus we may fin, not only in the inordinate defire of fenfual things, as meat, drink, &c. but in rational things, as honour, effeem, &c. The defire of thefe things is not finful; but there is a luft of them which is fo.

Now, in oppcfition to this, we muft be thoroughly weaned from and holily indifferent to thefe things, not only when we want them, for that falls in with contentment, but when we have them. So fhould one be to his own houfe, wife, fervants, fervants, and any thing that is his; keeping our love to, defire after, and joy in them, within due bounds, as the Pfalmift did, Pfal. cxxxi. 2. "Surely I have behaved and quieted myfelf as a child that is weaned of his mother : my foul is even as a weaned child." We may take it up in thefe four things following.

1. The heart's fitting loofe to them, fo as the heart and they may fall afunder as things clofely joined, yet not glued, when God fhall be pleafed to take them from us. For if they muft needs be rent from us, it is an argument that our love to them was indeed a luft towards them. Therefore this difpofition is called a hating of them, Luke xiv. 26.; for things that we have, we can part with, without their tearing as it were a piece of our heart away with them. We can fay little on this piercing command, but what will be accounted hard fayings, by all that have not a clear view of the transfeendent purity of the law, which is carried to the height in this command, becaufe to the root, the corruption of our nature. And that corruption we muft ftill keep in view here, or we will do no good with it.

2 The heart's looking for no more from them than God has put in them. God has made created things as inns in the way to hunfelf, where a perfon may be refreshed, but not as a refung-place, where the heart is to dwell. For the defire is inordinate when the man feeks his reft and fatisfaction in these things instead of God, Pfal. iv. 6. The corrupt judgment magnifies earthly things, and locks on shadows as substances; and then the corrupt affections grafp them as such, and after a thousand disappointments lust after them fill, If. lvii. 10.

3. The foul's ftanding on other ground, when these things ftand entire about the man; drawing its support from God as the fountain, even when created ftreams are running full, I Sam. ii. 1. Pfal. xviii. 46. The world's good things must not be thy good things, Luke xvi. 25. Thou mayft love them as a friend, but not be wedded to them as a husband; use them as a ftaff, yet not as the staff of thy life, but a staff in thy hand; but by no means as a pillar to build on them the weight of thy comfort and fatisfaction.

4. The using of them passingly. We must not dip too far in the use of them. Lawful defire and delight, like Peter, walks foftly over these waters, but lust thines in them; in the one there is a holy careless in the other a greedy gripe. The apostle livelily deferibes this weanedness, I Cor. vii.

vii. 29. 30. 31. " It remaineth, that both they that have wives, be as though they had none; and they that weep, as though they wept not; and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not; and they that buy, as though they poffeffed not; and they that use this world, as not abusing it: for the fashion of this world passeth away." The violent pulse of the foul in our high-bended hopes, perplexing racking fears, vehement love, fwelling joy, and overmuch forrow about thefe matters, is a fad fymptom of the diftemper of natural corruption that has feized all Adam's fons. The greedy appetite that the heart is carried with to thefe things, is a fad fign of an unweaned foul. A man may have a finful luft to his meat, which yet is neceffary to support his body; and a luft in the using of it, as those of the old world, Matth. xxiv. 38. I Sam. xiv. 32. The dogs of Egypt, they fay, lap the water of the river Nile running, for fear of the crocodiles; for not only in every berry of the vine, but in all created things, there is a devil. See how the Lord tried the people, Judg. vii. 6. " And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men: but all the reft of the people bowed down upon their knees to drink water.

All these things the law requires in their perfection, without the least mixture. Where is the clean man to cast a stone at the reft? It must be on a very transfent glance of the heart that men fay, The world is not their temptation, they care not for the world. For a view of the spirituality of the law would make us see that the world is fixed in our hearts, and only grace can loose it at the root, and only death can cast it over the hedge.

Secondly, A full contentment with our own condition. As for the fin in our condition, it is not from God, and there is no good in it; we are not called to be content with it, becaufe it is not the condition which God fet us in. But whatever elfe be in our condition, we are obliged to be content with it, becaufe fo is the will of God that we fhould be in it. Every one is to look on his condition, as the paradife that God has fet him down in; and though it be planted with thorns and briers, he muft not look over the hedge; for thou fhalt not covet. Though that which is wanting in thy condition cannot be numbered, and that which is crooked cannot be made ftraight, yet none of thefe things muft render us uneafy in the leaft. There is required a full contentment, without a difcontented glance of the eye. Much goes to the making up of it, all here required.

1. Hearty renunciation of our own will, faying, with the pattern of contentment, Not my will, but thine be done. We must no more be chusters for ourfelves of our own lot; but as little children standing at the table, not to carve for themsfelves, but to take the bit that is given them. "He shall chuse our inheritance for us," fays the Pfalmist, Pfal. xlvii. 4. Shall not Infinite Wisdom rule the world? This lies in three things.

(1.) We muft not determine the kind or fort of our comforts, as we often do, like petted children, that will not have this the parent holds out, but that which they fet their eye on. Like Adam, whom the fruit of the tree of life could not ferve, but he would have the forbidden fruit. The defire of fruit was natural, therefore not evil; other fruit would have ferved that defire, if kept orderly; but the lufting defire could not want forbidden fruit. Rachel had a hufband, but the muft have children too. Orpah muft have a hufband. Ruth wants both; but the determines nothing, but only the muft have a God; and that the got, and both too.

(2.) We must not be positive as to the measure of our comforts; and there is no reason that beggars should be chufers. If the heart fay of our comforts, They are too little, and of afflictions, they are too great, it flies in the face of this command, and of God's fovereignty, fetting up for independency, I Tim. vi. 8. "Having food and raiment, let us be therewith content," though the food be coarse, though seanty, &c. Nature is content with little, grace with lefs, and fets no measure; but the measure of lust can never be filled.

(3.) We must not be wilful in any thing, I Tim. vi. 9. "They that will be rich fall into temptation and a fnare," &c. They that will have thefe things, and will not want them, will never be truly content till God's will be brought down to theirs; which will never be altogether; and if in a particular it come to be fo, they will readily get their will with a vengeance, as the Ifraelites in the wildernefs got. Pfal. lxxviii. 29.—31. "So they did eat, and were well filled : for he gave them their own defire; they were not effranged from their luft : but while their meat was yet in their mouths, the wrath of God came upon them, and flew the fatteft of them, and fmote down the chofen men of Ifrael." Thus we muft renounce our own will.

2. Abfolute

2

2. Absolute refignation to the will of the Lord, Matth. xvi. 24. " If any man will come after me, let him deny himfelf, and take up his crofs, and follow me." We must give over the war betwixt our will and the will of God, and our will must run as a captive after his triumphal chariot. His preceptive will is the rule of our duty; and his providential will must, with our confent, be the rule of our condition. Our will must follow his, as the shadow does the body, without gainfaying. If he will let us have a created comfort, we must be content to keep it; if not, we must be content to part with it. We must lie at the foot of Providence, as a ball before him that toffes it, to be thrown up and cast down as our God fees meet. This Providence will do with us whether we be willing or not; but if we are thus refigned, then our neceffity is our obedience.

3. Entire fubmiffion to the will of God, 1 Sam. iii. 18. "It is the Lord : let him do what feemeth him good." As they refign themfelves to his difpofal, they must fland to his decifion in the cafe. We must no more difpute the fovereignty with God, but allow the divine will and pleafure to carry it over the belly of our corrupt inclinations, and be difpofed of by him as the weaned child is by the nurfe. If that which is crooked cannot be made ftraight, we must ply to it as it is; if our lot be not brought up to our mind, we must bring down our mind to our lot, as Paul did, Phil. iv. 11. 12. " Not that I fpeak in refpect of want: for I have learned in whatfoever ftate I am, therewith to be content. I know both how to be abafed, and I know how to abound : every where, and in all things I am inftructed, both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to fuffer need." In this fubmiffion to the will of the Lord the foul of content lies. For God does not fubject the man only, or caft him down. as he can do the most difcontented perfon, making him walk with the yoke wreathed about his neck, whether he will or not. But the man voluntarily fubmits himfelf to God's difpofal in the whole of his condition, whatever his wants be. Whatever be wanting in our condition, if we would be content,

1/f, We must fubmit to them as just, without complaining, as Cain did; faying with the prophet, Micah vii. 9. "I will bear the indignation of the Lord, becaufe I have finned against him, until he plead my caufe, and execute judgement for me: he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness." We meet with no hardships in our lot, but what we have procured to ourfelves. And Vol. III. it is but just that we kifs the rod, and be filent under it. Let us complain of ourfelves; why not? only leave our complaints there; but not fet our mouths against the heavens; no, not in our hearts, for God knows the language of our hearts as well as our mouths. We must love his holiness and justice, in all the works thereof, though against ourfelves. Nay more,

2dly, We must be quiet under them, without murmuring, as tolerable, Lam. iii. 27.—29. "It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth. He fitteth alone and keepeth filence, becaufe he hath borne it upon him. He putteth his mouth in the duft, if fo be there may be hope." So was Job at first, though his corruption got up at length, Job i. 22. "In all this Job finned not, nor charged God foolifhly." How often do we cry out of infufferable affliction ? yet we do bear up under it for all that, and would bear the better if we could be content and quiet under it. A meek and quiet fpirit makes a light crofs, for a proud unfubdued fpirit lays a great overweight upon every crofs; as Rachel's unquiet fpirit made the want of children wonderfully heavy, which others go very quietly and contentedly under. Nay more,

3dly, We must be easy without those things we want, as things we can want, without anxiety to get them, Phill. iv. 12. Weaned hearts will be very easy without those things which others cannot digcst the want of. What is the reafon of fo much uneasines in our condition, but that we are wedded to this and the other thing; and being glad of the having of it, we are exceeding uncasy at the parting with it, as Jonah was with his gourd? The contented man will be easy, and that not upon a fensible prospect, but on the faith of the promise, Phil. iv. 6. "Be careful for nothing: but in every thing, by prayer and supplication with thanksiving, let your requests be made known unto God." But more than that,

4thly, We must be well fatisfied, and bear up comfortably under the want of them; ftanding upright when they are gone, as we did when we had them, or would do if we had them; even as the house ftands when the prop that it did lean upon is taken away, Hab. iii. 17. 18. "Although the fig-tree shall not bloss ftail fail, and the fields shall yield no meat, the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls: yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my falvation." It is a fad evidence evidence of the corruption of our nature, that woful luft after the creature that is bred and born with us, that our comfort waxeth and waneth according to the waxing and waning of created enjoyments, and ebbs aud flows as the breafts of the creature are full or empty. So, many lofe all fpirit and life in religion, when God pulls their worldly comforts from them; and even good people walk much difcouraged and damped, not fo much with the fenfe of God's anger, as the affliction in their lot. But what is yet more,

5thly, We must have a complacency in our condition, as what is good for us, otherwife we can have no full content. Observe the language of a contented mind, not only just, but "Good is the will of the Lord," If. xxxix. ult. Content fuffers not a perfon to go drooping under God's yoke, but makes him carry it evenly with a fort of complacency in Wife men have a pleafure in the working of phyfic, it. though it gripe them fore, if their phyfician thinks it good for their health, and they think fo too. And grace fometimes finds a pleafure in pain, and a paradife within the thorny thicket of afflictions. See how the apoftle gathered olive-berries off the thorn-hedge of croffes, 2 Cor. xii. 10. " Therefore I take pleafure in infirmities, in reproaches, in neceffities, in perfecution, in diftreffes for Chrift's fake : for when I am weak, then am I ftrong." Ay, there is a refined pleafure there, to fee how God ftops the entry for provision, that lufts may be ftarved; how he cuts off the by-channels, that the whole ftream of love may run towards himfelf; how he pulls and holds off the man's burden, that he may run the more expeditely in the way to heaven. Nay, more than all that,

6tbly, We muft have a complacency in our condition, as that which is beft for us for the time. Though he take health from thee, wealth, relations, &c. How is that poffible. It is not eafy to do it, but you muft endeavour to fee it; for that muft be beft that God judges beft, and by the event it appears that God fees that condition beft for thee for the time. Therefore we fhould meet it as David did Abigail, with " Bleffed be the Lord that fent thee to meet me this day." So did Job, chap. i. 21. " Bleffed be the name of the Lord." Faith in the promife makes it practicable. All the works of God are the moft perfect in their kind. But to come to the top of the ladder, the full feamark of content,

Lajily, We must rest in that condition, without the least

52

fquint-

fquint-look for a change of it, till God's time come. There muft be no motion for it; but as heaven moves to carry our condition about with it. And fo this hinders not prayer, nor the ufe of means, in dependence on God: but requires patience, faith, hope, and abfolute refignation, 2 Sam. xv. 25. 26. In this fenfe he that believeth doth not make hafte; that is, the unbelieving hafte which cannot wait God's time.

Quel. Is this full contentment pollible? Anf. There is a twofold contentment: the one legal, which is full in the cyc of the law; and this we can no more attain to than the perfect fulfilling of the law. It ceafes not, however, to be our duty, and will be humbling to gracious fouls fo far as they come fhort of it. The other evangelical, which is full in the eye of the gofpel, i. e. it is fincere: though it is not full in degrees, yet it is full in parts; it is in all the parts of contentment, though none of them are perfect; there is a fubmiffion to the whole will of God, though not perfect in degrees. And this is a neceffary part of the new man, fo that without it we are not fincere.

I fhall now give reafons why we fhould be fully content with our own condition, whatever it be.

1. Because he that made the world guides it, and it is highly reafonable we allow it to be fo. Let the discontented perfon answer that question which God proposes to finners to filence their murmorings, "Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Matth. xx. 15. The world is made by the Lord; and shall he not govern it, and dispose of it and all things therein as he fees best? Must the clay be allowed to fay to the potter, "Why hast thou made me thus? Should it be according to thy mind?" Job xxxiv. 33. Providence guides all, the Creator fits at the helm; and will not we be content with the course that is steered?

2. Thy condition is ordered by Infinite Wifdom. There is nothing that befals us without the providence of God; and that is no blind chance, but a wife difpofal of all according to the counfel of God's will. If the product of Infinite Wifdom content us not, we do but fhew ourfelves headftrong fools. He that numbers the hairs of our heads, Matth. x. 30. no doubt keeps an exact account of all the croffes in our lot, and of every ingredient in our crofs, and gives them all out by weight and meafure, as may moft fuit his infinitelywife ends. And it is the height of folly to impeach the conduct of Infinite Wifdom.

3. All the good that is in our lot is undeferved, Lam. iii.

22. The bittereft lot that any has in the world is mixed with mercy; and mercy is ftill predominant in our cup. It is true, difcontented perfons are like wafps and flies that look not near the found parts, but fwarm together on the fore place. They magnify their croffes, and multiply them too; but deal with their mercies as the unjuft fleward, inftead of a hundred fetting down fifty, and hardly fo much. But let there be fair count and reckoning betwixt us and Providence, we fhall find we are in God's debt, and every mercy we enjoy we have it freely and undefervedly from God's hand, Job ii. 10.

4. All the evil that we meet with in our lot, we deferve it, we have ourfelves to thank for it, Lam. iii. 39. Shall men's hearts rife againft God for what they have procured to themfelves? Is it not a reafonable refolve, "I will bear the indignation of the Lord, becaufe I have finned againft him?" Mic. vii. 9. A difcontented fpirit will always be found an unhumbled fpirit, infenfible of its ill defervings at God's hand.

 U_{fe} . I exhort all to labour for a full contentment with their own condition. For motives to prefs this, confider,

I. The beauty of the rational world, under the conduct of Divine Providence, lies in every one's contentment with their own condition. One laft fhall as foon ferve every foot, as one condition fhall be agreeable to all. What confufion would be in the world, if there were not variety? If time were all day and no night, the moon and ftars every one a fun, how would we be able to endure it. If the whole body were an eye, where were the ufeful and pleafant variety of members. And if all men were fet under the fame finites of Providence, where were the beautiful variety and mixture in the web of providence that inwraps the world. Let us remember we are in the world as on a ftage, where one muft reprefent a king and another a beggar. It is God's part to chufe what part we fhall act; and it is our bufinefs contentedly to act the part allotted for us.

2. Contentment makes a man happy and eafy in every condition. It is the frone that turns all metals into gold, and makes one to fing and rejoice in every condition. A ftrong man will walk as cleverly under a heavy burden, as a weak man under a far lighter one, becaufe of the proportion that is betwixt the ftrength and the burden in each. One man has his lot brought up to his mind, another has his mind brought down to his lot; is not the latter, then, as eafy as the former is. All our uneafinefs proceeds from from our own minds; and could we manage them to a full contentment in every condition, no condition could make us miferable.

3. Time is fhort, and ere long we will be at our journey's end. The world's fmiles will no more follow us, neither will the frowns of it reach us. Eternity is before us, and we have greater things to mind than our condition here. One traveller walks with a rough flick in his hand, and another with a cane : the matter is fmall which of them be thine, for at the journey's end both of them fhall be laid afide.

Queft. How may we attain to full contentment with our own condition, in a gospel-sense. There are two forts of perfons to whom we speak, some in a state of nature, others in a state of grace. One answer will not serve both; for though unrenewed sinners may have a shadow of contentment, it is impossible they can have true Christian contentment in that state. They may have a fort of contentment from a careless easy humour, yea, they may reason themselves into a fort of contentment, as some Heathens did do. But true contentment with their condition they cannot have.

This is clear, if ye confider, that a reftlefs heart can never be a contented heart; and feeing the heart of man is capable of enjoying an infinite good, and the whole creation is not capable to fill it, it follows, that the heart can never reft, nor be truly content, till it be fo in God himfelf. Adam falling off from God, left us with a breaft full of unfatisfied defires, becaufe he left us feeking our fatisfaction among the creatures, which are dry breafts, and cannot fill the heart; fo till the foul return to God, it can have no true reft nor contentment. We may fay enough to ftop the mouths of the difcontented, whatever they be; but no confiderations will avail to work true contentment in a perfon out of Chrift, more than a hungry child will be reafoned into quietnefs while you give him no bread. Therefore the great and

First Direction for contentment is, that ye take God for your God in Chrift, as he offers himfelf to you in the gofpel. The great thing that ye want is a reft to your heart, and fatislaction to the unbounded defires thereof, to poffers that which if you had, your defires would be ftayed, and ye would covet no more. I know, your falfe hearts and your foolith tongues have faid, O, if I had fuch and finch a created thing, I would be content, I would defire no more ! But when ye got it, was it fo indeed ? was there not ftill a want ? So it will be to the end. But here is the way to contentment : contentment : Jefus Chrift, in whom dwells the fulnefs of the Godhead, offers himfelf to be yours. Accept of him by faith, and then the fun is up with you, and ye will be content, though the candles of creature-comforts be put out. The wife merchant is content with the lofs of all when he finds the one pearl, but not till then, Matth. xiii. 45. 46. Thus the foundation of full contentment is laid. And fo I may go on to fhew you further how to attain it. Therefore,

2. Believe that God is your God in Chrift; apprehend him by faith as your portion; and contentment with your condition will follow of courfe, though your condition be very gloomy, Heb. iii. 17. Full contentment with one's condition goes in equal pace with a man's clearnefs as to his intereft in Chrift. Let that be darkened, and he fhall find himfelf grow more fretful and uneafy with croffes in the world. Let that be rifing clearer and clearer, and the more clear it grows, his crofs will grow the lighter, and eafier to be borne.

If any fhould fay, There is a particular thing in my condition that above all things I cannot be eafy under; there is fomething I would have, and God fees it not meet to give it me: what fhall I do to be content under it. I would fay, be what it will, go to God, and make a folemn exchange of that thing. If he has kept that from you, he offers you as good and better, that is to fay, himfelf, instead of it. And do you renounce that thing, and give up with it, and take Chrift inftead of it; and having taken him fo, believe that ye have him inftead of it. Say, Lord, there is an empty room in this heart of mine, fuch a comfort would I have to fill it; but thou feeft meet to refuse it; therefore I give up with it; thy will be done; but I take thyfelf inftead thereof to fill up that room. And now I have made the exchange. and Chrift is to me inftead of that which I want. So fhalt thou find thy heart fatisfied. And if God fee the comfort meet for thee, thou art then in the faireft way to get it too, Pfal. xxxvii. 4.

This is the way of the gofpel to full contentment, viz. the way of believing, by which all Christian duties are done, and gofpel-graces are nourifhed in the heart. And to let you lee the efficacy of these means for contentment, confider,

1. The heart of man is an empty hungry thing, that muft be filled with fomething, and cannot abide want. Therefore it is, that when people mils their defired fatisfaction in one thing, thing, they go to make it up by another. Mordecai's not bowing to Haman difcontented him, and he went to make it up by a revenge on all the Jews. But the mifery is, there is a want in that thing too. It is like the putting of an empty fpoon in the child's mouth, that may ftop it for a moment; but as foon as it finds it is difappointed, and there is nothing in it, it falls a-crying again. Now, this directs you to that which infallibly makes up the want, and in which there is no want. And it is a fad matter, that those who have tried fo many ways to make up their wants, will not try this too.

2. God is the Fountain of all perfection, and whatever is defirable in the creature is in an eminent way in God, Matth, xix. 17. If the fun fhine in at your windows, ye do not complain for want of candle-light. If all the veffels in your houfe were emptied of water, and the fountain were brought into it, ye are at no lofs, but in better cafe than before. Even fo, if all created fireams fhould dry up, if ye have God for your God, ye may fay indeed, that ye want thefe created things, but ye have all the good that was in them, in another, to wit, in God. Ye want the veffels, but ye want not the water of comfort that was in them, for ye have it in God.

3. Having God for your God, ye have all in the promife, Rev. xxi. 7. He is unreafonably diffatisfied that has a good flock in bills and bonds from a fure hand, though he has little in his pocket, efpecially when all that is needful will be upon them anfivered on demand. He that has the lively faith of his inheriting all things at length, will find it none of the most difficult tasks to be ferved with very little for the prefent.

4. Laftly, Having God for your God, the nature of your afflictions is altered. Your croffes are changed from curfes into bleffings; and however heavy they be, they run in the channel of the covenant to the common end of all covenant-bleffings, your good, Rom. viii. 28.

This way of believing in order to contentment is,

1. A fure way, which will infallibly produce it, as furely as the laying of a hungry babe to a full breaft will ftay it. How many ways do men try for this which all mifgive? but this cannot mifgive, feeing God in Chrift is a full contenting object. And if our faith were perfect, our contentment would be fo too. When faith is perfected in fight in heaven, the faints will be warm without clothes, full without meat, and rich without money, for God will be all to them.

2. A fhort way, by which we may come quickly at it. What a far way about do men go for contentment, while they compass the creation for it, and when all is done miss it? But here we may fay, "Be not afraid, only believe," Mark v. 36.

3. The only way; there is no other way to come at it. Fulnefs in the world will not do it; for as the effate enlarges, the defire enlarges too, and knows no bounds till it comes to that which is infinite; and thither it cannot come till it comes to God. A kingdom could not content Ahab, difcontent crept in under a crown on his head, 1 Kings xxi. 4. If ye do not take up your foul's reft in God as your God in Chrift, no confiderations will prevail to content you. But if ye do, there are feveral confiderations that may be of good ufe to you. As,

1. Confider, that the heavieft thing in thy lot comes out of a friend's hand. It is good news to Zion in the worft of times, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publifheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publifheth falvation, that fayeth unto Zion, Thy God reigneth !" If. lii. 7. Whoever be the inftruments of our affliction, and whofe hand foever be heavy on us, we meet with nothing but what comes through our Lord's fingers, John v. 22. "The Father hath committed all judgment unto the Son." And will we not venture our outward condition in his hand, on which we venture ourfelves for eternity? A tongue, far lefs a hand, cannot move againft us but by him, 2 Sam. xvi. 10.

2. Confider how unmeet you are to carve for yourfelves; "and fhould it be according to thy mind?" Job xxxiv. 33. How weak are ye to difcern your true intereft? Could ye venture to pilot yourfelves through the rocks and fhelves in the world? No, ye dare not, if ye know yourfelves. Why will ye not then refign yourfelves to wife Providence? But, fay, ye, it is only in fome things we would have it fo or fo. Ay, but Chrift will be fteerfman for thee through the whole, or not at all. He will not fhare the government with thee; and there is no reafon he fhould, for thou art weak, and feeft not far off. There is many a pleafant green path in the world that leads into the lion's den, and many a rugged way that leads into a paradife: thou feeft the hithermoft end of the way, but not the far end; he fees it.

T

Vol. III.

3. Have

3. Have ye not already lived to fee your hopes and fears both baffled by the conduct of wife Providence? As for the hopes ye have conceived of the choice of your own wilful will, have ye not been fometimes made to let the knife drop with fhame, after ye have cut your fingers in carving for yourfelf; like Lot, not daring to ftay in all the plain, though fome time before he built his own neft in the heart of it? And for your fears of the conduct of Providence, have ye not feen how God has drawn you to your good againft your will, and that it was good ye were croffed in fuch a matter, and that fuch a project of yours was baffled? Seeing, then, we are fuch bunglers at the carving of our lot, it is reafonable we quit the knife, and give it over, as Jacob did in Jofeph's cafe.

4. Confider, that there is much about the ordering of thy lot, infinitely more than thou art mafter of thyfelf. Believe it,

(1.) That the feven eyes of Infinite Wildom are about it, Zech. iii. 9. Now, in the multitude of counfellors there is fafety. There is no chance-work in the world, no random work in thy condition; it is not a work huddled up in a hafte. The fcheme of it was drawn from eternity, and lay before the Lord, without any need of alteration. Every thing in thy condition, however late brought forth, was from eternity in the womb of the wife decree, Zech. vi. 1.

(2.) That there is a foft hand of grace and goodnefs about it, Rom. viii. 28. A gracious Providence brings it forth out of the womb of the decree: why fhould we not then embrace it, and welcome it into the world? There is a ftream of grace that goes through all the difpenfations of providence to the Lord's people. Now, when Infinite Wifdom, tempered with grace and good-will, orders our lot, is it not reafonable, that we be fully content with it? Hence I infer,

1. Thy condition, whatever it is, is for God's honour; for it is ordered by him who does all for that end, and cannot fail of his defign. Though thou doft not fee how it is fo, thou mayeft believe that is fo, upon this ground. Providence runs much under ground, fo as weak man cannot fee how the means anfwer the end: but God fees it, and that is enough. This is a contenting confideration to a gracious foul, that will be pleafed with that which may glorify God, Phil. i. 20.

2. Thy condition is good for thee, Rom. viii. 28. That may be good that is not pleafant; it may bring profit that brings brings no pleafure. God loves to work by contraries, to bring health to the foul out of fickness of the body, to enrich his people by poverty, to do them good by croffing of them, and blow them to their harbour by teeth-winds.

3. Nay, it is best for thee. If thou be a child of God, thy prefent lot in the world is the beft thou couldft have for the prefent. Infinite Wifdom fees it is fo; and grace and good-will makes it fo. All God's works are perfect in their kind, Deut. xxxii, 4. Will vain man come after God, and tell him how to mend his work? If it were not fitteft for his own holy ends, it were not perfect. Nay, if thou be not in Chrift, those things in thy lot which thou art discontented with, thy croffes and afflictions, are best for thee; for if any thing in thy lot bring thee to God, it will be this. Which brings me to a fifth thing.

5. Confider, that those things in thy lot which thou art fo ready to be difcontented with, are truly necessary for thee, Lam. iii. 33. If thou couldst want them, thou wouldst not get them; for God takes no pleafure merely in making his creatures miferable. If thy lot be afflicted, know that ftrong difeafes must have ftrong remedies : blame not the phyfician for that, but the difeafe. The wilful child would live without the rod, but the parent fees it neceffary to chaftife him. If God withdraw any thing from thee, it is but to starve a lust that would feed on it; if he lay on thee what thou wouldst not, it is but to bear down a lust, that otherwife would carry thee headlong. Give Providence a fair hearing, it will answer for itfelf. Why should people then cast out with their mercies, and be angry with their bleffings?

6. Confider, that great things in one's lot have a great burden with them. A man will get a fofter bed in a palace than in a cottage, but the mean man will readily fleep founder in his cottage than the king in his palace. People look to the great things which others have beyond them, but they do not confider the burden going along with them. They who want the one want the other too, and therefore have reafon to be content.

(1.) Where there is a great truft, there is a great reckoning, Luke xii, 48. Thou feeft others have much that thou wanteft, grudge it not; they have the more to reckon for. God keeps an account of all his inercies bestowed on all men, and they that have most now have most to account for when the Lord fhall feek an account of his fervants. Look well to thyfelf, thyfelf, and be content. I fear it be found, that for as little as thou haft, thou haft more than thou canft guide well.

(2.) Great things in the world are great fnares, and bring great dangers along with them, Mark x. 23. They that walk low make not fuch a figure as those that walk on high; but the latter are most apt to fall. How fond are we of the world even when it frowns on us? what would become of us if it did nothing but fmile? It is hard to carry a full cup even. Affliction is often feasonable ballast to a light heart, that prosperity would give too much fail to, till it should be funk.

7. Confider, if thou be a child of God, that which thou haft, thou haft on free coft, Rom. viii. 32. And therefore, though it be little, it is better to thee than the abundance of many others, which will bring a dear reckoning at length. The children of the family may fare more coarfely than ftrangers; but there is a great difference; the ftrangers have a reckoning for it when they go away; but the children have nothing to pay.

(1.) Remember thou forfeited all in Adam; it is a mercy that thou haft any thing at all. I know nothing but fin and death that we can lay claim to as our own properly, Lam. iii. 39. He that deferves hell has no reason to complain, while he is out of it.

(2.) Any thing which thou haft a covenant-right to now, is through Chrift; it is the purchafe of his blood. So that makes it precious, as being the price of blood; and that fhould make us content with it, feeing we have it freely through him.

8. Confider the vanity of all things below the fun, Eccl. i. 2. A juft effimation of worldly things would make us content with very little. But a blind judgment firft fets an exorbitant price on earthly things, and raifes the value of them; and then people think never to get enough of them. But low thoughts of them would clip the wings of our affections to them, and little of them would content us, Prov. xxiii. 5. Riches make themfelves wings, and flee away. There is a wing of change, cafualties, and loffes: and though by thy wifdom thou could clip all thefe wings, yet there is a wing of death and mortality that will carry them away.

9. Confider the precioufnefs and excellency of heavenly things, Col. iii. 2. More heavenly-mindednefs would make us lefs anxious about thefe things. If we be in hazard of lofing thefe, it is madnefs to be taken up about trifles, and concerned concerned with earthly loffes. Will he whofe life is in hazard go up and down making moan for a fore finger? And if they be fecured, it is horrid ingratitude to be difcontent with our lot here. Would a man that has a fhip loaded with goods coming afhore, vex himfelf for lofing a pin out of his fleeve, or a penny out of his pocket? Heaven will make up all our loffes; and hell will make men forget their greateft croffes in the world.

La fly, Confider much of death and eternity. For as little as any of us have, we have perhaps as much as will ferve our turn here. Our time is uncertain. It is folly to vex ourfelves, though we have not all conveniences that we would defire in a houfe that we have no tack of, but may remove from it to-morrow.

I have infifted largely on this point, becaufe it is fo very neceffary. Labour for a full contentment with your condition. This is the way to make a virtue of neceffity; for our difcontent and uneafinefs will not add a cubit to the flature of our lot. And that which God will make crooked in it, we will not get made flraight, however uneafy we be about it.

II. We are to confider the duty of this command, as it refpects our neighbour. And that is a right and charitable or loving frame of fpirit towards himfelf and all that is his. We may take up this in five things, which are here required.

1. Love to our neighbour's perfon, as to ourfelves, Rom. xiii. 9. For feeing this command forbids us to wrong him fo much as in thought, it plainly binds love to him upon us; not in word only, nor in deed only, by doing him good, but in heart, that our bowels move towards him, and love him for the fake of God. For whatever be unholy in him, yet he is one of God's creatures, of the fame nature with ourfelves, and capable of enjoying the fame God with us.

2. An upright respect to what is his, for his fake. As we are to love himself for God's fake, to what is his for his fake, Deut. xxii. 1. A careless disposition and unconcernedness about what is our neighbour's, can never be a right frame to what is his. So it is an argument of the world's corruption, that all men seek their own things, and are so little concerned for the things of others. That is not charitable walking, Phil. ii. 4.

3. An hearty defire of his welfare and profperity in all things, as of our own, his honour, life, chaftity, wealth, good name, and what ever is his. This we owe to our very enemies. mies, fo far as it may be confiftent with the honour of God, and their own fpiritual good, which is the main thing we are to defire for all. I add this, becaufe fometimes the lofs of thefe may be more to the honour of God, and our neighbour's advantage, than the having of them, to wit, when they are abufed to fin, Rom. xii. 20. Matth. v. 44.

4. A real complacency in his welfare, and the welfare of what is his, Rom. xii. 15. If our hearts rejoice not in our neighbour's welfare, we covet what he has, and fecretly in our hearts devour it. But as we are to be well content with our own condition, fo we are to be well content with our neighbour's welfare.

5. Laftly, A cordial fympathy with him in any evil that befals him, Rom. xii. 20. For we are members one of another; and as every member fhares in the grief of any one, fo fhould we in one another's afflictions. A hard heart unconcerned with the afflictions of others, efpecially where people talk to the grief of those whom God has wounded, is a fign of a wretched temper and uncharitable frame of fpirit, Pfal. lxix. 26. and xxxv. 13. 14. 15.

III. We must confider this command as it refpects the root of fin. And fo it requires original righteoufnefs, a holy frame of the foul, whereby it is bent to all good, and averfe to all evil; that holy frame of fpirit that was in the first Adam when he was created, and all along in the fecond Adam. And thus this command carries the matter of holinefs to the utmost point.

That this is here required, will appear, if ye confider that this command forbids the very first risings of original corruption, whose very nature it is to be still coveting; and therefore original corruption itself is forbidden, and confequently original righteousness required.

Not only good actions are required by the holy law, but a holy temper of the fpirit, confifting in the light of the mind taking up duty, a bent of the will inclining ever to good, and averfe to every evil, and the orderlinefs of the affections, keeping precifely within the holy boundaries fet to them by the law, not to look over the hedge in the leaft point.

This is certainly required fomewhere in the law; for men are condemned for the want of it; and in none of the commands is it required, if it be not here. And thus ye may fee the utter impoffibility of keeping perfectly these commands; for whatever men pretend as to the rest, who of Adam's children do not stick here as soon as they are born?

This

This command reaches us as foon as we are born; nay, as foon as we are living fouls in the womb, requiring of us what we have not to produce, and that is an holy nature. But, alas! we are evil before we can do evil; and we want that holy nature naturally, and therefore have at length fuch unholy lives.

If it be inquired, How this command in this point is anfwered fincerely? Anf. It is by our being renewed in the fpirit of our minds, our partaking of the new nature in regeneration, where old things being done away, and all things becoming new, we are made new creatures. This is that new nature which is the image of God repaired, with a perfection of parts, to be crowned in heaven with a perfection of degrees.

And it is worthy of our obfervation, that Jefus Chrift being to fulfil all righteoufnefs, was born holy, and fo fulfilled this command for us. In him the law has its due, he being a man, who from his birth had a holy pure nature, a holy frame of fpirit, without the leaft irregularity or diforder.

To conclude, ye may fee the command is pure, just, and holy, however impure we be; and requires of us the utmost purity of heart, life, and nature.

I now proceed to confider the fins forbidden.

Queft. "What is forbidden in the tenth commandment?" Anf. "The tenth commandment forbiddeth all difcontentment with our own eftate, envying or grieving at the good of our neighbour, and all inordinate motions and affections to any thing that is his."

This command is a curb and bridle to the diftempered heart of man, which of all parts of the man is the hardeft to be commanded and kept within bounds. Men may be of a courteous obliging behaviour, keep in their hands from killing, or what tendeth thereunto, their bodies from uncleannels, their hands from ftealing, and their tongues from lying; while, in the mean time, the heart in all thefe refpects may be going within the breaft like a troubled fea, unto which this command by divine authority faith, Peace, and be ftill.

The heart diftempered by original fins runs out in the irafcible faculty in tormenting paffions, bearing an averfion of the heart to what the Lord in his wifdom lays beforemen. This great fiream of the corruption of our nature divides itfelf into two branches; one running againft our own condition, namely, a torrent of difcontent; the other againft our neighbour, namely, envying and grudging at his good. In the concupifcible faculty, in lufting affections and inordinate inordinate motions towards fomething which God has put out of our way, at leaft with held from our clofeft embraces. This alfo divides itfelf into two branches; one running towards what is our own, namely, a finful eagernefs, luft, or inordinate motion of the heart to what we poffefs; the other running towards what is our neighbour's, an inordinate affection to what is his. Thus the corrupt heart runs in a direct oppolition to the will of God, refufing what he would have us to accept, and embracing clofely what he would have us to ftand at a diftance from. The corrupt fountain with its feveral ftreams is all here forbidden. We fhall fpeak to them all as laid before us, tracing the ftreams to the fountain-head.

FIRST, the freams in which the diftemper of the heart runs are here forbidden expressly, because these are most exposed to our view. Let us view,

FIRST, The tormenting paffions, in which the corruption of nature vents itfelf; for fin is in its own nature milery. We need but go in the paths of fin to make us miferable, and in the high road of duty to make us happy. We fhall confider the tormenting paffion, Firft, Of difcontent with our own effate or condition. This is plainly here forbidden; for difcontentment is prefuppofed to coveting; and there could be no coveting of what we want without difcontentment with what we have. The lufting gapings of the heart fay, there is an uneafinefs within. It is only the plague of difcontentment that makes the heart cry, Give, give.

I. I will fhew the evil of difcontentment, and paint out this fin in its black colours. It is the hue of hell all over.

1. Difcontent is, in the nature of it, a compound of the blackeft ingredients, the fcum of the corrupt heart boiling up, and mixed to make up this hellifh composition.

1/2, Unfubjection to and rebellion againft the will of God, Hof. iv. 16. "Ifrael flideth back as a backfliding heifer;" backfliding, or refractory, that will not admit the yoke farther than it is forced on. The difcontented heart cannot fubmit, but fets its foot a fpar againft the divine difpenfation. Though God guides and governs the world, they are the malcontents, that are not pleafed with the government, but mutiny againft it. What pleafes God, pleafes not them; what is right in God's eyes, is evil in theirs. And nothing will pleafe them, but to have the reins of government out of God's hands into their own; though, if their pafion did not blind blind their judgment, they might fee how they would quickly fire the little world of their own and others condition, if they had the reins in their own hand.

2dly, Sorrow of heart under the divine difpenfation towards them. It is not according to their mind, and to their heart finks in forrow, 1 Kings xxi. 4. God croffes their will, and they pierce their own hearts with many forrows; as if a man, becaufe he cannot ftop the courfe of the fun in the firmament, would wrap up himfelf in darknefs.

And this is a killing forrow, a fword thruft into a man's heart by his own hands, 2 Cor. vii. 10. It melts a man's heart within him; like a vulture, preys upon his natural fpirits, tending to fhorten his days. It makes him dumpifh and heavy like Ahab, and is a heavy load above the burden of affliction. That is the black fmoke of difcontentment, which yet often breaks out into a fiery flame, as in the fame cafe of Ahab, where Naboth fell a factifice to it.

3dly, Anger and wrath against their lot, Jude 16. Complainers. The word fignifies such as are angry at their lot, and in the distributions Providence makes of the world, still complain that the least or worst part of it falls to their share. Thus the discontented do in their hearts bark at the mountains of brass, Zech. vi. 1. as dogs do at the moon, and with the fame success. They are angry with God's dispensation, and their hearts rife against it, and sharl at it.

And this is a fretting anger, whereby mcn difqulet and vex themfelves in vain, like men dafhing their heads against the wall; the wall ftands unmoved, but their heads are wounded. Like a wild bull in a net, the more he firs, the faster is he held; fo that ftill they return with the loss. Thus difcontent is in the heart like a ferpent gnawing the bowels, and makes a man as a moth to himfelf, confuming him, or a lion tearing himfelf, Job xviii. 4.

Laftly, There is a fpice of heart-blafphemy in it; for it ftrikes very directly againft God the Governor of the world, and accufes his administration; and for an evidence of this, it fometimes breaks out in words, Mal. iii. 13. 14. 15. "Your words have been ftout againft me, faith the Lord: yet ye fay, What have we fpoken fo much againft thee? Ye have faid, It is vain to ferve God: and what profit is it, that we have kept his ordinance, and that we have walked mournfully before the Lord of hofts? And now we call the proud happy: yea, they that work wickedness are fet up; yea, they that tempt God are even delivered." Difcontent accufes him,

VOL. III.

(1.) Of folly, as if he were not wife enough to govern the world. The peevifh difcontented perfon, in his falfe light, fees many flaws in the conduct of Providence, and pretends to tell God how he may correct his work, and how it would be better. If the work of Providence be wifely done, why are we difcontent with it? or would we be difcontent with it, if we did not think we faw how it fhould be otherwife, and how it might be mended?

(2.) Of injuffice, as if he did us wrong. The Judge of all the earth cannot but do right. He cannot be bribed nor biaffed; yet the difcontented heart rifes againft him, and blafphemes him as an acceptor of perfons. It looks on his diftributive juffice (if we may fo call it, for indeed all is his own, not ours) with an evil eye, and accufes him of partiality in not giving them as good as others, complaining of their fhare. On his corrective juffice, as if they did not deferve what he lays on them. For if we do deferve the evil in our lot, there is no wrong done us; and why do we then complain? And to fill up the meafure, it accufeth him,

(3.) Of cruelty. Job, in a fit of difcontent, fpeaks it out, chap. xxx. 21. "Thou art become cruel to me." Thus goodnefs itfelf is blafphemed by the difcontented, who behave as if they were under the hands of a mercilefs tyrant, who would fport himfelf with one's mifery. Difcontent fills the heart with black and hard thoughts of God, and reprefents him as a rigid mafter and cruel lord; otherwife people would lay their hand on their mouth, and be content.

Some will fay, that their difcontent is with themfelves, not with God, having brought their crofs on with their own hands. Anf. If it be the effect of your fin, ye may mourn for your fin, but ye fhould the rather be content with your lot. And as for mifimanagements, there is a providence that reaches them, and fo God is our party fill: but nothing is more ordinary than that, Prov. xix. 3. "The foolifhnefs of man perverteth his way; and his heart fretteth againft the Lord."

Others fay, that it is with the infiruments of their trouble they are difcontented. Anf. But confider that they are but infiruments in God's hand, in the hand of his providence, and therefore ye flould not be difcontent. Say as David did to the fons of Zeruiah, "What bave I to do with you? fo let him curfe becaufe the Lord hath faid unto him, Curfe David. Who fhall then fay, Wherefore hatt thou done fo?" 2 Sam. xvi. 10. No creature can be more to us than God makes it to be: if then God fhall fqueeze any creature dry of comfort to us, and and we thereupon prove difcontented, whatever we pretend, our hearts fret against the Lord, Exod. xvi. 2. compare ver. 7.

Thus ye fee the picture of difcontentment; and does it not look very black? There are ounces and pounds of rebellion against the will of God, killing forrow and fretting anger, and hideous heart-blafphemy in it, while there is not one grain of religion or reason that goes into this hellish compofition. If one fhould take it for a defcription of hell, he would not be far out; for the truth is, difcontent is a hell in the bofom, and a lively emblem of the pit of darknefs.

2. If ye view difcontentment in the rife of it, ye will fee further into the evil of it. It takes its rife from,

1/7, A blinded judgment, which puts darknefs for light, and light for darkness, and cannot fee into the wifdom of the conduct of Providence, that does all things well. When our blind minds begin to refine on the management of holy Providence, they are apt to produce difcontent, which in refpect of Providence is always unreafonable. See how good Jacob bewrays his folly and ignorance of the methods of Providence, Gen. xlii. 36. " Me have ye bereaved of my children : Jofeph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will take Benjamin away: all these things are against me." Compare with this the promife, Rom. viii. 28. " All things fhall work together for good to them that love the Lord, to those who are the called according to his purpofe;" and alfo compare the event; and ye will fee that all thefe things were for the benefit of the good patriarch, and that of his numerous family.

Yea, oft-times fo readily does it rife out of darknefs, that it fprings up from mere fuspicion, milapprehension, and miftake, fo that a little cloud of that nature over the mind will in the end cover the mind with the blackness of discontent; as in the cafe of Ahab, I Kings xxi. 4. compare ver. 6. And indeed there is never a ground of difcontent, but the blind mind does magnify it, and lays to it fuch heaps of rubbish, as the heart is not able to stand under it, as in the cafe of Rachel, Gen. xxx. 1. "When Rachel faw that fhe bare Jacob no children, Rachel envied her fifter; and faid unto Jacob, Give me children, or elfe I die." Thus are our own dark minds the anvil on which our miferies are beat out into greater breadth and length than they are of, as they come out of the hand of God, to the end they may cover our hearts with differntent. Happy is the man that can take uр up his crofs as God lays it down, without adding more to it.

Of the Tenth Commandment.

2*dly*, A proud heart. Haman's pride difcontented him for want of bows and cringes from Mordecai, which would never have troubled a humble man. A proud heart is a wide heart, Prov. xxviii. 25. Heb. It is not little that will fill it; it is long ere it will fay, It is enough: and fo it natively produces difcontent. The devil is the proudeft creature, and withal the most difcontented; for pride and difcontent lodge always under one roof. And could we get blood let of the heart-vein of pride, we would fee the fwelling ulcer of difcontent fall apace.

3. An unmortified affection to the creature, I Tim. vi. 9. 10. Jonah had a gourd, and he was exceeding glad of it, Jonah iv. 6.; it is taken away, and then he was exceeding difcontented, ver. 9. The heart takes fuch a hold of fuch and fuch a created comfort, that it becomes like a live limb of a man's body; fo when it is rent away, what wonder one cry out, as if men were cutting a limb of him? No body cries out for the lofing of a tree-leg, becaufe it has no communication with the members of the man's body, it is a dead thing. So, were our affection to the creature deadened to it, as it fhould be, difcontent could have no accefs.

4. A fpirit of unbelief. Want of faith marred the acceptance of Cain's offering, Heb. xi. 4.; and opened the fluice of difcontent on him too, Gen. iv. 5. "Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell." Difcontent feeds on wants, faith brings in the fupply of wants, and can feed on it, while it is yet in the promife. Where unbelief is, then no wonder difcontent prevail. A lively faith would kill difcontent; whereas unbelief nourifhes and cherifhes it; for it puts an effectual bar in the way of the reft of the heart, which it can never attain but in God.

3. View it in the effect, and it will appear very black. The tree is known by its fruits.

1/1, It mars communion with and accefs to God. Muddy and troubled water receives not the image of the fun, as a clear and ftanding water will do. So a difcontented heart is unfit for communion with a holy God, 1 Tim. ii. 8. " Can two walk together except they be agreed?" If one would have communion with God, his heart muft not be boiling with anger against his brother, Matth. v. 23. 24. How then can he have it, when he is angry with his God, as in difcontent? 2*dly*, It quite unfits a man for holy duties, fo that he cannot perform them rightly or acceptably, for fpeaking to God in prayer, or his fpeaking to them by his word. I. It deadens one's heart within him, as in Nabal's cafe, I Sam. xxv. 37. whole "heart died within him, and he became as a ftone." 2. It takes away the relifh of fpiritual things, vitiates the tafte, and turns them faplefs to people, as it did to the Ifraelites in Egypt, Exod. vi. 7.—9. 3. It carries the heart off the duty, to pore on the ground of difcontent, and makes them drive heavily in God's worfhip, and ferve him drooping and heartlefs, as it did the Jews in Malachi's time, Mal. ii. 13. 14. Their unkindnefs to their wives made them difcontented and fretful, fo that when they came to the temple, they were quite out of humour.

3dly, Nay, it unfits people for the work of their ordinary calling. It is not only an enemy to grace, but to gifts too, and common prudence. The black fumes afcending from the difcontented heart overcloud the judgment in ordinary matters, that the one hand knows not what the other is doing, as in Nabal's cafe, who fhould have gone and made his peace with David. So that it is a plague to people, not only as Chriftians, but as men.

4tbly, It mars the comfort of fociety, and makes people uneafy to those that are about them. When Elkanah went up to Shiloh with his family to rejoice before the Lord, fretting Hannah is out of tune, and mars the harmony, \mathbf{I} Sam. i. 7. 8. Peninnah provokes Hannah, Hannah is angry with her, and Elkanah with both. So it is the peft of fociety, and makes an evil world ten times worse. It makes people a burden to others, because it gives them a cloudy day while it lasts.

stbly, It is a torment to one's felf, and makes a man his own tormer tor, I Kings xxi. 4. It wraps him up in darknefs, feeds him with bitternefs, and gives him gall and wormwood to drink, Prov. xv. 16. for his ordinary. It robs him of the beft worldly thing he can poffefs, i. e. his peace and tranquillity of mind; and makes his mind within him as the troubled fea that cannot reft. So the difcontented perfon is on a continual rack, and he himfelf is executioner. All fins are difpleafing to God, yet in many there is fome pleafure to men, both the actors and others; but corrupt nature cannot ftrain any pleafure out of this in one's felf, nor in others either, unlefs, like the devil, they have a pleafure in feeing others miferable.

Ething

6tbly, It is not only tormenting to one's mind, but is ruinous to the body, Prov. xvii. 22. "A broken fpirit drieth the bones." It is a degree of felf-murder. It waftes the natural fpirits, and has a native tendency to cut fhort one's days. The foul and body are fo knit, that they mutually affect one another; and the mind difordered by fretting paffions, will fret the body, and confume it like a moth.

7thly, It fucks the fap out of all one's enjoyments. As a few drops of gall will imbitter a cup of wine, and a few drops of ink will blacken a cup of the cleareft liquor; fo difcontent upon one ground will imbitter and blacken all other enjoyments. See it in Haman, Efth. v. 11 .-- 13. " And Haman told them of the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, and all the things wherein the king had promoted him, and how he had advanced him above the princes and fervants of the king. Haman faid, moreover, Yea, Efther the queen did let no man come in with the king unto the banquet that flie had prepared, but myfelf; and to morrrow am I invited unto her allo with the king. Yet all this availeth me nothing, fo long as I fee Mordecai the Jew fitting at the king's gate," See it alfo in Ahab, I Kings xxi. 4. " And Ahab came into his houfe, heavy and difpleafed, becaufe of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had fpoken to him : for he had faid, I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers : and he laid him down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no bread." As contentment turns all metals into gold, fo difcontentment turns them into iron. What tafte is there in the white of an egg without falt? There is as much as in any enjoyment under the fun without contentment. If we have not that for feafonfoning to our comforts, they are taftelefs and faplefs as afhes. And therefore let a man have what he will, he enjoys no more than what he has contentment in.

8thly, Hence it always makes one unthankful. Let Providence fet the difcontented man in a paradife, the fruit of that one tree which is forbidden him, and which he is fo uneafy about, will fo imbitter him, that he will not give God thanks for all the variety of other delights which the garden is furnifhed with. For all thefe avail him nothing while that is hept out of his reach. It will make him pore fo on his crofs, that he will not look over his fhoulder to all his comforts. Ingratitude is a fin of a black die : how much more muft that be fo which is the caufe of it ?

Lafly, it is a fruitful womb of other fins, it brings forth a great great brood of other lufts. When once it entered into Adam's heart, it made him at one ftroke break through all the ten commandments. It were an endlefs labour to recount the viperous brood that comes forth of this cockatriceegg, that fry of enormous lufts that are bred by it. But for a fwatch of this, I will inftance in three of the groffeft fins that men can readily fall into, which are the natural product of difcontentment.

(1.) Murder, the groffest fin of the fecond table, a fin which a peculiar vengeance purfues, and which a natural confcience fo ftartles at, that it is a continual lash to the murderer. This is the product of difcontent; for when once the heart fmoking with difcontent, breaks out into a flame, it breathes out blood and flaughter. So Ahab's difcontent was the caufe of the murder of Naboth, with all the mocking of God, the perjury and robbery that attended it, I Kings xxi. Nay, not content with the murder of a fingle perfon, it gaped in Haman to devour a righteous nation for one man's caufe, Efth. iii. 6. Nay, the worft fort of murder proceeds from it; the murder of nearest relations, as in the cafe of Cain's murdering Abel, Gen. iv. 5. 8. And, which is worft of all, felf-murder is what always proceeds from it, as in the cafe of Ahithophel, 2 Sam. xvii. 23. People grow difcontented with their lot, their proud hearts are not able to bear it; fo they turn desperate, feeing they cannot help it, and make away with themfelves.

(2.) Dealing with the devil. The difcontented being angry with God, they are in a fair way to be a prey to Satan. Thus Saul, in a fit of difcontent, went to the witch at Endor, 1 Sam. xxviii. The difcontented heart is a drumly heart, and it is in fuch waters that Satan loves to fifh. And here is his hook wherewith he catchest hem; he proffers to do that for them, or give that to them, which God will not. And they being intent upon it, fo that they cannot be eafy without it, are eafily enfnared. Whereof the world has afforded many miferable inftances.

(3.) Blafphemy againft God, the groffeft fin of the first table, for of that kind is the unpardonable fin. Difcontent is in its own nature a practical blafphemy, and therefore when it comes to a height, it breaks out in open blafphemy, as in that abominable mouth, 2 Kings vi. ult. "This evil is of the Lord; what fhould I wait for the Lord any longer?" For being angry with God, people begin to quarrel with him, and murmur againft him; and if they do not hold in time. time, they are in a fair way to blafpheme. Therefore it is marked concerning job, how by his fitting down contented under all his loffes the devil miffed the mark he aimed at in them, Job i. ult. compare ver. 11. It is marked concerning Aaron, that he held his peace, Lev. x. 3.; for it is hard to fpeak, and fpeak right, under great preffures. Thefe effects may convince us of the exceeding evil of this root of bitternefs.

La/lly, View it in the qualities that agree to it, which are not in many other fins. I will name the following.

if, It is the noted rebel in the kingdom of providence. God who has created the world, vindicates the government of it to himfelf alone. But the difcontented go about to wreft the reins of government out of his hand. It wages war with the Governor of the world, and ftrives with him, as if the clay fhould ftrive with the potter, and fay, "Why haft thou made me thus?"

2. It is a peculiar defpifer of the kingdom of grace. There is a particular malignity in it against the grace of the gospel. For it throws contempt on God, heaven, and all the purchafe of Chrift, which is offered in the golpel to fill up the room of what the difcontented wants, Exod. vi. 7. 9. It is true, other lufts do fo too, as covetoufnefs, fenfuality, and profanenefs. But here lies the difference; these lusts have a bait of profit or pleafure with them, and have fomething to put in the room of fpiritual things; difcontent has no bait with it, nor any thing to put in the room of them. If one thould reject your converse, who has another lefs worthy to converfe with, it is a flight; but if one that has none, if they take not you, do reject you, that is a greater contempt by far. So the difcontented will rather pine away without any comfort, than take it from the gofpel. Again, in these lufts there is a folly and fimplicity; but in difcontent there is a kind of gravity and devilifh ferioufnefs. To be contemned by a fimple one or a roving fool, is not eafy; but it is worfe by far to be contemned in a way of gravity and deliberation. This is most cutting.

Leftly, It follows men to, and will continue with them, in the kingdom of darknets for ever. There are fome lufts which men have no use for beyond the line of time; the covetous will defpife their geld, money, and wealth in hell, the unclean perfon his filthy companions, &c. But when the discontented die without repentance, their works will follow them to the pit. In hell they will be discontented for ever I_{\perp} without without the leaft intermiffion; they will never give one fmile more, but an eternal cloud of darknefs will be on their countenance, and they will fret, murmur, and rage against God and themfelves, and blafpheme for evermore.

Let us fee the evil of this, then, and guard against it.

Secondly, I will offer fome remedies against it, and advices in the cafe.

1. Practife the directions for contentinent; particularly take God for your God in Chrift, and labour to believe he is fo. Take him in the room of whatever ye want, or lies on you, which difcontents you. Without this all elfe will be in vain. The greateft hole in your heart, the enjoyment of God is able to make up. And God often makes fuch in the hearts of men and women, that there may be room for himfelf, who otherwife is not miffed, Zeph. iii. 17. "The Lord thy God in the midft of thee is mighty; he will fave, he will rejoice over with joy; he will reft in his love, he will joy over thee with finging."

2. Labour to be humble. Humility lets us fee our true worth that it is nothing, and fo fences the heart against difcontent, Gen. xxxii. 10. It makes one wonder he has any thing at all left him, and fo lets him into the mystery of that text, 1 Thess. v. 18. "In every thing give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." He that is convinced that he deferves death, will not be discontent with banishment. And he that believes that he deferves to lose the prefence of God for ever, will lay his hand on his mouth under temporal loss.

3. Believe that there is nothing in the world in which either your happiness or misery is bound up. I know there are things of which we are wont to speak to; but the world's happiness or misery is but a shadow of these things. That is happiness where a man wants no more that he can defire, and that is only in the enjoyment of God. And that is mifery where one has nothing defirable left him, and none see that till they be in hell.

4. Do not pore upon your croffes, for that does but breed and feed difcontent, Pfal. xxxix. 3. It is obfervable, that Jacob would not call his fon Benoni, left that fhould at every naming of the child ruffle his wound. But you may dwell upon your affliction as from the hand of God, to confider wherefor the Lord has contended, that fo you may get the good of it. But turn your eyes on your mercies which you enjoy, and be thankful.

VOL. III.

5. De

5. Be much exercifed in religious duties. Go often to your knees, and pour out your hearts before the Lord, and tell him all your wants. This gave Hannah a fweet eafe, 1 Sam. i. 18. Go often to your Bibles, and hear the good news there from the far country, that is above the clouds, where there is neither cloud nor rain, Pfal.lxxiii. 16. 17. & cxix. 92. There are fprings of confolation there, which a perfon never taftes of, till he be brought into the condition for which they were placed there.

6. Be always exercifed in fome honeft bufinefs. Idlenefs is dangerous many ways, particularly in the point of difcontent. It is a nurfe and fofterer of it. It is the ftanding pool that gathers mud; and in those that are idle Satan will be bufy, and will not mifs the opportunity.

7. Curb it as fcon as it begins to fet out its head, nip it in the bud, for it is a fire that gathers force by continuing and fpreading. The water which at the head might be eafily paffed, comes afterwards to be fo big as to be able to drown. Difcontent is a firiving with God, and fo is like the letting out of waters, which, however fmall at the beginning, grows to a monftrous bignefs, if not timely remedied.

 L_{afl} , Live by faith; that is the beft prefervative againft difcontent. Faith ftays the foul in all events on the promifcs; gives a favourable view of all croffes and afflictions, as tending to the good of the party; lays hold upon things unfcen as the great portion; and fo leffens the care about things of the world; and, in a word, finds all it wants in God. Thus much of difcontent.

II. The branch that runs againft our neighbour's condition, is envying and grudging. The object of this fin is the good of our neighbour; and the better the object is, the worfe is the fin. It runs through the objects of all the other commands of the fecond table; for the heart is apt to envy our neighbour's honour, life, &c. It is near of kin to difcontent, which always accompanies it, as we may fee in the cafe of Ahab, 1 Kings xxi. 4.; for it goes always on a comparifon of our neighbour's condition with one's own, the grudge being that they have more or as much as we.

I thall thew the evil of it, and the remedies thereof.

First, I shall shew the evil of it briefly.

1. View it in the ingredients thereof, whereof it is made up.

If, Sorrow and grief for the good of our neighbour, I Cor. xiii. 4. (to oppofite is it to charity); for envy makes the the heart like the moon that thines full and clear in the night, as long as itfelf is the topping light, but grows pale and wan as foon as the fun rifeth, John iii. 26. The profperity and welfare of others is a weight on the envious heart, a thorn in the evil eye, and a prick in that weak fide, Gen. xxxi. 1.

2dly, Fretting anger at their good, Pfal. xxxvii. 1. What makes others eafy, makes the envious uneafy; and the more frefh and green others are by the providence of God, the more withered and fretted are they, Num. xi. 28. 29. So it was with Jofeph's brethren. The fun fhining on others burns them up; and the more it warms their neighbour, the more it fcorches them, and makes the black fume of envy and grudge to afcend.

2. View it in the fprings and rife thereof.

1/2, Covetoufnefs of what is their neighbour's. Had not Ahab coveted Naboth's vineyard, he had not grudged him the poffeffion of it. The envious would draw all to themfelves; and what they are forry others fhould keep, they themfelves would fain poffefs. A heart knit to the world, and carnal felf-intereft, cannot mifs to be envious.

2dly, Difcontent. The envious are always difcontented that they have not more than others, or that they want what others do enjoy. Difcontent makes an empty room with them, and envy frets that it is not filled up with what belongs to their neighbour.

3dly, Pride and felfiftnefs, Gal. v. ult. Pride fo exalts one's felf, and depreffes others, that nothing is too much for the proud man, and nothing too little for his neighbour. Selfiftnefs cares only for what is one's own, and has no regard to the intereft of our neighbour; quite contrary to the fpirit of the gofpel, that teaches, that every man fhould not look on his own things, but alfo on the things of others, Phil. ii. 4. Hence the man cannot endure to fee others like him, far lefs above him.

3. View it in the effects thereof. It has almost the fame as those of discontent, which may be well applied thereto. I will only fay, that envy is a fword, and wounds three at once.

1/f, It firikes againft God, being highly offenfive and difhonourable to him. It quarrels his government of the world, and accufes him of folly, partiality, and injuffice, Matth. xx. 15. It cannot reft in the difpofals of holy providence, but is ever picking quarrels with its management. Some have too much, others too little, the world is ill dealt; though, had they the dealing of it, where there is one complaint now, there would be ten in that cafe, for they would heap it up to themfelves, come of others what would.

have

2d/y, It firikes againft our neighbour. It is a bitter difpofition of fpirit, wifhing his ill fare, and grudging his good; and not only binds up men's hands from doing him good, but natively tends to loofe them to his hurt. It will be at him one way or other in word or deed, and there is no efcaping the evil of it, Prov. xxvii. 4. "Who is able to ftand before envy?" Oft-times it drives on men to the greateft extravagancies, as it did Jofeph's brethren to murder him; which being ftopt, they fold him for a flave, Gen. xxxvii. 11. &c.

3. It firikes at one's felf, Job v. 2. "Envy flayeth the filly man." Though it be fo weak as to do no execution on others, yet be fure it never miffes a man's felf; and it wounds one's felf the deeper, that it cannot do much hurt to the party envied. It frets the mind, and keeps it always uneafy as upon tenter-hooks; nay, it ruins the body, and filently murders it, Prov. xiv. 30. "Envy is the rottennefs of the bones," making a man to pine away, becaufe others thrive.

Secondly, I shall give the remedies of this fin.

1. Taking and cleaving to God himfelf as our portion, Matth. vi. 21. God is a full portion, and in him there is enough for all; and if our fouls reft in him, they will eafily bear others having other things that we want. But the world can never fatisfy; and therefore when people look for their portion in it, it is no wonder they be always complaining, and think others have more and better than they, becaufe if they had it all alone, they would not have enough.

2. Loving God for his own fake, and our neighbour for his fake. Did we thus love, we would rejoice in God's honour, and our neighbour's welfare. This guarded Mofes and John against envy, and made them joy in what others grieved at and grudged. An envious spirit is a narrow spirit, that is never concerned for the one nor the other, but for sweet felf, to which all must be facrificed by them.

3. Humility, which would make us low in our own eyes, and make others high. He that is in his own eyes nothing, will not grudge though his part be lefs than others; the chief of finners will never think the higheft feat among the favourites of providence belongs to him. And whofo have a due regard for others, will not grudge that it is well with them.

a

I come next to confider how the corruption of nature runs in concupifcence, luft, or inordinate affection. The two branches into which it divides itfelf are,

1. A lust after what is our own.

2. A luft after what is our neighbour's, or not ours.

Firf. A luft after what is our own. What God has given us, we may like and defire for the ends he has given it. But when that defire is inordinate, it is finful, it is luft and inordinate affection, Col. iii. 5. Now, the defire of, or love to, or liking of what is ours, is inordinate in thefe feveral cafes following, all which are here forbidden.

1. The heart's being fo glued to them, that it cannot want them, cannot part with them, 1 Cor. vi. 12. There is but one thing needful, Luke x. ult. the enjoyment of God. So God has made it, and therefore he would have us fit loofe to all other things. When inftead of that the heart cleaves to other things, fo that it cannot part with them, that is a luft to them, that muft be killed by weaning therefrom, Luke xiv. 26. There the heart grips too hard, and muft have it.

2. A too great eagerness in the using of them, when the heart casts off the band of religion and reason, and runs loofe after them. Thus a man may have a lust to his own meat or drink, I Sam. xiv. 32. For our affections even to lawful things need a curb, because they are ready to be violent; and the violent pulse of the affections to them is a symptom of a feverish foul distempered by original fin.

3. The defire of them for other ends than God has allowed and appointed; for then it is carried without the rule fet by the Lord, and cannot mifs to be inordinate. Thus ofttimes God's good creatures are defired to be fuel to lufts, Jam. iv. 3. 4. To defire meat for our neceffity, is not evil; but for our lufts, is not good. Whatever God has made ours, it is not abfolutely, but with a referve, to wit, for fuch 'ufes as he has allowed; if we go beyond that with them, it is a finful lufting after the fame, as if it were not ours at all. But, alas! in thefe things men are often like a tenant, who having taken a houfe to dwell in, would make bold to pull it down, and burn it for fuel.

4. The being led to the ufe of them, without reafon, neceflity, or expediency. Then we are under the power of them, and not they under our power, I Cor. vi. 12. It is lawful lawful to eat, but to be a flave to unreafonable appetite is a fin, and fo in other cafes. For fo the foul is degraded, and made to ferve a luft, inftead of commanding and regulating the defire, which ought always to be fubject to right reafon. And however common this is, and but little regarded, it is the native effect of original fin, which has diffurbed the order and beautiful harmony of the faculties of the foul; the affections, like an unruly horfe, refufing to be held in by the curb of reafon.

5. The using of them to the hurt either of foul or body; in that cafe the defire cannot but be inordinate. Our fouls and bodies are the Lord's, and he fays as of his own, "Do thyfelf no harm." It must needs be a lust that carries a man over the belly of this command. Yet, alas ! how many fuch motions and affections have people to what is even their own, that to fatisfy them they facrifice both their fpiritual and temporal interests! Hence it is a good rule in the use of lawful things, That then people do exceed, when by the use of them they are unfitted either for the fervice of God, or their own interest.

6. The using of them without any regard to the honour of God, 1 Cor. x. 31. The old world were $\tau_{\mu\mu\gamma\sigma}$, eating like benfs. The glory of God fhould regulate us in all things, determine us to the use of what is ours, and determine us against it; all being to be cut and carved as may best fuit that end.

Secondly, A luft after what is our neighbour's, or not ours. Every defire of what is our neighbour's is not finful, otherwife there could be no trading, buying, felling, exchanging, bargaining, &c. amongft men. There are holy boundaries fet to these defires by the law of God; and as long as they abide within these, they are lawful; but when they exceed, they are inordinate, luftings, and coveting, and here forbidden. Now, they are inordinate,

1. When the very having of them is unlawful, the defire of them is a luft, and inordinate motion. Then fhall not covet thy neighbour's wife; for as John faid to Herod, "It is not lawful for thee to have her," viz. his brother's wife, Matth. xiv. 4. What is abfolutely forbidden us, we may no way defire, otherwife we do but re-act Adam's fin, in lufting after the forbidden fruit. The heart joins with those things which God has put out of its embrace, and requires it to ftand at a diffance from.

2. Though the having of them may be lawful, as of our neighbour's neighbour's houfe, fervant, ox, &c. yet the defire of them may be a luft, and is fo in feveral cafes; 2s,

I/l, When they are defired for unlawful ends, to feed fome luft, as when a man defires his neighbour's drink, not for ftrength, but drunkennefs, this is a finful coveting, an inordinate motion to what is his, though he pay for it. O how much fin is contracted this way, that is never noticed ! How many things are defired and purchased too from others, even in a lawful way, which are for no other end defired but to feed fome luft? If our defires be not regulated by reafon, neceffity, or expediency, they are but finful luftings. This finful humour in the hearts of men and women, has produced many trades and inventions in the world, which had never been known if man's nature had not been corrupted. And thefe are maintained and encouraged, by people's care to gratify their lufts, their vanity, pride, fenfuality, &c. Whereas, if they walked firicitly by neceffity and expediency, according to religion and reafon, there would be no more use for them than there is of a third wheel to a cart. From the beginning it was not fo. Therefore furely the heart is diftempered, and thefe the diforderly motions.

adly, When the defire fets people on unlawful means to procure them, it is a luft. Though it be lawful to have one's neighbour's fervant, his ox, &c. they may be thine lawfully; yet, if thy defire fet thee on underhand dealing to rob him of his fervant, to cheat or wheedle him out of his ox, &c. it is coveting of them with a witnefs. And this luft of covetoufnefs thus acting keeps the world in a continual ferment, fo that no man is fure of another. For hardly is there a bargain made, but both buyer and feller labours to get fomething for this luft, as well as for his necenity and expediency. And what wonder is it, that one who has running fores in his hand, leave fome marks of them on every thing he touches? Such is our cafe by natural corruption.

3 dly, When the defire, though it fets not on unlawful means, yet is too eager after what is another's. This finful eagernefs difcovers it felf feveral ways, all here forbidden; as,

(1.) When people cannot wait with eafe the time they are to get the thing; but the feverish defire makes them unealy, as Rachel was with the defire of children.

(2.) When they are overjoyed with the enjoyment of it, as Jonah was with his gourd. And indeed it is hard to joy, and not overjoy, in any thing that is not God or grace.

(3.) When they are fretted and difcontented at the miffing of it, as Ahab was, who, for ought appears, had no mind to feek Naboth's vineyard but for money, till his wicked wife put it in his head; but he was fretted for the want of it.

(4.) When they cannot be fatisfied without it, but muft have it, though not truly neceffary, coft what it will, as Efau was fet for the red pottage that his brother had. This makes a price that they call the price of affection, which often is nothing elfe but the price of unreasonable fancy, which muft be gratified at any rate.

4thly, When the defire fingly goes out after fomething that Providence has put out of one's reach, though the man has no mind to feek it, nay, would not have it if it were offered him. This feems to have been David's fin, when he longed, and faid, " Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Bethlehem, which is by the gate !" 2 Sam. xxiii. 15. Some think this was a gallant foldier's wifh, as if he had faid, O that we could drive the Philiftines garrifon out of Bethlehem! Some of the old Rabbis think it was a pious wifh, and that David longed for the Meffiah that was to break out there. But it feems to be a finful with, as both the word, which is used, Prov. xxi. 26. "He coveteth greedily all the day long," and the pointing in the original, feem to carry it. The weather was hot, and he was thirfty, and a violent fancy took him to have a drink out of the well of Bethlehem, where he had often drank in his young days. But I cannot think that ever he meant, that any body fhould go fetch it at that time, ver. 17.; but his men feeing the humour he was in, ventured, Thus luft breaks out, and guilt is contracted, The eyes fee fomething that is not ours, and many ways. the heart fays, O that it were mine! without any defign about it. Something that God has locked up from us in providence, and the heart yearns after it, faying, O that I had it ! Something we hear others have got, a good gift, bargain, or match, and the heart fays, O that it had fallen to my fhare! and many fuch things, all without any defign: They are inordinate defires and luftings, for they ftill imply a coveting, and a diffatisfaction in fome fort with our lot. which the holy law can never allow.

In all these cases the defire of what is not ours is a luft, a finful, inordinate motion, to what is our neighbour's.

Further, to trace this luft and lufting of the heart forbidden in this command, though it is as impofible for me to follow it in its feveral turnings and windings, as to tell the motes that appear where the beams of the fun are finning in a room. Befides the actual fulfilling of lufts (Eph. ii. 3.) in 2 deeds deeds which they drive to, which belongs to other commands. there are other things forbidden here, viz.

1. Lust in the fruit fully ripe, though not fallen off in the act; that is, when the luft is not only confented to, and refolved upon, but all the measures are laid for bringing it forth into action. As Haman's luft of revenge, when he had got the king's fealed letters for the destruction of the Jews; Jofeph's miftrefs's luft, when the caught him, and faid, Lie with me. This fometimes Providence blafts when come to all this ripenefs, as in those cafes, against the perfon's will. That is before God much alike as the finful action itfelf. Sometimes conficience blafts it, fo that the perfon fuddenly retires as from the brink of a precipice, which he was going to throw himfelf over. That is before God as wanting but a very little of the fin completed. And, according to the nature of the thing, it will be very bitter in penitent reflections on it.

2. Lust in the fruit unripe; that is, when it is confented to for action, but the means of fulfilling it are not deliberated upon. Thus people, in the hurry of a tempration, are carried fo far, that their hearts fay within them, they will do Then luft hath conceived, Jam. i. 15. it. When it is brought this length, a little more will bring it to the birth. But though it never come farther, it leaves as much guilt on the foul, as will make a fick confcience.

2. Lust in the bloffom; that is, when though it is not confented to for action, yet it is confented to in itfelf, and fpreads in morofe delectation, as they call it, or abiding delight in the luft. That feems to be the luft especially meant Matth. v. 28. " Whofoever looketh on a woman to luft after her, hath committed adultery already with her in his heart." O what guilt is contracted this way, even by the wandering of the defire, (Eccl. vi. 9.), which the perfon has no mind to gratify by action! Thus the covetous man lufteth, and heaps up riches and wealth to himfelf in imagination; the proud man lufts, and heaps up honour, &c.; the revengeful, &c. And all that the luft feeds on here is but mere fancy, airy nothings, which perhaps never had, nor does the man really expect will ever have, a being. This is luft dreaming, for which a confcience will get a fearful awakening; though ftupid fouls pleafe themfelves in it, that it does ill to no body, nor minds ill to them.

4. Luft in the bud; that is, the first risings of luft, even before the confent of the will to them; the first openings of Vol. III. Y particular particular lufts, fometimes not regarded nor noticed, and for neither approved nor difapproved; and fometimes checked in their very rifing, Rom. vii. 15. But however it be, they are fins here forbidden, though the Papifts will not allow them to be fo, more than Paul in his unconverted flate: " I had known luft, except that the law had faid, Thou fhalt not covet," Rom. vii. 7. Who can number those that are flill fetting up their heads in the corrupt heart, as naturally rifing from it as ftench from a dunghill, or weeds and thiftles from the curfed ground? These are luftings in embryo, whereof fome are formed, others not. They are happieft in this world that crufh them in the bud; but happieft of all when they do not fo much as bud; but it is fo in heaven only.

Lafily, Lust in the feed. The feed itself is the corrupt nature, original fin, of which afterwards. But here I understand particular lusts, as pride, covetous fields, &c. which are the spawn of the corruption of nature, the members of the old man, which the apostle calls us to mortify, Col. iii. 5. These are they from which these curfed buds immediately sprout forth. Original fin has the lusts thereof, and these are they, Rom. vi. 12. We cannot innumerate them, more than we can count the dust. But in the general,

1/2, There are flefhly lufts, I Pet. ii. 11.; luft converfant about the body, and gratifying to the flefh, fuch as covetoufnefs, uncleannefs, fenfuality, &c. In thefe the body drags the foul after it, and the foul goes out in thefe to gratify the body.

2dly, There are fpiritual lufts, 2 Cor. vii. I. Eph. ii. 3. There is a filthinefs of the fpirit as well as of the flefh, which lies more inwardly, in the mind and will, having nothing ado with the fenfitive appetite, as pride, felfifhnefs, &c. Thefe are the two bands of lufts which the old man fends forth to maintain and advance the government of hell in the foul; but both forts are under a fentence of condemnation from the law of God; declared rebels to heaven, and intercommuned, not to be converted with, harboured, or entertained, but refifted, fought againft, and brought to the crofs. They are in good and bad; but,

(1.) In natural men they are reigning lufts, Rom. vi, 12. They have the throne in the heart, and amongft them command all. But there is readily one among them, like Beelzebub, that is the prince of thefe devils, called the predominant fin, to which other lufts will bow, though they will not bow to God. As where pride is the predominant, it will make covetoufnefs bow; and where covetoufnefs predominates, it will make pride bow. Thefe do not always continue their rule; but the old man can pull down one, and fet up another, as luft in youth may be fucceeded by covetoufnefs in old age.

to

(2.) In the regenerate they are but indwelling lufts, Rom. vi. 12. and vii. 24. They are caft down from the throne in conversion, purfued and hunted in progressive fanctification, and weakened, and utterly extirpated out of the kingdom at death. But their very being there is against the law, tho' they be not on the throne.

Now, thefe lufts are "divers lufts," Tit. iii. 3. It is not one or two that are in the heart, but many. Their name may be legion, for they are many. The fleth, or corrupt nature, is a monfter with many heads; but there is one law for them all, they must die. Though they be all the birth of one belly, they are very diverse ; for our natural corruption turns itfelf into a thousand shapes. But,

The qualities common to them all, whereby ye may fee more into their nature, are thefe. They are,

1. Ungodly lufts, Jude 18. There is nothing of God in them, no not fo much as in the devil, who is God's creature; but they are none of God's creatures, he difowns them, 1 John ii. 16. They are the creatures of a corrupt heart, generated of it, as vernin of a rotten body, by influence from hell.

2. Hellish lusts, devilish lusts, John viii. 44. They were the devil's before they were ours, and fo it is a forry copy we have to write after. They are eminently in him; and those in whom they are grown to the greatest perfection, are but bunglers at the trade, to the perfection of which he has arrived. They came from him, they are pleafing to him wherever they are, and they lead to be with him for evermore.

3. They are warring and fighting lufts, Jam. iv. 1.

(1.) They war against the Spirit wherever it is, Gal. v. 17. They are enemies to grace and the Spirit of grace; and the more they prevail, the kingdom of grace is the lower in the heart. They war against the entrance of grace, and often prevail to keep it out; like fo many burreo's from hell, choaking the word that would bring it in, Mark iv. 19. They war against the actings and exercise of it, till it is often laid by as in.

Y 2

in a fwoon. And they war against the very being of it_y which they would destroy if God had not faid against it.

(2.) They war against the foul, 1 Pet. ii. 11. and will ruin it, if they be not ruined. They are no other to the foul than vermin and worms to a dead corpfe, that feed on it till it be deftroyed. Like a fword they pierce the foul, 1 Tim. vi. 10.; like a fire they burn it, Rom. i. 27.; and like water they drown it, 1 Tim. vi. 9.; for they are in the heart like the devil in the fwine, that will not let the foul rest till it destroy itself.

(3) They war amongft themfelves, Jam. iv. 1. For tho' there is a fweet harmony amongft all the graces, yet lufts may be most contrary one to another. This makes the heart often like a troubled fea, and puts a man on the rack, one luft drawing him one way, and another another way. Pride will put one forward to that which covetoufnefs draws him back from. And the fervice of lufts must needs be difficult, in that they that ferve them ferve contrary masters.

4. They are deceitful lufts, Eph. iv. 22. They are the deceivers of the foul, which, by pleafing the corrupt heart, deftroy the foul; like Ezekiel's roll, fweet in the mouth, but bitter in the belly. They are a hook to the foul, covered with a taking bait; the filken cords wherewith Satan draws men into deftruction.

5. They are hurtful lufts, I Tim. vi. 9. They are hurtful to the foul and to the body, to ourfelves and others. Being the brood of hell from a corrupt nature, they cannot be harmlefs; and therefore where no hurt can be done, they cannot enter, Rev. xxi. ult. The fofteft of them is as a brier, and tharper than a thorn hedge, and always at length pierce the foul with many forrows. They never fail to leave a fting behind them in the foul.

6. They are worldly lufts, Tit. ii. 12. They have nothing of heaven in them. They range through the world, and feed on that which it does afford; and nothing but what is carnal can pleafe them. They partake of the nature of the ferpent, for duft is their meat, and on their belly do they go.

7. They are unfatiable lufts, "greedy dogs that can never have enough," If. lvii. 10. To feed them is but to enlarge their appetite, for they cry, Give, give, like the grave and the barren womb, Eccl. i. 8. Surfeited they may be, fatisfied they can never be. They have a heavy tafk of it, that have them to provide for; no wonder they can get no other thing thing minded, as a poor woman that has a company of hungry babes ever hanging about her hand, and crying out of hunger.

Laftly, They are former lufts, I Pet. i. 14. Their reign is in the black ftate of nature. And indeed in all they are foremost on the throne, they have the ftart of grace always, being born with us, in the virtue of their caufe, the corruption of nature. And the power of them must be broken by grace coming in on them, or we perifh.

A view of these lusts in the glass of this holy law must needs be very humbling, and stain the pride of all glory. Though the outside be never so clean, they make a soul infide. For confider,

1. They are the members of the old man, Col. iii. 5. The corruption of nature is the old man, they are his members, which together make up the body of fin. Now, this old man being entire in all the unregenerate, thefe lufts are all in them; nay, even in the regenerate, fo far as the corruption of nature ftill dwells in them, though the power of them be broken, yet they ftill remain, and afford work to them for daily mortification. So that there is none who may not proportionally take that character to themfelves, " Being filled with all unrighteoufnefs," Rom. i. 29.; that is to fay, all manner of lufts whatfoever are in the heart of every man, though they do not all break forth in their lives. Confider,

(1.) The fame corruption of nature is in all men whatfoever; all are originally and univerfally corrupt, John iii. 6. There must then be a disposition in all to every evil thing habitually, though not actually. Dost thou see the most abominable lusts breaking forth in the lives of the world? finite on thy breast, and fay, "God be merciful to me a finner," and read thy own heart in their profligate lives, Prov. xxvii. 19. "As in water face answereth to face, fo the heart of man to man." When thou readest the law of God against these abominations which are not fo much as to be named, conclude that these lusts are in thy heart, for God gives no laws in vain.

(2.) What is it man will not do when grace reftrains not, and temptation draws forward? Who would have thought the luft of adultery had been in David's heart, of idolatry in Solomon's after the Lord had appeared to him twice, blafphemy in the faints mentioned by Paul, Acts xxvi. 11.; or inceft in Lot's Lot's daughters? But in fuch a cafe they broke forth, which they had not done if they had not been within before.

(3.) They are the tinder anfwering the fparks of Satan's temptations in the world. It was the peculiar privilege of the man Chrift fince Adam tell, that the prince of this world had nothing in him, John xiv. 30. There is never a temptation goes abroad in the world, but there is a luft in the heart a-kin to it, fo that no wonder they embrace one another as friends when they meet. Satan by this means, be his temptation what it will, has always fomething to work upon, a fire to blow up. So that in every cafe whatfoever, that holds true, "He that trufteth in his own heart, is a fool," Prov. xxviii. 26.

(4.) They are the filthy matter ready to gather together in a boil in the heart, which being ripened, may break forth in the life, Jam. i. 14. They make way for groß fins, as the feed grows up into a tree that brings forth its natural fruit at length.

(5.) They are the fit oppofers of every good motion, Gal. v. 17. So that there is never a good impression made upon, nor motion in the heart, but among these lufts it finds a peculiar opposite to it, one fit to engage against it, by a peculiar malignity in it. And fo it is found in the godly, that as they have grace for grace in Christ, fo they have corruption for grace in the unrenewed part; fill fome one lineament of Satan's image to fet against another of God's image.

And now thefe lufts have their luftings and ftirrings, a view of which muft be very humbling. For confider,

1/l, The innumerable occations of them; at every blink of the eye, opening of the ear, or imagination of the heart, we are in hazard of them. The fparks of temptation are continually flying about us; how can we be fafe, while we have thefe as gunpowder about us?

2d/y, How fuddenly they will flee through the heart, like a fitch in the fide, or an arrow out of a bow? A thought, a with, is foon brought forth.

3dly, How frequent are they? when are we free of them? when is it that the crooked leg can move, and not halt?

Lafly, How little are thefe things noticed? That hellifh fteam arifing from a corrupt nature, being fo much within doors, is little regarded, but extremely blackens the foul.

Thus much of the bitter ftreams; we come now to the fountain aud fpring-head, from whence they have their rife; and that is, the corruption of nature. For as there is a poifonous nature in the ferpent, befides its throwing out of its venom; venom; fo, befides the finful luftings of the heart, there is an habitual corruption of the nature, which is the root of thefe luftings, loathings, and inordinate motions. The reafon why the clock or dial points the hour wrong is, becaufe it is wrong fet; and till that fet be altered, it will never point right. So man's nature has a wrong fet, which we call the corruption of nature, whereby it comes to pafs that he can never aft right till that fet be cured by regeneration. It is a corrupt difpofition of the foul, whereby it is unapt for any thing truly good, and prone to evil.

The underftanding is deprived of its primitive light and ability, unable to think a good thought, 2 Cor. iii. 5.; yea, darknefs is over all that region, Eph. v. 8. As for the will, it is free to evil, but not to good, utterly unable fo much as rightly to will any thing truly good, Phil. ii. 13. Nay, it is averfe to it, as a bullock unaccuftomed to the yoke. It is prone and bent to evil, Hof. xi. 7.; but lies crofs and contrary to God and goodnefs, Rom. viii. 7. The affections are quite difordered, mifplaced as to their objects, loving what they fhould hate, and hating what they fhould love; or if right as to the objects, they can keep no bounds. But of this I have fpoke largely elfewhere *.

This corruption of nature is here forbidden, for it is truly and properly fin, Rom. vi. 12. and vii. 17. It is the flefh that lufteth against the Spirit, Gal. v. 18.; and if fin, it must be contrary to and forbidden by the law. And as finful anger is forbidden in the fixth commundment, as the immediate fountain of murder, Matth. v. 21. 22.; fo, by a parity of reason, the corruption of nature is forbidden here, as the immediate fountain of that coveting or lufting, expressed therein.

And though it is impofiible for us to prevent this fin, being born with it, it would be confidered, that this law was originally given to Adam in innocency, requiring him to keep his nature pure and uncorrupted, and fo difcharging all corruption of it; which law, after his fin, remains in as full force as ever. And that the fecond Adam might anfwer the demands of the law in this point, he was born without this corruption, and continued ever free from it. And thofe that are his, being regenerated, are freed from the reigning power of it, and partake of a new nature.

If we look to this fin, we have a humbling view of ourfelves, and muft cry, Unclean, unclean.

I.It

^{*} See Fourfold State.

1. It is the fountain of all actual tranfgreffions, Mark vii. 21. Look to all the diforders of thy heart and life; they flow natively from hence, as the poifonous ftreams from the impoifoned fountain. Look to the diforders appearing in the lives of others, the fountain from whence they proceed is in thee. And if the caufe be there, and the effect follow not, thank God, and not thyfelf.

2. All particular lufts are in it, as in the feed. It is the feed-plot of all particular fins. It is the curfed ground, where, let the gardener weed as he will, new ones will ftill fpring up. It is the cage of unclean birds, the myftery of iniquity, which we will never get to the ground of till the foundations be overturned at death.

3. We never were without it, Pfal. li. 5. It is a natural and hereditary difeafe, that cannot be cured without a miracle. We dread the ferpent that is naturally poifonous, more than any thing that is accidentally fo. So may we dread this beyond all things elfe. When we were not capable of actually finning, this made us guilty creatures.

4. We never are free of it, while awake or afleep. It is a permanent and abiding fin. Actual fins are transfient, tho' not as to the guilt of them, yet as to the being of them; but whether the guilt of this be removed or not, it abides as fixed with bands of iron and brafs.

Lafly, We never will be free of it while we live. If we die out of Chrift, it will never be cured. But even though we be in him, yet it abides till death, and will never be totally removed till then.

Thus I have now gone through the ten commands, labouring to lay before you the commandment in its exceeding breadth. And though I have been far from reaching all the particular duties commanded, and fins forbidden ; yet, from the whole of what has been faid, ye may fee,

1. What a holy God we have to do with. We fee his holinels in this law as in a glafs. He can endure no evil thing; and there are many things which the world reckons not upon, which he abhors, and will punifh.

2. What a holy law this law is, requiring all purity of nature, heart, lip, and life; a perfection both of parts and degrees; difcharging all manner of impurity and moral imperfection, not only in the fubiftance, but in the manner of action.

3. That by the works of the law no flefh can be justified. Who Who can come up to the perfection this law requires ? what one line is there of this law that does not condemn us ? where is that one point to the perfection of which we attain.

4. The precioufnefs and excellency of Chrift, who has fulfilled this law in all its parts, has brought in everlaiting righteoufnets, and furnifhes all that believe in him with an anfwer to all its demands.

5. The rule of righteoufnefs, by which yeare to examine yourfelves, to fee your fins and fhortcomings, the mark ye are to aim at if ye would be holy in all manner of converlation, which is nothing the eafier to be hit that it is fo broad, and the evidence of your fincerity, in a perfection of those parts, though ye cannot attain to the degrees.

Lafly, Your abfolute need of Chrift, of his blood to fprinkle you from guilt, and of his Spirit to fanctify you, that ye may be complete in him. And therefore let this holy law be your fchoolmafter to bring you to Chrift for all.

ALC: NOTION

OF MAN'S INABILITY TO KEEP THE LAW PERFECTLY.

Ecclef. vii. 20.—For there is not a just man upon earth, that doth good, and finneth not.

AVING at confiderable length endeavoured to open up and explain the law of God, as abridged in the ten commandments, in fome meafure in its fpirituality and extent, by defcribing the feveral duties required, and fins forbidden therein; and fhewn the abfolute impoffibility of yielding a perfect obedience thereto, in order to give a title to eternal life; and directed you to come to Christ by faith, as the end of the law for righteoufpefs, that your guilt may be removed by the application of his blood to your conficiences, and that ye may be fanctified by his Spirit: I now proceed to the exposition of the remaining questions in the Catechifm, Not. III. which I shall mostly difcuss in a very short difcourse on each, as I have been so long on the former part of this excellent composition *.

Here is the undoubted character of all the human race, fixing imperfection and finfulnels on the beft of the kind in this world, and fo concluding all to be liable to fin, and under it. In the words there are two things.

1. A polition, There is not a just man upon carth. By the just man in this text is not meant an evangelically just man, or one just in respect of parts, though not of degrees; but one who is legally fo, just in the eye of the law, as having yielded perfect obedience to all its commands : this is plain from the original pointing. Compare Pfal. cxliii. 2. "Enter not into judgment with thy fervant; for in thy fight thall no man living be justified." By this time the man Christ had not appeared on the earth : fo it is meant of mere men. On the earth ; to denote that in heaven they are just in that fense, arrived to legal perfection.

2. The explication of it: There is none who doth good, and finneth not. There are fome who do good, as all the godly; but they fin withal, and that daily, for fo the word is to be underflood of their using to fin.

The doctrine arifing from the words is,

DOCT. "Legal perfection is not attainable in this life, but the beft fin daily." Or, "No mere man, fince the fall, is able, in this life, perfectly to keep the commandments of God; but doth daily break them, in thought, word, and deed."

In difcouring from this doctrine, I fliall,

I. Shew what is legal perfection, or perfect keeping of the commands.

II. Confider the attainableness of this perfection.

Ш.

* As fome readers may be apt to think, in regard feveral of the following difcourfes are very fhor, that they are not fo full as they were delivered, it is necefiary to inform them, that, befides what the author has here faid of his intended brevity, he was generally a fhort preacher, feldom, on ordinary occafions, exceeding half an hour, and that his delivery was fomewhat flow. Befides, we have the teftimony of his dear friends Mefil. Wilfon, Davidfon, and Colden, that he generally wrote his fermons as full as he delivered them. See the preface to his fermons on afflictions. And it is believed, that the attentive reader, upon a careful perufal of this laft part of the work, will find the feveral fubjects fufficiently, though briefy, illuftrated, tor promoting his beft and moft effectiveline. III. Shew how the faints fin daily, and break the commands.

IV. Confirm the point, That perfection is not attainable in this life.

V. Give the reafon of this difpenfation.

VI. Apply.

I. I fhall fhew what is legal perfection, or perfect keeping of the commands. It is a perfect conformity of heart and life to the commands of God; and implies,

1. A perfection of the principle of action, Matth. xxii. 37. ⁴⁴ Thou fhalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." For if the heart and foul be not finlefs and pure, as in innocent Adam and Chrift, but be polluted as our nature is, there can be no perfect keeping of the commands of God. That pollution will ftain all.

2. A perfection of the parts of obedience. No part muft be lacking, every command of whatfoever nature muft be kept: "For it is written, Curfed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them," Gal. iii. 10. If one be wanting, all is wanting, all is marred. Hence fays James, chap. ii. 10. "Whofoever fhall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all."

3. A perfection of degrees in every part, Matth. xxii. 37. "Thou fhalt love the Lord thy God with all thy foul, and with all thy mind." Sincerity is not enough in the eye of the law. In every thing one must come to the highest pitch, or there is no perfection.

4. A perfection of duration or continuance, Gal. iii. 10. forecited; without apoftafy or defection, continuing to the end; for one bad trip after a courfe of obedience will mar all.

II. Let us confider the attainableness of this perfection.

1. Adam before the fall was able to have kept the commands perfectly; he might have attained it; for "God made him upright," Eccl. vii. 29. That law was the rule of Adam's covenant-obedience; and perfect obedience to it was the condition of the covenant, which God could not have propoled to him, if he had not given him ftrength fufficient to perform it.

2. The man Chrift, who was not a mere man, but Godman, was not only able to keep the law perfectly, but actually did fo. He made out what the firft Adam failed in, to the falvation of the elect, and in their ftead; and this in the whole extent of legal perfection. His obedience was perfect in the principle, Heb. vii. 26. being "holy, harmlefs, undefiled, feparate from finners;" in the parts, Matth. iii. 15. "It becometh us to fulfil all righteoufnefs;" in the degrees, John xv. 13. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends;" and in continuance, Phil. ii. 8. "He became obedient unto death."

3. The faints in heaven are able, and do actually perfectly obey whatever God's will to them is : fo that though in this life they do not attain it, yet in the life to come all the children of God fhall attain perfection, Heb. xii. 23. where mention is made of " the fpirits of juft men made perfect ;" and there they fhall be fully freed from fin, and all poflibility of finning.

4. But fince Adam fell, no mere man is able, while in this life, either of himfelf, or by virtue of any grace now given, to keep the commands perfectly. Of himfelf he cannot do it; neither is there any meafure of grace given to any in this life, whereby they may be enabled to do it: For " in many things we offend all," Jam. iii. 2. This inability is owing to the remains of corruption that cleaves to every one of them in this mortal flate, Rom. vii. 23.; and from which they ardently long to be delivered, ver. 24. And there is no promife of grace given in the word, whereby believers may be enabled to keep the commands of God perfectly; nor would it be confiftent with the nature of fpiritual growth, which is manifeftly, like the natural, gradual; and it is certain that the faints do not arrive at their full ftature, till they come to the manfions of blifs, I Theff. iii. 13.

III. I fhall fhew how the faints fin daily, and break the commands. And here I fhall confider,

1. How many ways the commands may be broken.

2. In what respect the faints fin daily.

3. How thefe failures of theirs break the commands.

Firft, I am to fhew how many ways the commands may be broken. They may be broken three ways, in deeds, words, and thoughts.

1. In deeds, done contrary to the command of God, or not done, though required. God's commands are the rule of men's outward life and converfation; and whatever we do or omit contrary to the law, is our fin, whether it be public, private, or fecret, Pfal. xiv. 2. 3. 2. In words, either fpeaking what we ought not, or not fpeaking what we ought, or fpeaking what we ought, but not in the manner commanded. (The fame is to be faid of actions or deeds.) God's commands are a rule to our tongues, and tell us what to fpeak, how to fpeak, and what not to fpeak; and by regardleffnefs of the rule, the tongue is " a fire, a world of iniquity," Jam. iii. 6.

3. In thoughts. Here God's law goes beyond men's laws as to the whole kind; for our thoughts are open to God, who is omnifcient, as words or actions are equally open to him, Heb. iv. 13. and liable to his law. For fays Chrift, "Whofoever looketh on a woman to luft after her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart," Matth. v. 28. And fo one may fin by thinking what he ought not, by omitting of good thoughts, and by not managing good thoughts, in the manner required by the law.

Secondly, I shall shew in what respect the faints fin daily, in thought word, and deed.

1. Negatively : not that the faints fall into grofs fins daily, against the letter of the law, either in thought, word, or deed. God will difown those for faints, who entertain vile thoughts daily, fwear daily, lie daily, do unjuft things, or neglect his worfhip daily, Gal. v. 10 .- 21. " Now the works of the flefh are manifest, which are these. Adultery, fornication, uncleannefs, lasciviousnefs, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, ftrife, feditions, herefies, envyings, murders, drunkennefs, reveilings, and fuch like : of the which I tell you before, as I have alfo told you in time paft, that they which do fuch things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Such fpots are not the fpots of God's people. Chrift's dwelling by his Spirit in them, the breaking of the reign of fin in them by the power of divine grace, and their habitual tenderness and watchfulness, hold them off that way of life. But,

2. Politively. Befides that faints may be furprifed into groß fins in thought, word, and deed, fometimes by inadvertency, weaknets, and violence of temptation, which is the burden of their fouls, they fin every day in thought, word, and deed, when they keep the ftricteft watch, and have most of the divine affliftance. What day paffes, if without vile thoughts, yet without vain ones; without idle words, if without mifchievous words; when there is not fomething done or undone, which God's law condemns, though perhaps the world cannot quarrel them? Befides, what good thought thought is thought, good word fpoken, or good deed done by them, which the holy law will not fpy a flaw in, as to the manner of its performance ?

Thirdly, I am to thew how thefe failures of theirs break the commands, while they fincerely endeavour to obey them. Why, the moral law is the eternal rule of righteoufnels, and in whatever frate the creature be, he is bound to obey his Creator, whether in a frate of nature or grace, glory, or damnation. And though perfection be not attainable in this life, yet it is the faints duty, as well as that of others, Matth. v. ult. " Be ye perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." So every coming flort of that perfection is their fin, needing to be taken away by Chrift's blood.

And thus men dailybreak the commands of God in thought, word, and deed; which is the only poffible way of tranfgreffing the divine law; and our doing fo in thefe refpects flews the equity of that charge which the Lord has againft every man, "Behold, thou haft done evil, as thou could f," Jer. iii. 5.

IV. I fhall now confirm the point, That perfection is not attainable in this life.

1. The fcripture attefts, that there is no man without fin. 7 Kings viii. 46. "For there is no man that finneth not :" and that "in many things we offend all," Jam. iii. 2. If any fet up for it in himfelf, the Spirit of God fays he deceives himfelf, 1 John i. 8. See an unanfwerable queftion, Prov. xx. 9. "Who can fay, I have made my heart clean, I am pure from my fin ?"

2. The beft have a corrupt as well as a gracious principle, making the fpiritual combat, never ending till death give the feparating firoke, Gal. v. 17. "For the flefth lufteth againft the Spirit, and the Spirit againft the flefth : and thefe are contrary the one to the other; fo that ye cannot do the things that ye would."

3. We are taught always to pray for pardon, "Forgive us our debts:" but finlefs creatures need no pardons. This clearly fhews, that all fin, and fo come fhort of pefect obedience.

4. Lafly, Confider the fpirituality of the law, and its extent. with human weaknefs, and you will fee this clearly. And hence it is that perfectionifts are firangers to the fpirituality of the law: for if they rightly viewed it, they would be far from dreaming of having attained to perfection, which never a mere man did in this life.

ĩ

Object.

Object. Noah was perfect, Gen. vi. 9. * Job perfect, Job i. 8. Anf. They, and all faints, have a gospel-perfection, which is a perfection of parts. They had a comparative perfection; that is, they were more holy and circumspect than

* In order to illuftrate the charafter of Noah as a righteous and perfect man, and to fhew the fignification of these epithets, it will not be improper to iubjoin the following note, taken from a manufeript work of the author's, which he left prepared for the prefs, and has been effecemed by proper judges, both at home and abroad, a work of very great learning and merit, but has not yet been printed, entitled, A new translation of the first twenty-three chapters of Genefis, with notes explanatory and critical, according to the principles of the Hebrew accentuation, as delivered in his treatile, entitled, Traslatus stigmologicus Hebrevo-Biblicus, printed at Amfterdam in 1738.

Gen. vi. 9. " Noah was a just man, and perfect in his generations." " As for Noah; [being] a righteous man, he was found in his generations : q. d. found; [found] in his generations. A found man is a man of integrity and Godly fimplicity, wholly for God, entire in his obedience, keeping himielf uncorrupted and unipotted from the world, in which he lives. Such a man was Noah; and fuch he was, in both the generations wherein he lived, before and after the flood. Thus his character confifts of two parts: he was a found man, and perfevered to the end in his foundnefs. And both these are traced to their common fpring-head, namely, his righteous flate. Being righteous by faith, a justified man; he was a found man, in true holinels of heart and life ; and a perfevering man : Agreeable to which is that of the prophet, Hab. ii 4. " The righteous in (i. e. by) his faith, fhall live." Tzad.lik, an adjective rightcous, a fubitantive a righteous one, is derived from the root Tzadak, in the form Pihel (Tziddek), as appears by the Dagefch forte in it. Tzadak (Kal) is not to be reputed righteous ; that agrees not to it, chap. xxxviii. 26 .: nor to do righteonfly; that agrees not to it. Jobix. 20. Pfal. xix. 10.: but to be righteous; which agrees to it every where. Only it is to be obferved, that being righteous is fometimes underftood fimply of exifting righteous, as Gen. xxxviii. 26. Pfal. xix. 10.; fometimes of appearing rightcous, as Job ix. 20. xiii. 18. & xl. 3. Pfal. li. 6-4th; and this agreeable to the foripture-ftyle in other cafes, as Matth. v. 45. " That ye may be (i. e. appear to be) the children of your Father." To flate the formal notion of righteoufnefs fignified by this root, it is to be observed, that it is used of men, as Gen. xxxviii. 26. Job ix. 20.; of God himfelf, Pfal. li. 6-4th; of his laws, Pfal. xix. 10.; and once it occurs in Niphal, Nitzdak, which, as a neuter verb of being (as Gen. i. 15.), is to become righteous, and is used of God's fanctuary, viz. Dan. viii. 14. " And it shall become righteous, the fanctuary," i. e. in fuch a ftate or condition as, by God's appointment, it ought to be in. From all which it appears, that the formal notion of righteoufucfs is conformity to the law given concerning the subject, as concerning men, or the fanctuary or to the eternal idea of righteoulnefs, in the mind of God, as in the cafe of God himfelf and his laws. Twiddek (Pib.) and Hitzdik (Hipb.) are both active, and found to juflig or make righteous, the action in Kal being the complement of both, as chap. viii. 14. But the difference lies here. In no form what loevet doth this yerb import a moral or real change : but in Pibel it fignifies manifestatively, than many others. But that they were not legally and abfolutely perfect, is clear from Nozh's drunkennefs, and Job's impatience. And where is the faint whofe hiftory we have at any length in fcripture, but we fee their imperfections recorded, to ftain the pride of all glory ?

But

manifestatively, in Hiphil, declaratively. In Pibel it occurs five times, and accordingly fignifies to shew one righteous, or to make appear righteous. Job xxxiii. 32. " I have defired to fhew the righteous," viz. as one flews a thing that is hid, by taking away the cover. Thus Jerufalem shewed Sodom and Samaria righteous, Ezek. xvi. 51. 52.; namely, comparatively righteous, the holinefs of Jerufalem being gone, which, while it lafted, quite darkened them. And fo the backsliding Ifrael, Jer. iii. 11. Shewed her own foul righteous: from the treacherous Judah, namely, as a fervant running away from a mafter whom he hath ferved but a fhort while, fhews his deferting of him juft, by an old fervant's running away from the fame mafter at length. Thus underftand the ground of Elihu's anger againft Job, chap. xxxii. 2. His shewing his foul righteous; from God, i. e. his justifying himfelf in his grievous complaints, from the way and manner of the Lord's dealing with him. Hereto agrees Hitztaddek (Hithp. the relative of Pih.), which is to fhew one's felf righteous, occurring only Gen. xliv. 16. What (i. e. how) how fhall we fhew ourfelves righteous? Comp. Luke xvi. 15. & xx. 20. Thus expound Rev. xxii. 11. And the righteous, let him fhew himfelf righteous still, namely, by continuing in the practice of good works. And this is the justification the apostle James writes of, to his own countrymen, (Jam. i. 1.), who, knowing the manner of their own language, were in no hazard of miftaking his meaning. Now Tzaddik, being immediately derived from Tziddek, formally denotes one appearing righteous; the holy language hereby teaching, that whether righteoufnefs be imputed or inherent, it must needs fine forth, not only from the divine appointment, but from the nature of the thing, as a light muft needs give light. And to carry along this notion of the word, I write it rightcous. Mean while, fince there is a falfe as well as a true appearance of righteoulnels, one may fee how Solomon might forbid a man to be righteous much, Eccl. vii. 16. meaning it of the mere appearance or fhew of righteoufnels, from the notation of the word. Accordingly he adds, ibid. And do not (Tithh-haccam) make thyfelf wife; for which compare Luke xx. 20. Should feign themselves just men, which in Hebrew would be exprefied by Hitztaddek, to flow, or make one's felf to appear righteous? But fince no falle appearance can take place before the Lord, in all cales wherein God teftifies of one righteous, the appearance mult be underflood to be true, as the thing really is : and fo it is in this cafe of Noah. Hitzdik (Hiph.) is once used intransitively, viz. Dan. xii. 3. every where elfe traditively. The object of it, in its intransitive ufe, is the conjugate noun Tz'dakab understood, as Gen. iii. 6.; and it is q. d. to righteous righteous field, i. e. to do righteously. So the formal fignincation of it, agreeing thereto in its twofold ule, is, to make righscous. The fense whereof, in the intransitive use, is, according to what is already remarked, to do righteoufly, Dan. xii. 3. They that make

But is it not faid, "Wholoever is born of God doth not commit fin?" I John iii. 9. Anf. The meaning is not, that the faints do not fin at all; but that they do not commit fin with the full confent of the will; do not take pleafure and delight make righteous, of the many; i. e. Those who do righteously, of the many, ver. 2. comprehending all, and divided into two forts, those that do righteoufly, and those that do not fo. But in the transitive use, the fenfe of it, is not to make righteous, by infuling of righteousness into a perfon, making a moral real change on him, as is manifeft from Exod. xxiii. 7. I will not make righteous, an unrighteous one. Prov. xvii. 15. If. v. 23. This word is never fo used. On the contrary, the only proper perfonal object of it is Traddik, a righteous one, righteous, and appearing righteous, antecedently to the action thereby fignified. Deut. xxv. 1. They (ball make righteous even the righteous one. So 1 Kings viii. 32. 2 Chron. vi. 23. And for to make righteous a righteous one. So the true fense of it is legally to make righteous, to declare or pronounce righteous; which natively follows on the back of the action tignified by Pihel, namely, shewing righteous, and occupies the first and primary fignification of Kal. And this is the justification Paul treats of. This phrafe of making righteous the righteous, is used in the matter of the justification of a finner before the Lord, If. liii. 11. In his knowing; make righteous a righteous one, shall my fervant; to the many. The conftruction and fense of which words is, q. d. In his being known to the many; my fervant shall justify any righteous one to them. In which few words, there is, (1.) The author or efficient caufe of juflification, viz. Jefus Chrift, the Father's fervant, fitting Judge. Comp. John v. 22. Matth. ix. 6. Acts v. 31. (2.) The object, the elect, all the elect, the many for whom Chrift died, ver. 12. (3.) The character in which they ftand before him, one by one, to be juftified, viz. righteous, and appearing righteous. This is no wife inconfistent with the justifying of the ungodly, Rom. iv. 5.; if one confiders, (4.) How they come to be righteous before him, viz. in his knowing, i. e. by the faith of him, whereby the foul is united to Chrift, and thereby hath communion with him in his righteousness, and so appears righteous, in the borrowed garments, before the throne. And for this faith, they are debtors to free grace, as well as for the righteoufnefs : for the word knowing, though active in its form, is paffive in its fense; as is clear from the conftruction of the words, In his knowing to the many, flewing the faith to be the faith of God's elect, Tit. i. I. The infinitive active, or gerund, is used for the paffive frequently, which phraseology our own language bears; as Gen. iv. 13. Pfal. xlii. 4-3d. & cxix. 4. (5.) The time of their justification; not from eternity, but in the very instant of their believing, In his knowing. (6.) The nature of justification, viz. a declaring or pronouncing righteous, according to what is really found, and judicially imputed or reckoned, (Jatzdik tzaddik), Hessall make righteous a righteous one. (7.) The free access which all have to this privilege: For the words are not in vain ranged in this order; In his knowing; my fervant shall make righteous a righteous one, Sc. This is a general truth, Wholoever will know Chrift shall be righteous, and legally made righteous, before the Lord : though in the mean time, it is the many only who will know him eventually. Tamim, found. The light in it; do not make a trade of it, as unregenerate perfons do; and do not commit the fin unto death, 1 John v. 17. 18.

VCL. III.

Object. But feeing it is impossible to yield perfect obedience to the law, how is it confishent with the justice and wisdom of God to require of us that which we are not able to perform.

Anf. The laws of God are both poffible and juft; and there is no duty now required of us which he did not endow us with ftrength in our creation to perform. Yet in our fallen and corrupted eftate, perfect obedience is become impracticable through our weaknefs and averfion to duty. And there can be no injuftice in God to require what is impoffible for us to perform, when the impoffibility folely arifes from our own fault. It is not God, but we ourfelves, that have made the perfect obfervation of his laws impoffible; and though we have wafted our ftock, and are become bankrupts, yet he may in rightcoufnefs exact from us that debt of obedience which we juftly owe him.

Object. But are not believers delivered both from the commanding and condemning power of the law, and how are they then bound to yield any obedience to it ?

Anf. Believers are certainly delivered as well from the commanding as condemning power of the law, confidered only as it is the covenant of works, which requires obedience to it in order to jultification; but they are by no means delivered from it as it is the law of Chrift, or a rule of duty. For the moral law is the eternal rule of righteoufnefs, a transcript of the divine perfections, which every believer is bound to copy after, and to apply to the blood of Jefus for pardon, in to far as he falls thort of obeying it : for without holinefs no man shall see the Lord. Personal holines is as necessary to the poffellion of glory, or to a flate of perfect holinefs and happinefs, as is the morning-light to the noon-day warmth and brightnefs; as is a reafonable foul to a wife, healthy, ftrong, and full-grown man; as an antecedent is to a confequent; as a part is to the whole; and as motion is neceffary to evidence life. And the ten commandments, being the fubftance of the law of nature, a reprefentation of God's image, and a beam of his holinefs, behoved, for ever, unalterably to be а

The import of this word is whole and entire, all of a piece, unblemifhed: So by it is expressed awhole day, Joth. x. 13. and the quality of a facrifice as without blemish, in the ordinary flyle of the law, as Lev. i. 3.3 end fo is applied to God's work, Deut. xxxii. 4.; and his way, 2 Sam. xxii. 31. to keep the Law perfectly. 187

a rule of life to mankind, in all poffible frates, conditions, and circumftances. Nothing but the utter deftruction of human nature, and its ceafing to be, could diveft them of that office; fince God is unchangeable in his image and holinefs. Hence their being a rule of life to Adam and his pofterity, had no dependence on their becoming the covenant of works : but they would have been that rule, though there never had been any fuch covenant : yea, whatever covenant was introduced, whether of works or of grace, and whatever form might be put upon them, they behoved ftill to remain the rule of life. No covenant, no form whatfoever, could ever prejudice this their royal dignity.

V. I thall give the reafon of this difpenfation. God could make the faints perfect in the moment of convertion. He does it not. So it feems good in his fight. Many things are faid to account for this; but what is moft fatisfying is, that it doth exalt the freedom of grace and the power of it moft, Eph. ii. 4. 7. "But God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us—That in the ages to come he might fhew the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindnefs towards us through Chrift Jefus." The more fins are pardoned to a finner, he is the deeper in Chrift's debt. The fafter the root of fin appears in one's nature, the more appears the power of grace in rooting it up. It is furely the glory of our great Pilot, that he brings the broken fhip to land, through fo many hazards.

Caution. Abufe not this doctrine, to think light of fin becaufe of it. It is the worft of difeafes which moft men die in, and no man is perfectly cured of until death. Make not your way to hell the eafier, becaufe of the difficulties in the way to heaven: for they that firive towards perfection here will get it at death, when ye fitting ftill at your eafe will be carried down the fiream to definuction.

Keep not ye fome particular luft, becaufe none are perfect: for all the faints are perfect in parts, though not in degrees; fo far perfect, as to " hate every known fin," Pfal. cxix. 128.

Inf. I. There is no justification, favour, and peace with God, by our own works, Pfal. cxliii. 2. "In thy fight shall no man living be justified." Far less can there be works of supererogation. We must be justified by the righteousness of Christ received by faith, or not at all.

2. Whatever your attainments be, be not proud of them; A a 2 vour your wants and defects may always keep you humble. The barren branches are towering ones, while the fruitful boughs hang down their heads.

3. Inexpreffibly miferable is the cafe of unbelievers. They are without Chrift; they must find or fall by the law, and it is quite beyond their power to keep it.

4. Bear one another's burdens; for every man offends. We are in a hofpital, where most are dying of their difease, and the best but in the way of recovery.

Laftly, Let the ftruggling faints long for heaven, for there the perfection they would fain be at fhall be attained, and not till then. And this may comfort them under all their failures, which they mourn over, that in the other world they fhall arrive at full perfection in holinefs,

OF SIN IN ITS AGGRAVATIONS.

Ezek. viii. 15.—Turn thee yet again, and thou shalt fee greater abominations than thefe.

F we look on fin abfolutely, and in itfelf, as it is a tranfgreffion of the divine law, no fin is finall, but a great evil, greater than any evil of fuffering, which men can be exposed to: but if we look on fin comparatively, one fin compared with another, all are not alike, but fome greater than others, as we fee from thefe words. Wherein may be observed,

1. Great fins which the prophet had feen, fhewn to him in vision by the Lord himfelf, who knows the fins of all men, with their nature and qualities, ver. 5.11.14.

2. Greater fins he was yet to fee. He had feen the image of jealoufy, namely, the image of Baal, fet up at the gate of the altar, ver. 5.; the chambers of imagery in fome of the courts, and the ancients of Ifrael, at their idolatrous fervice, ver. 10. 11.; the women weeping for Tammuz in the court of the women, or of the priefts, by which the Lord's courts were were turned into ftews. These were great abominations, and yet greater than any of these was their worshipping of the fun, ver. 16. and that in God's account; for it was done in a more facred place, at the very door of the temple; it was more public, and had greater contempt of God in it, than the reft.

The text affords this doctrine :

Docr. " All fins are not alike;" but " fome fins in themfelves, and by reafon of feveral aggravations, are more hainous in the fight of God than others."

In difcourfing from this doctrine, I shall shew,

I. What is underftood by the hainoufnefs of fin.

II. In what refpects fome fins are more hainous than others.

III. Apply.

I. I am to fhew, what is underftood by the hainoufnefs of fin. Its great offenfivenefs is hereby underftood. Sin may be offenfive unto men; but we confider it here as fin, and offenfive to God. So for fin to be hainous in the fight of God, implies,

1. That it is offenfive to God, difpleafing to him, and grieving to his Spirit, Jer. xliv. 4. " Oh! do not this abominable thing that I hate." He cannot away with it, he cannot endure it before his eyes, but fhews his indignation againft it. It is an abominable thing before the Lord; hence it is called filthinefs, uncleannefs, vomit, &c. all which provoke loathing; fo Rev. iii. 16. it is faid "I will fpue thee out of my mouth." It is contrary to his nature and will, and gives him difpleafure and offence; and, if it were poffible, it would difturb his repofe, as fmoke doth to the eyes, If. lxv. 5. "Thefe are a fmoke in my nofe, a fire that burneth all the day."

2. It is greatly offenfive to God; for that alfo is implied in the notion of hainoufnefs; every fault is offenfive, but fome faults are hainous offences. Such an offence is fin to God. It gives him great offence, Pfal. v. 4. 5. "Thou art not a God that hath pleafure in wickednefs: neither fhall evil dwell with thee. 'The foolifh fhall not ftand in thy fight; thou hateft all workers of iniquity." Hab. i. 13. "Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canft not look on iniquity." There is no fin that God is indifferent about about, none that he can pass without a mark of his indignation on it: He " will by no means clear the guilty," Exod. xxxiv. 7.

Now here mark well two things.

I. That all fin is hainous in the fight of God, viz. greatly offentive. There are no fmall fins before God, though fome are greater than others; but the least of them is great in itfelf, and great in his fight, Hab. i. 13. forecited. This is plainly implied, while it is faid, "Some fins are more hainous than others."

2. That there are degrees of hainoufnefs. Though the fin which the blinded foul accounts but a mote, is a mountain in the eyes of God and of an enlightened confcience, yet all are not alike for all that; but as fome mountains, fo fome fins, are greater than others.

II. I shall shew, in what respects some fins are more hainous than others.

First, Some fins are in themfelves, and in their own nature, more hainous than others. There are fome capital offences, as it were, which God's wrath does in a fpecial manner burn againft, and which are most provoking to the eyes of his glory: fuch as murder, Gen. iv. 10.; oppreffion, Hab. ii. 11.; which are noted to be crying fins; blasshemy and contempt of God, Exod. v. 2.; idolatry, Ezek. viii.; unbelief, rejecting of Christ, and disobeying the gospel, Matth. axii. John iii. 19. 2 Theff. i. 8. But of all fins the most hainous is the fin against the Holy Ghost, Matth. xii. 31.

Secondly, Some fins are more hainous than others by their aggravations; and the greater and more numerous the aggravating circumftances be that attend any fin, it is the more hainous. Now, fins are aggravated, or made greater or more hainous than others,

1. From the perfons offending; the more notable they arc, the more hainous are their fins; as the greater the fire is, the more michief will it do, if it go out of its place; the greater the tree is, the more michief will it do by its fall. Thus one and the fame fin is greater in magiftrates, minifters, parents, and the aged, than in fubjects, people, children, and the younger fort. For men's places and offices, which respect the government of others in the way of holinefs and juftice, aggravate their fins, Rom. ii. 21. "Thou which teacheft another, teacheft thou not thyfelf? thou that preacheft a man fhould not fleal, doft thou fleal." And fo do the greater gifts gifts and profession that one hath, Luke xii. 47. 48. "That fervant which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himfelf, neither did according to his will, fhall be beaten with many But he that knew not, and did commit things worftripes. thy of ftripes, shall be beaten with few ftripes. For unto whomfoever much is given, of him fhall be much required : and to whom men have committed much, of him will they afk the more." And fo doth the greater experience of God's goodness which they have had, as in the case of Solomon, of whom it is faid, I Kings xi. 9. "The Lord was angry with Solomon, becaufe his heart was turned from the Lord God of Ifrael, which had appeared unto him twice." For fuch advantages make their fins more pernicious, in refpect of the influence of their example on others, as in the effect of Peter's diffimulation at Antioch, Gal. ii. 13. of whom it is faid, " And the other Jews diffembled likewife with him; infomuch that Barnabas alfo was carried away with their diffimulation." And thefe advantages carry them over greater obligations they are under to the Lord.

2. From the parties offended. Let men confider whom their fins ftrike againft, if they would fee how hainous they are. For as a thruft in a leg or arm is not fo much grievous as one at the heart, fo is it in this cafe.

1/k, Sins immediately againft God, his Son, and his Spirit, are more hainous than fuch fins againft man, any man whatfoever, I Sam. ii. 25. "If one man fin againft another, the judge fhall judge him : but if a man fin againft the Lord, who fhall intreat for him?" Thus lying and diffembling to God, is more hainous than lying to men, as appears in the cafe of Ananias and Sapphira, Acts v. 4. becaufe of the infinite diffance of the immediate objects of the fin. Thus, whereas in all fins of the fecond table, there is a fault againft God, and againft man too; yet the fault againft God, and the injury done to his glory, is the bittereft ingredient in it. Thus David's fin in the matter of Bathfheba and Uriah was a great fin in refpect of thefe perfons; but fee how he confeffes it, Pfal. li. 4. "Againft thee, thee only have I finned, and done this evil in thy fight."

2dly, Sins against fuperiors in the church, state, and family, are more hainons than the fame fins are, if done against perfons of their own rank and condition. The reason is, because fuperiority given of God is fuch a divine impression a man, that it makes his character in some fort facred, as in the case of Moses, Num. xii. 8. Hence it is that disobedience to parents is fo hainous a fin, Prov. xxx. 17. "The eye that mocketh at his father, and defpifeth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley fhall pick it out, and the young eagles fhall eat it."

to

3 dly, Sins againft thofe whom we are under fpecial engagements and obligations to, are more hainous than fuch fins againft others we have no fuch concern in. Religion teaches gratitude, and fets a black mark on ingratitude, Pfal. lv. 12. "For it was not an enemy that reproached me, then I could have borne it; neither was it he that hated me, that did magnify himfelf againft me, then I would have hid myfelf from him."

Athly, Sins against the faints and people of God are more hainous than against others, because of their relation to God, as being those in all the world dearest to him, Matth. xviii. 6. "Whose shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea." Such are fins against weak faints, as being more liable to get harm by them than those who are strong, Rom. xiv. 15. "If thy brother be grieved with thy meat, new walkess thou not charitably. Destroy not him with thy meat, for whom Chrift died."

Laftly, Sins againft the common good of all, or of many; for the wider the effects of one fin go, it is ftill the worfe, Jofh. xxii. 2c. "Did not Achan the fon of Zerah commit a trefpafs in the accurfed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Ifrael? and that man perifhed not alone in his iniquity." "One finner," fays Solomon, "deftroyeth much good;" and the more, the greater is his fin.

3. From the quality of the offence. A fin may be vefted with fuch qualities, as will make it much more hainous than when divefted of them. Thefe evil qualities are many; I will reduce them to two heads.

(1.) Intrinfic qualities. Thus fins againft the letter of the law are more hainous than others; mother-fins, which are big and bring forth many others, than fimple ones; fins confummated by action, than while merely in the heart, Jam: i. 15.; fins that are fcandalous, than others not fo; fins the injury in which to men admits of no reparation, than that of others in which it does. This was the reafon why death was the punifhment of adultery, not of fornication, becaufe in this laft cafe the man was obliged to marry the woman.

(2.) Extrinsic qualities; which again are of two forts.

[1.]

[1.] Being done againft means whereby one might be with-held from fin, Matth. xi. 21. 22. "Wo unto thee, Chorazin, wo unto thee, Bethfaida: for if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in fackcloth and afhes. But I fay unto you, It fhall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you." Thus one's finning againft mercies drawing them from their fin, judgments and rebukes from the word or providence, from God or men, finning againft the light of one's own confcience, do all of them aggravate fin.

[2.] Being done against bonds one has taken on him against the fin, when men fin against purposes and resolutions of amendment, against their covenants and engagements to the Lord, whereby they are bound to stand off from such courses, Ezek. xvii. 19.

4. From the manner of committing it. Who can imagine, but fin done diliberately, and wilfully, and prefumptuoufly, is more hainous than fin committed through inadvertency and weaknefs? If one be impudent in his fin, delight in it, and boaft of it; if he go on in it obftinately, fall in it frequently, and relapfe into it after convictions and humblings for it; every one of thefe aggravates the guilt.

5. From the time of it, as in the cafe of Gehazi, 2 Kings v. 26. where Elisha fays to him, "Went not mine heart with thee, when the man turned again from his chariot to meet thee? is it a time to receive money, and to receive garments, and olive-yards, and vine-yards, and fheep, and oxen, and men-fervants, and maid-fervants?" Thus fins committed on the Lord's day, immediately before or after divine worship, are more hainous than at other times. And fo is finning just after reproofs, warnings, engagements; or in a time when the anger of the Lord is going out against the land, family, or perfon, as Ahaz in his diffrefs.

Lafly, From the place of it. Thus in a place where the gofpel is preached, fin is more hainous than elfewhere, If. xxvi. 10. "Let favour be fhewed to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteoufnefs; in the land of uprightnefs will he deal unjuftly, and will not behold the majefty of the Lord." Sins done in public before others, are more hainous than those in fecret; for in the former many may be defiled, as in the cafe of Abfalom, lying with his father's concubine on the houfe-top.

VOL. III.

A few inferences shall conclude this subject.

Inf. 1. Never think light of fin, nor flightly of Chrift, and your need of him, fince all fin is hainous in God's fight, and exposes the finner to his just vengeance.

2. There will be degrees of torment in hell, though the leaft degree will be dreadful, Matth. xi. 21. fince there are degrees of finning.

3. No wonder God's anger go out againft us, and the land wherein, and the generation amongft whom we live. For hainous are our fins beyond those of many, and a frightful look may we get of them in this glass. Magistrates, ministers, parents, the aged, professions, fons and daughters of the Lord, have corrupted their ways, as well as others. Our fins have furuck immediately against God, and against those who are vested with his authority in the state, in the church, and in families, against his people, and the common good. Sins against the letter of the law, fcandalous offences abound, over the belly of light, mercies, and judgments, covenants national, facramental, and perfonal; and these continued in obstinately, in a time when the Lord's hand has oft been stretched out and drawn in again, in a land of light.

4. Repent, and flee to the blood of Chrift for pardon, if fo be our hainous fins may not be our ruin.

5. The means of grace which we enjoy will either promote our falvation, or they will aggravate our damnation.

6. When ye examine yourfelves, and think on your fins, confider the feveral aggravations of them; and lie deep in the duft before the Lord on account thereof; and, through the grace of God, abstain from every fin, and all appearance of evil.

OF

OF THE DESERT OF SIN.

Gal. iii. 10.—It is written, Curfed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them.

THOUGH fome fins be greater than others, yet there is no fin but deferves damnation, which we can no where better learn than from the voice of the law, which is the verdict of a just God upon the demerit of fin. This verdict in the text is found written, Deut. xxvii. ult. "Curfed be he that confirmeth not all the words of this law to do them." And herein confider,

1. The party condemned by the law; every finner. The law condemns him for omiffions as well as commiffions, for breaking off from obedience as well as never entering upon it; for every fin, even the leaft fin, the leaft breach of the law: as well as the greateft: Gur/ed is every one that continueth not in all things, &c.

2. The doom pronounced in all these cases, is God's wrath and curfe; Curfed is be that continueth not in all things, &cc. This curfe binds over to wrath in this life and that which is to come. It is God's own voice in his law, whose justice will not allow him to fix a punishment on fin greater than it deferves. Hence the doctrine is,

Doct. " Every fin deferveth God's wrath and curfe, both in this life and that which is to come."

Here I shall shew,

I. What is God's wrath and curfe, which every fin deferves. II. What this wrath and curfe is.

III. That there is no fin which does not deferve God's wrath and curfe.

IV. Deduce fome inferences.

I. I fhall fhew, what is God's wrath and curfe, which every fin deferves.

First, God's wrath is no paffion, nor is there any perturbation in God, though an angry God. His wrath is a fire without fmoke, and may be taken up in these two things.

1. God's difpleafure against the finner, Pfal. v. 4. 5. "For thou art not a God that hath pleafure in wickednefs: neither shall evil dwell with thee. The foolish shall not stand in thy fight: thou hatest all workers of iniquity." Sin makes the foul loathsome and hateful in God's fight, kindles a holy fire in his heart against the finner. Were the fun continually under a cloud, and the heavens always covered with blacknets, none of these would be comparable to the state of a finner under wrath, Pfal. xc. 11. "Who knoweth the power of thine anger?"

2. God's dealing with finners as his enemies, whom he is incenfed againft, Neh. i. 2. "God is jealous, and the Lord revengeth, the Lord revengeth and is furious, the Lord will take vengeance on his adverfaries; and he referveth wrath for his enemies." If. i. 24. "Ah! I will eafe me of my adverfaries, and avenge me of mine enemies." The wrath of a king is as the roaring of a lion; what then muft the wrath of God be, an enemy, whom we can neither fight nor flee from, neither outwit nor outbrave? Of this wrath it is faid, "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God."

Secondly, His curfe is his feparating one to evil, Deut. xxix. 21. "And the Lord fhall feparate him unto evil, out of all the tribes of Ifrael, according to all the curfes that are written in this book of the law." It is a devoting the finner to deftruction, to all the direful effects of the divine wrath. It is the tying of the finner to the ftake, fetting him up for the mark of God's vengeance, that a broken law and offended juffice may difburden all their arrows into him, and that on him may meet together all miferies and plagues, flowing from the wrath of God *.

II. I fhall fhew, what is God's wrath and curfe in this life, and that which is to come.

I. In

* See a more particular account of the curfe, in the author's View of the Covenant of Works, part 4. published in 1772. Of the Defert of Sin: 197

1. In this life they comprehend all the miferies of this world which one meets with on this fide of time, miferies on the body, relations, name, eftate, employment; miferies on the foul, as blindnefs, hardnefs, vile affections, horrors of confcience, &cc.; and, finally, death in the feparation of foul and body. Thus they make a flood of miferies in this life.

2. In the life to come, they comprehend eternal death and damnation, and an eternal being under the punifhment of lofs and fenfe in hell. So they make a fhorelefs fea of miferies in the life to come. But of both thefe I fpoke largely in a former part of this work. [Vol. i.]

III. I proceed to fhew, that there is no fin which does not deferve thefe, but that every fin deferves this wrath and curfe.

1. The wages of every fin is death, Rom. vi. 23.; that is, eternal death, as is clear from the oppofition to eternal life, Rom. v. 12. "As by one man fin entered into the world, and death by fin; and fo death paffed upon all men, for that all have finned." Job. xxiv. 19. "The grave confumes those which have finned."

2. Every fin is a breach of the law; and he who breaks it in one point, is guilty of all, Jam. ii. 10. He who is guilty of all deferves the wrath of God both in this life and that which is to come. The commands of the law have all one author, whofe majefty is offended by whatfoever breach; they all meet in one command, viz. love, and every fin is againft that; the law requires univerfal obedience.

3. Chrift died for all the fins of all his elect, 1 Pet. iii. 18. 1 John i. 7. Wherefore, fince he fuffered God's wrath and curfe for them, they certainly deferve it.

4. The leaft fin will condemn a man, if it be not forgiven, Matth. v. 19.; even idle words, Matth. xii. 36. 37.; and all muft be forgiven gracioufly, Pfal. ciii. 2.; wherefore God might in juftice not forgive them; and if never forgiven, they may be ever punifhed.

IV. I come to fhew, why every fin deferves fo much. The reafon is, it is a kind of infinite evil; and therefore, fince the punifhment is defervedly proportioned to the offence, it deferves infinite punifhment. Sin is an infinite evil in two refpects.

1. In refpect that the guilt and defilement of it is never taken away, but endures for ever, unless the Lord himself in mercy mercy do remove it. The party offended is the eternal God, whole being never comes to an end; the finner never being able to explate and put away his offence, Rom. v. 6. it ever remains, unlefs the Lord himfelf do remove it, as in the elect, by his Son's blood; wherefore the party offended and the offence ever remaining, the punifh.*ent muft needs be eternal; for no unclean thing can ever enter heaven, therefore the finner muft be for ever excluded and punifhed.

2. In refpect it wrongs an infinite God. It is evident among men, that the demerit of a crime rifes and falls according to the quality of the perfon againft whom it is committed; fo that a crime againft one's prince is punifhed with death, that would not be fo, if againft a perfon of meaner condition. Since God, then, is of infinite dignity and majefty, the offence againft him deferves infinite punifhment. And becaufe the creature, being finite, is not capable of punifhment infinite in value, therefore it is neceffarily infinite in duration. There is a manifold wrong to God in the leaft fin.

(1.) It wrongs his infinite fovereignty, Jam. ii. 10. 11. He is Sovereign Ruler of his creatures; his will muft be their law, fince by his will they were created. But every fin cafts off the natural yoke of his fovereign authority, and fets up the finner's will againft it. So that it is accounted a fighting againft God, Acts v. 39.

(2.) It wrongs his infinite goodnefs, Exod. xx. 1. 2. All the good, natural, moral, or fpirital, which the creature has, it has it from God, who is the fountain of all good. So that fin is a doing ill for good, the worft of ills for all the good one ever at any time enjoyed. Yea, it is a turning of the good received from God againft him; as if one advanced from the dunghill by his prince, fhould use all his favours in rebellion againft him.

(3.) It wrongs his holinefs, Hab. i. 13. He cannot endure unholinefs. He is omnificient and omniprefent; fo fin brings into the prefence of the great King, that which by all things he cannot endure to look at. It fets up the worft of defilement before his fpotlefs holinefs; and does in its own nature tend to deface the glory of it.

(4.) Laftly, It breaks his law, the eternal rule of righteoufnefs, I John iii. 4. It is all right, and of perpetual equity, and is the hedge which God has fet about his rational creatures: but fin breaks down that hedge, and breaks over it. And the finner is a rebel againft the King's law, I Sam. xv. 23.; and in effect fets God at defiance, inafmuch as it breaks the law, to which fuch a penalty is annexed.

I shall now deduce some inferences.

Inf. I. Let this commend the love of Chrift in dying for finners, Rom. v. 8. O matchlefs love, which made him willing to be made a curfe for us, that we might be delivered from the curfe of the law! Every fin deferves God's wrath and curfe. What a flood of wrath behoved then to come on him, when he flood in the flead of a whole elect world !

2. Let this convince you of the ill that is in fin. There is more ill in the leaft fin than the greateft fufferings. Therefore never fay, in compliance with a temptation, It is but a little one; for the leaft fin will make you eternally miferable in hell: and can ye account that a little evil which expofes to God's curfe here and hereafter ?

3. Inexpressibly terrible is the deferving of many fins, and groß fins, when they least of them deferves God's wrath. If one do fo, how great must that wrath be, which thousands and millions deferve? If an idle word deferves God's wrath and curfe, what must deliberate lying words deferve, but a deep footing in the lake that burneth with fire and brimftone.

4. Let believers admire free grace, pardoning mercy, and atoning blood, Pfal. xxxii. 1. that fecures them from bearing the defert of their fin. Let them live to the Lord, by whom they live. Think not little of your fins, O believer, though there be now no condemnation for you, being in Chrift Jefus, Rom. viii. 1.; for every one of your fins deferves, though they cannot bring on, God's wrath and curfe. Yet tremble at the thoughts of fin; for ye are like the three children in the fiery furnace, compafied with a fire of fin that would burn you up, but the effect of it is ftopped by the mediation of Chrift.

 $La \beta l_y$, Sinners, be convinced of your abfolute need of Chrift. Ye muft be in him, or ye are ruined for ever. Can ye bear that wrath which incenfed juftice will inflict on all that are out of Chrift? Can ye get free of it without him? Wherefore be alarmed, and exhorted to flee from the wrath that is to come, by fleeing to the Lord Jefus, who delivereth all his people from it.

OF THE MEANS OF SALVATION IN GENERAL.

Heb. ii. 3.--How fhall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation ?--

A SINNER having heard that fin deferves God's wrath and curfe, the queftion that natively follows, is, What way one may efcape them? This is answered by the weighty queftion in the text, How Jhall we efcape, if we neglect fo great falvation? Which we may take up in these two things (1.) There is no efcaping for finners, if they neglect the great falvation; they perish without remedy. (2.) They that do not neglect it, shall furely efcape. Here let us consider,

1. The danger finners are in by their fin. They are in hazard of perifhing under God's wrath and curfe; for that is the juft recompenfe of every fin, Heb. ii. 2.; of God's wrath confuming them, and his curfe binding them down under it for ever. He intimates, that all are liable to God's wrath and curfe, while he fays, How feall we efcape, &c.

2. The way how they may efcape; namely, by not neglecting, but falling in with the great falvation. The words intimate, (1.) That there is a poffibility of efcaping; finners are not flut up hopelefs under the curfe. (2.) The way of efcape is not by fleeing from the Judge, and the execution of his fentence: nay, he is omnifcient and omniprefent; one cannot outwit him, or get away from his fight, or out of his reach. Nor is it by refifting, for he is omnipotent, and none can outbrave him, nor make head againft him. But he may efcape by falling in with the means of efcape appointed by himfelf, and required by him to be made ule of by us. He has provided us with a falvation, a great one; i. e. the gofpel, which teaches the way of eternal falvation. He requires Of the Means of, Ec. 201 quires us, not to neglect it, but to improve it for our efcape. It is neglected by unbelief, impenitency, and not using the means preferibed. On the contrary, then, he requires of us faith and repentance, which are the fubitance of the gospel, Acts xx. 21. "Teftifying to the Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance towards God, and faith towards our Lord Jefus Chrift;" and he requires of us the use of the means by which the falvation held forth in the gospel is obtained, Prov. viii. 34. "Bleffed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the posts of my doors:" for furely they neglect and flight the gospel, who do not believe, repent, or use the ordinary means of obtaining the falvation.

The text affords the following doctrine.

Doct. "Whofo would efcape God's wrath and curfe, muft not neglect, but fall in with the great falvation." Or, "To efcape the wrath and curfe of God due to us for fin, God requireth of us faith in Jefus Chrift, repentance unto life, with the diligent ufe of all the outward means whereby Chrift communicateth to us the benefits of redemption."

For explaining of this, I fhall fhew,

I. The neceffity of faith in Jefus Chrift, in order to one's efcaping the wrath and curfe of God.

II. The neceffity of repentance, in order to the fame end.

III. Anfwer the queftion, Are faith and repentance in men's power, fince God requires them of them?

IV. Shew the connection betwixt faith and repentance, and efcaping the wrath and curfe of God.

V. The neceffity of the diligent use of all the outward means whereby Christ communicates to us the benefits of redemption.

VI. Deduce an inference or two,

I. I shall shew the necessity of faith in Jesus Christ, in order to one's escaping the wrath and curse of God due to him for fin. It is absolutely necessary; no man can escape God's wrath and curse without it. For,

1. There is no pleafing of God without it, Heb. xi. 6. The reafon is, becaufe he is only pleafed with Jefus Chrift, and those who are in him, or united to him, Matth. xvii. 5. If one should weep for his fins till no moisture were left in his body, fast his flesh to a skeleton, and watch ever so carefully against his fin, if he have not faith, he is a lost man; he cannot please God, but must lie for ever under his difpleasure.

VOL. III.

fully

2. It is the great duty of the gofpel, whereby one is made partaker of the remedy provided, and without which neither your perfons nor performances can be accepted. It is "the work of God," John vi. 29.; "the command of God," I John iii. 23. Your perfons will ever be under condemnation without it, John iii. 18. And all your other duties will be but ciphers in God's account, multiply them as ye will, if faith be not at the head of them.

3. It is that which enters one into the covenant of peace; unites him with Chrift, and by which he comes to partake of all faving benefits. If ye would escape God's wrath, ye must be within the covenant; ye must believe, that is, confent to the marriage-covenant, John vi. 35. There is no escaping wrath without being in Chrift, and united to him, Rom. viii. 1. That union is by faith, Eph. iii. 17. We must be justified, and that is by faith, Rom. v. 1.; and fanctified, which is by faith too, Acts xv. 9.

4. Salvation and damnation turns upon this very point. Here is the decifion of the cafe, Mark xvi. 16. "He that believeth fhall be faved; but he that believeth not fhall be damned." Unbelief will undoubtedly ruin you, Pfal. ii. ult. "Kifs ye the Son, left he be angry, and ye perifh from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little." Unbelief is a rejecting of Chrift; and they cannot efcape who refufe the remedy of fin, Luke xix. 27. "Thofe mine enemies that would not that I fhould reign over them, bring hither, and flay them before me."

II. I proceed to fhew the neceffity of repentance, in order to one's efcaping this wrath and curie. No adult perfon can be faved without it. As for infants dying in their tender years, and fuch others who are not capable of actual faith and repentance, in fo far as the Spirit dwells in them, they have the feed of those graces, and thall undoubtedly be faved.

1. The word of God certifies us, that whofoever does not repent fhall perifh, Luke xiii, 5. Your fouls, then, lie at ftake. The finner is gone away from God, and fo is come under the curfe. His foul is left in pawn that he fhall return; fo if he do not return, the pawn is loft, and loft for ever.

Q34

2. Heaven's door is bolted against all impenitent finners; it is not fo wide as to let in a finner with a burden of unrepented of guilt upon his back, Rev. xxi. 27. " There shall in nowife enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatfoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." So heaven ye cannot fee, and hell ye connot escape, if ye repent not. It is the call of the gospel to you; which, if it be not obeyed, fee the effect, 2 Theff. i. 7. 8. " The Lord Jefus shall be revealed from heaven, with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gofpel of our Lord Jefus Chrift." To this narrow point the matter is brought, Repent or perifh, Ezek. xviii. 30. 31. " Repent, and turn yourfelves from all your tranfgreffions; fo iniquity shall not be your ruin. Cast away from you all your transgreffions, whereby ye have transgreffed, and make ye a new heart, and a new fpirit; for why will ye die, O houfe of Ifrael?"

3. Repentance is the other duty of the gofpel; thereby fignifying, that without repentance there is no poffibility but we muft perifh under God's wrath and curfe. John the Baptift preached repentance, fo did Chrift himfelf, the apoftles, &c. How can one think then to efcape without it?

4. True faith does always bring along with it true repentance, Zech. xii. 10. " I will pour upon the houfe of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerufalem, the fpirit of grace and of fupplications, and they fhall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they fhall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only fon, and fhall be in bitternefs for him, as one that is in bitternefs for his firft-born." It is the great gift which Chrift is exalted to give, Acts v. 31. as he is a Saviour. So impenitent finners have no part in Chrift, nor in his falvation, Matth. i. 21. and therefore they must perifh.

III. I proceed to confider the queftion, Are faith and repentance in men's power, fince God requires them of them? Anf. They are not. For God's demands of us are the meafure of our duty, but not of our ftrength, which reaches not to thefe. For,

1. They are the gifts of God, and the operations of his fpecial grace, Eph. i. 19. Acts v. 31. And where fovereign pleafure does not determine to give and work them, the party lies under the power of unbelief and impenitency. Hence it is God's grace and good-will which makes one differ from C 2 another :

another; not man's free-will. Hence fays our Lord, "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, becaufe thou haft hid thefe things from the wife and prudent, and haft revealed them unto babes. Even fo, Father, for fo it feemed good in thy fight," Matth. xi. 25. 26.

2. Sinners by nature, and in themfelves, can do nothing which is good, and therefore cannot believe nor repent. John xv. 5. "Without me ye can do nothing." 2 Cor. iii. 5. "Not that we are fufficient of ourfelves to think any thing as of ourfelves : but our fufficiency is of God." In particular, they cannot believe, John vi. 44. " No man can come to me, except the Father which hath fent me, draw him." They cannot repent, Jer. xiii. 23. " Can the Ethiopian change his fkin, or the leopard his fpots? then may ye alfo do good, that are accustomed to do evil." They are dead in fin, and must be quickened, yea, created in Christ Iefus to good works. They are in bondage to fin and Satan, 2 Tim. ii. 26.; therefore cannot come to Chrift, nor turn to God, till effectual grace bring them forward, Acts xxvi. 18. " Open their eyes, and turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God."

Object. How then can God require them of us?

Anf. 1. God gave man this power, and he has loft it by his own fault, Eccl. vii. 29. "God hath made man upright, but they have fought out many inventions." If a debtor fquander away his fubftance, the creditor has fiill a right to require what he owes him : fo, though man has loft his power to perform, God has not loft his right to require the duty.

2. Men will not believe their own impotency. They will promife, refolve, and delay to believe and repent, as if thefe duties were in their own power; they will flight the motions of God's Spirit; yea, they are throwing away the remains of natural light and ftrength, that have efcaped out of the ruins of the fall. So that God may very juftly require thefe of them, to convince them, and ftir them up to feek grace.

IV. I proceed to fhew the connection betwixt faith and repentance, and elcaping the wrath and curfe of God due to us for fin. Those who believe and repent shall certainly escape. God has faid it, that they shall, John v. 24. "He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that fent me, hath everlassing life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life." Ezek. xviii. 30. "Repent, and turn yourfelves from all your trangressions; fo iniquity quity fhall not be your ruin." Nay, they are got beyond it already, Rom. viii. 1. "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Chrift Jefus." In the moment the finner comes into Chrift, he is no more liable to eternal wrath, nor to the curfe; for he is not under the law, but under grace: and the utmoft he is liable to, is fatherly chaftifements, Pfal. lxxxix. 30.—33. Thus faith and repentance have the connection of appointed means preferibed by God himfelf, which, by his bleffing, are rendered fubfervient to this great end, of obtaining falvation. Faith is the hand that receives Chrift and his righteoufnefs, as the all of falvation, John i. 12.; and repentance unto life confifts in that godly forrow for fin, flowing from faith, which is the exercise of all who are concerned about the falvation of their fouls, Jer. l. 4. 2 Cor. vii. 11.

V. I fhall now fhew the neceffity of using all the outward means whereby Chrift communicateth to his people the benefits of redemption.

1. God has peremptorily required this, Luke xiii. 24. "Strive to enter in at the firait gate," namely, that we firive in the appointed means of grace and falvation. And fo he has particularly enjoined us the conficiencious performance of each of them.

2. We have no ground to expect grace or falvation but in the ufe of the means, Prov. viii. 34. "Bleffed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the pofts of my doors." Prov. ii. 3.—5. "If thou crieft after knowledge, and lifteft up thy voice for underftanding : if thou feekeft her as filver, and fearcheft for her as for hid treafures : then fhalt thou underftand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God." "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God," Rom. x. 17.

3. The neglect of the means is a contempt of the thing. If we would be healed, we would lie at the pool. If not, we fay we care not for cure.

And there is required here, not a carelefs or merely fuperficial ufe of the outward means, but a diligent one; that is, an embracing of every opportunity that God in hisprovidence gives us for attending upon them, a careful improvement of them, and a looking earneftly to him for his bleffing epon them, without which they will not contribute to our fpiritual advantage, 1 Cor. iii. 6. 7.

Quest. What is our ability in this point? Anf. The use of outward means is not beyond our reach. One may without faving faving grace, read, hear, pray, and confider his cafe. And by these one may attain the highest pitch of preparation for the grace of God, in legal convictions, fears, forrows for fin, and natural (though not faving) defires of grace. Therefore, do what ye can; it may be, while ye are doing what ye can, God will do for you what ye cannot do for yourselves, Acts viii. 22.

Queft. Has God promifed to fave and convert those who do what is in their power in the use of means? Anf. We dare not fay it. But, 1. It is possible. 2. It is probable *.

I fhall conclude with two inferences.

Inf. 1. Then, as ever ye would efcape God's wrath and curfe due to you for fin, repent and believe. Come to Chrift; turn from your fins unto God. There is no fafety otherwife, but this way ye fhall be fafe. No fin of yours will ruin you, if you-believe and repent; and nothing will fave you, if you do not.

2. Be diligent in the ufe of the means of falvation. They are laid before you, while they are by the fovereign difpofal of Providence, kept up from others. Neglect them not, as ye would not be found to reject the counfel of God againft yourfelves. And fatisfy not yourfelves in the bare ufe of them, but feek grace and falvation in them from Jefus Chrift, they being the appointed means of grace.

OF FAITH IN JESUS CHRIST.

John i. 12.—But as many as received kim, to them gave he power to become the fons of God, even to them that believe on his name.

AITH in Jefus Chrift being the main thing required for one's efcaping the wrath and curfe of God, we come now to fpeak of it particularly, from thefe words. In which we

* See all this illustrated in Human nature in its Fourfold State, State ii. head 3. under the title, Objections answered.

206

we have, (1.) The nature, (2.) The fruit of faith, viz. the privilege and dignity of adoption into God's family. Paffing the latter, [See vol. ii.]

We may take notice of the former, viz. the nature of faith, As many as received, &c. Wherein confider,

1. What it is in the general. It is a faving grace, for by it one becomes a child of God, and fo an heir of heaven.

2. What it is in particular. (1.) The object of it is Chrift, he, his name, his perfon, with his benefits. The acts of it, faving the finner, are, [1.] Receiving him; this is explained to be believing. Now, receiving implies an offer of him made to the receiver, which is done in the gofpel. [2.] Refing on him; for it is not a mere believing him, by an hiftorical affent to his word, but a believing on his name, which imports a fiducial recumbency or relying on him, as one who believes another is faid to reft on his word. (2.) The fubjects of it are many; not all, but fome, namely, the elect of God, quickened by the Spirit of regeneration; compare ver. 13. "Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the fleth, nor of the will of man, but of God." Thefe receive Chrift for falvation; for he offers himfelf as a Saviour, and the fruit of it in the text is faving.

The doctrine founded on the text is,

DOCT. "Faith in Jefus Chrift is a faving grace whereby we receive, and reft upon him alone for falvation, as he is offered to us in the gofpel."

Here we will confider, I. How faith in Chrift is a faving grace. II. Whence it proceeds. III. The fubject of faith. IV. The object of it. V. The faving and juftifying acts of it. VI. The end of thefe acts of faith. VII. The ground and warrant of it. VIII. Lafly, Draw an inference or two.

I. I fhall fhew, how faith in Chrift is a faving grace. There are four forts of faith fpoken of in fcripture. (1.) Hiftorical faith, which is a bare affent to the truths of God, Jam. ii. 19. "Thou believeft that there is one God; thou doft well. The devils also believe and tremble." (2.) A temporary faith, which is fuch an affent, joined with fome affection to the the truths of God, though unfanctified, like that of the ftony ground hearers, Luke viii. 13. " who when they hear, receive the word with joy; but thefe have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away."

(3.) The faith of miracles, which is a belief of the Lord's working fome miraculous effect by us, or in us, upon fome intimation of his word concerning it, 1 Cor. xiii. 2.—" Tho' I have all faith, fo that I could remove mountains." All of thefe may be in reprobates, and none of them are faving. (4.) Saving faith, already defcribed from the text.

It is called faving faith, becaufe all that have it fhall certainly be faved for ever, from fin and God's wrath; yea, as foon as one has it, falvation is his, it is in his pofferfion as to the beginnings of it, Acts xvi. 31. "Believe on the Lord Jefus Chrift, and thou fhalt be faved."

It faves us, not as an act or work, fulfilling the condition of a new iaw; for fo it is excluded, with all other works, from the caufing of our falvation, Rom. iii. 27. 28. "Where is boafting then? it is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay, but by the law of faith. Therefore we conclude, that a man is jutified by faith without the deeds of the law." But it faves us as an inftrument, apprehending Chrift and his falvation, Rom. iii. 22. "Even the righteoufnefs of God, which is by faith of Jefus Chrift unto all, and upon all them that believe; for there is no difference." It is as the looking to the brazen ferpent, which faved the ftung Ifraelites; or as the hyffop dipped in blood, and fprinkling the leper, that cleanfed him.

II. I come to fhew, whence this faith proceeds.

1. It is not from our natural powers, the power of man's free-will. "No man can come to me," fays Chrift, "except the Father which hath fent me, draw him," John vi. 44. It is not a flower of nature's garden; otherwise one fhould make himfelf to differ from others.

2. It is a fpecial gift of God. Hence fays the apoftle to the Philippians, chap. i. 29. "Unto you it is given in the behalf of Chrift,—to believe on him." It is wrought in the heart by his divine power, "through the faith of the operation of God, Col. ii. 12. No lefs power can produce it, Eph. i. 19. It is afcribed, as to the working of it, to the Father, John vi. 44. forecited; to the Son, Cant. i. 4. "Draw me;" but in a fpecial manner to the Spirit, Gal. v. 22. "The fruit of the Spirit is—faith;" therefore he is called "the Spirit of faith," 2 Cor. iv. 13.

2

The

Of Faith in Jefus Christ. 209

The outward means which the Lord ufually makes use of to beget faith in one's heart, is the word, the word of the gospel, preached, heard, or read, Rom. x. 17. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." This is the incorruptible feed which the new creature is framed of, I Pet. i. 23.; the vehicle of faving influences, Gal. iii. 2.

III. I proceed to confider the fubject of faith. It is not all men, 2 Theff. iii. 2. "For all men have not faith." They are rare ones who get it, Luke aviii. 8. "When the Son of man cometh, fhall he find faith on the earth? But they are,

1. Elect finners; they only obtain it, Tit. i. 1. And they all do obtain it fooner or later, before they go off the world, Acts xiii. 48. "As many as were ordained to eternal life believed." The fubjects of it are thofe of the Old Teftament, as well as thofe under the New. Hence the apoftle to the Hebrews, fpeaking of the former, fays, chap. xi. 13. "Thefe all died in faith." The fubjects of it alfo are elect infants dying in infancy, though they have not actual faith; who, though they know nothing of the matter, like the Ifraelitifh infants, Deut. i. 29. have the feed or fpirit of faith. This is the general character of the fubject. But,

2. More particularly, elect convinced finners are the fubjects of it, John xvi. 8. 9. "When he is come, he will reprove the world of fin, and of righteouthefs, and of jndgement: Of fin, becaufe they believe not on me." The plough of the law goes through the heart, in fome meafure, before this feed be caft into it, Gal. iii. 23. 24. "Before faith came, we were kept under the law, flut up unto the fuith, which should afterwards be revealed. Wherefore the law was our fchoolmafter to bring us unto Chrift, that we might be juftified by faith." So that an unconvinced, infenfible finner, is an unbeliever. But,

3. Yet more particularly, elect, convinced, quickened finners, are the fubject thereof, as appears from the text and the following verfe. Regeneration in the order of nature goes before believing, and faith is the first vital motion of the regenerated foul. There is first a passive reception of Christ into the foul, whereby Christ comes into the dead foul, and quickens it, and then actual believing, or active receiving of Christ, is the first motion of the new creature. But most particularly,

4. Lastly, Not only the understanding, but the heart and will of fuch a one, is the fubjest of faith, where it has its Not. III. D d feat; feat; the underftanding knowing and affenting, and the will embracing and confenting, If. liii. 11. "By his knowledge ihall my righteous fervant justify many." Rom. x. 10. "With the heart man believeth unto righteoufnefs."

IV. I proceed to confider the object of faith.

1. The real object in general is the whole word of God, and therefore no fallehood can be under faith, Tit. i. 2. But the fpecial real object of it is the promife of the gofpel, Acts xvi. 31. "Believe in the Lord Jefus Chrift," &c. for therein Chrift the Savieur is held forth to a poor finner. Faith looks to the whole word; it is perfuaded of a divine authority in the commands, and an immoveable truth in the threatenings and promifes. Every promife of the word it looks to, and comes wrong to none, while the believer lives in this world, and it-laits : it is a bee that roves through all thefe flowers in the garden of God's word. But as it is faving and jufifying, it fettles on the promife or offer of Chrift in the gofpel. And,

(1.) The teftimony of the word, concerning Chrift's ability to fave, is a fpecial object of faith in this cafe, Mark ix. 33. "If thou canft believe, all things are poffible to him that believeth." Sin is a dead weight, which the foul findeth itfelf unable utterly to hoift up; but the gofpel holds out Chrift to be able to remove it, Heb. vii. 25. "He is able to fave unto the uttermoft." Faith affents to this too, Pfal. lxv. 3. "Iniquities prevail againft me: as for our tranfgreffions, thou thalt purge them away."

This affent in both cafes may be mixed with doubting, yet true, Mark ix. 24. " I believe; help thou mine unbelief." If the foul have as much faith of both, as to venture itfelf on Chrift, though the bride fign the contract with a trembling heart, though the doubting will never be commended, the fubfcription will be fuftained.

2. The perfonal object of faith is,

(1.) General: God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft, as we profets in the creed, John xiv. 1. "Ye believe in God, believe alfo in me."

(2.) Special : Jefus Chrift, as in the text. He is the object of faith, as it faves and juftifies the finner, typified by the brazen ferpent in the wildernefs, to which the wounded H-rachites were to look, and the look was healing, John iii. 14. 15. And Chrift's perfon is the primary object of juitifying faith, 1f. xlv. 22. "Look unto me, and be ye faved, all the ends Of Faith in Jefus Christ: 211.

ends of the earth." And his benefits, merits, righteoufnefs, &c. are the fecondary objects thereof, Phil. iii. 8. 9. "Yea, doubtlefs, and I count all things but lofs, for the excellency of the knowledge of Chrift Jefus my Lord : for whom I have fuffered the lofs of all things, and do count them but dung that I may win Chrift, and be found in him, not having mine own righteoufnefs, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Chrift, the righteoufnefs which is of God by faith."

V. I proceed to confider the faving and juffifying acts of ai th. Thefe are,

1. Receiving him as he is offered in the gofpel, as in the text; cordially clofing with him, and heartily confenting to take him as he is offered. Hereby the fpiritual marriagetie betwixt Chrift and the foul is made. Chrift gives his confent in the gofpel-offer, and the finner gives his by faith clofing with the offer. Now, he is offered in the gofpel in all his offices. So faith is a receiving of Chrift,

(1.) As a Prophet to be our Teacher, Guide, and Leader, renouncing our own wildom, Matth. xvii. 5.

(2.) As a Prieft, renouncing all merit and confidence in one's felf, duties, and fufferings, and betaking one's felf to Chrift, his obedience and death, for all, If. xlv. 24. "Surely fhall one fay, In the Lord have I righteoufnefs and ftrength."

(3.) As a King, renouncing all ftrange lords, and receiving him for abfolute Governor in the foul, and over the whole man, yielding to bear the yoke of his commands, and the yoke of his crofs. If. xxvi. 13. "O Lord our God, (fays the church), other lords befides thee have had dominion over us: but by thee only will we make mention of thy name."

2. Refting on him as he is offered in all his offices too, If. xxvi. 3. 4. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whofe mind is flayed on thee: becaufe he trufteth in thee. Truft ye in the Lord for ever; for in the Lord Jehovah is everlafting ftrength." 2 Chron. xvi. 8. "Thou didit rely on the Lord." The foul has a burden of weakness and ignorance, and therefore refts on him as a Prophet; a burden of guilt; but refts on him as a Prieft, laying the weight on his blood; a burden of ftrong lufts and temptations, but refts on him as a King.

This receiving and refting has a most fpecial eye to the priestly office of Christ, faith in his blood. It is a looking to him as lifted up on the crofs, If. xlv. 22.; eating of his flefh, and drinking of his blood, John vi. 53.; and fubmitting to his righteoufnels, Rom. x. 3, * This receiving and refting upon Chrift for falvation is in many places called believing in, or trufting on, Chrift as our Saviour +.

D d 2

VI.

* See the nature and acts of faith more largely opened and illustrated in the author's View of the Covenant of Grace, head 6. The way of inflating finners perfonally and favingly in the Covenant of Grace.

+ Now, in order to illuftrate the nature of faith, confidered as believing in or trutting on God, and the way of a finner's juftification in his fight, it may not be improper to infert here the two following notes on Gen. xv. 6. " And he believed in the Lord, and he counted it to him for righteoufnefs," taken from the author's manufcript work on the firft twenty-three chapters of Genefis, above referred to₂. p. 232.

" Now he trufted in Jehovah : i. e. Now Abram trufted in Jehovah (who was the Lord promifing, as well as the Lord promifed), not only believing his word spoken to him at this and other times, but also refting in him, and relying upon him, for all contained in the promife, and efpecially the falvation of the Meflias, which was the chief thing in it. The whole verfe is a parenthefis, in which Mofes occafionally fhews how Abram entertained the promife, from the first time it was made to him. Now, faith he, Abram truffed in Jehovah, viz. all along, and fo at this time, Rom. iv. 3. Gr. For, what faith the fcripture? Now Abraham believed God. Jam. ii. 2. And the fcripture was fulfilled, which faith, Now Abraham believed God. Comp. the preceding and following verfe of this chapter. This is the first place wherein faith is expressly fpoken of. V'he'min, and be trufted. The formal fignification of H'min, is to truft: for fo it may be rendered every where; and fo our tranflators do render it, Judg. xi. 20. Job iv. 18. xv. 15. 31. & xxiv. 22. marg. Mic. vii. 5. All believing is trufting ; but all trufting is not believing, as will appear anon. Accordingly Hmin is more extensive than believing : for the object of it is a thing ; as well as a rational agent, the only proper object of believing. Thus, wonderful works, Pfal. lxxviii. 32. one's life, Deutsxviii. 66. & Job xxiv. 32. and a beaft, Job xxxix. 12. are, by this word, faid to be trufted in, which cannot well be faid to be believed in. The confiruction of the word natively leads to this notion of it. It is ordinarily conftructed with to, as Gen. xlv. 26. He truffed not to them, or in, as here, He truffed in Jehovah : fometimes with a nous fimply, and an infinitive, as Judg. xi. 20. Sibon truffed nor even Ifrael to pafs in his bounds. And finally, as H'min, Emeth, Omnah, Emun, &c. are akin, as branches of one root; fo are the words, Lo trusted, truth, a truth, truenes, &c.; answering unto them, in our language. The Greek missue, in the New-Testament use of it, is of the fame import, fignifying to truft: for fo it may be rendered every where; and fo it must be rendered in feveral texts, as John ii. 24. Jefus did not truft himfelf to them. Rom. iii. 2. They were trufied the oracles of God, i. e. truffed with them. So 1 Cor. ix. 17. 1 Theff. ii. 4. 1 Tim. i. 11. How H'min, being in Hiphil, comes to fignify to truft, is beft accounted VI. I am to fhew, what is the end of these acts of faith. It is for falvation, Christ's whole falvation. (1.) Salvation from fin, Matth. i. 21. "He shall fave his people from their fins." (2.)From wrath, I Thess. i. ult, "Which delivereth us from accounted for by allowing the phrafeology to be elliptical, the conjugate noun being understood. So it is q. d. H'min emunah, He trusted a truft, or trufting : and the fense of that is, He exercised truft or faith; as to to plant forth plant, and to feed feed, Gen. i. II. is to bring forth plant, and feed, or to yield them. The ellipfis of the conjugate noun is ufual, as in Hizriang, Hifkil, &c. chap. iii. 6.; and of it there is a double indication in this text. One is the pointing of this word with a diftinctive. Comp. 1 Kings xxi. 14. They fent forth (fup. a meffenger) unto Jezebel. II. i. 17. Plead (fup. the plea) of the widow. The other is the prounoun it, in the latter hemistich, which relates to truft or faith. Now, to truft to is to believe : and accordingly the object of it is always a perfon, as chap. xlv. 26. forecited; or elfe a word, as I Kings x. 7. I trusted not to the speeches. If. liii. I. Who hath erusted to our hearing, i. e. word heard: the which comes all to one; the word or speech being always pronounced by a perfon, and the perfon believed in respect of his word. To trust in, is not only to believe a competent object; but to rest in and rely upon, the person, word, or thing trufted, as firm and fure, for the effect for which he or it is truft-Thus Achifb trufted in Davd, I Sam. xxvii. 12. (not only belieed. ving his word, ver. 10. but refting and relying on him, as one trulteth in a friend, (Mic. vii. 5.), faying, he hath made his people Ifiael utterly to abhor him, therefore he fhall be my fernant for ever. So the people brought through the Red Sea, trufted in Mofes, Exod. xiv. ult. relying on, and committing themfelves to, his conduct : And on the fame occafion, they trusted in God's speeches, Pfal. cvi. 12. relying on them with confidence. And thus the unicorn cannot be trufted in (i. e. relied upon) for bringing home one's feed, Job xxxix. 12. That the apoftles Paul and James, in the passages above cited, retain the Sewenty's reading of this text, Now Abraham trufted to God, will not evince a perfect identity of the phrales trufting to, and trufting in God; fince it is undeniable, that the infpired penmen, in many paffages of the Old Teftament, adduced by them in the New, do not act the part of rigid translators : but it will evince them to be one in effect. From what is faid, it appears, that, according to the fcripture-phrafeology, or language of the Holy Ghoft, (1.) The nature of faith in general lies, in truffing, trufting a perfon, word, or thing. (2.) The nature of faving faith, lies in trufting, that is, refling in, and relying upon, the perfon, aword, and thing, (proposed to it in the promise), as firm and fure, for the effect for which it is trufled. (3.) Trufting in the Lord is by the appointment of God, and the nature of the thing, necessarily connected with trufling to him; comp. If. liii. 1. John iii. ult. (4.) It is not by the habit, but by an act of faith, a finner is juftified.

And he reckoned it to him, righteoufnefs. i. e. And God, even Jehovah the Son, (fee the note above, p. 183. fig. (1.), in whom Abram truffed, (hem. 1.), did treat that act of faith or truft in him, which Abram exerted, as if it had been fulfilling of the law, in which one could fland righteous before him, reputing and counting it to him for that effect from the wrath to come; from the guilt, defilement, defile nion, and indwelling of fin. So it is for juftification and fanctification. And faith receives and refts on him alone for all thefe, Gal. ii. 16. "Knowing that a man is not juftified by effect, and juftifying him, thereupon, in his fight. Vajjahh'fch'bheha, and he reckoned it. Of Hhaschab, to reckon. Accordingly Hhischscheb (Pih.) is fully to reckon, as Lev. xxv. 50. Pfal. cxliv. 3. Jon. i. 4. and Hithhhafchfcheb (Hithp.) only once occurring, doth manifeftly fignify to reckon one's felf, Num. xxiii. 9. Behold a people in (i. e. among) the nations, shall not reckon itfelf; i. e. a people which, &c. This word is ufed, (1.) For counting and reckoning, as in matters of money, 2 Kings xxii. 7. It would not have been reckoned with them; the filver. Lev. xxv. 50. And he fhall fully reckon with his acquirer. (2.) For reputing or counting, as the Latin babeo, duco, as Neh. xiii. 13. They were reckoned faithful. (3.) For regarding, prizing, making a valuable-account of a perfon or thing. So it is used, II. ii. 22. xiii. 17. XXXIII. 8. & lill. 3. Thus, reckoners of his name, Mal. iii. 16. are those who valued and made a becoming account of it. (4.) For judgeing, thinking, or accounting fo and fo of a thing, as If. x. 7. His heart will not fo reckon, viz. that he is the rod, ftaff, and fent, of God, ver. 5. 6.; concluding concerning it, as Jon. i. 4. It fully reckoned; for to be broken, i. e. fully laid its account therewith. All these agree in the the common notion of reckoning, which fpeaks a view of a thing in in feveral particulars, and a practical judgment formed thereupon. And hence, I think, it is that the word is uled, (5.) For contriving or devising, as artifts do a piece of work, as Amos vi. 5. They have reckoned (i. e. devised) to them instruments of fong. Tz'dakah, righteousness. Twedek and Tw'dakah are both immediately derived from Twadak (Kal), of which fee the note above, p. 183. and accordingly fignify righteou/nefs: but with this difference, that Tz'dakah founds an acting, as if one might fay, righteousing; Tzedek, a quality, the principle or refult of the former. Hence expound, Deut. xxiv. 13. To thee it fhall be righteoufnefs, (Tz'dakah), i. e. a doing or acting righteoufly, a righteous action, a good work, a conforming to the law. An evidence of this difference is, that Tz'dakab is often used in the plural number ; but Twedek is never. For the former points at a thing, under the notion of a righteous action, or good work, of which kind there are many; but the latter, at a thing, under the notion of a quality, viz. rightcoufuefs, which is but one, whatever be the number of the actions which it refults from, or is productive of. Thus, Judg. v. 11. The rightcoufneffes of Jebovah, are his righteous acts or works. If. lxiv. 5. All our righteousnesses are filthy rags, i. e. our good works have been as filthy rags. So II. xlv. 24. Only in Jehovah, to me be faid, [are] righ-teoufneffes and firength; i. e. Only in Jefus Christ are good works, that will answer the demands of the law. Howbeit, the word is thus taken objectively, acting for an action or work. On the other fide, balances of (Tzedek) righteoufnefs, stones of righteoufnefs, Lev. xix. 36. are balances and weights conform to the flandard. Thus thefe two words, frequently occurring, howbeit their fignification may come to one in effect, yet they do, in their formal notion, reprefent the thing under different fchefes. Accordingly the righteou/nefs of Chrift imputed by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jelus Chrift, even we have believed in Jelus Chrift; that we might be juftified by the faith of Chrift, and not by the works of the law: for by the works of the law shall no flesh be juftified." So it is a going out of one's felf to Chrift for all.

VII.

ted to believers, is expressed by each of them. His righteoufnefs (Tzidkatho) is declared and preached, Pfal. xxii. ult.: and he is Jehovah (Tzidkenu) our righteoufnefs, Jer. xxiii. 6.: the former propofing his righteoufnefs, as the fulfilling of the law; the latter, as conformity to the law, arifing therefrom. As the word Hhafchabb is used for devifing, chap. vi. 5. it is fometimes conftructed, as here, with L' to or for, denoting the party for whom the thing is devifed, as Amos vi. 5.; or the end for which, as Gen. l. 20. But fince faith cannot be faid to be devifed righteoufnefs, that fenfe of the word, which at beft is but fecondary, can have no place here. But for clearing the import of this weighty expression, used in the text, according to the fcripturcphrafeology, it will be worth the while to inquire into the feveral phrases, formed with the word Hhaschabh, in the notion of reckoning which is the formal notion of it. I. A perfon is faid to be reckoned WITH others, i. e. claffed with them, and the fame account made of him as of them. Thus, Pfal. lxxxviii. 5. the Pfalmift was reckoned with them that go down to the pit, his cafe accounted hopelefs, even as theirs. II. To reckon one perion or thing As another, is to make a like account of them as of the other, and fo to treat them after the like manner. Thus Job's friends thought they were reckoned as beafls, Job xviii. 3.; and he himfelf thought, he was reckoned as an enemy of God, chap. xix. 11. and darts are reckoned as stubble by the leviathan, chap. xli. 21-29ths. So Num. xviii. 27. Plal. xliv. 23. If. v. 28. & xl. 15. Hof. viii. 12. III. To reckon one thing FOR another, is to account it to be that thing : Job xxxv. 2. Haft thou reckoned this for judge-ment, i. e. reckoned this to be judgment. So Judah reckoned Tamar for an harlot, Gen. xxxviii. 15. Eli, Hannah for a drunken woman, 1 Sam. i. 13. Job, according to Elihu, reckoned God for his enemy, i. e. to be his enemy, Job. xxxiii. 10. Thus to be reckoned for righteoufnefs, Pfal. cvi. 31. is to be reckoned to be righteousness. So this third phrafe falls in with, and is equivalent to the IV. here ufed by Mofes. That is, two terms being proposed, the one is faid to be reckoned THE OTHER, as faith reckoned righteoufnefs. Concerning this phrafeology, Obf. 1. It is used of reckoning a thing, what in reality and in very deed it is, antecedently to the reckoning. Thus the treafurers were *reckon*ed faithful, Neh. xiii. 13. as indeed they were; and for that caufe Nehemiah put them into that office : the houses in unwalled villages were to be reckoned upon the field of the land, Lev. XXV. 31. as they were indeed, not being feparated from the field by a town-wall: a fool holding his peace is reckoned wife, Prov. zvii. 28. and fo he is in that point : the fruitful field fhall be reckoned for a foreft, If. XXIX. 17. and fo it really is now, and is truly fo reckoned; namely, the Jews, fometime God's people, but now rejected. The land of the Ammonites, faith the text, Deut. ii. 20. would have been reckoned a land of giants, i. e. formerly it used to be fo reckoned : and justly; for the giants, adds

VII. I come now to confider the ground and warrant of faith. This is the gofpel-offer. (1.) The finner has his invitation, If. lv. 1. " Ho, every one that thirfteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and adds the text, dwelt therein in old time; however, it neither was so, nor was it so reckoned in Moles's time. The Emins would have been reckoned giants, ver. 11.: and juftly fo; for they were tall as the Anakims, ver. 10. The scope of the two last passages is, to confirm the Israelites in the faith of their conqueft of Canaan, notwithftanding of the Anakims there. For this caufe Mofes fhews them, that the Zamzummims were driven out before the Ammonites, and the Emims before the Moabites, though both the one and the other were reckoned giants. But if they were not really what they were reckoned to be, thefe inftances were nothing to the purpofe they are adduced for. And thus the fact of Phinehas was reckoned for righteou/ne/s, Pfal. cvi. 31.; i. e. reckoned a righteous action, pleafing to God; which it really was, being done in faith : and hereby it is declared to be fo, for an obvious reafon, viz. that otherwife men would have been apt to have condemned it. It is without caufe alledged, that the text fays, It was reckoned, righteousness for generation and generation; which it was not, being his own perfonal deed, and not the deed of any of his posterity. For the text ftands thus: And it was reckoned to him for righteoufnefs : for generation and generation ; even to perpetuity ; i. e. it was reckoned to him righteoufuefs: [it was reckoned fo] for generation and generation ; even to perpetuity : A token of which was, the priefthood's being continued in his family, from generation to generation. Obf. 2. This phrase is used of reckoning a thing, what in very deed it is not, neither prior to the reckoning, nor posterior to it. And in this cafe, it either, 1. Bears a mistake, which takes place only where the reckoner is capable to form a judgment, but withal is fallible. Thus did Judah's reckoning of Tamar bear a mistaken judgment, Gen. xxxviii. 15.; Eli's of Hannah, 1 Sam. i. 13.; the Jews of Chrift, while they reckoned him fricken, fmitten of God, If. liii. 4.; i. e. an object of God's peculiar hatred, while he was indeed his beloved Son. And fuch would be the judgment of one, who would reckon the deep hoar hairs, Job xli. 24-32ds. which without queffion it is not. Or elfe, 2. The meaning is no more, but that the reckoner treats the thing as if it were that other thing. And thus it is always in three cafes. (1.) In the cafe of agents incapable of forming a judgment. So the leviathan reckons iron for Araw. Job. xli. 19-27ths, which doubtlefs it is not; but he treats it as if it were straw. (2.) In the cafe of fallible judges, in points not liable to mistake. Thus Laban's own daughters were by him reckoned firangers, Gen. xxxi. 15.; and Job a flranger, by his own domeftics, Job xix. 15; and Zion's fons, carthen pitchers, by the enemies, Lam. iv. 2.: in all which cafes, there could be no miflaking of the perfons reckoned for fuch perfons and things; but thefe perfons were fo treated as if they had been taken for fuch perfons and things. (3.) In the cafe of the infallible Judge. So II. xl. 17. The nations are reckoned of him lefs than (Tohu, Gen. i. 2.) emptinefs: not that they are fo in very deed; for they are creatures made the fixth day, after (Tohu) emptinefs was no more: but that he can fo treat them, and annihilate them as eafily. Thus Job fays, God rectoned him for his enemy, Job and eat, yea come, buy wine and milk without money, and without price." (2.) The declaration of God's good pleafure in their fo doing, John vi. 29. "This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath fent." And, laftly,

Job xiii. 24.: not that he thought God judged him to be his enemy indeed; on the contrary, he was refolved to maintain his way, as to the main of it, before the Lord, ver. 15.; and fays expressly, chap. x. 7. Thou knowest that I am not wicked : but his meaning is, that God treat. ed him as if he had been an enemy; and Elihu found fault with him, even for that, chap. xxxiii. 10. Obf. 3. This phrafe is used of reckoning a thing what it is not indeed confidered in its own nature, but yet in effect is; which laft bears the ground of the reckoning. Thus he who gives a flattering bleffing to his neighbour, hath a curfe reckoned to him, Prov. xxvii. 14. The bleffing is not in itfelf a curfe ; yet it is a curfe in effect, as having the fame effect as if he had curfed his neighbour : and fo, on that ground it is reckoned to the flatterer a curfe. V. and laftly, To recken a thing to a perion, is to fet it down on his fcore, to put it on his account, as really his, antecedent to the reckoning; if ill, to anfwer for it; if good, that he may claim, or have the benefit of it. Examples of the former: Lev. xvii. 4. Blood shall be reckoned to that man; i.e.: the guilt of blood fliall be put on that man's account, as really his, and he shall answer for it : he hath shed blood, faith the text, and that man shall be cut off. Pfal. xli. 8-7ths. Upon me they would reckon, evil to me, i. e. charge it on me as my fact and deed, and make me answer for it. So a curfe is reckoned to the flatterer, Prov. xxvii. 14. Thus Shimei fays to David, Let not my lord reckon iniquity to me, 2 Sam. xix. 20-19ths; he owns his crime, and do not remember that which thy fervant did perverfely, ibid.; but he begs that the king would not put it on his account, and make him answer for it. And thus David defcribes the bleffednefs of the juftified man, that the Lord will not reckon iniquity to him, Pfal. xxxii. 2.; i. e. that he will not put his iniquity on his own account, and make him anfwer for it; the putting it on the Surety, and his answering already for it, being already fuftained at God's bar. Examples of the latter : 2 Sam. iv. 2. Beeroth ; it would have been reckoned upon Benjamin ; viz. as truly theirs, to have the benefit of it, for it indeed did belong to Benjamin, Joth. xviii. 25.; though the Philiftines violently polleffed it, 1 Sam. xxxi. 7. So it is faid of another plot of ground, It would have been reckoned to the Canaanites, Jofh. xiii. 3. namely, as really theirs; and therefore it remained to be posseffed by Ifrael, ver. 1. And thus. Num. xviii. 27. Your heave-offerings shall be reckoned to you; i. c. put on your account, as your own offerings, and you to receive the benefit of the fame. On the other hand, He that offereth a peace-offering, and eateth of it on the third day, it was not to be reckoned to him, Lev. vii. 18.; i. e. put on the account of his fervice to God. Pfal. xl. 18-17ths. I [am] poor and needy, my LORD will reckon to me; i.e. The Father would put the poverty of the Mediator on his account, and reward him for it. And thus the deed of Phinehas was reckoned to him, put on his account of acceptable fervice, and gracioufly rewarded, for the fake of the Mediator. Thus far of the phrafes formed with Hhafchabh to reckon. Now, the Score and defign of Mofes in the text, is to thew to VOL. III. Ee 211 laftly, his peremptory command, I John iii. 23. "And this is his commandment, that we should believe on the name of his Son Jefus Chrift."

I fhall

all, and particularly to the Jews, the way how a finner is justified before the Lord, namely, by faith in the Meffias, without the works of the law. Having given an account, how Abram entertained the promife, viz. that he trufted in Jehovah, he discovers on that occasion, how he became righteous before God, namely, by that truft; that every one may fee in him, as in an exampler, how a finner is justi-fied in God's fight. That this is the fcope of the words, is put beyond queftion by the apofile, Rom. iv. FROM what is faid, it apears, that, according to the phrafeology of the Holy Ghoft, and the scope of this passage, the following positions are established. Pol. I. The only righteou/nels, wherein a man can fland before the Lord, is the fulfilling of the law, or a conformity to the law refulting therefrom. For fuch is the fcripture-notion of righteoufnefs in the cafe of men. Pol. II. The fenfe of this paffage is not, That God reckoned Abram's truffing, or believing, for a righteous and worthy action, as he did the fact of Phinehas, Pfal. cvi. 31. For it is the righteousness of Abram's perfon, not the righteousnels of an action of his, that is here aimed at. The deed of Phinehas was what could not have miffed, by fome at leaft, to have been reckoned a rafb and finful action. if God himfelf had not declared his approbation of it : but Abram's trufting in Jehovah, was what could never be liable to any fuch mifconftruction, among those who believe Jehovah to be GOD. But the fense is, His faith was accounted righteoufness for his perfon in the fight of Ged. Pof. III. Faith's being reckoned or accounted for righteoufnefs, which is the phrase of the Septuagint, retained by the apofil. Paul, Rom. iv. 3. is equivalent to, and of the fame fenfe with, Mofes's phrafe in the text, viz. faith's being reckoned righteousnefs. This is clear from what is faid on the third and fourth phrases compared. Pof. IV. The rightecufnefs of Chrift, though righteouinefs in the ftricteft propriety, greateft reality and perfection, antecedently to the imputation or reckoning of it, may, according to the fcripture, be imputed for righteousness to us: for, in the phraseology of the Holy Ghoft, a thing is faid to be reckoned or imputed for what it is really, as well as for what it is not; as appears from the inftances adduced, obf. 1. on the fourth phrafe. Pof. V. Since faith, or the act of believing, is not in it/elf righteoufnefs for a perfon before God, antecedently to the imputation of it, for that righteoulnels; which is manifest from that it doth not, in itfelf, exactly answer or fulfil the law, the eternal rule of rightcournefs: and fince God, the infallible Judge, whole judgment is always according to truth, is the party imputing it for righteouinefs : therefore faith, or the act of believing, imputed to finners for righteousness, neither is at any time, nor is made by the imputation, nor by any gratuitous acceptation, the very formal righteoufnefs for which a finner is justified in the fight of GOD. It is no more fo than Laban's daughters were really ftrangers to him, Gen. xxxi. 15.; or Zion's fons earthen pitchers, Lam. iv. 2.; or the nations really lefs than emptinefs, If. xl. 17.; though they were fo reckoned. Pof. VI-Upon the fame grounds, faith is therefore faid to be imputed for righteoufnefs;

I shall conclude with a very few inferences.

Inf. 1. Faith is a precious thing, 2 Pet. i. 1. Not to be fworn by, but fought of the Lord. It faves the precious foul, and wraps it up in precious promifes.

2. It is a most necessary grace; for it is that which brings Christ and the foul together. And without it, it is impossible to please God, Heb. xi. 6.

3. It is of perpetual use while here; it is an eye, hand, and foot to the foul, Pfal. xxvii. 3.; and at death it does the last office to the man, supports him when all other comforts fail, Heb. xi. 13.

4. Laftly, Seek faith, to have it wrought, actuated, and ftrengthened in you; and for that caufe, diligently attend ordinances, the preaching of the word particularly; for "faith cometh by hearing," Rom. x. 17.

teoufnefs; not that God judgeth it to be the righteoufnefs of a perfor before him, but becaufe he treats faith as if it were that righteoufnefs; namely, justifying the perfon who hath it, pardoning all his fins, and accepting him as righteous in his fight, immediately upon his act of believing. Even as the leviathan treats iron as ftraw, Job xli. 24. though he does not judge it to be ftraw; and Laban treated his own daughters, Gen. xxxi. 15.; and Job's fervants their mafter, Job xix. 15. as if they bad been frangers; and Zion's enemies, her fons as earthen pitchers, Lam. iv. 2. though furely they did not judge them to be fo. And even as God treats the nations as if they were lefs than emptinefs, If. xl. 17. though he infallibly knows they are more than emptinels : and as Job thought himfelf treated of God, as if he had been his enemy, Job xiii. 24.; while in the mean time he knew, that God did not judge him to be an enemy to him. Pof. VII. Though faith is not really and in itfelf the righteouinels of a guilty man before the Lord : yet being fo in effect, to wit, relatively and instrumentally; for as much as it lays hold on, prefents, and pleads the righteoufnels of Chrift, it is, on good grounds, faid to be imputed for righteousness: even as the flatterer's bleffing is reckoned a curfe, Prov. xxvii. 14, as being to in effect. Pol.VIII. and laft. The righteoufnefs which is the relative and object of faith, viz. the rightcounefs of Chrift, is reckoned or imputed to believers, as really theirs, as well as their faith; theirs, I fay, antecedently to the imputation of it at God's bar; though the former is not indeed inherent in them, as the latter is. This is evident from the true fense of the fifth phrase. reckoning a thing to a perfon, eftablished by the inftances of it above adduced. Chrift's righteousnels becomes ours, by faith uniting us to him: from which union immediately refults a communion with him in his righteoufnefs; which being legally found at the bar of heaven, that perfect righteousness is reckoned or imputed to us, let down on our fcore, put on our account, as really ours: even as the guilt of blood is reckoned to the man, Lev. xvii. 4. as really his guilt; and as the plot of ground, Jofh. xiii. 3. was reckoned to the Canaanites, as really theirs, or belonging to them, &c. And thereupon we are juftified on the account of that righteousness truly being and reckoned to be ours. Ee 2

OF REPENTANCE UNTO LIFE.

Acts xi. 18.—Then hath God alfo to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

R EPENTANCE is an infeparable companion of faith, fo that the foul bleffed with faith in Chrift will be alfo endowed with repentance towards God.

This is a conclusion drawn by the believing Jews from the account Peter had given them of what paffed with refpect to his receiving the Gentiles into Christian fellowship, with which they rest fatisfied, namely, That God bad given repentance to the Gentiles. Where confider,

I. A bleffing granted; repentance unto life; fo called, to diffinguifh it from legal repentance, and the forrow that is unto death. This true repentance is unto life; for, by God's appointment, it muft go before eternal life; and whofo have it fhall be fure of that.

2. The parties to whom it was granted; the Gentiles, those who were once without hope and without God in the world.

3. The author of it, God. It is his gift, as well as faith is. He works it in the heart.

The doctrine of the text is,

DOCT. "To those whom God defigns for life, he gives repentance unto life. They come all through this firait gate who enter into life." Or, "Repentance unto life is a faving grace, whereby a finner, out of a true fense of his fin, and apprehension of the mercy of God in Christ, doth, with grief and hatred of his fin, turn from it unto God, with full purpose of, and endeavour after, new obedience."

Here

Here I fhall fhew,

I. What are the kinds of repentance.

II. The general nature of repentance unto life.

III. Who is the author of this repentance.

IV. The fprings of it.

V. The parts thereof.

VI. Deduce an inference or two for application.

I. I am to fhew, what are the kinds of repentance. They are two.

1. Legal repentance, fuch as was in Judas, and may be in other reprobates, and fo is not faving, Matth. xxvii. 3.; being produced by law-terrors, without gospel-grace changing the heart.

2. Evangelical repentance, peculiar to the elect, which is that in the text, and is the only true and faving repentance, of which we fpeak. The general difference betwixt them lies here, that in this laft, one repents of his fin as it is fin, or offenfive to God, as David did, Pfal. li. 4. faying, "Againft thee, thee only have I finned, and done this evil in thy fight;" in the other, only as it brings wrath on him, Gen. iv. 13.

II. I proceed to fhew, the general nature of repentance unto life. It is a faving grace, 2 Tim. iii. 25. difpoling the foul unto all the acts of turning from fin unto God.

1. It is not a transient action, a figh for fin, a pang of forrow for it, which goes away again; but it is an abiding grace, a new frame and disposition, fixed in the heart, difposing one to turn from fin to God on all occasions, Zech. xii. 10. " I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications, and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only fon, and shall be in bitternets for him, as one that is in bitternets for his first-born."

2. Nor yet a paffing work of the first days of one's religion; but a grace in the heart, fetting one to an answerable working all their days. The heart being fmitten with repentance at conversion, the wound is never bound up to bleed no more, till the band of glory be put about it.

3. It is not a common grace, as legal repentance is, but a faving one; diftinguifhing one from a hypocrite, and having a neceffary connection with eternal life.

III. I fhall fhew, who is the author of this repentance.

1. Not men themfelves; it is not owing to one's natural powers, Jer. xxii. 23. "Can the Ethiopian change his fkin, or the leopard his fpots? then may ye alfo do good that are accuftomed to do evil." The ftony heart is beyond man's power to remove.

2. It is God's free gift, and wrought by the power of his Spirit in the heart, Ezek. xxxvi. 26. 27. " A new heart alfo will I give you, and a new fpirit will I put within you. and I will take away the ftony heart out of your flefh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and caufe you to walk in my ftatutes, and ye fhall keep my judgments, and do them." Jer. xxxi. 18. 19. " I have furely heard Ephraim bemoaning himfelf thus, Thou hast chastifed me, and I was chastifed, as a bullock unaccustomed to the yoke: turn thou me, and I shall be turned; for thou art the Lord my God. Surely after that I was turned, I repented : and after that I was inftructed, I fmote upon my thigh; I was ashamed, yea, even confounded, because I did bear the reproach of my youth." Sometimes notorious finners become penitents, as Manasseh, Paul, &c. Where he is the matter, the knottiest timber is as eafy for the Spirit to work as any other, Zech, xii. 10. forecited.

The means the Spirit makes use of is the word; hence we read of preaching repentance. And, (1.) The law ferves to break the hard heart, Jer. xxiii. 29. " Is not my word like a fire? faith the Lord; and like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces?" It is like the Baptist preparing the way for the Messiah's coming. Hence it is called "the Spirit of bondage," Rom. viii. 15. (2.) The gospel ferves to melt the hard heart, like a fire, Jer. xxiii. 29. forecited; and so to bow and bend it from fin unto God. The foul is driven by the law, but drawn by the gospel. The Lord comes in the ftill solution.

IV. I proceed to fhew, the fprings of this repentance. There are two opened in the heart by the Holy Spirit.

1. A true fenfe of fin. And in this there are two things. (1.) A fight of it, Pfal. li. 3. " My fin is ever before me." The man's eyes are opened, and he fees his finfulnefs of nature, heart, lip, and life; the evil of his fin, in the mifery and danger of it to himfelf, and the diffuonour it does to God. (2.) A painful feeling of it, Acts ii. 37. The fin which fat light on them before, becomes a burden which they are not able to bear; for now they are roufed out of their lethargy, and feel their fores: it is a burden on their fpirits, backs, and heads. They are filled with terror, anguifh, and remorfe, at the fight, as was the Philippian jailor, Acts xvi. 30. This is neceffary for repentance, becaufe otherwife the finner will never part with his fin, nor prize Chrift and his grace, Rev. iii. 17. He will reign as king without Chrift, till he feel his loft eftate, as did the prodigal, Luke xv.

2. An apprehension of the mercy of God in Christ, Joel ii. 12. 13. " Turn ye even to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning. And rent your heart and not your garments, and turn unto the Lord your God: for he is gracious and merciful, flow to anger, and of great kindnefs, and repenteth him of the evil." The eye of faith is opened to fee and believe, that there is forgiveness and mercy with him to a poor finner, that though the finner has deftroyed himfelf, yet in God is his help; there is hope in Ifrael concerning this thing. This can only be apprehended aright through Jefus Chrift, Zech xii. 10. forecited. Not mercy for mercy's fake, but Chrift's fake : " God was in Chrift reconciling the world unto himfelf, &c. This is neceffary. For without it, one will either, (1.) Go on in fecret defpair, cafting off the thoughts of his cafe, and making the best of it he can, Jer. ii. 25. " Thou faidst, There is no No: for I have loved strangers, and after them will hope. I go." Or, (2.) Lie down in tormenting defpair, like Judas. Both which will fix fin in the heart, and bar out repentance. And fince God is a confuming fire to the workers of iniquity, and without fatisfaction there can be no remiffion, there is no apprehending of mercy but through Chrift.

V. I proceed to fhew, the parts of repentance. Thefe are two, humiliation and conversion, Joel ii. 12. 13. above quoted.

1. Humiliation. The finner goes from God by the highway of pride and felf-conceit; but always comes back the low way of humiliation. Grace pulls him down from the feat of the fcorner, and lays him at the Lord's feet, I Pet. v. 6. "Humble yourfelves under the mighty hand of God, that he may exait you in due time." It makes him like Benhadad's fervants, who came to the king of Ifrael girded with fackcloth, fackcloth, and ropes on their heads, in the most humiliating posture. In it there is,

(1.) Sorrow for fin, a kindly forrow for the offence and diffuonour done to a holy gracious God, Zech. xii. 10. formerly cited, defacing his image, tranfgreffing his law, grieveing his Spirit, and furnithing fpear and nails to pierce a Saviour.

(2.) Shame, a holy fhame for fin, Rom. vi. 21. "What fruit had ye in those things whereof ye are now asfhamed?" They see now their spiritual nakedness, pollution, disappointed expectations from fin, and reproach discovered, which fill the foul with blushing.

(3.) Self-loathing, Ézek. xxxvi. 31. "Then fhall ye remember your own evil ways, and your doings that were not good, and fhall loath yourfelves in your own fight, for your iniquities, and for your abominations." They fee a fulnefs of fin in them, and the complicated aggravations of their fin, which make them to finite on their breaft, as the publican did, Luke xviii. 13. as deferving to be pierced through the heart it bred in; to finite on the thigh, as Ephraim did, Jer. xxxi. 19. as if he defired to break the legs that carried him out of God's way.

(4.) Penitent confession, Jer. iii. 13. accusing and condemning themselves.

2. Conversion, or returning. Of which there are two parts.

1/t, Turning away from fin, 2 Tim. ii. 19. To repent of fin, and continue in the habitual practice of it, is a contradiction. They turn from it,

(1.) In heart, by a hearty and fincere hatred of it. Pfal. cxix. 104. " I hate every falfe way." They hate it as an evil, the worft of evils, worfe than fufferings. They hate it fincerely as fin, univerfally and irreconcileably. They look on it as God does, as that abominable thing which he hates.

(3.) In their life and conversation; they get clean hands.

[1.] They turn from the groß pollutions of the outward man, in the habitual practice of thefe, Pfal. xxiv. 3. 4. "Who fhall afcend into the hill of the Lord? and who fhall ftand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lift up his foul unto vanity, nor fworn deceitfully." A profane life is the mark of an impenitent ftate, Gal. v. 21. "They which do fuch things fhall not inherit the kingdom of God." The true godly may make groß flips; but if they be habitually groß in their lives, there there is no difference betwixt Christ's sheep and the devil's goats. [2.] They are tender with respect to fins of common infirmity, making conficience of words and actions, as Paul did, Acts xxiv. 16. "Herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conficience void of offence toward God and roward men." What others count light, they will count great: even these are burdens to them, which they groan under, and as iron fetters they would fain be freed of, Rom. vii. 24. "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?"

adly, Turning to God. By faith man returns to God as a portion, by repentance as a Lord and Mafter, like a runaway fervant. And he returns,

(1.) To God himfelf. Sinners departing from God, diflike not only their fervice, but their Mafter, Luke xin. 14. But returning they are difpofed to love him, and like him as a Mafter.

(2.) To his duty to God, Acts ix. 6. to the practice of every known duty, and fpirituality in duty. This is new obedience, which a penitent turns to, [1.] In full purpole, Pfal. cxix. 106. no more doubting whether to fall in with it or not, or delaying or putting it off any more. [2.] In fincere endeavours, Acts xxiv. 6. *

Inf. 1. An impenitent heart is a fad fign of a loft ftate, Rom. ii. 5. While thou liveft so, thou art far from God; and if thou die so, thou art loft for ever.

2. That repentance which is not evangelical and true, is little worth. You must have more than Judas's repentance, if ever you fee heaven.

3. To pretend to repentance, and never forfake fin, is vain.

4. To leave fin, and not take up the contrary duties, is not repentance.

5. Go to the Lord by faith for the grace of repentance.

* A large and particular account of the nature, author, neceffity, &c. of repentance, may be feen in feveral difcourfes in a volume of the author's fermons, first published in 1756, which were preached only two or three years before he delivered this difcourfe; which may partly account for the brevity of it.

VOL. III.

OF CHRIST'S ORDINANCES IN GENERAL.

If. xii. 3.—Therefore with joy fhall ye draw water out of the wells of falviation.

T HIS fong looks to the days of the golpel, wherein Chrift having come and purchafed falvation, the tidings of it are carried through the world in the golpel, and it is communicated to Jews and Gentiles through the means of grace. Here we have:,

1. A benefit to be had in the church, water, i. e. golpelgrace, the benefits of Chrift's redemption, as fuitable to needy, fainting fouls, as water to the thirfty. See John iv. 14. and vii. 37.

2. The way of its communication to poor finners. It is to be drawn out of the wells of falvation. Thefe are gofpel-ordinances, the wells in this valley of Baca for the life of fouls, and refrefhment of fpiritual travellers. All the elect capable to draw, do draw out of them. This is the fenfe, whether the allufion be to the wells in the wildernefs for the Ifraelites, or to the Jews fetching water out of the fpring of Siloam at the feaft of tabernacles in the night, with mirth and mufic, to the temple, and pouring it on the altar.

The text furnishes this doctrine.

DOCT. "The Lord's ordinances are the wells of falvation to the elect." Or, "The outward and ordinary means whereby Chrift communicateth to us the benefits of redemption, are, his ordinances, effectially the word, facraments, and prayer; all which are made effectual to the elect for falvation."

Here I shall shew,

I. What is understood by a means of falvation.

II. What are thefe means of falvation.

III.

III. What makes any ordinance a mean of grace.IV. To whom are the Lord's ordinances made effectual.V. Whence their efficacy proceeds.VI. Deduce an inference or two.

I. I am to fhew, what is underftood by a means of falvation. It is that by and through which the Lord Jefus doth by his Spirit convey grace and falvation into a foul. That is a mean or mids betwixt the Lord and the foul, which he ufes for communication of grace from himfelf to the foul, 1 Cor. i. 21. "For after that, in the wifdom of God, the world by wifdom knew not God, it pleafed God by the foolifhnefs of preaching to fave them that believe." Chap. iii. 5. "Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but minifters by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man?" The which may be ufed with expectation of good thereby. Thefe means are fome of them outward, fome inward; fome ordinary, others extraordinary.

II. I come now to fhew, what these means of falvation are.

1. The inward means is faith, Heb. iv. 2. " Unto us was the gofpel preached as well as unto them : but the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it." This ordinarily requires an outward means to work it by. But being wrought, it is the great inward means of communication betwixt Chrift and the foul. This is the mean of entering us into the covenant, of repentance, juftification, reconciliation, fanctification, &c. It is the bucket whereby one draws the water out of the wells of falvation; and the want of it in moft that come to them, makes them go away without water.

2. Extraordinary means are whatfoever the Lord in his fovereign wifdom is pleafed to make ufe of extraordinarily for conveying grace into the hearts of his elect, as he did a voice from heaven for the conversion of Paul, Acts ix. iv. 5. None can limit fovereignty. He may ufe what means he will, and bring about his purposes of grace by means unknown to us. What means the Lord makes use of in the case of elect idiots, fuch as are deaf or blind, and fo incapable of reading or hearing the word, and yet may get grace and be faved, who can determine ? Or perhaps he does it without means altother. But,

3. The outward and ordinary means are the Lord's own ordinances,

Ff 2,

ordinances, Rom. x. 14. 15. "How then fhall they call of him in whom they have not believed? and how fhall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how fhall they hear without a preacher? and how thall they preach, except they be fent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gofpel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!" They are called outward, becaufe they are fomething without ourfelves; ordinary, becaufe though ordinarily the Lord makes use of them for these holy ends, yet he has not tied himself to them, but may work without them, as feems good in his fight, Acts ix. 4. 5-Now these are,

1/2, In the general, all the ordinances of God without exception, which he has fet up in his church for that end, namely, the word, facraments, prayer, church-communion or fellow(hip, Acts ii. 42.; which being managed by mutual inftruction, admonition, confolation, and watching over one another, are of great use to promote the falvation of fouls; church-goverment, difcipline, and cenfures, Matth. xviii. 17.; religious fasting, 1 Cor. vii. 5.; finging of pfalms, Eph. v. 19.; fwearing by the name of God, when duly called thereto, Deut. vi. 13.; and whatfoever are God's inflitutions in his church.

zd/y, The most special means of grace and falvation are the first three, the word, facraments, and prayer, Acts ii. 42.

(1.) The word preached or read. This has been a well of falvation to many, and a means of grace, Acts ii. 41. About three thousand sould together drank of this well, and lived. It is the feed which the new creature is formed of; and though a defpifed ordinance, yet the great means of God's appointment for bringing finners into a state of grace, 1 Cor. i. 21. forecited.

(2.) The factaments, baptilm and the Lord's fupper. In both, the people of God have drank to the falvation of their fouls, though they are not converting ordinances, but fealing ones, fuppofing the efficacy of the word to precede; at is evident in the cafe of the Ethiopian eunuch, Acts viii. 39. I Cor. x. 16.

(3.) Prayer, public, private, and fecret. This is a very fpecial means of grace, and a moft ordinary way of communion betwixt Chrift and a foul. So that one no fooner grows concerned about his foul, but he ufes this means, as Saul did, of whom it is faid, Acts ix. 11. "Behold, he prayeth." It is a means by which divine influences have flowed plentifully to many a foul, and none of the Lord's people can live without it.

III. I fhall now fhew, what makes any ordinance a mean of grace, a well of falvation, out of which one may in faith look to draw water for his foul, or get fpiritual good by. The Papifts and church of England think human inftitution fufficient, elfe they had never made fo many fignificant ceremonies and actions in religion, for which there is no divine warrant, as croffing in baptifm, kiffing of the book in fwearing, &c. In the ufe of which they think one has ground to expect good to one's foul; but all thefe, being but human ordinances and inventions of men, are not means of grace, but of finning; not wells of falvation, but broken cifterns, that can hold no water; nay, they are rather puddles, that defile the foul, inftead of nourifhing it. For,

1. No ordinance whatfoever can avail without a particular bleffing; for the efficacy of ordinances is not natural, or from themfelves. Now, men cannot annex a bleffing to their ordinances and inftitutions, to make them effectual for the good of fouls, though both church and ftate join for it. And we have no ground to expect the Spirit's working with tools that are not of his own making. Therefore their inftitution is vain, and their ufe too, Matth. xv. 9. "In vain they do worfhip me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men."

2. Men's inftitutions or ordinances, in respect of God, are forbidden and condemned by the Lord's word, namely, in the fecond commandment. The want of a divine warrant is fufficient to condemn any thing of this fort, if it be never to likely in the eyes of human wildom, Matth. xv. 9. just quoted. See Jer. xxxii. 35. "And they built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of the fon of Hinnom, to caufe their fons and their daughters to pass through the fire unto Molech, which I commanded them not, neither came it into my mind, that they fhould do this abomination, to caufe Judah to fin." And they must needs be blafted inftitutions, fince the inftitution is an invading of Chrift's royal prerogative, Matth. xxviii. 20.; who has directed his fervants to teach his people to " obferve all things whatfoever he hath commanded."

3. Men's use of them is not only useles, but worse, not only to no good purpose, but to ill purpose; for the using of them is will worfhip, which is finning againft the Lord, Col. ii. 20.-23. "Wherefore, if ye be dead with Chrift from the rudiments of the world, why, as though living in the world, are ye fubject to ordinances, (Touch not, tafte not, handle not: which all are to perifh with the ufing), after the commandments and doctrines of men? Which things have indeed a fnew of wifdom in will-worfhip and humility, and neglecting of the body, not in any honour to the fatisfying of the flefh." It provokes God, and brings on wrath on the ufers of them, Hof. v. 11. 12. "Ephraim is oppreffed, and broken in judgment; becaufe he willingly walked after the commandment. Therefore will I be unto Ephraim as a moth: and to the houfe of Judah as rottennefs."

That which makes any ordinance a means of grace or falvation, what one may juftly look for good of to his foul, is divine inftitution only, Matth. xxviii. 20. forecited : therefore the first question in all ordinances ought to be, " Whose is this image and fuperfcription ?" That appointment is to be found in the Lord's word, If. viii. 20. "To the law and to the teftimony : if they fpeak not according to this word, it is becaufe there is no light in them." That is " fufficient to make the man of God perfect," 2 Tim. iii. 16. 17.; and therefore contains the whole ordinances he is to meddle with for the falvation of himfelf or others. The inftitution of fome ordinances is more clear in the word than others; but whatever ordinance has divine warrant, exprefs or by good confequence, is a divine ordinance and means of grace. And to thefe his own ordinances the Lord has confined us, Deut. iv. 2. "Ye fhall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you."

IV. I proceed to confider, to whom the Lord's ordinances made effectual.

1. Not to all who partake of them, If. liii. 1. "Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?" Many come to thefe wells who never tafte of the water. I think it an unwarrantable expression, that all God's ordinances do attain their end, in the falvation or damnation of all that come under them; for damnation is not the end of any of God's ordinances, but falvation. And the fcriptures adduced to prove it, viz. If. lv. 10. 11. "For as the rain cometh down, and the fnow from heaven, and returneth returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give feed to the fower, and bread to the eater : fo fhall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth : it fhall not return unto me void, but it fhall accomplifh that which I pleafe, and it fhall profper in the thing whereto I fent it ;" 2 Cor. ii. 15. 16. "For we are unto God a fweet favour of Chrift, in them that are faved, and in them that perifh : to the one we are the favour of death unto death; and to the other the favour of life unto life : and who is fufficient for thefe things?" will not prove it; for the former refpects only God's end in fending his word, the other the event, but neither of them the end of the ordinance. Damnation is the effect or confequence of the contempt or mifimprovement of ordinances, but by no means the end thereof.

230

2. But to all the elect they are effectual, unto whom they come, Acts xiii. 48. "As many as were ordained to eternal life believed." John x. 26. "Ye believe not, becaufe ye are not of my theep." To the elect only they are effectual for their falvation, which is their end.

V. I am to fhew, whence the efficacy of ordinances proceeds. It does not proceed from any virtue in themfelves, or in him that administers them, but from the Spirit of the Lord working in them and by them, I Cor. iii. 7. But this I fhall fpeak to more largely in a posterior difcourse.

I conclude with a few inferences.

Inf. 1. Sad is the cafe of those who are in fuch a wildernels, as there are no wells in, nor any of God's ordinances. "Where no vision is, the people perifh." This is the difmal cafe of the Pagan world. Which should move us to pray that the Lord may fend the light of the gospel to these dark places of the earth.

2. The filling up of the wells in a land, by removing ordinances from a people, is a fad ftroke. Where the word and facraments are not, there is no church there; and confequently God has no people to fave there. O let us cry to the Lord, that this may never be our unhappy cafe.

3. The defiling of the wells is a fad matter for those who drink of them, whether it be by error in doctrine, fuperfittion in worfhip, or uninftituted government of the church : but worft of all, where they are poisoned with damnable herefies and idolatry, as in the apostate church of Rome. Let us pray for, and ftrive to maintain, purity of doctrine, worfhip, and government.

113

4. Hainous is the fin of the neglect or contempt of the wells of falvation, which God has opened unto them. Let defpifers and neglecters of ordinances confider this, and what they will answer when God rifes up to call them to an account. Alas! this is one of the great grounds of the Lord's controverfy with the prefent generation, which loudly calls to deep humiliation before him.

5. Great is the fin and loss of those who come to the wells, but never draw of the water nor taste it : who are never bettered by ordinances, but remain as dead and unconcerned about their fouls as if the means of falvation were not vouchfafed to them.

6. Lafly, Prize the ordinances. Prepare for them, and duly improve them; remember they are the ordinary means of falvation: therefore feek to enjoy God, and to have communion with him, in them, otherwife they will be in vain as to you.

HOW THE WORD IS MADE EFFECTUAL TO SALVATION.

Eph. vi. 17. - The fword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

IN thefe words we have, (1.) A particular piece of the Chriftian armour recommended, the word of God, the revelation of his mind communicated to us in the fcriptures, with which every one who minds for heaven fhould be familiarly acquainted. (2.) A particular piece of its commendation; it is the fword of the Spirit; i. e. it is that which the Spirit of the Lord ufes in fighting the battles of the Lord, and How the Word is made, Gc. 233 and conquering an elect world to Chrift, and bringing them, through all opposition from the devil, the world, and the fleth, into the heavenly Canaan. And therefore it cannot but be of fingular use to a Christian in the spiritual warfare. It is but the sword, but the Spirit cuts with it.

The doctrine of the text is,

Docr. "The word of God is the fword the Spirit makes use of for raising up a kingdom to Christ." This more fully in the words of the Catechism, runs thus: "The Spirit of God maketh the reading, but especially the preaching of the word, an effectual means of convincing and converting finners, and of building them up in holiness and comfort, through faith, unto falvation."

In handling this fubject, I fhall fhew,

I. In what refpects the word is an ordinance of God, and mean of falvation.

II. What are the ends for which the Lord has appointed thefe means and ordinances of reading and preaching the word.

III. Confider the efficacy of the word.

IV. Improve the fubject in fome inferences.

I. I am to fhew, in what refpects the word is an ordinance of God and mean of falvation.

Firft, The reading of the word is an ordinance of God, and mean of falvation, of God's own appointment. The Bible is this word, and God has given it to us, and appointed it to be read.

1. The public reading of it in the congregation is God's ordinance, and a mean of falvation. And we find it in fcripture performed by the teachers of the people, Neh. viii. 8. "So they read in the book, in the law of God diffinctly, and gave the fenfe, and caufed them to underftand the reading." Ver. 2. 3. " And Ezra the priest brought the law before the congregation, both of men and women, and all that could hear with understanding, upon the first day of the feventh month. And he read therein before the fireet that was before the water-gate, from the morning until mid-day, before the men and the women, and those that could underftand; and the ears of all the people were attentive unto the book of the law." And fo the reading of the word claims a place among public ordinances. Hence reading and expound-VOL. III. Gg ing ing a paffage of fcripture every Lord's day in the church, isa laudable and well-warranted practice in this church.

2. The private reading of it in families, Deut. vi. 6. 7. 8. 9. "Thefe words which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart. And thou fhalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and fhalt talk of them when thou fitteft in thine houfe, and when thou walkeft by the way, and when thou lieft down, and when thou rifeft up. And thou fhalt bind them for a fign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes. And theu shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates." Pfal. lxxviii. 5. " For he established a testimony in Jacob, and appointed a law in Ifrael, which he commanded our fathers, that they fhould make them known to their children." Every family ought to be a church; and as they are to fpeak to God by prayer, fo they are to hear God fpeak to them, by reading of his word. And this they ought to do every morning and evening, as well as command their children and fervants to read it by themfelves.

3. Secret reading of it by one's felf, Deut. xvii. 19. "It [the law or word of God] thall be with him, and he thall read therein all the days of his life." John v. 39. " Search the foriptures." By this means the foul converfes with God in his word. And those who do not make a practice of daily reading the foripture, are none of the Lord's people, whatever otherwise they may profes.

Hence it is evident, that the people not only may, but ought to read the Bible, and therefore it ought to be tranflated into the vulgar languages. Which highly condemns the Antichriftian church of Rome, which takes away the key of knowledge from the people, by prohibiting them to read the word of God.

Secondly, 'The preaching of the word is an ordinance of God, and mean of grace, I Cor. I. 21. "It pleafed God by the feolifinnefs of preaching to fave them that believe." But though all may read the word, yet none ought to preach it, but there who, being qualified for it, are duly called thereto, 2 Cor. iii. 6. "Who hath made us able miniflers of the New Teftament, not of the letter, but of the fpirit. Rom. x. 15. "How fhall they preach except they be fent?" I Tim. iv. 14. "Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the laying on of the hands of the prefbytery." Though the reading of the word, as well as the preaching, is a mean of falvation, yet the preaching ing of it is the fpecial means, though a defpifed ordinance in the world; therefore called foolifknefs, I Cor. i. 21.-It is the most ancient of the two. Noah was a preacher, before the Bible was to take his text from, 2 Pet, ii, 5. And fo was Enoch before him, Jude 14. In this work Chrift himfelf spent the time of his making public appearance in the world, viz. preaching the kingdom of God. It is the mercy of the church of God, that they have the word of God as a lamp always burning: but the preaching of it is the fnuffing of the lamp, by which it gives the greater light. And for this reafon the preaching of the word should be attended on by all, if ever they expect to be faved.

II. I proceed to fnew, what are the ends for which the Lord has appointed these means and ordinances of reading and preaching the word.

First, For finners out of Christ they are appointed means of two great and neceffary purpofes.

1. Of their conviction, 1 Cor. xiv. 24. 25. " But if all prophefy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all; and thus are the fecrets of his heart made manifest; and fo falling down on his face, he will worfhip God, and report that God is in you of a truth." The finner naturally is afleep in fin, and the word awakens him; he is bold and daring, and will not confider his fin, nor duty either; but the word brings him to the bar, judges him, convicts him, and condemns him. And,

(1.) It difcovers his fin to him. [1.] What are his fins. It comes home fo clofe to him, as if it faid, " Thou art the man." It goes out through and in through him, and opens up his very heart, tells him of himfelf what none in the world were privy to, but only God and his own confcience, I Cor. iv. 25. This is what the fpoule means by "the watchmen's finding her," Cant. iii. 3. Who has told the minister, fay many, when the minister drawing his bow at a venture knows not whom it hits, till the party touched cries out, but the minister directs the arrow, Heb. iv. 12.? And many a time have we feen the reproof laid in feafonably for the fin, that one could not mifs it, if but going on firaight in the ordinary.

[2.] What the hainous nature of his fin is, Heb. iv. 12. God's word pulls off the paint and varnishing from the mau's fin, and difcovers it in its loathfome nature, and killing aggravations.

G g 2

gravations. It makes him fee the evil in it that he never faw before, Acts xxvi. 18.

(2.) It difcovers his mifery out of Chrift, Acts ii. 37. The finner fees in the word, as in a glafs, his loft ftate without a Saviour; perceives himfelf bound over to death with cords of guilt, which fills him with fear, terror, anxiety, and remorfe.

2. Of their conversion, Pfal. xix. 7. "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the foul." The word is the means which God hath chosen for bringing finners to himself, Acts xxvi. 18. for raising the dead foul to life, for regeneration, and the working of faith and repentance. This effect of the word we take up in these two particulars.

(1.) The word is the mean of driving the finner out of himfelf to Jefus Chrift by faith, as it did Peter's hearers, Acts ii. 37. 38. "Faith cometh by hearing." The law goes before and condemns the finner, and difcovers him a loft man. The gofpel follows with the glad tidings of falvation, and the foul is perfuaded to embrace them.

(2.) It is the mean of driving the finner out of his fins unto God, Acts xx. 21. It fets fire to his neft in fin, and brings him to the Lord as a Mafter, and to a compliance with his will as his duty.

Secondly, For faints they are means appointed for their edification or building up, Acts xx. 32. The church of Chrift in this wolld is but a building, and not yet finished; and every particular faint's state in this world is but an unfinished building : and therefore they muss have the word continued with them, as the scaffolding is with the house till it get on the topstone, Eph. iv. 11.—13. And the reading and preaching of the word are,

1. Means of building them up in holinefs, the foundation of which is laid in them at convertion, Acts xx. 32. As they are born again of the incorruptible feed of the word, fo they are nourified by thefe breafts; by the fame means they had their fpiritual life, they get it more abundantly, 1 Pet. ii. 2. It does fo by,

(1) Eftablishing them in the good they have attained, fctting them to hold it fast over the belly of temptations, Eph. iv. 14. By the reading and preaching of the word, the truth according to godlines is rivetted in them, that the longer they live under the means, they are more confirmed in the Lord's way.

(2.) Cleanfing them from remaining evils in their heart and life, life, Pfal. xix. 9. Coming to this glafs, they get their fpots difference of the difference of the set of the

(3) Prefling and helping them forward to the good thing lacking, 2 Tim. iii. 16. 17.; and fo the effect is, that they "all with open face beholding as in a glafs the glory of the Lord, are changed into the fame image, from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord," 2 Cor. iii. 18. It helps them ftill to add a cubit to their ftature, fhewing them more of the truth and the duties of holinefs.

2. A means of building them up in comfort, Rom. xv. 4. They are liable to many griefs in the world; but it is appointed to be their great cordial, and fovereign remedy againft all their griefs. And this it does, (1.) By fetting their cafe in a true light, Pfal. lxxiii. 17. (2.) By affording fuitable remedies for their cafe, from the precious promifes and doctrines of it fuited to every cafe, If. xl. 1. 2. "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, faith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerufalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplifhed, that her iniquity is pardoned: for fhe hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her fins."

III. I fhall confider the efficacy of the word. Concerning which obferve,

1. The parties to whom it is effectual. Its convincing efficacy it may have on the reprobate, as Felix, Acts xxiv. 25. Its converting efficacy it has on the elect only, Acts xiii. 48. "As many as were ordained to eternal life believed." Its edifying efficacy, both in holinefs and comfort, it has on the faints.

2. The fpring of its efficacy is not from itfelf, nor the preacher, but from the Spirit's operation by and with it, 1 Cor. iii. 5. 6. "Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but minifters by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? I have planted, Apollos watered : but God gave the increase.

3. The inward mean which the Spirit makes use of to render it efficacious, is the faith or belief of it, resting upon God's faithful word for the efficacy, Heb. iv. 2.

I shall conclude with a few inferences.

Inf. 1. Prize your Bibles, and read them diligently in your families, families, and by yourfelves, and look on that exercife as a mean appointed of God for your fouls good, John v. 39. "Search the fcriptures." Alas! the duft of many people's Bibles will be a heavy witnefs againft them at the great day : which fhould excite us all to the careful perufal of them.

2. Prize the preaching of the word, and attend it conficientioufly; and remember that the neglecting and deferting it is not fuch a light thing as many look on it to be; fince it is the fpiritual means which the Lord makes use of in converting finners, and edifying faints; and is neceffarily productive of the most terrible confequences to those who contemn it.

3. Let not the one justle out the other. God has joined them; do not ye then put them afunder. Think not that because ye hear the preaching, therefore ye may neglect reading the Bible; nor to fit at home without neceffity on the Lord's day, thinking to do as well with your Bibles, as attending the dispensation of the word. For as the preaching fends you to your Bible, your Bible would fend you to the preaching, if ye would hearken to it, I Cor. i. 21. And the Bible is read in vain, if it do not infpire you with a fincere love to the preaching of the word.

4. The word is neceffary for faints as well as finners. It is falfe growth by which people grow beyond it, either in preaching or reading, before they get to heaven. Nay, all fuch growth and progrefs is an arrant delufion.

5. Laftly, Look to the Lord himfelf for the efficacy of the word; and labour to believe the word, that it may profit your fouls. For without faith the word will be unprofitable to you; and without the influence of the Spirit, ye will reap no benefit by it.

238

HOW THE WORD IS TO BE READ AND HEARD.

Luke viii, 18 .- Take heed therefore how ye hear.

THIS is an admonition inferred by our Lord from the parable of the fower in the preceding part of the chapter, in which he had fhewn the very different events of people's hearing the word. To fome it is effectual, to more it is not: Take heed therefore how ye hear, fays he. Much depends on the right manner of hearing the word; and the cafe is the fame as to the reading of it, for therein we are to hear God fpeak by his word. Men may hear what is very good, yet get no good by it, unlefs they hear in the due manner.

The doctrine of the text is,

Doct. " As the hearers of the word would profit by it, they fhould take heed how they hear it."

Here I shall confider that one point, How we should hear? or, "How the word is to be read and heard, that it may become effectual to falvation?" Anf. "That the word may become effectual to falvation, we must attend thereunto with diligence, preparation, and prayer; receive it with faith and love; lay it up in our hearts; and practife it in our lives."

There are three things neceflary to be heeded and practifed, if we would fo manage thefe ordinances, as they may become effectual for our falvation.

I. Some things are to go before hearing. H. Some things are to go along with it. III. Some things are to follow after it. I. Some things are to go before hearing; namely, preparation and prayer.

Firft, Preparation. We fhould prepare ourfelves for the ordinances, as Jacob faid, Gen. xxxv. 2. 3. "Put away the ftrange gods that are among you, and be clean, and change your garments. And let us arife, and go up to Bethel; and I will make there an altar unto God, who anfwered me in the day of my diftrefs, and was with me in the way which 1 went." It is true, God may by his fovereign grace catch the unprepared heart by his word, as he fays, If. lxv. 1. "I am fought of them that afked not for me; I am found of them that fought me not :" and there are not wanting inftances of fuch a furprifing difpenfation of grace. But it is the way of preparation in which we have ground to look for good by it, If. lxiv. 5. "Thou meeteft him that rejoiceth, and worketh righteoufnefs; thofe that remember thee in thy ways;" otherwife we are not in the way of getting good by it.

This pr-paration lies in these five things.

1. Getting the heart imprefied with an awful fenfe of the majefty and holinefs of that God into whofe prefence we are going, and whofe word we are to hear, Pfal. lxxxix. 6. Though the voice is on earth, the fpeaker is in heaven, and we fhould confider it fo as to come to hear what God fays to us, Acts x. 33. And the more this be on our fpirits, we may expect the more good by the word, If. lxvi. 2.

2. Banifhing out of the heart worldly cares that are lawful at other times, Matth xiii. 7. We fhould fay to all thefe as Abraham did to his young men, "Abide ye here—, and I and the lad will go yonder and worfhip," Gen. xxii. 5. The heart going after the world at fuch a time, renders the word ineffectual: but a contrary difposition is a token for good.

3. Application of the blood of Chrift to the foul for removing of guilt, and doing away any controverfy betwixt God and the foul, Amos iii. 3. "How can two walk together, except they be agreed?" Pfal. xxvi. 6. "I will wafh mine hands in innocency: fo will I compafs thine altar, O Lord." The laver flood before the entrance into the temple, that they might waft there who were to go in: So fpiritually, "before the throne there is a fea of glafs like unto cryftal," in which filthy polluted fouls are to waft, ere they be admitted to the throne, Rev. iv. 6. And happy they who come thus wafted to hear the word; for they may expect to hold communion with Chrift therein.

... l'urging the heart of carnal and corrupt lufts and affections, tions, i Pet. ii. 1. 2. This is to put off one's fhoes when coming on the holy ground, laying by the earthly frame, and putting on a heavenly one. For what good effect can be expected on the heart, filled with corrupt lufts, paffions, and prejudices, nourifhed, and not firiven againft? Surely none at all. Whereas, if the heart be purged from thefe, the happieft effects may be looked for. It is impoffible to profit by the word, where the heart is full of vain and carnal thoughts and projects.

5. Laftly, Stirring up in the heart fpiritual defires, 1 Pet, ii. 2. "As new-born babes, defire the fincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby;" longing for communion with God, feeing his glory in the fanctuary, the fupply of foul-wants, and particularly for fomething fuitable to our cafe. And therefore a deep confideration of our own cafe is a neceffary part of preparation, 1 Kings viii, 38. and, if properly attended to, would be attended with great bleffings.

This preparation for the ordinances is neceffary, confidering two things effectially. (1.) The greatness of him with whom we have to do, Heb. xii. 28. 29. "Let us have grace, whereby we may ferve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear: for our God is a confuming fire. One would not rufh without confideration into the prefence of his prince: why then should one rufh thoughtlessly into the prefence of his God? (2.) The weight of the work. To hear God's mind declared to us is a business of the greatest importance; eternity depends on it to us; life and death hang upon our improving or not improving it, 2 Cor. ii. 16. "To the one (fays the apostle) we are the favour of death unto death; and to the other the favour of life unto life." And were this duly confidered, it would ftir us all up to the most diligent preparation.

Secondly, Prayer. We fhould be much in prayer before we go to ordinances, family-prayer, and fecret prayer, and therefore ought not to fpend the Lord's day morning fo as not to have time for thefe. If ye would have good of the word read or preached, pray, and pray earneftly, before it. Pray,

1. For affiftance to the minister. Hence the apoftle fays, " Brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free courfe, and be glorified," 2 Theff. iii. 1. Pray that the Lord himfelf would come out with him, directing him, inftructing him, and exciting him, what to fpeak, and how to fpeak. It is rare to fee a lively people under a dead mini-Vol. III. H h ftry; and therefore people's own interest should engage them. in concern for ministers.

2. For a meal to yourfelves, Pfal. cxix. 18. " Open thou mine eves, that I may fee wondrous things out of thy law." Pray that God would direct the word to your cafe, and fend it home on your hearts with his bleffing, that ye may be enlightened, fanctified, ftrengthened, humbled, or raifed up by it, as your cafe requires. And in order to attain this, pray and wreftle earneftly,

2. For an outpouring of the Spirit in his own ordinances. agreeably to the Lord's own promifes, Prov. i. 23. " Behold,. I will pour out my Spirit unto you; that yourfelves and others may be bettered by the word. Every one should be concerned for the fuccefs of the gofpel, not to themfelves only, but to others alfo. Love to God and our neighbours fouls should engage to this, 2 Thest. iii. I. above cited.

Now, both this preparation and prayer beforehand being, done, beware ye lean not on them, but remember that all depends on the Spirit's influences, and that he is debtor tonone, Cant. iv. 16. " Awake, O north wind, and come thou fouth, blow upon my garden, that the fpices thereof may flow out." John iii. 8. "The wind bloweth where it lifteth." Cry therefore that the Spirit may render the word effectual.

II. Some things are to go along with hearing,

First, Attending unto the word diligently. This implies,

1. Waiting diligently upon the ordinances, fo as people make it their bufinefs to catch opportunities of the word,. and let none flip which Providence will allow them to overtake. That they hang on about the Lord's hands in the galleries of ordinances, labouring to keep the tryft which God makes with finners there, I Tim. iv. 13. They that are only chance-cuftomers to ordinances, whole attendance is ruled by their own conveniences, without confcience of duty, caufing them to take them only now and then as their fancy takes them, cannot expect good of them. " Bleffed is the man (fays the perfonal Wifdom of God) that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the pofts of my doors," Prov. viii. 34.

2. Diligent attention to the word, If. lv. 2. " Hearken diligently into me;" liftening carefully to it, as a matter of the greateft weight, keeping the mind off other things in the. time thme, and bending it wholly unto the word. In this there are thefe four things comprehended.

(1.) Outward gravity and composure, without which attention is marred, Luke iv. 20. If men do believe it to be God's word which they are hearing, this is as little respect to it, as they can shew, namely, outward gravity; and therefore they are not to lay down their heads and sleep, nor to gaze hither and thither, far less to laugh, or to go out and in, here and there, in the time. This kind of behaviour is not without contempt of God, who speaks to men by his word.

(2.) A fixing and bending of the ear and mind to what is fpoken. Hence is that counfel of the wife man, Prov. ii. 1. 2. "My fon, if thou wilt receive my words, and hide my commandments with thee; fo that thou incline thine ear unto wifdom, and apply thine heart to understanding." People must take care that they be not wandering in their heart while the Lord's words found before them. If the heart wander, and be thinking on other things, how can the word do them good, while Satan has thus ftolen away the theart?

(3.) A differing of what they hear, fo as to diffinguish betwixt truth and error, the corn and the chaff, Mark iv. 24. "Take heed what ye hear:" and therefore to mark always the agreement betwixt what is preached and the written word, for which the Bereans are highly commended, Acts xvii. 11. For they attend not rightly to the word who do not thus endeavour to differn what they hear.

(4.) An endeavouring to know the mind of God in his word, to hear with underftanding. This is to attend not only to the words, but to the things wrapt up in these words; as Lydia did, " whose heart the Lord opened, that the attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul," Acts xvi. 14. It is not enough to hear the words, but the message from the Lord is to be weighed and feriously confidered, and the mind of God taken up therein.

There is great need of attending unto the word with diligence, and making ferious work of it. For,

(1.) The matter in hand is of the geeateft weight; it concerns eternity; it is a treaty of peace betwixt God and our fouls; the proposal of a method to preferve our souls from ruin, Luke xvi. 29. "They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them;" and this proposal is not to be carelessly managed. And God humfelf is the Speaker; and what he H h 2 foeaks fpeaks fhould be diligently attended to, for his fake; to prevent the breaking out of his wrath, which is threatened against those who do not hearken to him

(2.) Becaufe at beft we will have much ado to hear well as we ought. We are naturally dull of hearing the Lord's word, If. lviii. 4. 5. "They are like the deaf adder that ftoppeth her ear, which will not hearken to the voice of the charmer, charming never fo wifely." And oft-times there is a locked door betwixt him and us. Hence he is reprefented thus, "Behold, I ftand at the door and knock," &c. Rev. iii. 20. And there is a thick wall of feparation alfo betwixt him and us, If. lxix. 2. "Your iniquities have feparated between you and your God, and your fins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear." And there is always much noife about us, as long as the tempter is to the fore. 'Therefore the higheft attention is requifite.

3. Laftly, If we do not thus attend, we lofe, and our lofs is great. Thomas milled one occation of meeting with Chrift, and unbelief got in upon him. And that word which we mils may be the moft fuitable to our cafe, which therefore Satan watches to carry off from us. Therefore we fhould never mils one occation of hearing the word.

Secondly, Receiving the word rightly. This lies in two things.

1. Receiving it with faith, Heb. iv. 2. It is the month of the foul, by which one receives the fincere milk of the word, and drinks water out of the wells of falvation, and without which one gets no good of it to his falvation; but it is as water fpilt upon the ground, which cannot be gathered up again. It muft be received,

(1.) With a faith of affent, believing it to be true and right, affenting to the truth and righteoufnefs of the precepts, promifes, and threatenings of it, Pfal. cxix. 128. 160. "I efteem all thy precepts concerning all things to be right. Thy word is true from the beginning," It has a divine authority; itfelf is God's teftimony, which therefore for itfelf is to be believed; and where the power of it comes, it captivates the foul into the belief of it, 2 Cor. x. 5. This is to receive the kingdom of God as a little child, Luke xviii, 17.

(2.) With a faith of application, applying it to ourfelves, Job. v. ult. "Hear it, and know thou it for thy good." The Lord's word is compared to the falling rain or dew, Deut. xxxii. 2. The foul in receiving it fhould be as the dry and and gaping ground fwallowing it up as it falls, Pfal. exliii. 6. " My foul thirfteth after thee as a thirfty land." But most people are like the fmooth stones, which fend it off themfelves to those about them. Now, this application is that which makes the plassfer stick, and nothing elfe will do it. If the word be not applied, it can do no more good, than a plassfer unapplied can heal the wound.

Now, the word is to be applied by us, for all the ends for which it is appointed, namely, for our conviction, Acts ii. 37.; our conversion, John iv. 45.; our edification in holinefs, I Pet. ii. 2.; and comfort, Rom. xv. 4.; for the informing our judgments, and rectifying our will and affections; in short, for all the purposes of our falvation; otherwise we receive it in vain.

2. Receiving it with love, 2 Theff. ii. 10. Faith receives the word as true, love receives it as good, and good for us, If. xxxix. ult. "Good is the word of the Lord which thou haft fpoken," faid Hezekiah to the prophet. It is good for us in all the parts of it, for we need them all; the threatenings as well as the promifes; its reproofs as well as its confolations. And there is a threefold love which we owe to the word of God.

(1.) A love of efteem, highly prizing it, Job xxiii. 12. " I have efteemed the words of his mouth more than my neceffary food." Pfal. cxix. 72. " The law of thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and filver." (2.) A love of defire after it, 1 Pet. ii. 2. " As new born babes defire the fincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby;" a longing for it. (3.) A love of complacency in it, Pfal. cxix. 162. " I rejoice at thy word as one that findeth great fpoil."

We owe this love to the word for the Author's fake, Pfal. cxix. 159. "Confider how I love thy precepts;" for its intrinfic excellency, Pfal. cxix. 140. "Thy word is very pure; therefore doth thy fervant love it;" and for the neceffity and ulefulnefs of it to us, as " light that fhineth in a dark place," 2 Pet. i. 19.; as our food, Job xxiii. 12. forecited; nay, as our very life and breath, Dent. xxxii. 47.

Thirdly, Laying it up in our hearts. Our hearts and memories are to be flore-houses for the word, and there we are to lay it up, as it comes to our hands, Pfal. cxix. 11. " Thy word have I hid in mine heart, (fays the Pfalmist), that I might not fin against thee." How can those expect good of the word who just let it go as it comes? But we should catch hold of it, retain it, and not forget it. We fhould lay it up as a precious and enriching treafure, Col. iii. 16. "Let the word of God dwell in you richly?" As a thing that we are in hazard of lofing, and being robbed of, Matth. xiii. 4.; and as what we will have use for afterwards, If. xlii. 23. "Who will hearken and hear for the time to come?" Suppose it reach not your present case, it may be useful for what will be your case. You are travelling through the wilderness: lay up the word as the traveller does his directions for the way.

The beft way to lay it up is, to let it have deep imprefilon on your fpirits while you hear it, and to lift up your eyes to the Lord, that he may fix it in your hearts, Pfal. cxix. 93. "I will never forget thy precepts," 2 Tim. i. 12. "I know in whom I have believed."

III. Some things are to follow after hearing the word.

1. Meditation on it in your hearts, Pfal. i. 2. The Pfalmift thus defcribes the good man: "In his law doth he meditate day and night." This is the harrowing of the feed fown, and the mean to fink it down in the foul, to keep it faft, Luke ix. 44. "Let thefe fayings fink down into your ears." This is the way to guard the word, that it may not flip away, Heb. ii. 4.; and a fovereign help to a leaking memory. Enure yourfelves to meditation on the word, and ye will find your memories furprifingly ftrengthened : one particular will bring on another, and one truth meditated on will recal another to your remembrance, and afford you vaft delight and pleafure.

2. Conferring of it in your difcourfe. This was enjoined to the Ifraelites by Mofes, Deut. vi. 6. 7. "The words which I command thee this day fhall be in thine heart : and thou fhalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and fhalt talk of them when thou fitteft in thine houfe, and when thou walkeft by the way, and when thou lieft down, and when thou rifeft up." Luke xxiv. 14. "And they talked together of all those things which had happened." The repeating over again of the Lord's word, has fometimes had a relift with it, more taking than at its first coming to the man. Hence fays the spoule, Cant. ii. 10. "My beloved spake, and faid unto me, Rife up, my love, my fair one, and come away." Talking of it thus on your way from the church, and in your own houses, will be most beneficial to you.

3. Lafily, The main thing is practifing it in your lives, Luke

Lake viii. 15. "That on the good ground are they which in an honeft and good heart, having heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience:" wiping off your fpots, and adorning yourfelves in holinefs, of life, by the glafs of the word, Jam. i. 25. "Whofo looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the word," &c. The word heard, but not practifed, will fink men deeper in damnation; but heard, and practifed too, will bring them to eternal falvation. O then be careful to practife what you hear, otherwife it will do you no good.

I shall conclude with an inference or two.

Inf. 1. No wonder most of the hearers of the gospel get no good of it. They are at no pains to prepare for hearing it, wreftle not in prayer for the Lord's bleffing upon it, receive it neither with faith nor love, are not folicitous to lay it up in their hearts, and as little to practife it in their lives. How then can they reap benefit by it, when they use not these commanded means?

2. Here is the way to get good of the word, however little good is done by it at this day. Prepare for hearing it ; pray earneftly for the bleffing of God to accompany it : receive it with faith and love; lay it up in your hearts; and reduce it to practice in your lives.

THE DUTY OF ATTENDING ON ORDINANCES, ENFORCED.

41 2.1

Acts x. 33.—Immediately therefore I fent to thee; and thou haft well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here prefent before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

A S attendance upon the public ordinances is one of the fpecial means whereby Chrift communicates the benefits of redemption to us, I have chofen this text in order to enforce enforce the duty of a diligent attendance upon them the farther upon you.

Our Lord Jefus, the only King and Head of his church, hath appointed minifters his ambaffadors to declare his mind unto his people; and though he could teach his people without them, yet the miniftry is his ordinance, and by the foolifhnefs of preaching he faves them that believe. Here we have,

1. A call to Peter related. The perfon calling is Cornelius, a foldier. A Gentile he was, yet a profelyte; a good man, but one who as yet knew not the doctrine of Chrift crucified. The perfon called was Peter; him God honoured to break the ice for the calling of the Gentiles, and to take down the first frome in the partition-wall betwixt Jews and Gentiles. The call itfelf is in thefe words, I fent. He had fent three men to invite Peter to his houfe, ver. 7. The reafon of the call is thus expressed, Therefore, because he had the command of God for that effect. He made quick difpatch in the call; it was done immediately after the mind of God was difcovered to him.

2. Peter's compliance with the call commended, Thou haft well done that thou art come. It is acceptable to God and to us. Peter had no great inclination to this work; he had his feruples about the lawfulnefs of it: but God condefcends to tolve his doubts, and clear his way. It was very offenfive to the Chriftian Jews, which neceffitated him to make an apology for his practice, Acts xi.; yet after all it was well done to come, becaufe he came in obedience to the call of God.

3. An addrefs made to Peter when he was come, by Cornelius the caller, in name of himfelf and those who were with him. In which take notice, (1.) Of a congregation, though fmall, yet well convened. What the congregation was, fee ver. 24. " his kinfmen and near friends." Thefe, with his family, and those that came with Peter, made up the affembly. The good man made it his bufinefs to get not only his own family, but his friends, to wait on the ordinances. (2.) An acknowledgement of God's prefence in a fpecial manner in religious affemblies, We are all here present before God. (3.) The great end of their meeting was their fouls edification, to hear, that is, to hear and obey. And here is what the minifter is to preach and the people to receive ; it is what is commanded of God. The minister has a commission from God, and he must preach, not what men would have him to preach, but what God commands; and the people are to receive Ecceive nothing that is beyond his commission. The extent of both is all things; the minister is to preach, and the people to receive, all things commanded of God.

Obf. 1. When God difcovers his mind in any particular to a perfon or people, it is their duty prefently to comply with it without delay. There should be no disputing after the discovery of the Lord's mind, Gal. i. 15.—17. The contrary was the fault of Balaam, and of the Jews in Egypt, Jer. xliv.

2. It is a bleffed thing for a people to call that minifter to whom God himfelf directs and inclines them. It is like Cornelius, who did not fo much as know Peter by name, Acts x. 5. but he goes to God, and God directs him.

3. It is a commendable thing in a minister of Christ to comply with the call of God and his people, though it should be offensive to fome, and not very agreeable to his own inclinations. Ministers are to go, not where they will and others would wish them, but where God wills. It was Levi's commendation, "Who faid unto his father and to his mother, I have not feen him, neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor knew his own children : for they have observed thy word, and kept thy covenant," Deut. xxxiii. o.

The doctrine arifing from the text is,

DOCT. " It is the duty of a people to attend on the ordinances, to be all prefent there before God, where pure ordinances are fet up among them, to hear all things commanded of God to the minifter whom the Lord has fent them:

In difcourfing from this doctrine; I fhall,

I. Give reafons why people fhould attend on and be prefent at ordinances, where God has fet them up among them.

II. Shew in what refpects people are before the Lord in public ordinances.

III. Confider the difposition of foul wherewith people should come to them.

IV. Make fome practical improvement.

I. I am to give reafons why people fhould attend on and be prefent at ordinances, where God has fet them up among them.

1. Becaufe God has commanded it, Heb. x. 25. The Lord calls his people to be prefent there, wherever it is. Thus there was the tabernacle of the congregation in the wil-

Vol. III.

dernefs;

dernefs, whither the people reforted to the public worfhip and afterwards the temple. And for ordinary the fynagogues under the Old Teftament were the places of public worfhip the ruins of which the church complains of, Pfal. Ixxiv. 8. It was the practice of Chrift himfelf to attend these places, as we find Luke iv. 16. He fends ministers to preach, and therefore commands people to hear.

2. Becaufe the public affemblies are for the honour of Chrift in the world. They are that place where his honour dwells, where his people meet together to profefs their fubjection to his laws, to receive his orders, to feek his help, to pay him the tribute of praife, the calves of their lips. And forafmuch as all are obliged to thefe things, all are obliged to be prefent and attend, and to caft in their mite into this treafury. And therefore the people of God look on Chrift's ftandard in the world as fallen, when thefe affemblies are gone, as Elijah did, I Kings xix. 10.

2. Becaufe thefe affemblies are the ordinary place where Chrift makes his conquest of fouls, Rom. x. 14. The gofpel is Chrift's net wherein fouls are catched. And it is always good to be in Chrift's way. Who knows when that good word may come that may take hold of the man's heart, and make him Christ's prisoner, bound with the cords of love? A great number were catched at the first fermon preached after Christ's alcenfion, and cried out, " What fhall we do?" Acts ii. 37. So Lydia hearing the apoftle Paul, her heart was opened, Acts xvi. 14. The gospel is the power of God unto falvation. Happy are they that get the deepeft wounds in this field. " For the weapons of this warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of ftrong holds, cafting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itfelf against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Chrift," 2 Cor. x. 4. 5.

4. They are Chrift's tryfting-place with his people, the galleries wherein our Lord walks, Exod. xx. 24.; the mountains of myrrh, where he will be till the day break. Thofe that mind for communion with God, fhould feek him there, and wait on him where he has promifed to be found. What a difadvantage had Thomas by his abfence from one meeting where Chrift met with the reft of the difciples!

5. The dilights of Chrift and his people meet there; for ordinances are the heaven on earth. Chrift delights to be there with his people, Pfal. lxxxvii, 2. "The Lord leveth the the gates of Zion, more than all the dwellings of Jacob." Luke xxii. 15. "With defire," faid our Lord, "I have de-fired to eat this paffover with you before I fuffer." And they delight to be there with him, and for him. How paffionately does David Jefire the ordinances ! Pial. lxxxiv. 1. 2. "How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of hofts! My foul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord : my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God." He prefers a day in God's courts to a thousand : " I had rather," fays he, "be a door-keeper in the houfe of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickednefs." And again, "One thing," favs he, " have I defired of the Lord, that will I feek after, that I may dwell in the houfe of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to inquire in his temple," Pfal. xxvii. 4. What good news was it to him to hear of an opportunity of waiting on God there! Pfal. exxii. I. "I was glad," fays he, " when they faid unto me, Let us go up into the house of the Lord."

Laftly, The neceffities of all that mind for heaven require it. Had the ordinances not been neceffary, God would never have appointed them. And fure they are not more neceffary for any than those that least fee their need of them. These are the blind fouls that have need to come to the market of free grace, for that eye falve that opens the eyes of those that fee not. Have not Christ's foldiers need of them to clear their rufty armour? do not dead fouls need them to quicken them? fleepy fouls, to awaken them? They are the pools in the way to Zion, which the travellers to Zion have much need of to quench their thirst in their weary journey.

Surely the due confideration of these things may engage us all to make conficience of being all there present, as God gives opportunity.

II. I come to fhew, in what refpects people are before the Lord at public ordinances. The Lord is every where prefent; we can be no where but he is there, Pfal. exxxix. 7. But we are before him in a fpecial manner in the public affemblies. He holds the ftars in his right hand, and walks in the midft of the golden candlefticks. Our Lord has a fpecial concern there; the main part of his bufinefs on earth lies there; and muft he not be about his Father's bufinefs? This confideration fhould engage us to be there. Satan will not mifs to be there: where Chrift has a church, the devil will endeavour to have a chapel. The fowls will be where there is feed fowing. So fome underftand that, I Cor. xi. 10. I i 2 " For this caufe ought the woman to have power on her head, becaufe of the angels." Now Chrift is in the affemblies of his people,

1. Reprefentatively. He has his agents there, his minifters, who are the Lord's proxies to court a wife for their Mafter's Son, 2 Cor. xi. 2.; his ambaffadors to negotiate a peace betwixt God and finners, 2 Cor. v. 20.; Matth. x. 40. Chrift's minifters are but, as John was, " the voice of one crying in the wildernefs." The Speaker is in heaven. Hence the Lord is faid to fpeak in or by the prophets. It is the Lord's goodnefs that the treasfure is lodged in earthen, not in heavenly veffels, left their fplendor fhould darken his glory in men's eyes, and fo dazzle their eyes. And for the now glorified, God "holdeth back the face of his throne, and fpreadeth his cloud upon it, Job xxvi. 9.

2. Efficacioufly. His power is there, he works there, et nibil agit in diftans, Pfal. 1xxv. 1. "For that thy name is near," fays the Pfalmift, "thy wondrous works declare." The word of the Lord is a powerful word. The minifters of Chrift drive not an empty charlot, Pfal. xlv. 4. "In thy majefty ride profperoufly." Chrift is there giving life to fome, ftrength to others, and death's wounds to others, Mic. ii. 7. Pfal. xlv. 5. Hof. vi. 5. The Lord's word returns not empty; it does always fomething. Every preaching will either harden or foften you; it will drive you a ftep nearer heaven or hell. Now, are we before him in his ordinances,

1. As our witnefs. They had need to carry warily that have many eyes on them. While we are at ordinances, men's eyes and the devil's eyes are upon us; but what fhould effect us moft is, that God's eye is on us in a fpecial manner, noticing how we behave, with what tendernefs we handle holy things : and though our outward carriage be never fo promifing, God is witnefs to the heart-wanderings, Ezek.xxxiii.31.

2. As our Judge. God has a tribunal as well as a throne in the public ordinances, to reward or punifh his worfhippers according to their works. This has made the blood of fome to be mingled with their facrifices, as in the cafe of Nadab and Abihu, Lev. x. 3. God is jealous of his honour. A curious look into the ark coft the Bethfhemites dear; and a wrong touch of it coft Uzzah his life. And we would make the fame ufe of that that David did, 1 Chron. xv. 12. 13. "Sanctify yourfelves, both ye and your brethren, that you may bring up the ark of the Lord God of Ifrael, unto the place that I have appointed for it. For becaufe ye did it not at at first, the Lord our God made a breach upon us, for that we fought him not after the due order." It is true, the gofpel-difpenfation is more fpiritual; and therefore fpiritual plagues are more usual now; but these ordinances cure the worft of plagues.

(3.) As our Lawgiver, If. xxxiii. 22. We are his creatures, and therefore his will must be our law. We are his upon many accounts; we know not our duty. He has fet up the ministry in his church, to declare to people what is their duty, Mal. ii. 7. But, alas! many, by their defpising the meffengers of the Lord and their meffage, fay, as Pfal. xii. 4. "Who is lord over us?" But God will lord it over fuch in fpite of their hearts, Hof. xiii. 10. "I will be thy King." But the heralds must proclaim the subjects duty, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

(4.) As the Lord and Mafter of the family, who has provided liberally for all of his houfe. Minifters are the ftewards of the houfe; but he is the Mafter, that has made the provision in the gospel, If. xxv. 6. He fends out his fervants, faying, "Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled," Prov. ix. 5. Look then how obedient children will ftand and wait for fupply of their neceffities from an affectionate parent; fo ought we to ftand and wait on in ordinances for the fupply of our fpiritual wants from our heavenly Father.

(5.) Laftly, As our God, which fhould ftrike us with reverence, Pfal. lxxxix. 7. "God is greatly to be feared in the affembly of the faints; and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him." Pfal. xcv. 6. "O come, let us worfhip and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our Maker." And this challenges the most ferious disposition of our hearts to worfhip him.

III. I proceed to confider the disposition of foul wherewith people should come to the public ordinances. It is with a spirit ready to hear all things commanded ministers of God. It implies the following things.

1. That ministers are to preach nothing to the people but what is the mind and will of God. Lawyers must not speak without authority of the law; and ministers must not speak but with a Thus faith the Lord; otherwise they go beyond their commission. The scriptures contain what is to be believed and practifed by us. To coin new articles of faith, is the work of Antichrist, not of the ministers of Christ. To impose impofe and teach fignificant rites and ceremonies in the worfhip of God, is a piece of Popifh dregs in the church of England; concerning which our Lord fays, " In vain do they worfhip me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men," Matth. xv. 9.

2. That it is the duty of ministers to labour to know the mind of God, as to particular meffages which they are to carry to their people. Ministers are not to preach, hand over head, whatever truths they can get to fay to fpend a half-hour in a fermon to the people. A word in feason is very precious, Prov. xxv. 11. and xv. 23. And ministers had need of the tongue of the learned.

3. Whatever meffage the Lord gives them to a people, they are to deliver it impartially, All things commanded them. It was Paul's comfort that he had done fo, Acts xx. 20. "I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you," fays he to the elders of Ephefus.

4. Laftly, People ought to receive these messages from ministers as from the mouth of the Lord, and comply with them; for it is not bare hearing, but hearing with obedience, that is the hearing pointed at in the text. And with this disposition of foul should people come to ordinances.

Now, this hearing of the word has thefe properties.

(1.) We fhould hear reverentially. God fpeaks by miniflers mouths; and feeing God fpeaks at all, we muft hear fo, Pfal. lxxxix. 7. forecited. See how Eglon behaved, when he was accofted by Ehud, Judg. iii. 20. 21. "I have a meffage from God unto thee," faid Ehud. It is added, "And he [Eglon] arofe out of his feat;" denoting the reverence with which he was to receive the meffage. And fo should we.

(2.) Diligently and attentively, If. lv. 2. " Hearken diligently unto me," fays the Lord. God fends no meffage to us but what is of great concernment to us to hear; he does not take up our time with trifles; and when God fpeaks, it becomes us to be attentive.

(3.) Understandingly, so as to know the mind of God in what is preached, Matth. xiii. 11. We must endeavour to see heavenly things in their divine lustre, and to understand the things as well as the words. We should "look into the perfect law of liberty, and continue therein, being not forgetful hearers, but doers of the word." And were this the way of hearing, ministers would get more foul-cafes to refolve than they do.

(4.)

254

(4.) Believingly, John ix. 27. He that hears as out of the mouth of God, muft needs believe what is faid. If the word be not believed, it is all one as if it were not heard, Heb. iv. 2. The foul rightly difpofed to hear, is ready to yield itfelf the captive of divine revelation, and receive the kingdom of God as a little child, to hear with application. The Lord's word is compared to rain, Amos vii. 16.; and the foul thould be as the dry and gaping ground, ready to drink it in, Pfal. cxliii. 6.; though, alas! moft are like the rock, upon which the rain makes no imprefion. Minifters make the plaifter, but faith of application makes it flick.

5. $La\beta ly$, So as to practife what we hear. Though the ear hear, if the feet be not fet on God's way, it is not acceptable to God, Jam. i. 22. That hearing that fills the head with knowledge, but not the heart with holinefs, will ferve only to let people fee the way to hell more clearly.

I come now to the improvement of this doctrine.

USE I. For reproof. It reproves,

1. Those who absent themselves from ordinances, and will not come to hear what is commanded us of God. A very fmall matter will prevail with many to fit at home, and loiter away the Lord's day, in many places. When ministers are at pains to feek fomething that might edify their fouls, they will not be at the pains to hear. O what contempt is poured on the gospel at this day by the pride of some, and the lazinefs of others! Whatever temptations any of you may have this way, I advife fuch, when they meet any thing that may feem to hinder them from the public ordinances, that they do, in the first place, weigh the matter before the Lord, and fee if it will bear weight there. If it do, they may look to God for the upmaking of their lofs; if not, they cannot. For it is a most deceitful principle of fome, that they can fpend the Sabbath-day as well at home. It reflects on the wildom of God in appointing public ordinances, and is most unlike the practice of the faints, to whom it was a great burden to be deprived of them. As for those who feparate from our communion, I with they would confider that Chrift keeps communion with us, as many of the children of God can teftify; and then fay, as Zech. viii. 23. "We will go with you; for we have heard that God is with you."

2. It reproves thefe who come to ordinances, but hear not the word as becomes thefe who are to hear what is commanded of God. Such are, 2;6

(1.) Irreverent hearers. Many behave to as it appears there is no fear of God before their eyes. Some are fleeping, others gazing hither and thither, altogether carelefs and inattentive, to whom the word is as the feed prefently picked up by the fowls. Their bodies are prefent, but their hearts are gone; they are the idols that have eyes, but fee not; that have ears, but hear not.

(2) Supercilious nice hearers, who fit as judges of the word, and not as they that are to be judged by it. Hence fuch will be ready to commend the preacher, not to loath themfelves; or elfe to reproach the preacher, and endeavour to expose him: like the riddle that lets through the good grain, and keeps the chaff; or like flies that fasten on festering fores.

(3.) Ignorant and flupid hearers, who hear the word, but neither know nor endeavour to know God's mind in it. good voice and good word pleafe them. Thefe are not concerned to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God.

(4.) Unbelieving hearers, If. liii. 1. Unbelief is a defence against the power of the word, Matth. xiii. 58.; and an unbelieving heart is a proud heart, ready to ftorm at the word, like Ahab. And if the word hit them, their paffion arifeth, the minister meant them, and wanted to expose them, and fo they are filled with prejudice.

5. Lafly, Such as make no application of the word to themfelves, but are ready to give it away to others. It is the weaknefs of godly fouls, fometimes to give ear to nothing but what may tend to their difcouragement; and it is the neckbreak of others to give away threats from themfelves.

3. It reproves those who do not fet themselves to hear what God commands minifters to preach, but will command ministers to preach to and fo. Thus bands have been laid on the gofpel in our land in the late perfecuting times, when the exercife of the ministry was allowed by the magistrate with limitations, which could neither be imposed nor accepted without fin. And as little power have the people to limit them, or give orders concerning what we fhould preach; but every faithful minister will fay as Micaiah, 1 Kings xxii. 14. " As the Lord liveth, what the Lord faith unto me, that will I foeak."

USE II. Of exhortation. Attend on ordinances, and come with a defign reverently, diligently, attentively, understandingly, believingly, and to as to practife, to hear what is commanded us of God. We defire you to take nothing as matter ter of faith on our authority, but to do as the Bereans, who fearched the fcriptures daily, whether those things were fo, Acts xvii. 11. I offer the following motives to prefs this exhortation.

1. Confider the way how the word came to the world. It was by the Mediator, John i. 18. When Adam fell, death ftared him in the face; and he ran away from God, till the word of reconciliation came forth, Gen. iii. 15. which difappointed the expectation of devils, furprifed angels, and revived the felf-murdering creature.

2. Confider, it is the word of life, Deut. xxxii. 46. 47. Nothing concerns us fo nearly as this. If ye do not prize the word, and hear what is commanded us of God, there can be no comfort on a deathbed. It will make us table complaints againft you before the Lord; and we will have a fad meeting at the great day. But if ye will hear, ye will be our joy and crown; your fouls fhall be faved in the day of the Lord, and we will blefs the day that ever we met. Come to ordinances with a keen appetite after the bread of life; and pray for us, that the Lord may deal kindly with us, and furnith us with proper nourifhment for your fouls.

A CAVEAT AGAINST RECEIVING THE GOSPEL IN VAIN.

2 Cor. vi. 1. - We then, as workers together with him, befeech you alfo, that ye receive not the grace of God in vain.

I Have been calling you to a diligent attendance upon the ordinances, and now I come to befeech you not to receive the grace of God in vain : for if you fhould attend the means of grace ever fo carefully, yet if you receive the grace of Vol. III. Kk God

257

God in vain, all your labour is loft, and ye must perish in your fins at last.

The words I have read are a pathetical exhortation, in which,

1. The party exhorting is the apoftle, in his own name, and that of all faithful minifters, who are called workers together with God. Compare 1 Cor. iii. 9. In the purchase of falvation Chrift had none with him; but in the application of it he makes use of gospel-ministers, working with him, as inftrumental causes, in exhorting, &c. and bringing the word to the ears of people.

2. The manner of the exhortation, befeeching; which denotes mildnefs and gentlenefs in dealing with fouls, and withal earneftnefs and fervency of addrefs.

3. The matter of it. The grace of God here denotes the gofpel, as it is expressly called, Tit. ii. 11. It is fo denominated, (1.) In refpect of its rife, which was mere grace. (2.) Of its fubject, being the doctrine of grace, offering the free favour of God to finners in Chrift. (3.) In refpect of its end, which is grace. (4.) Of its revelation to particular places. To receive it in vain, is to have the gofpel among them, but not to be the better of it to falvation, as the feed is in vain received by the ground, which grows not up, but is loft. The doctrine is,

Doct. "That people to whom the gofpel is fent, had need to take heed that they receive it not in vain."

In difcourfing from this doctrine, I fhall fhew, I. How the golpel may be received in vain. II. Make improvement.

I. I am to fhew, how the golpel may be received in vain. And here it will be neceffary to fhew,

1. In what refpects the gospel cannot be in vain.

2. In what refpects it may be received in vain.

First, I am to thew, in what respects the gospel cannot be in vain. And it cannot be in vain,

1. In refpect of God; he cannot fall fhort of what he purpofeth to bring to pafs by it, If. xlvi. 10. " My counfel fhall itand, (fays he), and I will do all my pleafure." That looking for fruit, mentioned, If. v. 4. is afcribed to God after the manner of men; but an omnifcient omnipotent Being cannot properly be difappointed, If. lv. 10. 11. " For as the rain cometh cometh down, and the fnow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it to bring forth and bud, that it may give feed to the fower, and bread to the eater : fo fhall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth : it fhall not return unto me void, but it fhall accomplifh that which I pleafe, and it fhall profper in the thing whereto I fent it."

(2.) All his elect will be brought in by it. Hence, when the apoftles Barnabas and Paul preached at Antioch in Pifidia, and met with much oppofition, it is obferved, however, that "as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed," Acts xiii. 48. The found of the gofpel-trumpet will gather the elect, however vain the found be to others: for Chrift's people fhall be made willing in the day of his power, Pfal. cx. 3. Though the rain fall in vain on the rocks, yet it does not fo on the good ground. And that glorious inftrument will be honourably laid by at the great day, having done its work.

(2.) His mercy and justice will be cleared by it, fo as that gofpel-defpifers thall appear most justly condemned, Acts xiii. 46.; while men have rejected the counfel of God against themselves. The offer of reconciliation will justify God's procedure abundantly against gospel-defpifers.

2. It cannot be in vain, in respect of faithful ministers, who, according to the grace given them, pursue the great end of their office, viz. their acting as ambassian for God, and praying finners, in Christ's stead, to be reconciled unto God, 2 Cor. v. 20.

(1.) In refpect of their acceptance with God. Though their labours do no good, God will accept of their fincere endeavours to ferve him in his work, Gal. iv. 11. compare 2 Cor. ii. 15. 16. Preaching the gofpel faithfully, and warning every man, is our duty; converting of fouls is God's work. If minifters faithfully difcharge their duty, and yet fuccefs anfwer not, God will accept their work, Ezek. xxxiii. 8. 9. If. vi.

(2.) In refpect of their reward of grace. Some minifters God fets to tread out the corn, while they freely eat of their labours, and have the fatisfaction to fee the pleafure of the Lord profpering in their Mafter's hand. The mouths of others are muzzled; and they have nothing but weary work, like that of the difciples, when they faid to their Lord, "We have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing," Luke v. 5. Bur it fhall not be in vain : God does not pro-K k 2 portion portion his faithful fervants reward to their fuccels, but to their pains and faithfulnels. For as it was with the Mafter, fo is it with the fervants : If. xlix. 4. "I have laboured in vain, (fays he), I have fpent my ftrength for nought; yet furely my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with my God."

3. It cannot be altogether in vain in refpect of honefthearted hearers, Micah ii. 7. "Do not my words do good to him that walketh uprightly?" When the word falls on good ground, it will bring forth fruit, though not always alike. It is hard to fay, that ever God fends his golpel to any place, but there are fome to be bettered by it, even then when he is taking his farewel of a people, as in the cafe of the Jews. There were feven thousand in Ifrael that had not bowed the knee to Baal in the time of Elijah, even when that prophet thought there had not been one.

4. It cannot be utterly in vain as to any that hear it, 1f. lv. 11. forecited. It will have fome effect following it. Even those who most of all receive it in vain as to good fucces, vet it is not in vain,

(1.) As to a teftimony for God againft them, to be produced at the laft day, Rev. iii. 20. "Behold, I ftand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice, and open the door I will come into him, and will fup with him, and he with me." Behold, angels and men, be ye witneffes, that here is an offer of me to finners. Though they fhould refufe to hear the meffage with their bodily ears, yet if it come where they are, it will be a witnefs againft them, Matth. x. 14. 15. The duft of their feet fhall witnefs they were there with Chrift's meffage, and that falvation was in their offer. The fervants of Chrift muft fet up the ftandard, whether any will gather to it or not, Ezek. ii. 7. See ver. 5.

(2.) As to manifeftation of unfoundnefs, Eph. v. 13. As the light of the fun will difcover things in their own colours, though we wink never fo hard; fo the gofpel will hang the fign of folly at every man's door out of Chrift. The gofpel was in vain to none more than the greateft pretenders to religion in Chrift's time; but fee the effect of it, Mal. iii. 2. "But who may abide the day of his coming? and who fhall ftand when he appeareth? for he is like the refiner's fire, and like fullers foap." Matth. iii. 12. "His fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into his garner: but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." The wind will difcover chaff by corn, though omnipotency muft be at the work to change it into good grain. Hence the gofpel oft-times draws the pillow from under people's heads, that never thoroughly awaken, tormenting them that dwell on the earth. Hence we read of fome that "fay to the feers, See not; and to the prophets, Prophecy not unto us right things, fpeak unto us fmooth things, prophecy deceits : get out of the way, turn afide out of the path, caufe the holy One of Ifrael to ceafe from before us," If. xxx. 10. 11. There is much noife at this day about faithful preaching; and I do not doubt unfaithful preachers are wanting; but I greatly doubt if Chrift's thoughts and men's thoughts will agree about what it is. Concerning this I would afk you, Queft. 1. Whether that preaching which croffes the heartcorruptions of the hearers, even the beft of them, or that which is fuited and most agreeable to the humours of the hearers, and tickles them most, is the most faithful preaching? See Gal. i. 10. " Do I now perfuade men, or God? or do I feek to please men? for if I yet pleased men, I should not be the fervant of Christ." Where I shall only observe, that Paul makes no difference of men, professors or others.

2. Whether can a foul, ignorant of Chrift and its own natural ftate, a profane man and a formal hypocrite, fit fofteft under that preaching, whofe main fcope is to level at people's particular cafe, on which the balance will turn at the great day, or that which lies further off from the vitals of practical godlinefs, and rubs on none fo little as the hearers ? 2 Tim. ii. 15.

3. Whether the great firefs of faithful preaching lies in infifting chiefly on fuch fins of the time as may be reformed, and yet we go to hell at the hinder end, or on those things that have been, are, and will be, the bloody fins of all times, which if they could be got reformed, Chrift would get heartfriends, and we fhould certainly fee his face for ever in heaven?

4. ult. Whether is it the moft faithful preaching that fills the hearers with convictions of guilt, felf-loathing, and deep humiliation before the Lord, or that which fends them away commending the preacher, and puffed up with felf-conceit? If faithful preaching were weighed in the balance of the fanctuary, the hearts of moft hearers would fay, that they have more of it than they can bear. I do profefs, I have had lefs difficulty to preach things relating to the public, when I knew thofe were hearing me whofe hearts would have been galled with it, than amongft you, where there appears more zeal for these things than for true holiness of heart and life, left my deceitful heart should be led aside to preach to please men. And not without grief of heart have I often seen the same, when, upon my beginning to speak of such things, an unufual attention and liveliness has suddenly run through among us, which has prefently died out with that particular, and become as shat and dead as before at the most weighty points of practical godlines. But I must discharge my conscience according to my small measure, both as to the case of the public and private, whatever use men make of it.

it,

(3.) As to execution on fouls, if not on lufts. Chrift's fword is two-edged, and with one of the two it will wound, Pfal. xlv. 5. If it mifs a man's lufts, it will not mifs his foul, Hof. vi. 5. If it open not the blind eye, it will put it out: if it foften not the hard heart, it will make it harder, If. vi. 10. The gofpel never left a nation, parifh, or perfon, as it found them, but either better or worfe. " If I had not come," fays Chrift, " and fpoken to them, they had not had fin; but now they have no cloak for their fin," John xv. 22. The minifters of the gofpel, in its moft unfuccefsful times, drive not an empty chariot; Chrift is in it, and his arrows are flying about him, either to kill or make alive.

(4.) Laftly, As to the aggravation of men's condemnation, Matth. xi. 22. 24. The more the light of the gofpel is defpifed on earth, the more violent is the flame in hell. Where the ladder to heaven is fet up and not ufed, there will be a more deep finking into the pit. There is no fin like the defpifing of the remedy of fin. Refufed grace will burn like coals of juniper, Heb. x. 29.

Secondly, I come to fhew, in what refpects the gofpel may be received in vain. A thing is received in vain when it falls fhort of its native effects and ends, as phyfic does when it purgeth not, Gal. iv. 11. Now, in the general, the gofpel is received in vain,

1. When it profits not men to falvation, which is the great end of the contrivance of the gofpel, Phil. ii. 16. When men die eternally with the meat of their fouls in their mouths, and ftarve while the manna rains about their tent-doors; while the foul remains and dies in the prifon, though Chrift comes and proclaims liberty to it; thus it is often received in vain, Luke xiv.

2. When the fruits of it are not brought forth in people's lives, Matth. iii. 8. When the gofpel has its native effect on on men, it changes their hearts and lives. It is the rain of heaven that will have meet fruits following it, if it be not received in vain. The fruits of the gospel are two, faith and holinefs.

(1.) Faith, Rom. x. 17. "Faith cometh by hearing." The gofpel is that which holds forth the mean of the foul's reunion with God by faith in Chrift, the only way to bring finners back to God again. Now, when this is not effected, the gofpel is received in vain. Hence the prophet complains, If. liii. 1. "Who hath believed our report ?"

(2.) Holinefs, Tit. ii. 11. When this feed of the word is fown in the heart, it will fanctify it, John xv. 3. Eph. v. 26. It is that word by which the elect are created in Chrift Jefus unto good works, having a converting and fanctifying power when impregnated by the Spirit. Now, according as thefe things fail, the gofpel is received in vain. More particularly, the gofpel is received in vain,

1. When the doctrine of it is corrupted, Gal. iv. 11. as in vain does that ftomach receive meat, that corrupts it inftead of digefting it. And thus is the gofpel entertained in the land at this day, while error and delufions abound, and the confeffion of faith, that excellent ftandard of pure doctrine, is attacked and vilified on every hand; and more particularly when the doctrine of grace is corrupted, againft which almost all fects do bend their force, and in opposition to which they do usually meet. Two things here deferve tears of blood.

(1.) Much legal preaching, where duty is indeed preffed, and fin reproved, but the evangelic nature of duties is little cleared up, and men are driven into themfelves to fpin their own ruin out of their own bowels, and Chrift and his grace are not preached, becaule not underftood. And, which is most lamentable, there is little fense among professors to difcern this legal strain that reigns in the sermons of many, but bona vox et bona verba.

(2.) Much legal practice among profeffors. Their duties, like Dagons, are fet in the room of Chrift. There is little experience of turning out of ourfelves, but a conftant turning in to ourfelves for what we do. And no fmall weight is laid on duties, nay, upon a very opinion in the matter of God's favour. The reason is, they have never had the work of humiliation deep enough on their spirits.

2. When the fimplicity of golpel-worfhip is forlaken, and is adulterated with men's inventions, Matth. xv. 2. 2 Cor.

xi. 3. And even thus the idolatry of the mais, and the fuperfititious fervice of the church of England, have dared to fet up their face, with the countenance of not a few, in a land of light. England once had the fimplicity of gofpelworship established among them. Had it not been so far received in vain, they had not fit down again on their old dregs; and had our rulers had a due regard to the fimplicity of the gospel, they had not, in their union with them, consented to their fixing themfelves on thefe dregs of theirs, contrary to moral duty forbidding to confent to fin, and to the fuperadded obligation of the covenant. And it may be, were the temptation laid to our doors, it would appear that we have received the gofpel in vain too. For when once people decline from God's inftitutions, and obtrude their fancies for Bible-duties, it is hard to fay how far they may go. But beware of this. Let us be fpiritual in our walk with God; it is the best prefervative that I know against it.

3. When they are alhamed to appear for it, and have not a brow to keep and hold faft what the Lord has given. In vain is it received, that people have no confidence to hold faft when they have it, Rev. iii. 11. How many are alhamed of gofpel truths and ways! they will be gibed out of them. We must contend for the faith; and this is a day wherein the Lord feems to be calling this church to contend for those privileges which he has given her, and none have power to take from her, particularly that of appointing fasts and thankfgivings; though we should manage our contendings in fuch a way as becomes the matters of the God of order. Prayers, tears, and the word of their testimony, are the most proper arms of the church.

4. When the gofpel cannot look groß immoralities out of countenance among people. Surely in vain is it there received where the devil reigns at ease notwithstanding, Luke xix. 8. 9. Truly much in vain is the gofpel received among us this way. Ah! Sirs, is it not fo when profane fwearing is fo frequent, Sabbath-breaking, contempt of gofpel-ordinances, uncleannels, every one devouring another, lying, cheating, abound, and common honesty is rare to be found? &c. Truly it is a fign that there is little power with ministers preaching, and little room it gets in people's hearts.

5. When it leaves professors upon their dregs of formality, as well as the profane in their profanity. It is but cold entertainment the gospel gets when it gets room once or twice a-day in people's houses, but has no access to their hearts, to raife up there the power of godlinefs; truly it will never fet them the length of heaven, 2 Tim. iii. 5. Ah for the deep lethargy that this generation is fallen into ! convertionwork is much at a ftand, foul-exercife is grown a ftranger to the most part; there is no growth but in naughtinefs and felfconceit.

254

6. When gofpel-ordinances and gofpel-minifters are contemned. Were not the gofpel received in vain, the houfe where his honour dwells, and the galleries where he walks, would be prized; and the feet of them that bear the glad tidings would be precious. But, alas! all is contrary here. His ordinances are trampled upon, his fervants are difcouraged, and broken on every hand. Few want brow enough to break over the awful hedge that God has fet about them : " He that defpifeth you, defpifeth me." We are as little troubled with the fcrupulous in coming to us for information from the word concerning different practices, as with cafes of foul-exercife.

7. When they are not thankful for it. The Lord hath done great things for us; but the generation is waxed wanton, fo as there feems to be a fort of fondnefs to fee the church in confusion again. Well, come when it will, it is like we will cool of that heat, and learn to prize what is now lightly let of:

8. Laftly, Most of all when Christ is not received by faith into the foul, Matth. xxii. Were there never so much strictness of life, mortification, reeling amongs the affections, and this be wanting, all is to no purpose. Unbelief, or rejecting of Christ, is the great quarrel that God pursues in time and eternity against the hearers of the gospel. But, ah! is not the preaching of Christ sapers at this day? are not our eyes held, that we cannot behold his glory? he is despised and rejected of men still.

I shall conclude with an improvement of this subject:

Take heed ye receive not the grace of God, the gofpel, in vain. Two things ye would effectially take heed to in this matter.

1. Take heed the golpel leave you not fill out of Chrift. It is certain, (1.) That the golpel finds people growing upon the old flock, and out of Chrift, Ezek. xvi. (2.) That without Chrift men are without hope: let them profels or be what they will, if they be not ingrafted into Chrift, they are nothing, Eph. ii. 12. John xv. 6. (3.) That the golpel Vol. 111. 255 is the great mean appointed of God to bring finners to Chrift, the ministry of reconciliation, 2 Cor. v. 18. It is by this that finners are brought to the marriage of the King's Son, Matth. xxii. O take heed ye receive not the golpel in vain, The cry, Cant. iii. 2. ult. "Go forth, O ye daughters of Zion, and behold King Solomon with the crown wherewith his mother crowned him in the day of his efpoufals, and in the day of the gladnefs of his heart," is come to your ears ; beware ye fit not still. These invitations, Pfal. xxiv. 7. " Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlafting doors, and the King of glory shall come in;" and Rev. iii. 20. " Behold, I ftand at the door and knock : If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will fup with him, and he with me;" beware they leave you not fo. There is a treafure in this field, one pearl of great price in this market, and it is in your offer.

2. Take heed it leave you not without a faving change in your hearts and lives. It is impoffible you can be faved without this, John iii. 3. " Except a man be born again, he cannot fee the kingdom of God." Heb. xi. 14. And this gospel is the mean of it, I Pet. i. 23. 24. 25. Faithful ministers will be in pain till Christ be formed in people, Gal. iv. 19. What is their preaching, befeeching, exhorting, &c. but pains to bring forth? But, alas! we may fit down with that, If. xxvi. 18. "We have been with child, we have been in pain, we have as it were brought forth wind, we have not wrought any deliverance in the earth, neither have the inhabitants of the world fallen." O for that day when that promife shall be accomplished, ver. 19. " Thy dead men fhall live, together with my dead body fhall they arife : awake and fing, ye that dwell in duft: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth fhall caft out the dead." And this is a change that muft be carrying on while here, Eph. iv. 21.; and that by the fame means it was begun, unlefs ye receive the grace of God in vain, John xv. 2. O! Sirs, what branches of the old man is this knife fnedding off? what hellifh weeds is the gofpel in its ordinary preaching to you plucking up? Sure they are not wanting in our hearts and lives, and fure there will be fome execution doing on them, if ye receive not-the gofpel in vain.

Dear friends, God has fent you the gofpel, and has fet up his ordinances among you; defpife not the treafure, becaule it is in fuch an earthen veffel. I would fain fee the gofpel doing good, a day of God's power to Ettrick again.

10

I dare not think I have been altogether ufclefs here: but truly, when I look upon the cafe of this parish in general, and on the fuccels of my ministry in it, my heart finks, being afraid that I have beftowed labour in vain, yea, worfe than merely in vain : and God, though most justiv, has dealt bitterly with me, and put a heavy, heavy piece of work in my hand. But O that the doleful effects of this reached no farther than to me ! O that it were well with you, though my eyes were held not to fee it for my comfort ! But the works of the flesh are manifest, and continue and grow under a preached gofpel, to which the appetite is loft, while the beauty and glory of practical godlinets is under a dreadful vail amongft us. I would not willingly ftand in the way of your mercy; but if I be indeed the ftumbling-block that lies between you and Chrift and the power of godlinefs, I pray the Lord may remove that block out of your way, what way he thinks beft, that another face for Chrift, for the gofpel and true godlinefs, might be put upon the parish of Ettrick. But Aand I must in my post, till he that fet me in it call me off; and I defire to be doing while it is to-day, ere the night come on when there thall be no more working. Wonder not that this matter is laid out with this weight: We are workers together with God, and therefore have need to blufh and be humbled, that we cannot be more deeply concerned that ye receive not the grace of God in vain *. Confider.

1. We are workers with God. It is not our own, but our Lord's work that we are about. God has made our Lord and Mafter heir of all things, and he has fent us forth to court a fpoule for him. There is none that can fay fo much to the commendation of their Lord as we may: for he is white and ruddy, the chief among ten thousand, yea, he is altogether lovely: and there is no bride fo unworthy as the danghter of Zion. And finall our Lord get the mayfay off the hands of ugly, hell-hued, beggarly fouls, and the prince of darkneis be preferred to the Prince of Peace? Our Lord has got the gift of the kingdom from his Father, and of this land among others, Piul, ii. 8.; and he has fent L l 2

* The author here plainly alludes to the diffracted flate of the parifh, and the fea of trouble he was toffed in, on account of the unmanageable fpirit of the publicioners, fed by the malignant leaven which the Old Different foread through it, and of which he repeatedly and heavily complains in his Memoirs. us out to befeech you and command you in his name to fubmit to our royal Mafter : and muft we take him word, that ye will not have this man to reign over you? Luke xix. 14.

2. God works with us. We are but the voice of one crying; the Speaker is in heaven, and fpeaks from heaven, though by men, Heb. xii. 25. Therefore the flighting of our meffage is a flighting of the Lord himfelf: See Math. xxviii. 20. " Lo, I am with you alway even unto the end of the world." Have ye never had the fecrets of your hearts made manifest by the preaching of the word? why then fall ye not down before our Lord? why fay ye not, We will go with you, for the Lord is with you? O fight not against God.

3. The meffage we bring you is the grace of God; and fhall it be received in vain? This gofpel,

(1.) Is most neceffary grace. What a difmal darknefs overclouded the world by Adam's fall, more terrible than if the fun, moon, and stars, had been for ever wrapt up in the blacknefs of darknefs, in which we should for ever have lain, had not this grace appeared as a shining fun to difpel it, Tit. ii. 11. So the word rendered appeared properly tignifics. And shall we now like night-owls flee from the face of the rifing fun, and like wild beasts get into our hellish dens, when this fun is up? Are we struck blind with its light, and fuch creatures of darknefs, that we will love darknefs rather than light?

(2.) It is uncommon grace. This fun enlightens but a fmall part of the world. The moft part are yet without the gofpel; and this land had it not always. Nothing but grace brought it to, and has kept it with us. And fhall we receive it vain? Ah! will not the wild Americans think us unworthy of a place in the fame hell with them?

(3.) It is the greateft grace that God ever beflowed on the world God has given fome nations gold mines, precious flones, fpices, plenty of corns, &cc.; and he has given fome the gofpel without thefe; fo that we may fay of them, "Ifrael then fhall dwell in fafety alone: the fountain of Jacob fhall be upon a land of corn and wine; alfo his heavens fhall drop down dew. Happy art thou, O Ifrael: who is like unto thee, O people faved by the Lord, the fhield of thy help, and who is the fword of thy excellency! and thine enemies fhall be found liars unto thee, and thou fhalt tread upon their high places," Deut. xxxiii. 28. 29. Barley-bread and the gofpel is good cheer, if people receive it not in vain, If. If. xxx. 20. 21. There is a treafure in the gofpel, Chrift in it is the greateft of all mercies, Matth. xiii. 44. Ah ! fhall fuch a price be put in the hands of fools, that have no heart to it.

(4.) It is God's last grace to the world, Heb. i. 1. No other difpenfation of grace shall ever the world fee more. Now, Sirs, the last ship for Immanuel's land is making ready to go; therefore now or never, Heb. x. 26. 27. "For if we fin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaines no more facrifice for fins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment, and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries." This gospel is the Lord's farewel fermon to the world. The Lord has made a feast for the world these five thousand years, and the hast dish is ferved up now. O then receive it not in vain !

(5.) Laftly, It is grace that may be loft, Matth. xxiii. 37. 38. The fun of the golpel has gone down in fome places, where it fhined as clearly as ever it did in Scotland, and God knows if ever it rife again there. That we have received it much in vain, is plain from the heavy hand of God on us at this day in temporal calamities, Hof. ii. 9.; yea, and his threatening us with the removal of the golpel, ver. 11. O then receive it not in vain; but, while ye have the light, be walking in it: for to look no farther than the entertainment the golpel is getting at this day, it is a fad fign there is a black night abiding us: fo that I think minifters and people fhould fet themfelves about it as a way-going commodity.

THE DANGER OF NOT COMPLYING WITH THE GOSPEL-CALL.

Prov. ix. 12.—If thou be wife, thou shalt be wife for thyself : but if thou fcorness, thou alone shalt bear it.

"THIS verfe is the epilogue or conclusion of the gofpel-I treaty with finners, carried on with them by the meffengers of Chrift in his name. It is a folemn declaration or protestation that it is shut up with. The entertainment the gofpel meets with, is twofold, and there are two forts (and but two) of gofpel-hearers. (1.) Compliers with the gofpelcall; thefe are called the wife. (2.) Refufers ; thefe are flyled fcorners. The declaration looks to both, and is carried as it were, after the offer is made, to every individual man and woman's door that hears the gospel. It is not, They that are wife, shall be wife for themselves; but hereby the Lord speaks to every one in particular, If thou be wife, thou shalt be wife for thy/elf, &c. Which class foever one puts himfelf into, here is his cafe declared. (1.) If thou be wife, and comply, the gain shall be thine own; it is not the Lord's, but the fruit shall drop into thine own lap (2.) If thou fcorneft, and refuleft, the lofs shall be thine, it will lie chiefly at least on thine own head. So the exclusive particle is taken. Pfal. li. 4 .---" Against thee, thee only have 1 finned."

I detign not to infift on these words, but only with them to shut up the call to the improvement of the gospel and religion which I have been giving you. Thus the great duty is laid before you: and now I would apply the words of the text unto you on this occasion, and to every one of you. Ye have heard the nature of faith and repentance, the utility of public ordinances for falvation, and the necessity of not receiving of the gospel in vain. Now, finner, what wilt thou do? wilt thou comply with the gospel-offer or not? Well, I protest and declare in the terms of the text, If there be wise, thou shall be wise for thy felf: but if thou fcorness, thou alone shall bear bear it. I fhall branch out this protestation in three particulars.

Firft, If thou be not a complier with the gofpel-call, thou art a fcorner of it: there is no mids. This is evident from the text, which divides all gofpel-hearers into thefe two forts. Now, thou art no⁻ a complier with the gofpel-call, as long as,

I. Thou entertaineft any prejudice againft religion, and wilt not come to Chrift, John v. 40. Thou art a refufer in that cafe, thou wilt not be obedient, but turneft away thine ear and fhoulder. Men may receive and comply with a form of religion and a profeffion, who yet are under reigning prejudice againft the power of godlinefs, 2 Tim. iii. 5. Now, fince religion lies inwardly, and confifts not in word, but in power, thefe are not compliers, for they fay they will not come into the inner court.

2. Thou art in a doubt whether to come or not, or delayeft and putteft it off. Halters between two opinions are not compliers with the gofpel-call. Nor will the call admit of a delay, like that of the fluggard, "Yet a little fleep, a little flumber, a little folding of the hands to fleep," Prov. vi. to. For fee the effect of fuch a fluggith delay, ver. II. "So fhall thy poverty come as one that travelleth, and thy want as an armed man." It is, "To-day, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your heart." If thou delay then till to-morrow, thou rejecteft the call, thou art a fcorner of the offer.

3. If in any cafe thou doft not come, doft not turn from thy fins unto God in Chrift, fincerely, thoroughly, and univerfally, thou doft not comply, Jer. iii. 10. The hypocrite, that fatisfies himfelf with his partial turning, is a non-complier, a rebel against King Christ, as well as the profane, and shall bear the weight of it, Pfal. cxxv. 5. " As for fuch as turn afide into their crooked ways, the Lord shall lead them forth with the workers of iniquity." Now, in this cafe of thy not complying with the gofpel-call, our God looks on thee as the fcorner of it, Pfal. i. 1. Prov. i. 22. 26. What king proclaiming an indemnity to rebels, would not look on those that refused to take the benefit of it, as fcorners of his clemency? Is it poffible for him to look on them as neutrals with refpect to his intereft? nay, he must look on them as engrained enemies to his perfon and government. So is the cafe here. And that thou art guilty of fcorning in this, will be evident, if you confider, that, by your not complying with the gofpel-call,

(1.) Thou abufeft the mercy, goodnefs, and patience of God. God offers thee mercy and grace in his own way, upon thy coming to him in Chrift, leaving thy fins. But thou grafpeft at his mercy in thy fins, as if thou wouldft offer violence to the mercy of God, faying, as Deut. xxix. 19. "I fhall have peace, though I walk in the imagination of my heart, to add drunkennefs to thirft." Thou fnatcheft peace out of his hand, and by thy grafping of gofpel-privileges, making no conficience of gofpel-duties, fcorneft the call.

(2.) Thou flighteft, making no account of the golpelcall, but indeed lookeft on it as a trifling, inconfiderable thing, Job xli. 29. Is not this the treatment the golpel meets with from the moft part? "They make light of it," Matth. xxii. 5. The great offer of the golpel is defpifed, the good things it offers are undervalued, and any the leaft worldly pleafure or profit is preferred; and for the threatenings wherewith it is backed, they are in effect looked upon but as bugbears and fcarecrows, the founding again of the mountains; and thus they are fcorned.

(3.) Thou expose it to fhame and different is not that forming? Prov. xx. t. A generous fpirit knows how far a man is out, when his offered kindnefs and good-will is neglected. And thus thou treateft the God that made thee. He offers thee his friendship before the world, angels, and men, and thou regardes it not; the Son of God courts thee by his ambassifiadors to a marriage with himfelf, but thou flightest the proposal. And is not that to form him, and rub an affront on him, before all that are witness to the neglect thou puttest upon him?

(4.) Thou faileft of thy fair promifes, and fo defeateft and fruftrateft good expectations concerning thee. And is not that fcorning? Matth. ii. 16. Heathens do not fcorn the royal Bridegroom; for as he was never in their offer, fo they never faid they would not take him: but as thou waft baptized in his name, thou didft engage to be his, and yet thou rueft again, and fayeft, Thou wilt have none of him. How many times haft thou broken thy word to him, after thou hadft given a confent, yea, fealed the contract before many witneffes at a facrament or fo? How often haft thou fcorned thy God, as the fon did his father, faying, "I go, but went not?" Matth. xxi. 30.

(5.) La/l/y, Thou makeft thyfelf merry with thy difobedience to this call, Prov. xiv. 9. Is not that fcorning? How many are they that expressly mock at religion and ferioufnefs.

nefs, and look on many of the duties of religion as below them ? But befides, whatever joy thou haft in any thing, efpecially in finful practices, while thou flighteft the call of the golpel, it is in effect a fcorning of that call Even as the condemned malefactor, who being offered a reprieve or pardon, refuses it, and yet is jovial, does fcorn the pardon, the king's mercy.

Hence ye may conclude, that God will deal with you as fcorners. A king finding himfelf mocked and fcorned, falls into rage, as Herod did, Matth. ii. 16. And God's anger will burn hot against the feorners of his grace, Prov. i. 22. 26. Those that will have none of his grace, will drink deep of his cup of vengeance, Luke xix. 27.

Secondly, If thou comply with the gospel-call, thou shalt therein act wifely for thyfelf : the gain shall be thine own, the fruit shall fall into thine own bosom. Two things are imported in this.

1. Men, by their complying with the gospel call to faith, and holinefs, and repentance, do not bring any profit or gain to God. There is a great profit by it, but it defcends to themfelves, afcends not to God, Job xxii. 2. & xxxv. 7. Pfal. xvi. 2.

To confirm this, confider,

(1.) God is infinite in perfections, felf-fufficient, and therefore the creatures can add nothing to him; for nothing can be added to what is infinite; and nothing given unto him who poffeffeth all things.

(2.) All the goodnefs and profitablenefs of men or angels, or any creature, comes from God. He that gives all things to all, needs nothing from any, Acts xvii. 25. We receive all from God : where is that, then, we have to give him, whereby he may be profited?

Inf. 1. Then let no man be fcared from coming to God in Chrift, becaufe of his unworthinefs, that he is an ufelefs and a fruitlefs creature, that can do nothing for God. For the best and holiest of men cannot profit him. He will never turn his back, becaufe we bring nothing with us, If. lv. 2.

2. Miftake not the reason of our Lord's earnestness with you to bring you to repentance. It is not that he expects any advantage by your return ; it is for your own good, not He is not dealing with you, as one that hires a ferfor his. vant, becaufe he needs one, and cannot want one; but like a compaffionate perfon that is dealing with a frantic one, that that will needs deftroy himfelf in the water. God may fay to the greateft men, the richeft, aye, and the moft penitent finners, and the holieft alive, I have no need of you.

VOL. III.

3. Ye can do God no real hurt by your continuing impenitent in your fins, Job xxxv. 6. 8. Your fins can reach him as little to his lofs, as your obedience to his profit. All fin is againft the mind of God, but there is no fin againft the happinefs of God. If it were possible, and all the angels in heaven, and all the men on earth, fhould confpire with the devils againft him, it could not diminish one jot of his happinefs, nor create him the least real uneasiness thereby. Ail is but like a dog's barking at the moon, or one's rushing his head against a rock, which stands unmoved, but he is wounded.

4. Lafly, By thy compliance with the call of God, and the duties of religion, while others flight them, do not thou think thou obligeft God, or that he is more indebted to thee than to others, Luke xvii. 10. Thou acteft indeed more for thy own intereft than they; but as he fuffers no damage by their folly, fo he reaps no advantage by thy duties.

2. If thou compliest with the call of the gospel, the profit shall be thine own; though God do not and cannot gain by it, thou shalt. Thou shalt be wife for thyself. The phrase imports two things.

 i_f , Thou shalt gain by it, thou shalt advance thy own interest thereby. Men praise them that do good to themfelves; they that hearken to the gospel-call do fo. When the rest of the world are mispending their time and talents like a parcel of fools, thou art acting a wise part, consulting thy own true interest. Briefly, this gain lies in two things.

(1.) In faving, or preventing of lofs. Thou fhalt prevent the lofs of God's favour, thy own foul, happinefs, &c. A penny faved is a penny gained. And is not a foul faved from the pit a noble gain? Well, if thou be wife for thy-felf, thou fhalt fave a foul from death, and hide a multitude of fins.

(2.) In getting what we want. If thou be wife for thyfelf, thou thalt not only fave, but get, make a purchafe. Thou thalt gain for time, and gain for eternity, 1 Tim. iv. 8. Whatever drops out of the promife, or is wrung out of the everlafting covenant, they drop all into the lap of the penitent finner. And there is all in them for time and eternity. The The earth is in them, and the heavens are in them. So shalt thou be wife for thyfelf in gaining thefe.

2dly, No body shall go between thee and thy gain, in the enjoyment of it. How often is that verified quickly, " One foweth, and another reapeth ;" one has the pains, and another gets the fruit ? Matth. vi. 20. " Lay up for yourfelves treafures in heaven, where neither moth nor ruft doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor fteal." Many a wife man of the world is a fool for himfelf, and wife for others. He gathers, and others enjoy the treasure. And death makes it fo at length; and therefore the world's good things are called another man's, only those of another world are our own, which no man shall leave to his heirs, Luke Now, if thou be wife for thyfelf, thou shalt carry xvi. 12. thy gain into another world with thee, and it shall be thine own, and not another's.

Thirdly, If by not complying with the gospel-call, thou fcornest it, thou shalt get the weight of that to bear thyfelf: Thou alone shalt bear it. And it is heavier than mountains of brafs, and of everlafting continuance, even everlafting jugdment without mercy, Prov. i. 26. And,

1. Thou shalt bear the blame of it. It is a heavy blame, a weighty guilt; but thou shalt not get another's back in all the creation to lay it on, and fhift it off thy own. They that comply may blefs God; they that do not may thank themfelves. The caufe is from themfelves.

2. Thou shalt bear the loss of it, the loss of what thou fcorneft, the lofs of grace, the favour of God, the lofs of heaven. Thy blood fhall be on thine own head. The fcorning of the call brings a heavy load of wrath; but thou alone fhalt bear it : that is,

(1.) God that called thee fhall not bear it, either blame A man's heart perverts his way now, and his heart or lofs. fretteth against the Lord; and I cannot think that the hearts of the reprobate in hell will be more reconciled to this difpenfation, Matth. xxv. 24. 25. But the Lord will throw the weight of it back on thee, and thou alone shalt bear it; for though he was not obliged to give thee grace, yet he offered it to thee, and thou refused it.

(2.) His faithful fervants that warned thee, and called thee to comply with the call of God, fhall not bear it, Ezek. xxxiii. q. Nay, every call of theirs, every fermon, exhortation, reproof, and warning, in public or private, shall turn ir it back on thyfelf. Every figh, groan, wafte of their firength, for warning thee, fhall turn it upon thee with a witnefs; And thou alone fhalt bear it. Nay,

(3.) They that had a hand in thy not complying fhall not bear it. They that tempted thee to fin, thy gracelefs neighbours and companions, whole face thou fhalt curfe the day that ever thou faweft it, they fhall not bear it. Even unfaithful minifters, who either fhall not warn thee, or by their unholy life harden thee, they fhall not bear it, and thou wilt not find fhelter under their wings. Nay, the devil himfelf, who goes about like a roaring lion feeking whom he may devour, and does what he can to hinder thee, even he fhall not bear it. For they do not force thee, but entice and tempt thee to fin; they lay the bait, but it is thy own fault that thou embraceft it : they lay the flumbling-block, the occafion of finning, in thy way; but thou art obliged to go by it, and hold off from it.

It is true, they fhall bear the weight of the hand they had in thy ruin; but, alas! what is that to thee? what good will it do to thy poor foul? It is in this cafe as when one draws another into the water, and both are drowned together: alas! what is it to the man whom the other drew, that his companion is drowned himfelf too? that does not fave his life, Ezek. xxxiii. 8. So they fhall not bear it, but thou alone fhalt bear it.

[1.] None fhall bear it for thee, nor take the burden off thy back. The foul that finneth, it dies. The finner fhall be the fufferer. They that refufe the Surety of the Father's chufing, to bear the burden in their flead, fhall not get another furety nor burden bearer for them among angels or men. Nay, thou alone, and not another for thee, fhalt bear it.

[2.] None fhall bear it with thee, to eafe thee of a part of the weight, Gal. vi. v. There will be no relieving out of the flames, fo there will be none that will be fo kind as to bring a drop of water to cool the tongue in it, Ezek. xvi. 24. The whole weight fhall lie upon thyfelf. Thou alone, and not another with thee, fhalt bear it.

Wherefore confider what ye do. Be wife, finners, and repent: For except ye repent, ye thall perifh. The found of the Lord's word goes away, and dies out as other founds : but it liveth and abideth for ever in its efficacy, for the falvation or condemnation of those that hear it. So death and life are let before you, the blefling and the curfe. If thou be wife, thou shalt be wife for thyfelf: but if thou fcorness, thou alone shalt bear it.

HOW

HOW THE SACRAMENTS BECOME EFFECTUAL MEANS OF SALVATION.

I Cor. xii. 13.—For by one Spirit are we all baptifed into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.

I COME now to handle the queftions in the Catechifm concerning the facraments. And the first of these is that touching the efficacy of these holy ordinances, which is one of the doctrines of this text, in which the apostle explains and confirms the doctrine of the mystical union ber twixt Christ and his people, from the two facraments.

I explained this text at large, when fpeaking of the myf_{π} tical union from it *. I fhall only confider it now, in fg far as it relates to the facraments. And fo there is,

1. The number of the facraments of the New Teftament, Thefe are two, viz. baptifm, "We are all baptifed," &c.; and the Lord's Supper, called here drinking; the denomination being taken from the cup, as it is called breaking of bread, the name being taken from the bread therein ufed, Acts ii. 42. The former is the facrament of our initiation into Chrift, and union with him; the other, of our nourifhment in, and communion with him.

2. 'The efficacy of thefe facraments. They are effectual to falvation in those in whom they have their effect, they being united to Christ into one body, and partaking more and more of his Spirit, in those ordinances respectively; which fo fecures their falvation from fin, and wrath too.

* See vol. ii,

3. To

3. To whom they are effectual. Not to all, but to believers only, $We \ all$, viz. who are members of Chrift, ver.

4. How they become effectual. Their efficacy is not from themfelves, nor from the administrator, but from the Spirit of Christ. By one Spirit are we all baptifed, &c. So their efficacy depends on the operation of the Holy Ghost in and by them : and to this is prefupposed the bleffing of Christ, fince the Holy Spirit does not work with means unbleffed by Jefus Christ.

The purport of the text may be fummed up in the following doctrine, viz.

DOCT. "The facraments become effectual means of falvation, not from any virtue in them, or in him that doth administer them; but only by the bleffing of Christ, and the working of his Spirit in them that by faith receive them."

Here let us confider,

I. That the facraments are means of falvation.

II. Wherein lies the efficacy of the facraments, or when may it be faid that the facraments are effectual means of falvation.

III. To whom are they effectual ? or in whom have they their efficacy ?

IV. Whence is their efficacy?

V. Conclude with fome inferences.

I. I fhall thew, that the facraments are means of falvation. For clearing of this, we fhall inquire,

I. What is that falvation which the facraments are faid to be means of ? It is the whole falvation purchased by Jefus Chrift for the elect; which confifts of two parts. (1.) Salvation from fin, Matth. i. 21. "He fhall fave his people from their fins." Senfible finners look on fin as the mortal difeafe of the foul; and to be faved from it, in the guilt and power thereof, they will account the great falvation, as indeed it is. (2.) Salvation from wrath, under which all must perish that partake not of Christ's falvation, I Thes. i. 10.--" Jefus which delivereth us from the wrath to come." This is the warding off the blow of juffice, the ftroke of death eternal, from the neck of a poor creature. Both these parts make it a great falvation, the greatest that a poor finner is capable of, Heb. ii. 3. And this falvation is fo abfolutely 2 folutely neceffary, that it is no wonder to fee a finner inquiring after the means of it.

2. What a mean of falvation is ? A mean has a relation to an end, and is that which is ufed to bring about the end. And a mean of falvation is any thing appointed of God in the ufe of which he carries on the falvation of his people. Thus all divine inftitutions in the church are means of filvation, that being the common end of them all, Matth. xxviii. 20. Among these the most eminent are, the word, facraments, and prayer. Prayer has a relation to both, and is to be mixed with them. The difference betwixt the two former is,

That the word is the mean of conversion, and the facraments the means of confirmation: fo the word is the leading, and the facraments are the fubsequent, means of falvation. The word is first to have its effect, then the facraments have theirs on the foul, 1 Cor. iii. 5. with Rom. iv. 11.

Now, that the facraments are fuch means of falvation, appears,

1. From the Lord's appointing of them for that end to be ufed, Acts iii. 37. 38. "Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and faid unto Peter, and to the reft of the apoftles, Men and brethren, what fhall we do? Then Peter faid unto them, Repent, and be baptifed every one of you, in the name of Jefus Chrift, for the remiffion of fins, and ye fhall receive the gift of the Holy Ghoft." I Cor. x. 16. "The cup of bleffing which we blefs, is it not the communion of the blood of Chrift? the bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Chrift?" And in that communion lies the fafety of our fouls for time and eternity.

3. From the faving effects which they have on the fouls of God's people rightly uling them. This is a fufficient teftimony to their being fuch means, and proper means, Acts viii. 39. and ii. 42. &c.

II. Queft. Wherein lies the efficacy of the facraments, or when may it be faid, that the facraments are effectual means of falvation?

The efficacy of a mean is its reaching the end for which it is appointed. If it fall fhort of that, it is ineffectual. The efficacy of a reproof lies in its reforming the party, and of meat in its nourifhing the body. Now, the end of the facraments being to reprefent, feal, and apply, Chrift and his benefits benefits to the foul, the efficacy of the facraments lies in their reaching thefe ends; and then are they effectual, when they not only reprefent, but feal and apply, Chrift and his benefits to the receiver, Rom. iv. 11. 1 Cor. xii, 13. 1 Pet. iii. 21. In a word, it lies in effectual oblignation and application of Chrift and his benefits. And when they reach not thefe ends, they are not effectual.

Now, fometimes thefe effects of the facraments are fo lively and evident, that the foul perceives them, as the eunuch did, Acts viii. 38. when he went on his way rejoicing. Sometimes they are not difcerned by the believer, though really they are wrought in him, as it was with the two difciples going to Emmaus, in another cafe, Luke xxiv. The following are figns of this efficacy.

Sign 1. The foul's cleaving more clofely to the hope of the covenant than before, going out of itfelf more to Jefus Chrift and his righteoufnefs. This being the confequent of the facraments, is an evidence of the oblignation, Phil. iii. 3.

Sign 2. More folid tendernefs with respect to fin and duty, and longing to be rid of the body of fin and death. This is a fign of the application, Rom. vi. 4. & viii. 23. For nearnefs to Chrift is the caufe of distance from fin.

III. Quefl. To whom are the factaments effectual? or in whom have they their efficacy?

i. Not to all who partake of them. Simon was baptifed, but continued in the gall of bitternels and the bond of iniquity, Acts viii. 13. 23. Men may partake of the Lord's fupper unworthily. The apoftle tells us how highly fome were advanced in respect of facramental priveleges, with whom God was not well pleafed, 1 Cor. x. 1.-5. And fad experience bears witnels to this truth.

2. It is effectual to believing receivers, as to the Ethiopian eunuch, Acts viii. 37. 39. Mark xvi. 16. "He that believeth and is baptifed, fhall be faved." It is with the facraments as with the word, Heb. iv. 2. "The word did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it." But this is not to exclude infants from the efficacy of baptifin, fince they are not capable of actual believing; but they having the fpirit of faith abiding in them, baptifm has its effect on them.

IV. Queft. Whence is the efficacy of the facraments? Negatively, 1. It is not from any virtue in themfelves that that thefe bleffed effects are produced. God has put a power of nourifhment in our meat, and of warming in our clothes; but no power of working grace either in the water of baptifm, or the bread and wine in the Lord's fupper. So the work wrought will never confer grace. The foriptures denies this power to the facraments themfelves, 1 Pet. iii. 21. "Baptifm doth now fave us, (not the putting away of the filth of the flefh, but the answer of a good conficience towards God), by therefurcction of Jefus Chrift." And many thoufands are partakers of the facraments, who yet never partake of the grace of God, as Simon. Thefe pools will never prove healing, if there be not a moving of the waters from a fuperior caufe.

2. It is not from the piety nor intention of the administrator neither. The holinefs and beft qualifications that ever were in a minister cannot make them effectual; let them burn and fhine with light and life in the administration, they cannot make them effectual to one foul, 1 Cor. iii. 6. 7. " I have planted (fays Paul), Apollos watered; but God gave the increafe. So then, neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase." The efficacy of God's ordinances depends not on men, the administrators, either as to the making or marring their efficacy, Phil. i. 16. 17. 18. " The one preach Chrift of contention, not fincerely, fuppoling to add affliction to my bonds: But the other of love, knowing that I am fet for the defence of the gofpel. What then? notwithftanding every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Chrift is preached; and therein do I rejoice, yea, and will rejoice." They may be employed in faving others, who are callaways themselves.

Pofitively, 1. The efficacy of the facraments depends on the bleffing of Chrift, as the caufe without which they could have no efficacy, for as much as the Spirit of Chrift will not work by means unbleffed, Matth. xv. 9. "In vain do they worfhip me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." But Chrift has bleffed thefe ordinances firft, and then the Spirit of Chrift will not work by means unbleffed, Matth. xv. 9. "In vain do they worfhip me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." But Chrift has bleffed thefe ordinances, firft, and then the Spirit works in them and by them. Now, this bleffing of Chrift is contained in the inftitution of the facraments; which comprehends two things, here called Chrift's bleffing.

(1.) A command authorifing the ufe of thefe ordinances. (2.) A promife of benefit by them to the worthy receivers, Matth. xxviii. 19. 20. & xxvi. 26. &c.

VOL. III.

I Cor.

2. It depends on the working of the Spirit in them and by them on the fouls of the receivers, as the efficient caufe, I Cor. xii. 13. The Spirit comes along with them, and renders them effectual to his own.

I fhall fhut up all with a few inferences.

Inf. 1. Hence learn to prize the facraments, and behold the dreadful nature of the fin of flighting them. They are means of falvation, and therefore ought to be dear to all who would partake of falvation. Those who flight the means, undervalue the end, the great falvation. Did many amongst us confider this, they durft not fo eafily live without the word or facraments, as they do, Luke vii. 30.

2. Reft not on the facraments. They are but means, which are not effectual to every one that receives them. Many receive them both who never receive Chrift; but for all that they wear Chrift's badge, they work the devil's work. And it is not your receiving of them, but receiving benefit by them, that will be a good plea in the end, Luke xiii. 26. 27.

3. Look more to Chrift's inftitution, and promife accompanying it, with refpect to the facraments, and lefs to men who have a commiffion to administer them, if ye would not mar your benefit by the ordinances. It is lamentable to think, that where the minister's commission cannot be quarrelled, and Chrift's inftitution is observed, many nevertheles are fo weak, as to be frighted from God's ordinance with fcruples about the administrators, as if the Spirit of God could not be expected to work with Chrift's inftitutions, unlefs they be in the hands of fuch and fuch ministers. This absurd and finful practice prevails to much at this day, as if the efficacy of the facraments depended on the administrators.

4. Lafly, Be concerned for the working of the Spirit in all ordinances, and particularly in the facraments; for without that they can have no effect. When ye bring your children to baptifm, and when ye come to the Lord's table, be concerned, and earneftly wrefile and pray for it. Let it be at thefe feafons the matter of your exercise, that the Lord may accompany thefe folemu ordinances with divine life and power unto you, and may excite your graces unto a vigorous and lively exercise, without which they will be utterly ineffectual to you.

THE

THE NATURE OF THE SACRAMENTS.

Rom. iv. 11.—And he received the fign of circumcifion, a feal of the righteoufnefs of the faith, which he had yet being uncircumeifed.

THIS text difcovers the nature of a facrament, in the defoription the apoftle gives us of circumcifion, which Abraham received. In which confider,

I. The factament itfelf which the apoftle treats of, circumcifion, which was the initiating feal of the covenant under the Old Teftament, and has been fucceeded by baptifm under the New.

2. The author of it. Abraham invented it not, but received it from the Lord, whole inftitution it was, Gen. xvii. 10. ^{cf} This is my covenant, which ye fhall keep between me and you, and thy feed after thee; every man-child among you fhall be circumcifed *;" even as the apoftle fays, 1 Cor. xi.

On this paffage the author, in his Critical Estay on Genefis, from which fome extracts have been given above, p. 183. 212. thus comments : " This [is the defign of] my covenant, which ye fhall obferve ; between me, and you ; and thy feed, after thee : That is, This is the fign between me and you, and thy feed, even the fign of the covenant. Between you; q. d. Between you between you, i. e. you and every one of you, Abraham and his whole family, male and female, without exception, then in being; opposed to his feed after him. Thus all his are taken with him into the covenant, fo far as to have a right to the feal of it. That every male, be circumcifed for you. The construction and fense of these words is, To be circumcifed is the covenant (i. e. the fign thereof) which ye shall observe. Thus the great duty of the covenant is made, to be believing and depending on the promise of the covenant; wholly trusting on, and cleaving to, the righteousness of faith, whereof circumcifion was the feal, Rom. iv. 11.; the which is produc-Nn 2 tive xi. 23. "I have received of the Lord, that which alfo I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jefus, the fame night in which he was betrayed, took bread, &c.

3. The parts of it; an external fign, the cutting off of the forefkin; an invifible grace, the righteoufnefs of faith.

4. The ufes and ends of it : It was appointed to be a figm and a feal too, not nakedly fignifying, but exhibiting and applying fpiritual bleffings.

Laftly, The fubject of it: a believer, one to whom the righteonfnefs of faith belonged. Such a perfor was Abraham₃ and fuch are all who truly believe in Chrift.

The doctrine of this text is,

Doct. "A facrament is an holy ordinance, infituted by Chrift, wherein, by fenfible figns, Chrift, and the benefits of the new covenant, are reprefented, fealed, and applied to believers."

Here we are to confider,

I. The word facrament.

II. The author of the facrament.

III. The parts of a facroment.

IV. Shew what is the facramental union of these parts, or wherein it lies.

V. Who are the fubjects of the facraments, for whom they are appointed of God.

VI. What are the general uses and ends of the facraments.

VII. Deduce fome inferences.

I. Let us confider the word facrament. Of which two things are to be noted. (1.) That it properly fignifies a military oath, an oath taken by foldiers, whereby they bound themfelves folemnly to their prince or general, to obey orders, and not to defert their colours. And fome fay this oath was mutual.

tive of all other duties. Further, thefe words bear this meaning, viz. That every male of you be circumcifed for you: that is, in the name of the whole family, confifting of women as well as of men: that fo you may be altogether one people in the bond of the covenant; compare Gen. xxxiv. 15. 22. And thus there appears a twofold reafon, why our Lord Jefus Chrift was circumcifed: (1.) That it might be to him a feal of the promifes mentioned, Gen. xvii. 4.—S. (2.) Becaufe he was the head, and to the most noble part, of that one people embodied with him, in the covenant of grace, for whom he received the promifes.

284

mutual. (2.) That it is not a fcripture-word; not being ufed in any of the two languages in which the fcripture was written, but a Latin word originally. But the church has made ufe of it to fignify those ordinances which are the figns and feals of the covenant of grace; and that warrantably, because the things thereby fignified are found in fcripture, though not the word itself. For by the facraments we are obliged to the spiritual warfare under the conduct of Jefus Christ, the Captain of our falvation, to whom we engage ourfelves by them, and he also engages himself to us for our falvation.

II. The Author of the facraments is the Lord Jefus Chrift, as King and Head of his church. Man neither made nor can make a facrament, but the Lord only. For, (1.) He only is the Author of the word of promife, and of the covenant: who then but he can make the feals thereof? (2.)The facraments are a part of religious worthip, which belongs only to God to appoint, Matth. xv. 8. The Lord Jefus is the Author of them, by his inftituting of them. They are inftituted by himfelf, Matth. xxviii. 19. 20. " Go ye and teach all nations (fays he to his difciples), baptifing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoft; teaching them to observe all things what sever I have commanded you." I Cor. xi. 23. " I have received of the Lord, that which alfo I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jefus, the fame night in which he was betrayed, took bread," &c. It is the word of inftitution that makes the facrament, which confifts of a command to use the rite, and a promife of grace annexed to the right use of it.

III. Let us confider the parts of a facrament. Thefe are two.

1. An outward and fenfible fign ufed according to Chrift's own appointment, which is fomething that we can fee with our eyes, or perceive by our bodily fenfes. Thefe are of two forts. (1.) Signifying things. Such are the water in baptifm, and the bread and wine in the Lord's fupper. (2.) Signifying actions; for the facramental actions, being fignificant, as well as the things, are figns, and fenfible figns, which we may fee with our eyes. Such are the fprinkling of the water in baptifm, and the breaking, giving, and receiving, of the bread and wine in the Lord's lupper.

I fay, ufed according to Chrift's appointment; and therefore fore these fame things and actions are not facramental when otherwise used, as when water is sprinkled, or bread broken, without those other circumstances appointed by Jefus Christ in these ordinances. For where there is no divine infitution, there is no facrament.

2. An inward and fpiritual grace thereby fignified, Matth. iii. 11. " I indeed baptife you with water unto repentance; but he that cometh after me, is mightier than I, whofe fhoes I am not worthy to bear; he fhall baptife you with the Holy Ghoft, and with fire. 1 Pet. iii. 21. " The like figure whereunto, even baptifm, doth alfo now fave us, (not the putting away of the filth of the flefh, but the anfwer of a good conficience towards God), by the refurrection of Jefus Chrift." Rom. ii. 28. 29. "For he is not a Jew, which is one outwardly; neither is that circumcifion, which is outward in the flefh: but he is a Jew, which is one inwardly; and circumcifion is that of the heart, in the fpirit, and not in the letter, whole praise is not of men, but of God." The figns are earthly, to be perceived with the bodily eyes; the thing fignified heavenly, to be perceived only by faith. The former tends to the body, the latter to the foul. The one is received corporally, the other fpiritually.

The thing fignified by the facramental figns is Jefus Chrift himfelf, with all his faving benefits, Rom. vi. 3. 1 Cor. xi. 24. "This is my body," &c. Not Chrift's benefits without himfelf; for as there is no wathing with water, without application of the water itfelf, and no nourifhment by bread and wine, without eating and drinking of it; fo there is no partaking of Chrift's benefits without partaking of himfelf, Heb. iii. 14. Rom. viii. 32. So unbelievers can have no faving benefit by the facraments. Not Chrift himfelf without his faving benefits; for Chrift himfelf is the kernel of the facraments: and wherever he comes, he brings all faving benefits along with him, Rom. viii. 32. even the purchafe of his death.

The fum of these faving benefits ye have in that word, 1 Cor. i. 30. " Of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and fanctification, and redemption;" which comprehends all that is necessary for the cure of the case of any poor finner.

IV. I proceed to fhew, what is the facramental union of thefe parts, or where in it doth lie. There is an union of the parts of the facraments, and without it they could not be be accounted parts of the facraments. It is by virtue of the union betwixt the figns and the fignified, that the one gets the name of the other, Gen. xvii. 10. 1 Cor. xi. 24. 25. "This is my body, This cup is the new teftament in my blood;" yea, and the effects of the one are afcribed to the other, Tit. iii. 5. "Not by works of righteoufnefs which we have done, but according to his mercy he faved us, by the wafhing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghoft." Now, this is not a natural or local union; for in refpect of place they are as far diftant as heaven and earth : but it is a relative union, confifting in that foritual relation that is between the fign and the thing fignified, made by virtue of Chrift's inflitution, whereby the figns fignify or reprefent, feal, and exhibit to worthy receivers the thing fignified.

V. I come to fhew, who are the fubjects of the facraments for whom they are appointed of God. They are thof, and those only, who are within the covenant, Kom. xv. 8. " Jefus Chrift was a minister of the circumcifion for the truth of God, to confirm the promifes made unto the fathers." Exod. xii. 48. " When a ftranger shall fojourn with thee, and will keep the paffover to the Lord, let all his males be circumcifed, and then let him come near and keep it; and he fhall be as one that is born in the land : for no uncircumcifed perfon shall eat thereof." For the feals of the covenant can belong to none but those who are in it. So they have a right to them before God who are favingly within the covenant. and those a right before the church who are in it by a credible profettion. Believers and their feed have a right to baptifm; but only Chriftians come to years have a right to the Lord's fupper, 1 Cor. xi. 28. " But let a man examine himfelf," &c.

VI. Laftly, I come to fhew, what are the general uses and ends of the facraments. The principal uses and ends are threefold.

1. To be holy figns to fignify and reprefent Chrift and his benefits to the believer, to be differred by faith, Rom. iv. 11. There is a fitnefs in them for this end, there being a plain refemblance betwixt the figns and the thing fignified; whereby the figns do bring into their minds, and do clearly reprefent to a fipiritual different the thing fignified. And thus they ftrengthen faith, and all other graces in a believer; as feeing helps believing.

2. To

2. To be Heaven's public feals to feal the covenant, Rom. It is by them that God folennly ratifies and coniv. 11. firms the covenant with believers. The covenant is held out in the word to be embraced by all to whom it comes : by believing we enter into the covenant; by the facraments God declares it to be a bargain, as one does by fubicribing a contract, and fealing it. And thus also they ftrengthen faith and all other graces; and oblige the believer to obedience, as one in covenant with God, Rom. vi. 3.

3. To be means of applying and exhibiting Chrift and his benefits to the believer, I Cor. xi. 24. So that with the facramental figns, in the right ufe of them, is joined the poffeffion and actual enjoyment of the thing fignified : " This is my body, take, eat." As one is put in poffession of houses or lands, by earth and ftone given them, according to law, upon a difpolition : fo is the believer made partaker of Chrift, and folemnly put in poffeffion of all his faving benefits, by The lefs principal end of the facraments is to thefe means. be badges of our Christian profession, to distinguish men from those that are without the church, Eph. ii. 11. 12. " Wherefore remember that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flefh, who are called uncircumcifion, by that which is called the circumcifion in the flefh made by hands; that at that time ye were without Chrift, being aliens from the commonwealth of Ifrael, and strangers from the covenants of promife, having no hope, and without God in the world."

I shall conclude this difcourfe with fome inferences.

Inf. I. Great is the privilege of the covenant, and the benefits thereof, which God has thus appointed to be fealed. Seals are not used in fmall matters, but in those of great importance; how great then must those be which Heaven feals?

2. Our gracious God has fhewn great kindnefs to, and concern for the welfare and comfort of poor finners coming to him through his Son Though his word be firmer than heaven and earth, he remembers our frame, that we are guilty, and therefore fearful and fufpicious creatures; and, for our eafe, that we may the better truft him, has appointed feals of his benefits promifed in his covenant.

3. Great is the fin of flighting the facraments, and neglecting to partake of them. God appended feals to the covenant of works, viz. the tree of life, and that of the knowledge of good and evil. He alfo appointed feals to the covenant of grace, under the old difpenfation, and under the new new too. So divine wildom has feen them always neceffary. What an affront to the wildom and kindnefs of God, and his covenant, muft the flighting of them then be?

4. Laftly, Great is the fin of abufing and profaning the facraments, I Cor. xi. 27. "Whofoever fhall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord unworthily, fhall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord." The unconverted profane the feals of heaven by fetting them to a blank, where there is no covenant. The faints in a dead and fleepy frame do alfo profane them, while they are in no capacity to difcern what they are appointed to reprefent, feal, and apply. O then ufe the facraments in faith, according to Chrift's infitution, and feek his bleffing upon them, that the benefits thereby fealed may become effectually yours.

THE NUMBER OF THE SACRAMENTS, AND THE NATURE OF BAPTISM.

Cor. xii. 13.—For by one Spirit are we all baptifed,—and have been all made 10 drink into one Spirit.

Matth. xxviii. 19.—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptifing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

THE first of these texts, as before explained, holds out the number of the facraments of the New Testament : and from thence we may draw this doctrine, viz.

Doct. "The facraments of the New Teftament are, baptifm, and the Lord's fupper." Vol. III. O o That That this, and only this, is the number of the facraments, we have the following evidences.

1. Thefe were inftituted by the Lord Jefus, and no more, Matth. xxviii. 19. and xxvi. 26.—28. No other bear the ftamp of divine inftitution. And none can fhew any other holy ordinance inftituted by Chrift, wherein, by fenfible figns, Chrift, and the benefits of the new covenant, are reprefented, fealed, and applied to believers.

2. Thefe two fully answer the neceffities of the faints in the case of facraments. Two witness are fufficient to one deed, and the great deed and grant of the covenant are fufficiently witnessed unto by these. What more is there for God's elect to expect in this world, but these two things, that they receive life and nourishment, that they be taken into the covenant, and kept in it? Baptism is the fign of the one, and the Lord's supper of the other. The one is the facrament of our ingrafting into Christ, and the other of our nourishment in him. And there is no special grace whatsoever, but what is fignified and fealed by them.

3. The fame was the number and nature of the ordinary facraments of the Old Teftament. They were no more but circumcifion and the paffover. And plain it is, that the New Teframent difpensation is not more full of external rites and ceremonies than the Old one was. So that the Papifts feven facraments compared with the two lewish ones, must needs shew Popery to be vaftly diftant from the fimplicity of the gofpel. Circumcifion was the initiating facrament then, as baptifm is now, fignifying the putting off of the body of the fins of the flefh, Col. ii. 11.; as baptifm the washing of them away, Acts xxii. 16.; the paffover fignifying Chrift crucified, 1 Cor. v. 7.; as the facrament of the fupper alfo, Matth. xxvi. 26. First they were to be circumcifed, and afterwards to keep the paffover : and fo first to be baptifed, and afterwards to communicate in the Lord's fupper, but no otherwife. Circumcifion was never reiterated, but the paffover frequently.

4. Laftly, As the apoftle, in our text, makes thefe two the bonds of Chriftian communion, and no more; fo he reduces the extraordinary Jewish facraments, in their uses and ends, to those of our two facraments. The being under the cloud, and passing through the Red Sea, he calls their being baptifed, 1 Cor. x. 2. Their eating of the manna, and drinking the water of the rock, he calls their eating of the fame spiritual meat, and drinking the fame spiritual drink, as we do in the Lord's supper, ver. 3. 4.

From

From this point I fhall draw a few inferences.

Inf. 1. Good and gracious is our God to his church and people, under the gofpel in a fpecial manner, who has infituted two, and but two facraments, and thefe eafy and clear. Here we have enough for the confirmation of our faith of the promifes; and we have no reation to fay we are under a heavy yoke. Here none of our blood is to be fhed, but Chrift's blood is most clearly represented as fhed for us.

2. The five facraments which the Papifts have added to our Lord's two, are but baftard facraments, not the badges of Chrift, but of Antichrift. Thefe are, confirmation, penance, orders, marriage, and extreme unction.

Confirmation is the bilhop's anointing of the baptifed with chrism in the forehead, in the form of a cross, with this form of words, "I fign thee with the fign of the cross, and con-"firm thee with the chrism of falvation, in the name of the "Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft." This has no manner of divine infitution, nor is it at all to be found in the fcriptures; and derogates from the facrament of baptism.

Penance is repentance, difcovering itielf by external evidences. The matter of this pretended facrament, they fay, lies in contrition of heart, auricular confeffion, and fatisfaction; the form of it in abfolution by the prieft, as a judge, pardoning their fin, not minifterially, only declaring it. But here is no vifible fign at all, neceffary to contradiftinguifh the facramental figns from the word. No fign at all is adminiftered to the penitent; no promife annexed to a fenfible fign here: therefore no facrament. Befides, auricular confeffion is not inftituted at all by the Lord. And judicial pardon is blafphemous, minifterial declaration of pardon being only competent to minifters, John xx. 23.

Orders is the ordination of church-officers; which is inftituted, but not to be a facrament, it having no promife of faving grace annexed to it. 1 Tim. iv. 14. fpeaks not of faving grace, but of the official gift, viz. authority to preach.

Matrimony has nothing of a facrament in it, fince it has no vifible fign appointed by Chrift, no promife of faving grace annexed to it, and is common to all the world as well as the church. It is mifgrounded on Eph. v. 32. where their corrupt translation reads a great facrament.

Extreme unction is the prieft's anointing the eyes, ears, noftrils, mouth, hands, reins, and feet of a perfon thought to be at the point of death, with olive-oil, confecrated by a bifhop, using these words, " By this holy oil, and his tender

0 0 2

" mercy, God forgive thee all thy fins." It is built on Jam. v. 14. where the miraculous cure of difeafes is fpoke of.

3. See the bent of corrupt nature in meddling with God's inftitutions, the abominations of Popery, and the great mercy of our deliverance from it. We can never be enough thankful to God for the reformation from that grand apoftafy, idolatry, and fuperfition. We ought to hold firmly what we have attained, and ftand fast in the liberty wherewith Chrift hath made us free, that we be not again entangled with any yoke of bondage. Let us ftedfaftly adhere to allthe ordinances and inftitutions of our Lord Jefus Chrift, and vigoroufly oppofe, in our refpective flations and places, all deviations from the fame, from whatever quarter they may come, or under whatever specious pretexts they may be introduced or recommended. To the law and to the testimony let us bring them; and receive and practife nothing in the worfhip and fervice of God, but what is enforced with a Thus faith the Lord. And let us ever remember the extreme danger of all usages and innovations not contained in or authorifed by the written word; and therefore let us from the heart abhor them.

In the fecond text we have the inftitution of baptism. And herein confider,

1. The ordinance itfelf; baptifing in the name of the holy bleffed Trinity. This is expressly inftituted by Jefus Chrift: Go ve therefore, and baptife, &c.

2. The administrators of baptifm; ye apostles, and your fucceffors, in " teaching them to observe all things whatfoever I have commanded. And lo I am with you alway even to the end of the world."

3. The fubjects of baptifm; all nations which are taught Gr. difcipled, made difciples of Chrift. First, they are to be difcipled, and then baptifed.

The doctrine of the text is,

Doct. "The facrament of baptifm is inftituted by our Lord Jefus Chrift."

To open the nature of this facrament, let us confider,

I. The fignifying thing in it.

II. The fignifying action.

III. The particular uses and ends of baptifm.

IV. The fubjects of baptifun, or those to whom it is to be administered.

V. The efficacy of it. VI. The neceffity of it. VII. Deduce a few inferences.

I. Let us confider the fignifying thing in this facrament. There is a fourfold baptifm fpoke of in fcripture. (1.) The baptifm of light, which is taken for the doctrine, Acts xviii, 25. (2.) The baptifm of blood, which is martyrdom, Matth. xx. 22. 23. (3.) The baptifm of the Spirit, which is the pouring out of the Spirit, Matth. iii. 11. (4.) The baptifm of water, which is baptifm properly fo called. So

The fignifying thing in baptifm is water, Acts viii. 38. 39. Eph. v. 26. And there is no matter, as to the water, whether it be fountain-water, or river-water, providing only it be pure clean water, Heb. x. 22. And it is an abominable practice of the Papifts to add oil, fait, and fpittle, to the water in baptifm.

Here I fhall fhew,

1. What is fignified by the water in baptifun.

2. What is the refemblance betwixt water and the thing fignified by it.

First, What is fignified by the water in baptifm?

1. The blood of Jefus Christ, Rev. i. 5.

2. The Spirit of Jefus Chrift, Tit. iii. 5. If. xliv. 3.

Secondly, What is the refemblance betwixt thefe? There is a fweet refemblance betwixt water, and the blood and Spirit of Jefus Chrift; the due confideration whereof fhews the excellency of the grace exhibited in baptifm.

1. Water is a common thing, to be had freely by all those who will take it: it is what the poor as well as the rich have access to. So the blood and Spirit of Christ are free to all who will receive the same offered in the gospel, If. lv. 1, Christ is not a fealed and closed, but an opened fountain, for fouls to wash in, Zech. xiii. 1. Cant. ii. 1. And however unclean one be, he is welcome to this water, 1 Cor. vi. 9. 10, 11.

2. Water is a cleanfing thing, taking out fpots, ftains, and defilement. The blood of Chrift cleanfes the defiled confcience, Heb. ix 14. The Spirit of Chrift purifies the foul, removing filthy lufts that defile the foul, and fo renewing and fanchifying it, Tit. iii. 5. And unlefs we be thus wafhed, we have no part in Chrift,

4. Water

4. Water is a refreshing thing, when one is thirsty, or fcorched with heat. So is the blood of Christ, and the outpouring of his Spirit, to the thirsty foul, fcorched under the flames of wrath, John vi. 35.

4. Water is a fructifying virtue. So is Chrift's blood and Spirit, making the barren foul fruitful in the fruits of holinefs, If. xliv. 3. 4. The foul lies naturally under the curfe, and fo can bring forth nothing but the briers and thorns of wickednefs. But the blood of Chrift fprinkled on the foul, changes the nature of the foil. The foul is naturally dead, and therefore muft wither: the Spirit of Chrift brings life, and makes the wildernefs to bloffom as the rofe.

5. Water is most necessary, fo necessary that we cannot live without it: fo the blood and Spirit of Christ are abfolutely necessary for our falvation, Heb. ix. 23. John xiii. 8.

6. Lafly, Water must be applied ere it can have its effect: fo we must partake of Christ's blood and Spirit, ere our souls can be changed thereby, 1 Cor. i. 30.

II. Let us confider the fignifying action in baptifm. It is wathing with water in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoft.

Here I fhall fhew,

1. How this washing with water is to be performed.

2. By whom it is to be performed, according to Chrift's inflitution.

3. What is the meaning of the form of words used in baptifm.

Firft, I am to fhew how this washing with water is to be performed. The dipping of the perfon into the water is not neceffary : but baptifm is rightly administered by pouring or fprinkling water upon the perfon. The unlawfulnefs of dipping is not to be pretended, fince it is not improbable that it was used by John, Matth. iii. 6. and Philip, Acts viii. 38.; but feems to have been used in the ancient church, and in fome places is used to this day. But baptifm is rightly administered by pouring or sprinkling water, as we do. (1.) Becaufe the apoftles, at leaft fometimes, feem to have baptifed that way; as when three thousand were baptifed in one day, Acls ii. 41.; which can hardly be imagined to be done in fo fliort a fpace of time by dipping; and when fome were baptifed in the night, as in the cafe of the Philippian jailor and his family, Acts xvi. 33. (2.) Because baptifing in foripture is used for walking by infusion or fprinkling, well as immerfion, Mark vii. 4. Luke xi. 38. (3.) Becaufe the thing fignified by baptifm is called fprinkling, and is reprefented thereby fufficiently, Heb. xii. 24. I Pet. i. 2. It is true, we are faid to be buried in baptifm, Rom. vi. 4.; but even the fprinkling of the water, as well as dipping, reprefents that, according to the ancient way of burying, wherein they were not funk into the earth, but laid on the ground, and the mold caft over them. Befides that in fome cafes dipping might endanger the life of the baptifed, efpecially in our cold countries.

w

Secondly, I thall thew by whom baptifm is to be performed, according to Christ's inftitution. By a minister of the gotipel lawfully called thereto. For to them only belongs the administration of baptifm, to whom it belongs to preach the word, our Lord Jefus having knit thefe together in the inftitution, Matth. xxviii. 10. They are the flewards of the mysteries of God, I Cor. iv. 1.; into which office none can thrust himfelf with a good confeience, who is not called thereto. And it is the perverse opinion of the absolute neceffity of baptism, that makes the Papists and others admit others, even women, to baptise in case of neceffity.

Thirdly, I thall next thew what is the meaning of the form of words used in baptifm. It denotes baptifm to be adminiflered by virtue of the authority of God the Father, Son, and Holv Ghoft, but effectially that one is baptifed into the profession, faith, and obedience of the holy Trinity, for the Greek is fignifies into the name. And it is name, not names, to shew the Unity of the Godhead in the Trinity of perfons.

III. I proceed to flew what are the particular uses and ends of baptifm. Befides the general uses and ends of the facraments, which are common to baptifm and the Lord's fupper, the particular uses and ends of baptifm are thefe.

1. To be a rite of folemn admiffion into the vifible church, Matth. xxviii. 19. 1 Cor. xii. 13.; and fo to the vifible church privileges, Rom. xi. 17. It fuppofes the party to have a right to thefe privileges before, and does not make them members of the vifible church, but admits them folemnly thereto. And therefore it is neither to be called nor accounted chriftening, i. e. making them Chriftians: for the infants of believing parents are born within the covenant, and fo are Chriftians and vifible church-members; and by baptifm this right of theirs is acknowledged, and they are folemnly admitted to the privileges of church-member/hip.

2. To

2. To fignify and feal to the party faving privileges and benefits for his eternal falvation, which it actually doth in all those to whom it is effectual, though it is not effectual to all. These benefits are,

(1.) Ingrafting into Chrift, or union with him, Gal. iii. 27. We are naturally branches of the old Adam, from whom we can derive nothing but fin and the curfe. Chrift the fecond Adam is the true vine into which we are ingrafted, or to whom we are united, John xv. 5. The Spirit is the ingrafter, who, by the knife of the law, cuts us off from the old flock, Gal. ii. 19. and puts us into Chrift, winding us up with the band of the covenant of grace, and caufing us to knit with him by faith, Eph. iii. 17. This is fignified and fealed by baptifm, while fo Chrift does folemnly take poffeffion of us, being baptifed in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

(2.) Partaking of the benefits of the covenant of grace. There benefits fignified and fealed by baptifm are,

[1.] Remiffion of fins by virtue of the blood of Chrift, Mark i. 4. That as the water wafnes away the ftains of the body, to the blood of Chrift wafneth off guilt; and God, for the fake of his Son, forgives fin. So the apoftle preferibes it for the eafe of the troubled fouls who were pricked and awakened by his fermon, Acts ii. 37. 38. "Repent and be baptifed every one of you (fays he), in the name of Jefus Chrift, for the remiffion of fins," that fo they might be affured of pardon.

[2.] Adoption into the family of God, Gal. iii. 26. 27. We are by nature out of God's family: but here God's name is called upon us, and we are visibly taken into the visible family of God; and having his Split decising in us, we are really taken into the family; which is figured and fealed by baptifm.

[3.] Regeneration by the Spirit of Chrift, fignified by water, Tic. ni. 5. The Spirit of Chrifton regeneration worketh like water, John iii. 5. cleanting the foul from its impurities, and making it holy. This is neceffary to our falvation, fince no unclean thing can enter the New Jerufalem; and is figuified and fealed by baptitm.

[4.] Refurrection into lite eternal out of the grave by the fame Spirit, Rom. viii. 11. That baptifm has an eye to this, applies from 1 Cor. xv. 29. "Elfe what fhall they do which are baptifed for the dead, if the dead rife not?" And it is 2 reprefented reprefented by the water's going off the baptiled, though more lively by the coming up out of it in dipping.

3. To fignify and feal our engagement to be the Lord's, to be his only, wholly, and for ever, Rom. vi. 4. It is a dedicating ordinance, wherein the party baptifed is folemnly given up to God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft. His ear is bored, that he may be the Lord's fervant for ever. He is lifted under Chrift's banner, to fight against the devil, the world, and the flefn. He renounces fin and Satan, thefe his old mafters, as being dead to fin, that he may live in newnefs of life. And, in a word, it is a declared acceptance of God's covenant offered in the gofpel.

IV. I come to fhew, who are the fubjects of baptifm, those to whom baptifm is to be administered. "Baptifm is not to be administered to any that are out of the visible church, till they profefs their faith in Chrift, and obedience to him; but the infants of fuch as are members of the vifible church are to be baptifed.

Negatively, (1.) Not any inanimate things, as bells, which the Papifts do, thereby horribly profaning the feal of God's covenant. (2.) Nor yet infidels, who are without the vifible church, and fo ftrangers from the covenants of promife, who therefore can have no right to the feals, while they continue fo, Eph. ii. 12.

Pofitively, All those, and those only, who are within the covenant, without diffinction of nation, fex, or age. This is clear from the inftitution, of difcipling all nations, and then baptifing them. So whofoever they are who come into Christ's school, and are members of his visible church, are to be baptifed, and none other. So,

1. Those who are of age, whatever they have been before. are to be baptifed, upon their making a credible profession of their faith in Chrift, and obedience to him : Becaufe in that cafe the church is to look upon them as within the covenant. It is true, if they be not fincere believers, they have not a right to it before God; but their credible profession gives them a right to it before the church. Both of these are plain in the cafe of the Ethiopian eunuch, Acts viii. 37. 38.; and Peter's hearers, Acts ii. 38.

2. The infants of believing parents, or viuble church-members, one or both, are to be baptifed : Becaufe they are to be looked upon as within the covenant, fince it runs fo, "I will be thy God, and the God of thy feed," &c. Gen. xvii. 7. A.Og

VOL. III.

Acts ii. 38. 39. And the benefits of the covenant belong to them, Matth. xix. 14.: who then can forbid them the feal of the covenant? They were circumcifed under the Old Teftament, and the grace of God is not narrower now than it was then. They are comprehended under the inftitution, as making a part of nations, and are reckoned difciples, Acts xv. 10. And to the apoftles baptifed whole families, as Paul and Silas that of the jailor, Acts xvi. 15. 33.; and Paul that of Stephanas, 1 Cor. i. 16. And it is fufficient if one of the parents be a church-member, though the other be not, 1 Cor. vii. 14.

V. As to the efficacy of baptifm, we may observe three things.

1. It confifts in effectual fealing and applying Chrift and his benefits to the baptifed party, 1 Pet. iii. 21.

2. It is not effectual to all that receive it, as appears from the cafe of Simon, who after baptifm remained in the gall of bitternefs, and in the bond of iniquity, Acls vili. 13. 23. And this the unholy lives of many baptifed in their infancy do teflify.

3. It is not tied to the moment of administration, but tho' not effectual in the time it is admistered, may afterwards be effectual, through the working of the Spirit, John iii. 5. 8.

VI. As to the neceffity of baptilm, two things are to be obferved,

1. It is not of abfolute neceffity to falvation, as if the fimple want thereof could hinder falvation; for God has not made baptifm and faith equally neceffary, Mark xvi. 16. And circumstifion was not to be administered before the eighth day, Gen. xvii 12^* , though there is no reason to doubt but fome Jewish infants died before that time.

2. It

* The words are, And he that is eight days eld faeld be circumcifed among you, every man child in your generations. The author, in his manuccept on Genefis, tenders the words thus: "And one going on eight days; he fhall be circumcifed for you; [even] every male; throughout your generations. That is, thould one once be going on eight days, then he is bound by this law. Before he is of that age, he is not obliged to be circumcifed; but on the eighth day he falls under the obligation to it, which fill abides on him thereafter, during his uncircumcifien. Compare ver. 14. And every male was to be circumcifed for the family of Abraham, or in their name; fee the note above, p. 253.; and this throughout their generations fucceflively, during the whole time of the being of circumcifien as a divine ordinance. By this The Nature of Beptifm,

2. It is neceffary by divine precept, as an infiltuted means of fulvation. So that the contempt of ic is a fin, and a great one, that will damn men, unlefs it be pardoned thro' the blood of Chrift, Luke vii. 30. But this contempt cannot be afcribed to the child, before he comes to the years of difcretion, and fo cannot involve him in guilt; but unto the parents. So that Gen. xvii. 14. is to be underftood of the child come to years *.

this conftitution there would be almost a continual renewing of the feal of the covenant among them; and that respecting not only the party circumcifed at the time, but the whole body of the people, men and women. Whence it appears, what ground there is for Chriftians improving the administration of baptism to infants, time after time, for the confirming of their own faith of the covenant. Compare with this phrase, circumcifed for you, 1 Cor. xv. 29. baptifed for the dead. Baptilm, as often as it is administered according to Chrift's inflitution, doth by his appointment feal the whole benefits of the covenant of grace, not only to the party receiver, but the whole of the body, within the covenant : the refurrection of the dead faints is a fpecial benent of the covenant, in virtue of it fecured to them, even as remiffion of fin to the living, Mat. xxii. 31. 32.; and the church militant and triumphant are but one body, all of them together being embodied in one covenant, Eph. iv. 4. 1 Cor. xii. 13.; therefore baptifm being administered to the faithful for this end, is vain, if there is no refurrection of the dead."

* The words are, And the uncircumcifed man-child, whofe flefs of his forefkin is not circumcifed, that foul shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken my covenant. The author, in the aforementioned work, thus translates and comments on the words : " And as for an uncircumkifed one a male; who (hall not crop, even the flesh of his foreskin; i.e. a male, whether of Abraham's own feed, or born in the house, or acquired by money; who being come to the years of differentian (the Jews fay the thirteenth year of his age), his circumcifion having been neglected by his parents or mafter, thall not then fee to his own circumcifion effectually, he shall be liable as follows .- Then in that cafe that perjon, even that, shall be cut off from his people what foever : i. e. Such a one is guilty, and of whatfoever people he be, he fhall be cut off from his people, by death; which he fhall be put to, for his contempt, whether by the hand of the magistrate, or otherwife .- Even my cove. nant he hath made void : i. e. He hath thrown it away, or trampled it under foot, as refuse. The punishment to be inflicted is not more fevere than the crime is atrocious. The criminal had free access to the covenant of grace, with the righteoufnefs of faith, and all the other benefits of it ; whether he was of Abraham's feed or not ; being incorporated with Abraham's family: he was under the obligation of a law, to receive the covenant, perfonally to enter into it; and in token thereof, to receive the feal of it, ver. 11. 12. 13.: he is come to years, and capable of judging for himfelf; and the hazard of refufing is told Pp 2 him.

А

A few inferences shall conclude this subject.

Inf. 1. Baptifm is not to be administered to any perforoftener than once. This is plain from the nature of the ordinance, Tit. iii. 5. we being but once ingrafted and regenerated.

2. Improve your baptifmagreeable to the nature of it, and the ends of its inftitution. It is a groß neglect, that we are not often putting the queftion to ourfelves, Into what was I baptifed? Alas! many make no more ufe of their baptifm rightly, than if they had never been baptifed. Though ye were but once baptifed, ye fhould be improving it all your life long, and particularly when you fee others baptifed.

(1.) Improve it for raifing your hearts in thankfulnefs to God, that ever ye were fealed with the feal of God's covenant, and had his name called on you, while many in the world are utter firangers to the covenants of promife.

(2.) Improve it for your firengthening against temptation, confidering that you are the Lord's, not your own, and are under the most folenn and awful engagement to God, to refift the devil, the world, and the fless; and also drawing strength from the death and refurrection of Christ, into whom ye were baptifed, Rom. vi. 4.

(3.) Improve it for your humiliation under your fins and mifcarriages, confidering them as fins againft the grace of baptifn, and your engagements to God therein; remembering that fins after folemn engagements to the contrary, are highly offenfive to God, and attended with more aggravating circumftances, than if you had never been baptifed, and fuch folemn engagements entered into by you. The vows of God are upon you; break them not, and go not about after yows to make inquiry.

(4.) Improve your baptism to the ftrengthening of your faith and confidence in Jefus Chrift, effectally in downcaftings under a fense of guilt; for it is a fign and seal of remission, adoption, &c. and so may answer the question to an exercised foul, How can I be put among the children?

(5.) Improve it to the vigorous exercife of, and growth in holinefs, fince thereby ye are engaged to newnefs of life, as ye are

him. But he contemns the feal; he will not circumcife himfelf. Thus he makes word the covenant; making the device of heaven for falvation ufelefs, and of none effect to himfelf, by his obfinacy: he contemptuoufly throws it away from him, as empty hufks, dregs, and refufe, in which there is no force nor energy, no fap, no favour; and treads it under foot. Comp. Mcb. x_1^2 3. 29. The Nature of Baptifm. 301 are raifed from the dead, Rom. vi. 4. Were ye dedicated unto God, does not that fay ye should be holy in heart, lip, and life? As God is holy, fo be ye holy in all manner of life and conversation; remembering that without holines no man shall see the Lord.

(6.) Lafly, Improve it to the increase of brotherly love, even love to all the faints, who are all baptifed into one body, I Cor. xii. 13. It is as unnatural for faints not to love one another, or to quarrel with one another, as it is for the members of the natural body to be at war with each other. Then love one another, as Chrift hath loved you *.

OF THE LORD'S SUPPER.

2 Cor. xi. 23. 24. 25.—I have received of the Lord that which alfo I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jefus, the fame night in which he was betrayed, took bread; and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and faid, Take, eat: this is my body broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. After the fame manner alfo he took the cup, when he had fupped, faying, This cup is the new teflament in my blood: this do ye, as off as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

"HESE words afford us the anfwer to that queftion, "What is the facrament of the Lord's fupper?" and declare to us the nature of that holy ordinance which we are now in expectation of, and now falls to be explained? For which we fhall confider,

* See more of this fubject in the authou's fermons on church-communion, first printed in 1737.

Ĩ.

I. The author of it.

II. The fignifying things in it.

III. The fignifying actions.

IV. The ules and ends of it.

All thefe particulars are contained in the text and deferve a fpecial confideration.

I. The author of this ordinance is the Lord Jefus Chrift himfelf. It is not founded on man's authority, but on his own authority, who is the only King and Head of his church, ver. 23. I have received of the Lord Jefus, &c. which points out a twofold excellency in it. (1.) A character of divine authority upon it. The elements and actions, though they be mean in themfelves, yet have a majefty in them to a fpiritual eye, as bearing Chrift's ftamp on them, and being Heaven's broad feal to the covenant. (2.) A holinefs in it; it is a holy ordinance, as appointed by the holy Jefus. The elements, though in themfelves common things, are relatively holy, as appointed to reprefent, feal, and apply Chrift and his benefits.

Here I fhall fhew,

1. When Chrift inftituted this facrament.

2. For what time it is to continue.

3. What the words of inftitution contain.

First, When did Chrift inftitute this facrament? The fame night in which he was betrayed, ver. 23. Yet this does not bind us to that time rather than to another, becaufe that was an accidental circumftance, arifing from fomething peculiar to the first inftitution and administration. For it could not be fooner, in regard it behoved to be after the passiver, (which was to be killed in the evening, Exod. xii. 6. and eaten that night, ver. 8. which was to be abrogated by this new inftitution. It could not be later, because quickly after he fell into his enemies hands. The time of its inftitution teaches us four things.

1. The most tender care and concern our Lord had and has for his people's welfare and comfort, providing for these just while he was to launch forth into the fea of wrath. Admirable love and tenderness indeed !

'z. That it is Chrift's dying love-token to his friends, and therefore to be highly prized, and duly improved.

3. That it is of fpecial use to fit the Lord's people for a time of trouble and trial. Now, the difciples were to meet with a form which they had never feen the like of; and he referves therefore the beft wine till now.

4. That it is of fpecial use to fit his people for grapling with death; the which we may learn from his example.

Secondly, For what time is this factament to continue? I anfwer, Till he come again, and to it is to laft to the end of the world. While he is abfent, we muft make use of it, as a memorial, ver. 25. 26.

Thirdly, What do the words of inftitution contain? They contain Christ's bleffing; which comprehends two things. (1.) A command for the use of this factament. (2.) A promise of spiritual benefit by it to the worthy receivers, viz. that they shall partake of Christ's body and blood in the right use of it, ver. 24. 25. Take, eat: This is my body—This cup is the new testament in my blood.

II. I proceed to confider the fignifying things, or outward elements. Thefe are bread and wine. The bread, ordinary bread, without any determination of what grain it is made, nor whether leavened or unleavened. Our Lord took fuch bread as came to hand, and fo may we without focuple, though decency is to be obferved. The wine, as to the colour of it, is also indifferent; and whether a little mixed with water, or unmixed, is fo too. Neceflity and decency must regulate thefe things, the church being no otherwife tied by divine inftitution.

Here let us confider,

1. What is fignified by the bread and wine.

2. The refemblance betwixt the figns and the things fignified.

First, What is fignified by the bread and wine? The body and blood of Chrift, ver. 24. 25. even a whole Chrift with all his benefits, forafmuch as the divine nature after the incarnation was never feparated from the human, though the foul was feparated from the body, and his precious blood from his fleth.

Secondly, The refemblance betwixt the figns and the things fignified.

1. Confider the bread and wine feparately.

1st, There is a refemblance betwixt the bread and Chrift's body.

(1.) Bread is for nourifhing of natural life: fo is Chrift's body for nourifhment to the foul, John vi. 56. "For (fays he), my flefh is meat indeed." There the hungry may feed, and be nourifhed and firengthened, to grow up unto eternal life.

and

(2.) Bread must be prepared cre it can be bread, or fit nourifhment for us, the grain ground, and baked with the fire. So Christ was grinded betwixt the upper millstone of the Father's wrath, and the nether millstone of the malice of men and devils, and cast into the fiery furnace of justice, that he might be bread to our fouls, Pfal. xxii. 14.

(3.) Bread is a common and cheap provision; it is for the poor as well as the rich. Christ's falvation is the common falvation, Jude 3.; free to all who will receive the fame, Rev. xxii. 17.

(4.) Of all provision it is the most neceffary. Nothing is fo neceffary for us as Chrisft; without him we die, we perish, we all perish, John vi. 53. "Except ye eat the fleth of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you."

(5.) Lafty, It is a fort of food which healthy people will never loath. So is Chrift ever fweet to the foul that feeds on him, though diffempered fouls loath the bread of life.

2*dly*, There is a refemblance betwixt wine and Chrift's blood.

(1.) The wine is fqueezed out of the grapes forcibly by the wine-prefs. Thus was Chrift's blood fqueezed out of his body, by the wine-prefs of the Father's wrath, that it might be drink to our fouls.

(2.) Wine has a medicinal virtue, Luke x. 34. Chrift's blood is the great medicine for the wounds of the foul. There are no wounds fo deep, or fo hopelefs, but an application of Chrift's blood will cleanfe them, and heal them too.

(3.) Wine is refreshing and firengthening to the body, I Tim. v. 23. A draught of this fpiritual drink, exhibited to us in the facrament, and to be received by faith, would make the foul prefied with guilt, and a fense of wrath, to ftir as a giant refreshed with wine, John vi. 55. "My blood is drink indeed."

(4.) Lafly, It is of a cheering virtue, Prov. xxxi. 6. The blood of Chrift is that whereof those who are of forrowful fpirits, by recton of guilt, may drink by faith, and forget their forrow, 1 Pet. i. 8.

2. Confider the bread and wine conjunctly, fet before us in the facrament. There is a threefold refemblance.

1*f*, There is both meat and drink, bread and wine, in the facrament. In Jefus Chrift we have a full feaft for our fouls, John

324

John vi. 55. " My flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed." There is a fulness in him for all our wants, a fulness of merit and of Spirit.

2. The bread and wine are feparate in the facrament. So was Chrift's blood feparated from his body on the crofs for us. Many vents were made in that bleffed body by the nails and fpear, through which that blood might gufh out, for the redemption of an elect world.

3. The bread muft be eaten, and the wine drunk, or they will not nourifh. So Chrift's body and blood muft be by faith eaten and drunk, or it will not profit us to our falvation. It is union with him by faith that makes us partakers of his benefits.

III. Let us confider the fignifying actions in this facrament.

Fir/t, There are fome fignifying actions of the administrator about thefe elements, according to Christ's inftitution, which, being facramental, are alfo fignificant.

1. Taking of the bread, and the cup into which the wine has been poured out, taking them into his hand, ver. 23. 24. 25. Nothing is more diffinctly mentioned than this, Matth. xxvi. 26. 27. " Jefus took bread, and bleffed it, and brake it, and gave it to the difciples, and faid, Take, cat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, faying, Drink ye all of it." Whence it is evident, that it is taken to be confectated. And this reprefents the Father's chufing and defigning the Son to be Mediator, Pfal. lxxxix. 19. " I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chofen out of the people." So in this action we may fee, (1.) Man perifhing for want of spiritual food, Adam and all his posterity starving in their fouls, and fo their cafe crying for bread. (2.) God in his eternal love definating bread for a ftarving world. (3.) The Son of God, as the party on whom the lot fell, to be bread for them. Behold the bread the Father took, If. xlii. 1. " Behold my fervant whom I uphold." He was God's choice, and fhall he not be ours?

2. Confecrating of the elements, ver. 24. 25. The confecrating of the bread and wine apart is reckoned to be an accidental circumftance in the first administration, agreeable to the cuftom of the country where it was done, not obliging us, whose cuftom it is to bleis all together, more than unlea-Vol. III. Q q vened vened bread, &c. Nor does there appear any mystery further in the former than the latter.

Here confider,

(t.) How the elements are confecrated. By the word of infitution, thankfgiving and prayer, they are confecrated, or fet apart from common ufe, ver. 23. 24. 25. Our Lord Chrift had power of himfelf to infitute the ordinance, and did fo, and bleffed it, and folemnly gave thanks over it. The infitution ftands in the word, which therefore we read on that occasion, and, according to his example, pray over it, with thankfgiving. The Popifh confecration, by muttering over these words, This is my body, hit not the mark; for these words, This is my body, were uttered by our Lord after the confecration.

(2.) What is the effect of the confectation on the elements? Not a real change of them into the body and blood of Chrift. This deftroys the nature of a facrament, leaving no fenfible fign. It is contrary to the inftitution, where Chrift's body was fitting at the table, and reached the difciples bread and wine. It is contrary to the doctrine of Chrift's fuffering once, his afcenfion, fitting at God's right hand, and coming again not till the laft day. And fo it is contrary to fenfe and reafon.

Chrift faid indeed, This is my body, i. e. fignifies my body, as the lamb is called the Lord's paflover, Exod. xii. 11. It is by thefe words the Papifts will have the bread changed into the real natural body of Chrift. But thefe words fuppofe it to be Chrift's body before, fince a thing cannot be truly faid to be what it is not. So it is no otherwife Chrift's body, but facramentally.

The true effect is a relative change on the elements, fo that they are no more to be looked upon as common bread and wine, but the facred fymbols of Chrift's body and blood. So they are changed in refpect of their ufe, being fet apart for this holy ufe.

(3.) The fignification of this facramental action. It repretents the Father's fetting apart and confecrating his own Son to, and invefting him in, the Mediatory office. So Chrift is faid to be fealed, John vi. 27.; fanctified and fent, chap. x. 36.; and anointed to his office, If. lxi. I. So in this a believer may fee thefe three things. (1.) The Father calling Chrift to the Mediatory office, Heb. v. 4. 5.; to do and to die for the perifhing elect. (2.) The Son's accepting of the call, though he knew how hard the work was, Pfal.

x1. 7. (3.) Chrift completely furnished for all the ends of his mediation, actually entered on the office. The Father bleffed him, and sent him on the work, and he goes about it, If. 1xi. 1.

3. Breaking of the bread, ver. 24. This is an effential rite of this facrament, it being fometimes called by this very name, Acts xx. 7. It fignifies the breaking of Chrift's body for us, and confequently the fhedding of his blood. In the facrament there is not a word of pouring out the wine, though no doubt it was done : for the fhedding of Chrift's blood is fufficiently reprefented by breaking of his body. His body was broken to the fhedding of his blood in his circumcifion, in his foul-fufferings to the fweating of blood, in the plucking off his hair, If. 1. 6. in his fcourging, John xix. 1. crowning with thorns, and being fmitten on the fo crowned head, and in his crucifixion. And thefe his fufferings point to all the reft.

4. Giving of the bread, and then the wine, to the communicants, ver. 24. 25. This fignifies Chrift's giving himfelf, with all his benefits, to the worthy receiver, which is really done in the right use of this facrament. This is plain from the words, Take, eat, &c.

Secondly, There are fignifying actions of the communicants.

1. Taking of the bread and wine with the hand, ib. This fignifies their receiving of a whole Chrift, as offered in the word, and exhibited in the facrament, clofing with him by faith.

2. Eating and drinking. The Papifts deftroy this laft as to the people, with-holding the cup from them, contrary to Christ's express command, Matth. xxvi. 27. "Drink ye all of it." These actions fignify their feeding spiritually on Christ's body and blood, and uniting with him by faith.

Thefe folemn facramental actions not being accompanied with the things fignified, namely, the duties, make them a folemn mocking of God, which makes unworthy communicating fo great a fin.

IV. I proceed to confider the particular uses and ends of this facrament. Befides the general ends of this facrament, common to the other alfo, to wit, (1.) To be a fignifying fign, (2.) A fealing fign, (3.) An exhibiting fign, of Chrift and his benefits to believers; the particular ends of it are,

1. To be a memorial of the death of Chrift till he come again, ver. 24. And this is to be confidered two ways.

Q q 2

(1.) As a memorial of it before the world, I Cor. xi. 26. as Jofhua fet up the twelve ftones. Hereby we keep up a ftandard for Chrift, and openly avouch his dying, and our faith of it. (2.) As a memorial before our own eyes, to revive, quicken, and preferve the affectionate remembrance of his death in our own hearts. This refpects Chrift's honour and our duty.

2. To be a badge of and confirm our union and communion with Jefus Chrift himfelf, 1 Cor. x. 16. What nearer union do we know on earth, than that betwixt us and our food, which incorporates with our fubftance? So this facrament fignifies, feals, and confirms our union and communion with Chrift, as eating his flefh and drinking his blood. This refpects our privilege.

3. To be a fpiritual feaft for our fpiritual nourifhment and growth in grace. Take, eat, &c. For therein believers are made partakers of his body and blood, fince they are really exhibited in this ordinance to the faith of the believer. They partake of it not after a corporal and carnal manner, we ing and drinking of that bleffed body and blood with the months of their bodies, but fpiritually and most really by faith This respects our benefit.

4. Laftly, To be a public testimony of our communion with all faints, members of the same body, t Cor. x. 17. This respects the whole church of Christ, and the duties they owe to one another as members of the same body.

I shall now conclude this subject with an inference or two.

Inf. 1. Hence we may fee the unparalleled goodnefs and bounty of a gracious God to his people, in covering a rich table for them in this wild rnefs, flored with the beft meat and drink for their refreshment and nourishment in their pilgrinage-flate, till they arrive at their Father's house in the heavenly Canaan. With what an enlarged appetite ought they to come to and partake of this royal feast, defigned only for those who are the King's friends! They should feed upon it in the exercise of faith, love, defire, wonder, and joy. They should welcome every opportunity that prefents itself, to feast with their stedeemer, and give fuitable reception to the entertainer, and the entertainment he provides.

2. This holy factament is children's bread. For none but gracious fouls are capable of managing it to their own advantage. Now fhall they remember down who never knew him? declare their union with him, who are not divorced from their lufts lufts and idols ? eat his flefh and drink his blood, who have no appetite for fpiritual meat and drink ? honour him whom they are daily difhonouring by their profane lives and conversations ? None but those who believe in Chrift are fit guests for his table. Let all unbelievers be exhorted to receive and embrace Chrift as their Saviour, to be clothed with the wedding-garment of his righteousness, and then they will be fit to fit at the King's table.

308

3. Prepare for this folemn ordinance, if God fhall allow us the opportunity. Delay not a moment to give yourfelves to the Lord, by receiving and embracing the Lord Jefus as your Saviour and Redeemer, and avouching him as fuch in this holy facrament. Let the mortality * and ficknefs that fo generally prevails, excite you to be more vigorous than ever in preparing for this folemn occasion, as perhaps it may be the laft many of us may partake of. O then let us prepare to keep the feaft in due manner !

OF

* This difcourfe was preached in April 1720, in which feafon a diftemper as mortal as epidemical raged in the parish of Ettrick. All the author's family, himfelf only excepted, were feized with it : but, through the goodness of God, happily recovered. It is to this diftem. per that the author here alludes. And as a careful obfervance of the courfe of providence in general, with a fingular dexterity in connecting particular providences, was one of the most diftinguishing traits in this great man's character; fo it was his invariable practice, to adapt his pu-blic preaching to the course of providence, and to make use of God's difpensations towards his own parish in particular, to back and enforce his exhortations to his flock. Add to this, that it was a practice of his, not unufual, to obferve a congregational fast when any thing appeared uncommon in the course of providence, that his parishioners might be led to improve it properly; which, from his diarv and the fermons then preached, flill preferved, it appears, he did on the occafion alluded to in the inference. This faft was observed on the 27th of April 1720. And as the fermons then delivered may be useful on like occasions, which are not unfrequent, they shall be inferted at the end of this volume. And the propriety of giving them a place in this work will appear from this confideration, That while the ferious reader is employed in perufing a difcourfe treating of the nature of the Lord's fupper, in which there is a lively representation of the death of Chrift, our paffover facrificed for us, it will be a profitable exercife for him at the fame time to be thinking of his own death, and to be fo numbering his days, that he may apply his heart unto wifdom

OF THE WORTHY RECEIVING OF THE LORD's SUPPER.

I Cor. xi. 28.—But let a man examine himfelf, and fo let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.

THESE words contain a mean for preventing of the great evil which men are apt to fall into with respect to the Lord's supper; and so for our purpose they offer two things to be confidered.

1. An evil, a great evil, a hainous evil, which men muft use means to prevent; that is, unworthy communicating. But let a man examine himself, &c. This looks back to the preceding verse, wherein the apostle had declared unworthy communicants to be "guilty of Christ's body and blood." But (fays he, to prevent this, and that ye may worthily partake) let a man examine himself, &c.

2. The way to be taken to prevent unworthy communicating: Let a man examine himfelf, and fo let him eat of that bread, &c. A man, every man to whom the golpel comes, and who has accefs to this ordinance, must examine himfelf, as a judge does a matter of fact, or goldfmiths metals by the touch-ftone, to difcern what is true and what counterfeit. And fo let him eat; not, And then let him eat, whatever cafe his foul be in; but let him follow out this duty till he find his foul in fome fitnels for that ordinance, And fo eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.

The text affords this doctrine, viz.

Docr. " It is required of them that would worthily partake of the Lord's fupper, that they examine themfelves of their knowlege to differ the Lord's body, of their faith to field upon him, of their repentance, love, and new obedience, left left coming unworthily, they eat and drink judgment to themfelves."

Here let us confider,

I. What worthinefs to partake is.

II. The duty of felf-examination neceffary for worthy receiving of the Lord's fupper.

III. The neceffity of this felf-examination.

IV. Deduce an inference or two.

I. Let us confider what worthinefs to partake is. And,

1. What is meant by it.

2. Wherein it confifts.

First, Let us confider what is meant by worthiness to partake.

1. Not a legal worthinefs, as if we could deferve it at the hands of God; for "when we have done all those things which are commanded us, we must fay, We are unprofitable fervants, we have done that which was our duty to do," Luke xvii. 10. Those who are that way worthy in their own eyes, are altogether unworthy: for building their acceptance with the Lord in that ordinance upon their own good qualifications, they shall meet with Simon's entertainment, Acts viii. 20. "Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money;" for they run quite cross to the end of that ordinance, declaring in effect the death of Christ to be in vain as to them, Gal. ii. ult. "For if righteousness come by the law, then is Christ dead in vain."

2. But it is a gospel-meetnefs and fitnefs for that ordinance. As we are to "bring forth fruits meet for repentance," Matth. iii. 8. fo one communicates worthily, when he is fit for receiving that facrament according to the rules of the gospel, comes to it in fuch a manner as Chrift bids and welcomes his guests. And much of that lies in coming with a deep fense of our utter vileness and emptiness, If. lv. 1.

Secondly, Wherein does this worthinefs to partake confift? I anfwer, In two things.

r. In habitual meetnefs for it, in refpect of a gracious ftate. The foul in the black ftate of nature is utterly unfit for this ordinance, Pfal. v. 5. "The foolifh fhall not ftand in thy fight, thou hateft all workers of iniquity." Such a foul is a dead foul, "dead in trefpaffes and fins," Eph. ii. 1. And a dead man is not fit for a feaft, nor a dead foul for the Lord's table, but rather to be buried out of his fight. And from the Lord's table fuch a one may be expected to come away twice dead.

Lord's

2. In actual meetnefs, in respect of a gracious frame. In our address to God, not only life, but livelinefs, is requisite, Pfai. lxxx. 18. A fleeping man is not fit for a feast neither; and therefore even a true believer may communicate unworthily, as some in the church of Corinth did, 1 Cor. xi. 30. 32. So it is necessary that we not only have oil in our vessels, but have our lamps burning, if we would be fit, Cant. i. 12.

II. Let us confider the duty of felf-examination neceffary for worthy receiving of the Lord's fupper. And here,

1. The rule or touchitone by which we must examine.

2. The matter we are to examine ourfelves about.

 $Fir\beta$, Let us confider the rule or touch tone by which we must examine.

1. Beware of falle ones. (1.) The common guife of the world. It is not enough that ye are like neighbour and other, aye and better than many, like the Pharifee, Luke xviii. 11. Though an ape be liker a man than a dog is, yet the one is no more a man than the other. Though mere moralists and formalists are liker true Christians than openly profane ones are, yet the one are no more true Chriftians than the others. (2.) One's being better than fometime before, 2 Cor. x. 12. One may be like Saul, who got another heart, but not the new heart, I Sam. x. 9. (3.) The letter of the law. So did the Pharifee, Luke xviii. 11. and Paul before his conversion, Rom. vii. 9. (4.) The seen practice of the godly, which is but their outfide, and fo is but an unfafe rule, in regard you cannot fee the principle, motives, and ends of their actions, which are great characteriftics, whereby the fincere are diffinguished from hypocrites.

2. The only true rule or touchftone in this cafe is the word of God, If. viii. 20. "To the law and to the teftimony," &c. The Spirit of the Lord fpeaking in the foriptures is the fupreme Judge of all queftions in religion, whether relating to faith or practice; and the word itfelf is the rule by which the decition is made. God hath given us marks in the word, by which one may know whether he be in Chrift or not, 2 Cor. v. 17.; whether born of God or not, 1 John iii. 9.; and the bke.

becoudly, Let us confider the matter we are to examine ourfelves about. The great thing to be inquired into and examined Examined here, is the flate of our fouls before the Lord whether we be in Chrift or not, regenerate or not, have true grace or not, 2 Cor. xiii. 5. This we fhould examine at all times with refpect to death and eternity, becaufe our eternal flate depends on our being in a flate of grace here. And this is to be examined in refpect of the facrament.

The reafon is, This factament is not a converting, but a confirming ordinance, as baptifin alfo is, Rom. iv. 11. It is a feal of the covenant, and fo fuppofes the covenant entered into before by the party. It is appointed for nourithment, which prefuppofes life. And if it was not fo, what need of felf examination? fo let him come, not otherwife. It is the word that is the converting ordinance, not the factament, Rom. x. 17.; and the nature of excommunication evinces this, r Cor. v. 13.

But, more particularly, becaufe there are fome graces, namely, knowledge, faith, repentance, love, and new obedience, which in a particular manner are facramental graces, thefe are to be examined. And,

FIRST, Our knowledge is to be examined, I Cor. xi. 29. And here let us confider,

1. What is to be examined concerning our knowledge.

2. How this may be known.

3. The neceffity of this.

Firft, What is to be examined concerning our knowledge.

1. The measure of it, whether competent or not, Hof. iv. 6. The nature of this ordinance is fuch, that it cannot be managed to fpiritual advantage, but lofs, without a competent measure of knowledge. And this not only ministers should inquire into, but people themselves, after all examination by ministers.

2. The quality of it, whether faving or not, I Cor. xiii. I. There is a notional, idle, inefficacious knowledge of fpiritual things, which leaves men ftill in their natural darknets, as to any faving uptaking of fpiritual things: and therefore it cannot be fufficient to fit men for this ordinance.

Secondly, How may this be known?

i. Competency of knowledge. There may be an ignorance of feveral not fundamental points of religion, where yet there is a competency of knowledge for this ordinance. But there are two things neceffary to it. (1.) An underftanding in fome measure of the fundamentals of religion, the nature of God, the perfons of the Trinity, the fall of man, with the finfulnefs and mifery of our natural ftate, the natures and Vol. III. R r perfor perfon of Chrift, and the way of redemption and falvation by him, our need of him, and of faith as the way how we come to be interefted in him. There muft be fome fenfible knowledge of thefe things, that men be not like parrots, who may be taught to fay the creed, without underftanding a word of what they fay. (2.) An underftanding of the nature, ufe, and ends, of this ordinance in particular. Without fuch a knowledge, there can be no difcerning of the Lord's body; for what fpiritual thing can one perceive in the ordinance, the nature of which he is ignorant of ?

2. Saving knowledge may be difcerned by thefe two marks. (1.) When, by an inward teaching, one is made to to fee the truth of man's loft flate, and his abfolute need of Chrift, as to be brought out of himfelf to Jefus Chrift wholly for his whole falvation, John vi. 45. " It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and learned of the Father, cometh unto me." Here are two things, in one of which, if not both, the knowledge of the most refined hypocrite fails. (2.)When it is influential on the life for fanctification, Matth. While notional knowledge leaves always the heart xi. 20. unhumbled, and the life unhallowed, faving knowledge humbles the heart, as it did in the cafe of Job, chap. xlii. 5. 6. " I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear; but now mine eye feeth thee. Wherefore I abhor myfelf, and repent in dust and ashes;" and it fanctifies the conversation, Jer. xxii. 15. 16. " Did not thy Father eat and drink, and do judgment and juffice, and then it was well with him? He judged the caufe of the poor and needy: then it was well with him: was not this to know me? faith the Lord."

Thirdly, Let us confider the neceffity of this knowledge.

1. Ignorant perfons are utterly unfit to come to this ordinance, and have no right either before God or before the church. They are unconverted, unbelieving finners, Acts xxvi. 18.; ever under the power of fome lufts, 1 Pet. i. 14. They are incapable of felf-examination, and cannot difcern the Lord's body in the ordinance, being ignorant of the myftery of Chrift. Therefore a competency of knowledge is neceflary.

2. Those defitute of faving knowledge are unfit for this ordinance; and however they may have a right to it before the church, they have none before God. For they are without faith, If. liii. 11.; without repentance, Luke xv. 17. And they cannot rightly diferent the Lord's body neither in that ordinance, for it must be spiritually diferent, I Cor. ii. 14. To differ the Lord's body in this ordinance is, in the looking-glafs of the elements, to behold with a fpiritual eye the body of the Son of God, by death making atonement for fin, and peace with God; which draws the heart to a refting in and on him, as overcome with his glory differend. They who are void of faving knowledge may imagine it, but cannot fpiritually different, 1 Cor. ii. 8.

SECONDLY, Our faith must be examined. And here let us confider,

1. The neceffity of faith in this ordinance.

2. The marks of true faith.

First, Let us confider the necessity of faith in this ordinance.

1. Without true faith one has no right to this ordinance. For unbelievers are not within the covenant of grace, faith being that by which one enters into it, and therefore they have no right to the feal; they are not of the family of heaven, and therefore have no right to the children's bread, John i. 12. 13. Nay, they can pleafe God in nothing they do, Heb. xi. 6.

2. Without faith there can be no feeding on Chrift. Take, eat, implies a fpiritual action, a fpiritual feeding. Faith is the hand and mouth of the foul. An unbeliever may feed on the bread of the Lord, as the beafts drank of the water of the rock in the wildernefs; but they cannot feed on that read which is the Lord.

Secondly, Let us confider the marks of true faith.

1. A fuperlative defire of Chrift and his grace, i. e. above all perfons and things, If. xxvi. 9. Matth. v. 6; for himfelf as well as his benefits, and not for his benefits only, Pfal. Ixxiii. 25. A defire of a whole Chrift, not only for juftification, but fanctification too, and that not only as fanctification is the way to make the foul happy, but to conform it to the image of God. It is abfolute, without any referve, condition, or exception, Acts ix. 6.

2. A receiving and ufe-making of Jefus Chrift in all his offices, John i. 12. Col. ii. 6. If fenfible of thy abfolute need of Chrift, and thy own inability to help thyfelf, thou fleeft out of thyfelf unto the Lord Jefus, renouncing thy own wifdom, righteoufnefs, and will, to be guided by his Spirit, faved by his righteoufnefs alone, and ruled by his law; and if in the courfe of thy life thou lookeft to him for direction, acceptance with God, and firength in the battle against corruption, then undoubtedly thou believest.

acceptance

Thirdly, Our repentance must be examined.

Here let us confider,

1. The neceffity of repentance in this ordinance.

2. The marks of it.

Firft, Let us confider the neceffity of repentance in this ordinance.

1. Without it there can be no fuitable remembrance of a crucified Chrift. He is reprefented there as broken and dying for our fins: and communicating impenitently with a heard heart, looks liker a triumph over Chrift's death, than an affectionate remembrance of it. And fo it brings on the perfor the guilt of the body and blood of the Lord.

2. Without it one cannot expect a fealed pardon, which is the end of the facrament. God will not feal a pardon to an impenitent foul, nor give Heaven's comforts to infenfible finners, Acts ii. 38. As the fun refress the earth, when fostened by rain, but otherwise parches and fcorches it; fo God revives the spirit of the contrite at a facrament, while he is full of wrath against impenitent finners there.

For this caufe it is neceffary to examine your fins, fearch them out, and fearch them through.

Secondly, Let us view the marks of true repentance.

Ye may know it by this, that the heart is thereby turned from all fin unto God, Pfal. cxix. 59. "I thought on my former ways, and turned my feet unto thy teffimonies." Afk,

1. Have I turned from fin unto God, or am 1 yet living in my fins? Acts xxvi. 18.

2. Have I turned from all fin, Ezek. xiv. 6. from all großs fins in my practice, and from all fin fimply in my heart and affections? Is my heart loofed from fin? and do I hate all fin? Ptal. exix. 104.

3. If fo, why have I done it ? Is it only for the wrath annexed to it, or is it not becaufe of the contrariety in it to God's nature and will? Ezek. xxxvi. 31.

Lafly, And are the remains of corruption a burden to my fpirit, as they are to God's Spirit ?

FOURTHLY, Our love must be examined.

And here let us view,

1. The necessity of it in this ordinance.

2. The marks of it.

Firft,

First, Let us confider the necessity of love to God in this ordinance.

1. Love to God is neceffary in it, becaufe therein is held forth the greateft difplay of God's love in giving his own Son to the death for us. Here is that which of all things may warm the heart most, and make it burn with love to God and Chrift.

2. Love to our neighbour is neceffary, becaufe God's love, herein reprefented to us, doth require it, Eph. iv. ult. And if any man love not his neighbour, he does not, he cannot, love God. And they that love God, will love his image wherever it is: they will " love the brethren," I John iii. 14. not only the rich, but the poor, even though they may have feveral faults, and poffibly efteem them not fo highly; and this not for their being of the fame opinion, but precifely becaufe of the grace of God appearing in them, and not becaufe they are like themfelves. And they that truly love Chrift will love their brethren of mankind, by using proper endeavours to convince them of fin; to perfuade them to believe in Chrift, if they are yet ftrangers to him, or to walk worthy of the golpel, if they have been made partakers of the grace thereof; by affociating with the faints, and avoiding all unneceffary commerce with the wicked ; and by forgiving perfonal injuries, and doing good to all men, efpecially those of the household of faith.

Secondly, Let us view the marks of love to God,

1. True love to God is fupreme love. As Mofes's rod, when turned into a ferpent, fwallowed up the rods of the Egyptian magicians; fo the love of God will fwallow up all affections to the creature, whether lawful or unlawful enjoyments, Luke xiv. 27.; and ever fit exalted above them all.

2. Love to our neighbour will make us with well to all men, 1 Cor. v. 8.; forgive those that have done us wrong, as we defire to be forgiven of God, Matth. v. 23. 24. and love the people of God of whatever denomination, because of the image of Christ appearing in them, 1 John iii. 14.

FIFTHLY, Our new obedience must be examined. Without new obedience we cannot pretend to be Christ's disciples, Matth. xi. 29. I shall give a few marks of it.

(1.) It is new in respect of the principle it proceeds from, the love of God, Heb. vi. 10.
(2.) In respect of the end of it, which is God's glory, 1 Cor. x. 31.
(3.) It is universal, Pial. exix. 6. "I have a respect unto all thy commandments."
(4.) It is constant, Matth xxiv. 13. And wherein the believer liever fails, it is his burden, and it fends him always to the blood of Chrift, becaufe of the finfulnefs that attends it.

III. I proceed to fhew, the neceffity of felf-examination. It is neceffary in two refpects.

1. To prevent the fin of coming unworthily to the Lord's table. If we rufh on this ordinance without previous examining of ourfelves, how can we mifs of communicating unworthily ?

2. To prevent the danger of coming fo, which is eating and drinking damnation to one's felf. The danger is great, (1.) To the foul, I Cor. xi. 29. "For he that cateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himfelf, not differing the Lord's body." (2.) To the body, ver. 30. "For this caufe many are weak and fickly among you, and many fleep."

Inf. Examine yourfelves, then, as to the flate and cale of yourfelves, in order to prepare for this ordinance. And let none venture upon it without this antecedent exercife, for the danger is very great. And, good in itfelf, is then unfeafonable, to juftle out that which is then proper and neceffary. Satan knows it to be an eminently uteful duty, and therefore fets himfelf in opposition to it, that where matters are not right, they may be kept fo; and where perfons are in a good state, he may rob them of the comfort of it. On these confiderations, ye must be refolute and active in this exercise. The exhortation to it is doubled, 2 Cor. xiii. 5. "Examine your own felves, prove your own felves."

1. Be refolute in your felf-examination. Refolve to fet about this important duty, and refolute to follow it out; becaufe ye will find no fmall difficulty in it, arifing from feveral caufes. 1/l, From yourfelves, even your own corrupt hearts; and that on feveral heads. (1.) The ignorance of many makes it difficult. They have not the knowledge neceffary to difcern the nature or marks of grace. Ye must, then, endeavour the rather to difcern thefe, or any one of them that is given. (2.) A fecret respect to some bosom-idol which they would fain keep quizt, John iii. 20. There are ftolen goods, which they have no will to reftore, and therefore have no inclination to fearch them out. But, O confider that "one thing thou lackeft." (3.) A fecret fear that ell is wrong with them. Perhaps it is not fo. But if it be really fo, ye have the more need to get matters fet to rights. 2dly, From Satan. He has a fingular pique at this duty, and therefore will be ready to mufter up all his forces to keep men from venturing on it, or to defift from it; and that [1.] By fuggefting unto men the infuperable difficulty of the duty: There is a lion in the way, a lion in the freets. [2.] By telling them, they will mar their own peace with it, but can never come to fee the truth of grace, or to affurance by it. [3.] By fetting them on to fome other duty, which, tho' good 2

2. Ye must be impartial in this inquiry. Ye are in this matter judges in your own caufe, and under a ftrong bias to partiality. But the beft way is, to take the matter to the higheft Judge, with a refolution to know the worft of your cale, I Cor. xi. 31. Be not as Saul, when fent to deftroy the Amalekites, who fpared Agag and the fatteft of the eattle. Overlook not right eyes and right hands. What Solomon fays of flocks, may we fay concerning your fouls, Prov. xxvii. 23. "Be thou diligent to know the ftate of thy flocks, and look well to thy herds." However partial ye be, God will not be fo to you; fo that your foolifh partiality can do you no good, but a great deal of ill, as it will make you ignorant of your own cafe, which it is your greateft wifdom and intereft to know.

Queft. May one who doubts of his being in the ftate of grace approach to the table of the Lord? Anf. They whofe conficiences bear witnefs, that they do unf-ignedly defire Chrift and his grace, and to depart from all iniquity, may come, notwithftanding of their doubts, which are their weak-nefs, and which they are to ftruggle againft. But if one's conficience witnefs to him, that he is not clear for Chrift as he is offered in the gofpel, he cannot come fafely, Matth. v. 6. & xi. 6. I John iii. 20. 21.

Let every one, therefore, carefully examine himfelf as to his fpiritual flate, before he approach to this holy ordinance of the Lord's fupper, left he contract the horrid guilt of trampling on the body and blood of Chrift, to which he has a right at the Lord's table.

THĘ

THE NECESSITY OF SELF-EXAMINATION CONSI-DERED *.

2 Cor. xiii. 5.—Examine yourfelves, whether ye be in the faith : prove your own felves : know ye not your own felves, how that Jefus Chrift is in you, except ye be reprodutes.

HE difpenfations of providence begin to be alarming to this fecure generation, and look like the beginning of forrows, in the great mortality prevailing in feveral places. And the language of fach a difpenfation is, as is expressed in the text bidding every one examine themselves, whether they be in the faith, &c. In which words we have two things.

1. A neceffary duty propoled; and that is, the trial of their (tate. It is propoled under a double notion, Examine and prove, the call being doubled, becaufe of the weight of the inatter. And,

IJł,

* Though this difcourfe, confifting of two fhort fermons, was not delivered as any part of this catechetical work, yet it is here inferted on account of its affinity to the preceding difcourfe, and from a perfuation, that it may, through the divine bleffing, be uleful to the reader, as the lubject is of no finall importance both to faints and finners; and were the defign of it properly attended to, might prove a happy means of retrieving the decayed interests of religion amongst us. And it is thought, this difcourfe will be the more acceptable to the reader, when he is told, that it was the laft the author ever wrote, after he was confined to his house by the illness of which he died; and that thefe two fhort fermons were preached from a window in the manie to the people ftanding without, on the 2d and 9th of April 17.32; after which he preached no more, the God whom he had ferved in the work of the gospel, from the latter end of the year 1699, having called him home on the 20th of May 1732, to inherit the crown of righteoufnels hid up for him. Fut by it, and his other vainable writings, he yet ipeaketh; and his name and memory will be revered, as long as a taile for pure and undefiled religion fubfifts amongft us.

1/2, Of felf examination. And here, (1.) Confider the point the apofile would have them put to the trial, whether ye be in the faith. He knew very well that they profeffed faith in Chrift; but all is not gold that glifters. None but believers, true believers, whofe faith worketh by love, being a fpiritual vital principle within them, will fee heaven : but many take themfelves, and others take them, for believers, who yet are not fo. (2) The trial he would have them to make of that point, Examine your felves. The church of Corinth was a divided church. There was a cenforious party among them, conceited of themfelves, and defpifers of this eminent and highly diffinguished apostle. For all the clear demonstrations there were of the Lord's being with him, they fought a proof of Chrif's (peaking in him, ver. 3. Now, fays he, ye are very much abroad, bufy examining me, and make much ado for a proof of Chrift fpeaking in me: I would advife you to be more at home, and examine yourfelves. Put yourfelves to the trial, whether ye are in the faith or not. The original word fignifies to make fuch a trial as one does of a thing by piercing through it, whereby he may know what is within, and whether it be found or not.

2dly, Of felf-probation: Prove your own felves, to wit, by trial, as in courts offenders are tried, or they who ftand for an office are put on trials, to prove whether they be fit for it or not; or rather as goldfmiths try metals, whether by the fire, or by the touchflone, whereby they differ the true metal from counterfeit. This is near akin to the former exprefilion, Examine, but is not quite the fame. This laft tpeaks the bringing the matter to a point, the purfuing the trial till it fhould end in a full proof of their ftate, good or bad. Ye, q. d. feek a proof of Chrift fpeaking in me; pray reft not till ye get a proof of your own ftate.

2. The weighty ground that makes this duty neceffary, most necessary: Know ye not your own felves, how that Chrift Jefus is in you, except ye be reprodutes. Wherein we have,

(1.) The ground itfelf, Chrift is in you, except ye be reprobates. Now, Chrift dwells in the heart by faith, Eph. iii. 17. Where there is not a vital union with Chrift, the perfon is reprobate. There is no union with him but by faith: therefore ye have great need to examine whether ye be in faith or not. Reprobate here is not oppofed to elect: for certainly the apoftle did not mean to drive them to abfolute defpair, in cale they found themfelves naught in the trial; or to perfuade them, that if Chrift was not in them already, he would Vol. III. S f never be in them. But it is oppofed to upright and genuine, and fo denotes a perfon, or thing, that being tried is found unfound or counterfeit, as Jer. vi. ult.; and fo ufelefs, abfolutely unfit for the ends defired, Tit. i. ult.; and fo rejected, Jer. vi. ult.

(2.) The neceffity of the knowledge of one's felf in this point, Know ye not your own felves, how that Jefus Chrift is in you, &c. Knowledge of one's felf is far preferable to the knowledge of other men. Alas! what will it avail men to be raking into the ftate and cafe of others, while in the mean time they are ftrangers to themfelves? They do not advert to this great point, how Chrift is in them, elfe they are all wrong for time and eternity.

Observe from the connection, That felf-judging is a proper mean to bring people off from rath judging of others. was not rath judging in Peter, when he pronounced Simon Magus to be in the gall of bitternefs and bond of iniquity, who had offered money for the extraordinary power of conferring the Holy Ghoft. Neither is it rafh judging, to pronounce profane men, fcandalous in the habitual courfe of their lives, to be going in the way to deftruction; for the Spirit of God by Paul fays the fame thing, Gal. v. 19.-21. " Now the works of the flefh are manifeft, which are thefe, adultery, fornication, uncleannefs, lasciviousnefs, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, ftrife, feditions, herefies, envyings, murders, drunkennefs, revellings, and fuch like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do fuch things, shall not inherit the kingdom of God." But it was rash judging in these Corinthians, to question Christ's speaking in Paul, becaufe in fome things he was not fo acceptable to them as tome others. So it is rath judging, to reject men who confcientioufly appear to adhere to the uncontroverted points of practical godlinets, becaufe they differ from them in fome points controverted among good and holy men. Self-judgeing would call men home to their own cafe, fo that they would not be at fo much leifure to ramble abroad. It would let them fee fo much evil in themfelves, and fo much they have need to be forgiven of God, that they would not dare be fevere on their brethren, and rigorous on their behaviour, left the measure they mete to others should be measured to them again. Therefore I cannot but most earnessly recommend this practice of felf-judging, which will happily tend to to make you low in your own eyes, and preferve you from many milcariages to and milconstructions of others.

Having thus explained the words, and confidered their connection with the preceding context, I shall at this time only observe from them the following doctrine, viz.

DOCT. " It is a most necessary duty lying on men professing the name of Chrift, to examine themfelves, whether they are in the faith or not; and to purfue that examination and trial, till, bringing the matter to a proof, they come to a point with reference to that great concern."

In difcourfing from this important doctrine, I shall confider,

I. The point to be tried.

II. The trial of the point.

III. Make fome improvement.

I. I shall confider the point to be tried. The point concerning which every one is to try himfelf is, Whether he is in the faith. And here let us confider,

1. What it is to be in the faith.

2. The weight and importance of this point.

First, I am to fhew, what it is to be in the faith. To have true faith, or to be true believers, and to be in the faith, is all one as to the matter; even as to be in Chrift, and Chrift's being in us, is the fame thing in effect. The man that is endowed with the grace of faith, enriched with precious faith, is in the faith : and the faithlefs, the unbelieving, in whom the grace of faving faith has never been wrought by the Holy Spirit, is not in the faith. But I conceive the expression aims at thefe three things.

1. The elect's peculiarity of this heavenly gift ; hence called " the faith of God's elect," Tit, i. 1. It is the peculiar treasure of these happy objects of everlasting love; it is given to none but them; it remains among that bleffed party, as a peculiarity of their community. Hence the apoftle. Peter addreffed himfelf to those to whom he writes, under this character, " to them that have obtained like precious faith with us," 2 Pet. i. 1. There is a fourfold faith mentioned in fcripture: An hiftorical faith, that devils partake of, Jam. ii. 19.; a faith of miracles, which one may have, and yet want charity, or true faving grace, I Cor. xiii. 2.; a temporary faith, which apoftates in the end may have had, like the ftonyground hearers, Matth. xiii. 20. 21. But the faith here to be be tried, is the faith that unites to Chrift, which none have but those "ordained to eternal life," Acts xiii. 43. It is that whereby a finner receives and embraces Jefus Chrift as a Saviour, and relies upon and trufts in him as his Saviour in particular, for the whole of his falvation, and in virtue of which he lives to God. Now, it is every one's concern to try whether he be in this faith or not.

Sf 2

2. The life of faith. The Chriftian life is indeed the life of faith. Hence Paul fays, "The life which I now live in the flefh, I live by the faith of the Son of God," Gal. ii. 2c. By Adam's eating the forbidden fruit, mankind were led off from the heavenly life into the life of fenfe, living to gratify their fenfes, follow their paffions, pleafe the vanity of their minds, and the vilenefs of their affections. Now, God has by Jefus Chrift brought in a new way of heavenly life as the road to happinefs; and that is the life of faith. Ye thould try whether ye are in that road or not. The life of fenfe is indeed a fpiritual death : fee whether ye are in the faith, as in the life, the true life of the foul.

3. The operativenels or efficacy of faith : for " faith worketh by love," Gal. v. 6. Faith lies inwardly, undifcernible to all the world, but to God and the believer himfelf. But then it is not a dormant or inactive principle, but fpreads its effects outwardly through the whole man. Sound faith works the whole conversation, in every part thereof, into true + olinefs, brings in an univerfal respect to the commands of God, and fanctifies the whole man throughout. In vain do they pretend to be poffeffed of faith, who do not live foberly, righteoufly, and godly in this prefent world. For they to whom God has sheaven the good, Christ himfelf, and have by faith rolled the burden of their falvation upon him, will do juftly, love mercy, and walk humbly with their God, as the genuine and never-failing fruits of true faith. So ye would confider whether ye be in the faith, which is the way to all other good things.

Secondly, I come to fhew, the weight and importance of this point. There is nothing about you that can poffibly be of greater importance for you to know, and to be clear about. It is the head point, on which all that concerns your eternal falvation depends; and that is a matter of the laft confequence to every tinner. We muft not thay to enumerate the leveral particulars. But the weight of it will fufficiently appear, if ye confider, that on it depends,

1. Your union with Chrift, and faving intereft in him.

If

If Chrift dwells in you, it is by faith, Eph. iii. 17. This is fuppofed in the text. We remain branches of the first Adam, without Chrift, till we by faith come into him as the true vine. If ye are not in the faith, if ye are not of that houfehold, ve are none of Chrift's; ye have no faving intereft in him, and fo none in his purchafe. Ye are yet far from God, ftrangers to his covenant, and without any fpecial relation to him.

2. Your deliverance from the curfe of the law, and your abfolviture from the fentence of the condemnation ye were born under. Hence the apoftle fays, " Being juftified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jefus Chrift," Rom. v. 1. If you have received remiflion of fin, it has been by faith. Hence the apoftle fays, "Be it known unto you, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of fins : and by him all that believe are juftified from all things, from which ye could not be juftified by the law of Mofes," Acts xiii. 38. 39. If ye are not in the faith, there is not one of all your fins, from the womb to this day, but is fealed up among God's treafures, and will be brought out against you in due time. The curfe of the broken law flakes you down under wrath : For " he that believeth not the Son, shall not fee life, but the wrath of God abideth on him," John iii. 36.

3. Your doing any thing acceptable in God's fight: For " without faith it is impossible to please him," Heb. xi. 6. If ye be not in the faith, ye are reprobate to every good work. Ye can no more ferve the true ends of Chriftianity, than drofs can go for gold, or difcovered counterfeits pafs for current money. For without faving faith, ye are without Chrift; and without Chrift ye can do nothing, John xv. 5. So that however your works may be in the world's view, fome good, fome bad; yet there are none of them, however good in themfelves, good in God's fight, as they do not proceed from a principle of faith in the heart, and are not directed to the glory of God as their ultimate fcope and end.

4. Laftly, Your eternal falvation. It is the flated ordinance of heaven, Mark xvi. 16. "He that believeth shall be faved; but he that believeth not, shall be damned." So the clearing of that point, is the clearing whether ye be in a ftate of falvation or not. This is a point than which there is none more weighty and important. How then can that mifs to be a point of the greateft moment, on which 10 it depends? Were men more concerned as to their lot and place in the other world, they would be lefs concerned about the vain pleafures, amufements, and profits of this world; and bend all their endeavours and attention to gain a bleffed and happy eternity.

Upon this, I hope, fome may be ready to fay, Seeing fo much depends upon being in the faith, and fince we muft eternally perifh without it, what fhall we do to get faith, that we may not underlie the wrath of God for ever? I anfwer, Faith is the gift of God, and to him you muft apply for it; Jefus Chrift is the author and finisher of faith, and to him ye must betake yourfelves, that he may work it in you; and the Holy Ghost is called the Spirit of faith, and it is the effect of his operation: fo that you must have recourfe to him, that he may "fulfil in you the work of faith with power." More particularly, if you would have this precious grace of faith,

1. Be diligent in reading and hearing the word. This is a mean that God hath appointed for begetting faith in the hearts of finners. Hence the apoftle tells us, Rom. x. 17. that " faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Such as would have faith without hearing, would have it out of God's way. See that ye diligently attend the preaching of the word, and mifs no opportunity of hearing it. The ordinances are the organ through which the Spirit breathes, when he conveys quickening influences into the fouls of men. They are the conduit-pipes through which the water of life runs. They are Chrift's road in which he comes to blefs finners. See then that ye be not out of the way when he paffeth by. The pool of Bethefda was a figure of the ordinances, to which the difeafed repaired, to wait the defcent of the angel to trouble the waters; and whofoever ftepped into the pool after the moving of the waters, was immediately healed. But if any absented themfelves, they could receive no benefit thereby. So, if ye would be healed of your fpiritual difeases, especially unbelief, that deadly malady, that fixes the guilt of all your fins upon you, make conficence of attending the preaching of the word, and cry for the Spirit of faith.

2. Pray earneftly to God, that he would teach you to believe. Remember faith is his gift, and he beflows it on whomfoever he will. Pray diligently for it; and redeem time for that end. And pray importunately, befieging heaven with your cries for that effect, as refolved to get what ye ye want. Seek faith from God as a condemned man would feek a pardon : feek this, as a man that fees death before him would fue for his life. Remember, O finner, that there is no life for you without it : for "he that believeth not, thall not fee life, but the wrath of God abideth on him." Fall down then before God, and cry for it as for life, faying, "O give me faith, or elfe I die. I may live, and be happy for ever, without friends or relations, wealth, honours, or pleafures; but I cannot live happily and comfortably without faith. Without it I can do nothing acceptable in thy fight. Vouchfafe me this precious bleffing, that I may glorify thy name for ever."

II. I now proceed to confider the trial of this point. This the text takes up in thefe two things, felf-examination, and felf-probation.

Forft, Self-examination. We must carefully examine, whether we be in the faith or not. And this fpeaks the following things.

1. The neceffity of the knowledge of the faith, both of the doctrine of faith in fundamentals, and the grace of faith as to the nature of it, though it be not an experimental knowledge. No body can examine themfelves on a point they have no notion of: fo that those who are grofsly ingorant of the nature of faith, are quite incapable of felf-examination in this point, but just walk on in darkness and confution to their own ruin, 1 John ii. 11. How much then does it concern all to cultivate the knowledge both of the doctrine and grace of faith ?

2. Men profeffing faith may yet be void of it. They may feem to be in the faith, in a gracious flate, who are yet in unbelief, and in the gall of bitternefs: otherwife there would be no need of felf-examination on that head. There is no need of it in heaven or hell; for there are no falfe colours worn there; nor do any there feem to be any more but what really they are. But here, in the vifible church, are foolifh virgins as well as wife, and foolifh builders as well thofe who are not fo. Great is the need, then, of felf-examination.

3. The certain knowledge of our effate, whether we be in the faith or not, gracious or gracelefs, may be attained in the ufe of ordinary means, without extraordinary revelation. Self-examination and probation is that means, 2 Pet. i. 10. "Give all diligence to make your calling and election election fure." Many complain they can never get to a point in that matter : but let them inform their judgment as to the nature and evidences of faith ; let them lay afide their lazinefs, and their untender walking, fhewing a precife regard to the duties of morality; and it will not be fo hard. But when people remain in confusion as to the nature and evidences of faith, cannot bring themfelves to the bar, and continue untender in their walk, what can be expected ? Hence our Lord fays, Matth. vi. 23. " If thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If, therefore, the light that is in thee be darknefs, how great is that darknefs !" And fays the wife man, Prov. x. 4. " He becometh poor that dealeth with a flack hand." Whereas diligence in the Chriftian walk, and tender walking in the way of the Lord, are happy means of getting marks of faith. Hence Chrift fays, John xiv. 21. "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me : and he that loveth me, shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myfelf to him."

4. There is a rule of trial and felf-examination given. That we are bid examine ourfelves, fays there is a rule given we are to examine ourfelves by. Hence the beloved difciple fays, I John v. 13. " Thefe things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God." God's word is a looking-glafs, wherein good and bad may fee their true image, if they will. It is a fire that feparates the good metal and drofs; it is our way-mark, flewing where we are forthe prefent, whither we are going, and pointing to the right way. This fears many at the Bible; and it is but few that make this proper use of it, but scurf it over. O! Sirs, regard God's word, and try your flate by it, for it is a fure and infallible rule, nay the only rule for it.

5. There is a faculty of felf-judging in man, otherwife he were incapable of examining himfelf. Hence the wife man fays, Prov. xx. 27. " The fpirit of a man is the candle of the Lord, fearching all the inward parts of the belly." This candle, whether thining with the light of reafon only, or with the light of grace alfo, is capable to make the difcovery. Even the foolifh virgins faw at length that their lamps were gone out. And all are made to fee they are not in the faith, before they are brought into it. So then you may, if ye will, erect this court of examination within your 0Wn own breaft, your own foul and conficience being both judge and party; but it is only a fubordinate judge, whofe fentence, if wrong, will not fland, but be overthrown by the fupreme Judge, by whofe law the decifion muft be made.

2

6. Laftly, A close applying of that felf-judging faculty for the trial of that point. Hence the Plalmilt faith this was his practice, Pfal. lxxvii. 6. "I commune with mine "own heart, and my fpirit made diligent fearch." The man must rouse up himself, as peremptory to know his state; must inform himself of the rule he is to be judged by, fet it before him, and apply his own cafe impartially to it, that he may fee how they agree, and how the decifion is to be made. Say not ye cannot do this. Ye can examine whether ye be in a wealthy or ftraitened condition; when fomething is laid to your charge, whether ye be guilty or not; and whether ye be in fuch a one's favour or not. Only ye cannot, because ye will not, examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith. O! Sirs, roufe up yourfelves to this important exercife, shake off all lazy delays, and fet about it vigoroufly.

Secondly, Self-probation. Ye must prove yourfelves. This speaks,

1. Ye must not take the matter of your state upon trust, hoping the best without due evidence, and stopping there, like the perfon of whom it is faid, If. xliv. 20. "He feedeth of ashes : a deceived heart hath turned him aside, that he cannot deliver his foul, nor fay, Is there not a lie in my right hand ?" That is an eafy way indeed, but very unfafe; as was the cafe of Laodicea, Rev. iii. 17. unto whom our Lord fays, " Becaufe thou fayeft, I am rich, and increafed with goods, and have need of nothing; and knoweft not that thou art wretched, and miferable, and poor, and blind, and naked." Men entering on felf-examination find it difficult and thorny, and they thrink back, contenting themfelves to hope well, on they know not what grounds : fo the examination is broken off ere the matter is brought to a proof. If the examination before the tribunal of God could be fhifted that way, and the decifion made in men's favour as superficially, the matter were the less. But there the examination must go through, and the decision must be made, according to, not men's groundlefs hopes, but the reality of things; according to what Bildad fays, Job viii. 13. 14. "So are the paths of all that forget God, and the hypo-VOL. III. ΤE crite'a crite's hope fhall perifh : whofe hope fhall be cut off, and whofe truft fhall be a fpider's web."

2. The matter may, through a clofe examination, be brought to a decifive proof, however dark and intricate it may feem to be; otherwife we would not be bid prove ourfelves. Men may, by clofe examination of themfelves, and thoroughly fifting their own hearts, difcover that in and about them, which, according to the word, is decifive of their flate, good or bad. Which will leave men inexcufable, in not purfuing for it, but contentedly walking on in darknefs. Clofely ply the duty according to foripture-rules, and ye will find out how matters fland.

3. We must not stop, but purfue our felf-examination, till we come to that proof, and so come to a point in the matter on trial. Thrust forward refolutely, looking to the Lord for light, and his help in the fearch: He will roll away stones of difficulty, and make darkness light before you; remembering what Christ fays, Math xiii. 12. "Whofoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance." And suppose ye should not reach that proof at one time, ye must carry on the examination at another time, and so from time to time, till ye reach the proof. This is your duty; and if ye stedfassly perfist therein, ye will bring matters to a crifis.

4. Laftly, Having reached the proof of your flate, whether ye be in the faith or not, pronounce judgment thereon, whether it be good or bad. This is the end for which the felf-examination is gone through, and the proof was fearched out, that you may thereon form a certain conclution, whether ye be in the faith or not. And it is neceflary fo to do, that if ye find ye are not in the faith, ye may give no fleep to your eyes, nor flumber to your eye-lids, till ye be brought into that happy flate; and that if ye find you are in the faith, ye may give God the glory of it, and improve your bleffed condition to his honour.

I fhall conclude with an ufe of exhortation. O! Sirs, examine ye yourfelves, whether ye be in the faith, and ceafe not till ye bring the matter to a proof, a decifive point.

Before I prefs this exhortation with motives, I will take notice of fome impediments in the way that keep men back from felf-examination.

1. Their being carried away with the things of this world, as with a flood, that they can mind nothing elfe, and have a heart for no other bufinefs. Some are fo overwhelmed with worldly cares and fecular bufinefs, that any folid care or concern about their falvation is quite warded off, and there is no accels for the fame. Hence our Lord cautions his difciples, Luke xxi. 34. " Take heed to yourfelves, left at any time your hearts be overcharged with furfeiting, and drunkennefs, and cares of this life, and fo that day come upon you unawares." Some are fo drenched in the vanity and pleafures of the world, that they have neither mind of it, nor heart or hand for it. Madnefs is in their hearts while they live, and after that they go to the dead, and are at their place, before ever they have put this matter to a trial. O! Sirs, guard againft this exceflive attachment to the world, which will prove ruinous in the end.

2

2. Love to carnal eafe predominant. Spiritual floth is fo mafterly over those that give up themselves to it, that, in the midit of warnings from heaven, from without and from within, they must have their ease, and keep undisturbed, cost what it will. Hence fays Solomon, Prov. vi. 9. 10. 11. "How long wilt thou sleep, O fluggard? when wilt thou arise out of thy sleep? Yet a little fleep, a little flumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep. So shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth, and thy want as an armed man." But O what a risk is that, foreboding a fearful wakening! If ye love your own fouls, strive against this fluggish dispofition.

3. A falfe notion of the eafinefs of the way to heaven. Many in their thoughts of their getting to heaven, the neceffity of their being in the faith, regeneration, univerfal and unlimited obedience to God in the way of duty, and fparing no known fin, never comes in their head : only they believe God is a merciful God; and when the time comes, they muft apply for his mercy. Hence our Lords exhorts, Luke züil. 25. "Strive to enter in at the ftrait gate : for many, I fay unto you, will feek to enter in, and fhall not be able."

4. A fecret fear that all is wrong. This frights them from felf-examination; and they chufe rather to patch up their prefent cafe the beft way they can, than fairly to open the wound, that it may be healed. What is this but to chufe to die of the difeafe, rather than to lay it open for cure? But the eyes most closely thut now will be opened in the other world, as the rich man's were, Luke xvi. 23. Be not difcouraged with fears, but be willing to know the T t 2 worlf worft as well as the best of your cafe; for that is your fafest course.

5. A general hopefulnefs as to one's flate, got by fome paffing reflections on fome good thing they imagine they have, without examining to the bottom. This men come at eafily, as it were in paffing: and being eafy in this courfe, they never fet themfelves to go to the ground of the caufe, like the church of Laodicea, Rev. iii. 17. forecited. This is a very dangerous flate, and proves the ruin of many.

6. Laftly, Satan has a mighty influence to the hinderance of it, both in faints and finners. In the former he mars the comfort of the clear view of their flate: in the latter he keeps them from waking out of their natural fecurity, and fo holds them back from Chrift. And I know no duty he fets himfelf more againft. For being an accomplifhed mafter in hellifh fubtlety, he well knows, that if finners were at due pains in examining themfelves, and difcovered the damnable flate they were in by nature, they would haften an efcape to the gofpel-city of refuge; and therefore he lulls them in a fleep of profound fecurity, that they may not feel their mifery, and the worfe than Egyptian bondage they are in to fin and Satan. Awake then, ye that fleep, that Chrift may give you light.

I fhall now prefs the exhortation by fome motives; and O that the Lord may carry it home with power on your hearts, as your eternal welfare is deeply concerned therein !

Mot. 1. God has given thee a faculty of examining thyfelf. He has fet up a twofold candle for thee; one within thee, confcience, Prov. xx. 27. forecited; and another without thee, the written word, Pfal. cxix. 105. And will ye venture to walk on in darknefs as to your flate, while ye have thefe lights to let you into it? Sirs, if ye will not bring in that light, and ufe it for this purpofe, a light will be let in, whether ye will or not, that will fet the matter in due light, either in mercy, as in the cafe of the prodigal, Luke xv. 17; or in wrath, as in that of the rich man, chap. xvi. 23.

Mot. 2. To be bound up from this duty ftill, is next door to a defperate cafe, If. xliv. 20. above quoted. While a perfon is inquiring about his ftate, there is fome hope: but while men are unconcerned about it whether good or bad, that is like the cafe of men fleeping to death in their bleeding wounds. Publicans and harlots entered into the kingdom of heaven before felf-righteous Pharifees, becaufe the former were more ready by far to admit the conviction of the badnefs of their ftate, ftate, than the former, who were blinded with delufive ideas of their own righteoufnefs.

332

Mot. 3. It is certain ye were once not in the faith, not in a gracious flate, as the Ephefians were, Eph. ii. 3. 12. Now, dare ye pawn your eternal falvation on it, that ye are now in the faith, in a flate of grace? No; but ye hope the beft, and are eafy. But one would think, that in all reafon, according to the weight of the matter, one thould labour for a proportional certainty. And to leave a matter of the utmoft importance at an uncertainty, and make a leap in the dark into the other world, is a moft miferable affair, and argues the greateft inflability. Surely then this requires a moft folemn and deliberate trial; and if ye were wife for yourfelves, ye would bring it to a point.

Mot. 4. There are many falle pretenders to religion, from off whofe faces Chrift will draw the mafk. Hence he fays, Matth. vii. 22. 23. "Many will fay to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophefied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profels unto them, I never knew vou : depart from me, ye that work iniquity. Luke xili. 25. 26. 27. "When once the Mafter of the houfe is rifen up, and hath fhut to the door, and ye begin to frand without, and to knock at the door faying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and fay unto you, I know you not, whence you are; then shall ye begin to fay, We have eaten and drunk in thy prefence, and thou haft taught in our fireets. But he fhall fay, I tell you, I know you not whence you are; depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity." Many have Jacob's voice, but Efau's hands; like Judas, they kifs Chrift, and betray him. Such pretenders were the Laodiceans, when they fancied they were " rich, and increased with goods, and stood in need of nothing," Rev. iii. 17. Men may go a great length, in legal humiliation with Ahab, in repentance with Pharoah, in reformation with Herod, in zeal for religion with Jehu, and in strictness of life as to the outward man with Paul before his conversion ; and yet be strangers to the life of religion and godlinefs. And thould not thefe inftances alarm all who profess Chrift, to bring the matter to a trial, whether they are in the faith or not? as a miftake here is of the most dangerous confequence.

Mot. 5. This would be a matter of the greateft utility, if followed through, both to believers and unbelievers. To the former is brings the comfort of their faith, clears up their gracious 334 gracious ftate, and gives them fo many evidences for heaven as they have proofs of their faith. To the other it may be the beginning of good; it will give them the knowledge of their difeafe, which is the firft ftep to the cure; and if once they be thoroughly convinced of their finful and damnable effate, they may be induced to leave no ftone unturned till they be refcued therefrom, by application by faith to the blood and fpirit of Jefus Chrift, who faves from fin, and delivers from the wrath that is to come.

Mot. 6. Try now your flate, for God will try one and all of you, and no wrong judgment will pais before him. O! to what purpose should we shift a trial, which we know we will certainly undergo, from an infallible hand? We cannot by any fleight or artifice caft a blind before his eyes, Gal. vi. 7. " Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatfoever a man foweth, that fhall he alfo reap. All things are naked, and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do," Heb. iv. 13. Not the least thing in or about us can efcape his all-piercing eye; for he fays, " I will fearch Jerufalem with candles, and punish the men that are settled on their lees," Zeph. i. 12. God has trying times for lands, and for particular perfons, wherein he fets them. And fuch a trying time we have just now. O! let us regard the operation of his hands, left he proceed against us by terrible things in righteousnefs. However, fliould we pass untried in this world, we will most certainly be tried in the other, and there will be no altering of the decifion then made. Should we not then be ftirred up to try ourfelves now, and fee how matters ftand betwixt God and us, that we may not be condemned in the great day of decifion and judgment?

Mot. laft. It is the express command of God, that ye should try yourfelves, whether ye be in the faith or not. God has not only warned you to try this important point, both by his word and providence, but has expressly interposed his authority, binding it as an indispensable duty upon you to try yourfelves, as ye will answer it on your highest peril. I fay then, Try yourfelves as to this weighty affair, left ye be found to be fighters against God, to spure at his yoke, and to throw his cords from off you. Try yourfelves then, I fay, whether ye be in the faith or not, as ye would regard the authority of the great Lord of heaven and earth, and would not fall into the hands of the living God, from which there is no deliverance.

THE

THE DANGER OF UNWORTHY COMMUNICATING *.

1 Cor. xi. 29.—For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himfelf, not differing the Lord's body.

IT is a feafonable advice which Solomon gives, Prov. xxiii. 1. "When thou fitteft to eat with a ruler, confider diligently what is before thee." We expect the great Ruler of heaven and earth is to cover a table for us in this place; but at it fome may get their viaticum for heaven, others theirs for hell. The Jews fay of the manna in the wildernefs, that it tafted according as every one defired. This I may fay of the facrament, it will be different according to the different palates and conftitution of the communicants, like the word ; to fome the favour of life unto life, and to others the favour of death unto death. The apoftle compares baptifm to the paffing through the Red Sea, which to the Ifraelites gave a passage to Canaan, but it was a grave to the Egyptians, to fwallow them up. The Lord's fupper is an open pit for destruction to some, and a chariot to carry others on in their way to heaven. The apoftle tells us here the danger of unworthy communicating, notwithftanding which people mofily need rather a bridle than a fpur to it.

I. The-

* Though this difcourfe was not delivered in the courfe of this work, but many years before, when the author was minifter at Simprin, it was judged advifeable to infert it here, as a proper addition to, and in further illuftration of the preceding difcourfes on the Lord's fupper. And as unworthy communicating is in itfelf a great fin, and one of the epidemical evils of the prefent time, a difcourfe on fuch a fubject muft be deemed extremely feafonable in the prefent juncture; and the reader will do well to perule it with that for jourfes and attention the matter of it requires. 1. The connection, in the particle for; which flews the words to be a reafon of that exhortation, ver 28. "But let a man examine himfelf, and fo let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup," viz. in the right manner; for the hazard is great if we do otherwife.

2. A duty fuppofed, eating and drinking; which looks fternly on the facrilege of the Papifts in taking the cup from the people, and putting in only wafers into their mouths, contrary to Chrift's express command, "Drink ye all of it." It is the people, as well as the minister, that eat and drink judgment to themfelves, ver. 30.

3. The way that many mar this duty: They do it unworthily, that is unfuitably, unmeetly; they mar it in the making, not going about it in the right way and manner. They are guefts, but not meet guefts, for the holy table. They come to the marriage-feaft, but not with wedding-garments.

4. What comes of it. The confequences are dreadful. They eat and drink damnation [Gr. judgment] to themfelves. This judgment to fome is temporal, to others eternal. This they are faid to cat and drink to themfelves; it becomes poifon to them, and fo they take their death with their own hands. While the meat is in their mouth, wrath goes down with it, as the devil did with Judas's fop.

5. A particular fin lying on them, which provokes God fo to treat them: They do not diferrn the body of the Lord Chrift; they do not duly confider the relation betwixt the elements and Chrift, and fo they rufh in upon thefe creatures of bread and wine, that are of fo deep a fanctification as to be the fymbols of the body and blood of the Son of God; they fit down at that table, as to their ordinary meals, without that reverence and devotion that ought to be in thofe who fit down at fuch a holy table.

Two doctrines may be obferved, viz.

- DOCT. I. "Though the right way and manner of communicating be the main thing to be fludied in that folenn action, yet many content themfelves with the bare doing of the thing, neglecting the doing of it fuitably, and in a right manner."
- Doc'r. H. " He that communicates unworthily, eats and drinks judgment to himfelf, while he eats the facramental bread, and drinks the wine."

I fhall profecute each doctrine in order.

Dост.

Docr. I. "Though the right way and manner of communicating be the main thing to be fludied in that folemn action, yet many content themfelves with the bare doing of the thing, neglecting the doing of it fuitably, and in a right manner."

Here I shall shew,

I. The neceflity of communicating fuitably, and in a right manner.

II. Why it is, that though the right way and manner of communicating be the main thing to be fludied in that folemn action, yet many content themfelves with the bare doing of it, neglecting the doing of it fuitably, and in a right manner.

III. Make fome improvement.

I. I am to fhew the neceffity of communicating fuitably, and in a right manner.

1. God commands it, ver. 28. "So let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup." The particle is emphatical, as, John iv. 6. " Jefus therefore being wearied with his journey, fat thus [or fo] on the well." Acts vii. 8. "So Abraham begat Ifaac." The matter and manner of all duties are linked together in the command of God. What God hath joined, let no man put afunder. He will have his fervice well done, as well as done, I Chron. xxviii. 9. " And thou Solomon, my fon, know thou the God of thy father, and ferve him with a perfect heart, and with a willing mind : for the Lord fearcheth all hearts, and underftandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts." Mafters on earth challenge to themfelves a power to caufe their fervants do their work as they would have it; but though they leave the way of doing it fometimes to the difcretion of the iervants, yet the Lord never does fo, but always commands not only what, but how to do, I Theff, iv. I.

2. No duty is pleafing to God, unlefs it be done in a right manner, ib. Unlefs it be fo done, it is not done to his mind. It gives not content to the heart of Chrift, though it may give content to men's own blinded hearts. God's will is the fupreme law; for we are his own, and what we do, we ought to fludy to do it to his mind : otherwife it cannot pleafe him, do what we will.

3. Becaufe nothing is a work theologically good, but what is done in a right manner, Heb. xi. 6. "Without faith it Vol. III. Uu is is impoffible to pleafe him." There was a vast difference betwixt Cain and Abel's offering, Gen. iv. 4. 5. " The Lord had refpect unto Abel, and to his offering : but unto Cain and to his offering he had not refpect." See the reafon, Heb. xi. 4. " By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent facrifice than Cain." Bonum non, nifi ex integra caufu oritur, bonum eft. Hence the good works of the heathens were but fplendid fins; and those of the unregenerate are to; for they may do much, but not with a perfect heart. One fins and damns his foul at the Lord's table, another communicates worthily. What makes the difference, but the manner of doing ? Hence praying is accounted but howling; eating and drinking is not to eat the Lord's fupper, x Cor. xi. 20. Common eating and drinking are fins, Matth. xxiv. 37. Cloth may be good, and yet the coat bafe, if it be marred in the making.

4. Though the work be in itfelf good, yet if it be done unfuitably, not in a right manner, it provokes God to inflict heavy flrokes on the doer. Is not a mafter often at that, he would rather men had not done the work, than that it fhould be fo done? I Chron. xv. 13. "For becaufe ye did it not at the first, the Lord our God made a breach upon us, for that we fought him not after the due order." So Jehu did fomething for God, but not in a right manner : hence the Lord fays, Hof. i. 4. " I will avenge the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu." And the Corinthians having communicated unworthily, or not in the right manner, the apoftle observes concerning them, I Cor. xi. 31. "For this caufe many are weak and fickly among you, and many fleep." In the mean, little is accepted, if it is rightly done : hence it is faid of Afa, 1 Kings xv. 14. " The high places were not removed : neverthelefs Afa his heart was perfect with the Lord all his days."

5. Only the duty done in a right manner does profper, and get the bleffing. Mark that fo, Matth. xxiv. 46. "Bleffed is that fervant, whom his Lord when he cometh, fhallfind fo doing." A man may pray ten thoufand times, and never be heard; and go from one communion to another, and never be fealed to the day of redemption. A groan from the heart will do more than all thefe, Rom. viii. 16. Our meat can do us no good, and our clothes cannot warm us, if we do not ufe them in the right manner. No wonder that many are never the better of all the factaments they get, for they communicate not aright. 6. If 6. If we communicate not in a right manner, we do no more than others, than hypocrites actually do, and Pagans may do. Hypocrites eat and drink, who fhall drink eternally of the wine of the wrath of God, Luke xiii. 26. 27. Pagans can eat bread and drink wine; nay, the very beafts may do it. And fhall a Chriftian think that he does enough when e does no more?

7. Lafly, God gets no glory otherwife from us in our duty, Matth. v. 16. He gets much diffonour by the way that many of us partake of his table. The means muft be fuited to the end; and therefore our duty muft be rightly done, if we would glorify God.

II. I proceed to fliew, why it is, that though the right way and manner of communicating be the main thing in that folemn action, yet many content themfelves with the bare doing of the thing, neglecting the doing of it fuitably, and in a right manner.

1. Becaule to communicate is eafy, but to communicate in a right manner is very difficult. It is eafy to wait on feveral days and hear fermons, to get a token, and eat the bread and drink the wine: but it is a hard tafk to plough up the fallow-ground, to mourn for fin, to get the heart in cafe for communion with Chrift, and by faith to feed upon him. It is eafy to fay, we refolve to be for Chrift; but it is hard to pluck out right-eyes, and cut off right-hands; it is hard to fet idols to the door, and give the whole heart to a Saviour.

2. Becaufe they obtain their end by the bare performance of the duty. As, (1.) Peace of mind. Many conficiences are half-awakened; though they be not fo far awakened as to give men no reft without doing duty in a right manner, yet they will not hold their peace fhould a man neglect duties altogether. (2.) It gains a man credit in the world, and that is a ftrong cord to draw a man to the outfide of duties, Matth. vi. 2. It is no finall matter to have a name, and to feem good; and to be called godly, is affected by those who are at no pains to be what they would feem. These are the mean and low ends they propose to themsfelves, and they get them by that way. But the high and noble ends of the Christian communion with God, ftrength against corruption, &c. call for other fort of work.

3. Men may get duties done, and their lufts kept too; they may go to a communion-table, and to the table of devils too: but to do duties in their right manner is inconfiftent with peace with our lufts, Pfal. lxvi. 18. If they would have a calm fea, Jonah muft be thrown overboard. Hence they take fo little pains in felf-examination before a communion. There are fome fecret lufts which the man has no will to difturb; therefore he will not light the candle and fearch, left he fhould be obliged to caft out the old leaven.

tiftent

4. Becaufe men moftly have low and mean thoughts of God and his fervice, Mal. i. 6. 7. 8. It is not every one that knows the Lord. Many worfhip they know not what, and therefore they give him they care not what. If men had fuitable thoughts of that God whom they ferve, they would be careful how they ferve him, Pfal. lxxxix. 6. 7. Wherefore the apoftle, to put men out of their floth, and engage them to the right performance of duties, tells what a one God is, Heb. xii. 28. 29. "Let us have grace, whereby we may ferve God acceptably, with reverence and godly fear. For our God is a confuming fire."

5. Becaufe men moftly are unacquainted with communion and fellowship with God to be had in duties; they know not the necessity of it, nor the excellency of it. Hence they are not at pains about it. He that minds to entertain his prince, will be at pains to provide all things necessary for that effect, while he is not fo taken up who is expecting no guests.

- U_{fc} , Of lamentation. O how fad is it that there are for many who content themfelves with the bare work of communicating, neglecting the right manner ! That there are many fuch, take there evidences.

1. Many approach very rafhly and inconfiderately to the Lord's table. It would make a tender heart to tremble, how forward many are for going to the communion table, though it be fenced by the fevere threatenings of God. They are like the horfe, Job xxxix. 22. 23. 24. who "mocketh at fear, and is not affrighted; neither turneth he back from the fword. The quiver rattleth againft him, the glittering fpear and the fhield. He fwalloweth the ground with fiercenefs and rage; neither believeth he that it is the found of the trumpet." And they are as the leviathan, by whom "darts are accounted as flubble," and who " laugheth at the fhaking of a fpear," Job xli. 29. They fnatch up the holy things of God, and with polluted fingers do they handle them. How few are there that find any notable difficulty in their way to it? Truly it is lamentable to think of this rafhnefs. 2. The little pains that many are at beforehand to get their hearts prepared for this work. Any thing they do, lies most in hearing in public; few wrestling with God, that he would prepare them as a bride adorned for her husband.

3. The licentious lives of communicants. Many, when the work is over, turn just back to their old ways, clearly difcovering that it has made no great impression on their hearts while they were at it. Many are a shame to religion, harden the profane, and grieve the hearts of the godly, by their courses.

We may juftly wonder that the Lord does not fometimes make a breach among us, and mingle our blood with our facrifices. Under the law, the Lord made fome fad inftances of his anger; as in the cafe of Uzzah, 2 Sam. vi. 6. 7.; of the men of Bethfhemefh, 1 Sam. vi. 19.; and of Nadab and Abihu, Lev. x. 1. 2. Is not the Lord as angry fill with the abufe of Gofpel holy things? Yes, furely: but now the difpenfation is more fpiritual, and the ftrokes of anger are more fpiritual alfo; fuch as hardnefs of heart, and blindnefs of mind. Some fouls may get their death's wounds at the table, though their bodies come away whole and found.

U/e, Of exhortation. Be exhorted to get your hearts in a cafe for performing this duty after the right manner. It may be fome have communicated often, and never to this day communicated once right. O ftrive to begin now ! The advantage of it is great. Ye may find that in a communion, that ye never found yet, if ye be worthy partakers; if not, the hazard is great. Which take in Doct. II. "He that communicates unworthily, eats and drinks judgment to himfelf, while he eats the facramental bread, and drinks the facramental wine."

In discouring from this dostrine, I shall shew,

I. What communicating unworthily is.

II. What judgments unworthy communicating exposes people to.

III. Make application.

I. I am to fhew, what communicating unworthily is. A man communicates worthily, not when he merits the facrament, but when he is meet for it. So a man communicates unworthily, when he is unmeet for this holy ordinance, when he wants a gofpel-fitnefs for it. To find out this, then, then, we must inquire into the nature of this ordinatice. Confider, then,

341

Firft, The author of this ordinance. It is Chrift, I Cor₄ xi. 23. He appointed it. It belongs to him only to appoint the feveral parts of worfhip, who was faithful in his own houfe as a Son; and worfhip commanded by men is but vain worfhip. Now, if Chrift be the author of this ordinance, then it is meet, I. That we have an honourable refpect for it as a divine ordinance. 2. That we go about it out of a refpect to the command of Chrift. 3. That we expect the bleffing and the advantage by it from him.

I. People communicate unworthily when they have not an honourable refpect for, and a due reverence to, this ordinance, when they partake of it, Mal. i. 6. 7. If it bear the ftamp of divine authority, is it meet that perfons fhould defpife it, and not be touched with reverence of it? When the angel of the covenant appeared to Mofes in the bufh, he faid to him, "Put off thy fhoes from off thy feet: for the place whereon thou itandeft is holy ground," Exod. iii. 5. But, behold, in this facrament there are bread and wine of deeper fanctification than that holy ground, they being the fymbols of Chrift's body and blood.

2. When people do not go about it out of refpect to the command of Chrift, may he not juftly aftonifh fuch at his table with that queftion, "If I be mafter, where is my tear?" Mal. i. 6. Is it meet that people fhould communicate out of cuftom, vain-glory, &c.? If the fenfe of his command do not bring thee there, thou cauft not expect the fenfe of his love, but rather to feel the weight of his hand, when there. As we must believe the truth becaufe God has faid it, otherwife our affent is not divine faith; fo we must do our duty becaufe God has commanded it, otherwife our obedience is not acceptable to him.

3. When people lock to any other quarter than to Chrift for the good of the facrament. Some look no further than the elements. This is to put them in Chrift's flead: but be not deceived, bread and wine cannot nourifh thy foul. Some are apt to look to minifters: and if fuch a one as they affect ferve the table they are at, they think they are fure of advantage. If they knew your hearts to led afide, they would, with a fad heart and angry countenance, fay to you as Jacob did to Rachel, "Am I in God's flead?" Genxxx. 2. The fponfe weut a little further than the watchmen before the found her beloved, Cant. iii. 4, Many fmart fmart by this refpecting particular minifiers, and overlooking the Mafter of this ordinance.

Secondly, Coulider the time of the inflitution : " The fame night in which he was betrayed" by Judas, when the hour and power of darkness was approaching. If fo, then it appears that this facrament was left us as a token by our dying friend. He was now to go out of the world to the Father; but before he goes, he will leave his people a feaft and token of love. Did he not know what was abiding him? Yes. verily he knew all. O then might not the profpect of the agony and bloody drops in the garden, the wracking of his body, and the load of wrath under which his foul was to wreftle, have made him mind himfelf and forget us? Nay, in the night in which he was betrayed, he inflituted this facrament. Surely then it is most faitable, 1. That we prize it highly as the love-token of a dying friend. 2. That we be at pains to prepare to keep the tryft which he was fo concerned to fet. 3. That at fuch a time we avenge the treachery upon our lufts. So they partake unworthily,

I. Who partake of this ordinance without a due valuing of it as the love-token of a dying Lord. A token from a friend, though it be fmall in itfelf, yet ought to be prized; a token from a dying friend more; but a token from a friend dying for us most of all; and he would be reckoned a monfler of men, that would not highly value it. Not to value this ordinance highly, and fo to defire and delight in it, as many communicants do, who, if they could get their credit kept, could well live without it, and in their unconcernedness of heart for it and about it, fay practically, The table of the Lord is contemptible, is to trample upon our dying Lord's love-token, and to fay in effect, He fhould have been otherwife taken up that night in which he was betrayed.

2. Those communicants who are not at pains to prepare to keep the tryft our Lord fet at that time. I may fay, he forgot to eat his own bread, that he might provide for us. He did not fo mind the cup of wrath which he was to get himself, as to forget the facramental cup for our comfort. When he was on the cross, he tryfts to meet the believing thief in heaven; and when the clouds of wrath were gathering, and ready to pour down upon him, he tryfts to meet believers on earth. And shall we forget the tryft fet in that remarkable night? But, ah! how many are there that will not be at pains to prepare for this ordinance, to exaptione themselves as to their state, frame, &c.? They have built built up mountains and walls of feparation betwixt Chrift and them, but are at no pains to remove them, nor to employ Chrift to level them. Do not thefe communicate unworthily?

3. Who do not avenge the treachery. How came Judas to betray him? Was it not the fins of his own people that were the fpring of the unhappy action ? Your fins were the chief traitors. Then fure Chrift inftituting this facrament at this time, fays in effect concerning our lufts, as Pfal. cxxxvii. 7. 8. 9. " Remember, O Lord, the children of Edom, in the day of Jerufalem; who faid, Raze it, raze it, even to the foundation thereof. O daughter of Babylon, who are to be deftroyed : happy fhall he be that rewardeth thee, as thou haft ferved us. Happy fhall he be that taketh and dasheth thy little ones against the stones." Can a worthy communicant partake of this ordinance, and mind the treachery his Lord met with, and not break his covenant with his lufts, and renounce his old mafter? No, furely. They communicate unworthily who come to this ordinance at peace with any luft; they re-act Judas's fin-kifs of Chrift, and betray him.

Thirdly, Confider what is reprefented by the facred fymbols in this ordinance. The broken bread and wine reprefents Chrift's broken body, and his flued blood, Chrift fuffering for finners. He is facramentally crucified before our eyes in that ordinance. Now, if the bread and wine reprefents to us Chrift's body broken for us, and his blood flued for us, it is meet that, in communicating, I. We meditate believingly on these fufferings. 2. That our hearts be inflamed with love to him. 3. That they be filled with forrow for and hatred of fin. Then,

1. They communicate unworthily, who do not in their partaking meditate believingly on the fufferings of Chrift. Chrift will afk that queftion at communicants, Matth. xvi. 15. "Whom fay ye that I am?" And I would afk beforehand, Do ye believe that Jefus the fon of Mary, who was crucified betwixt two thieves without the gates of Jerufalem, was the Son of God, the only Saviour of the world, and that Chrift? Do ye believe that Chrift fuffered? If ye do indeed believe it aright, I fay, as Matth. xvi. 17. "Bleffed art thou: for flefh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but Ckrift's Father which is in heaven." And fure I am, if ye do believe, ye cannot fhun to meditate on it at the facrament.

erament. This wonderful fight will dazzle your eyes; a fight of God fuffering will blind your eyes as to other objects, and make you retire into yourfelf, to fee and wonder, and with admiration to think on this terrible fight. Do they not act most unworthily here who are not thus taken up? What would ye have faid of Mofes, had he not turned afide to fee that great fight, the bulh burning, yet not confumed ? Exod. iii. Had ye been on Mount Calvary, within hearing of Chrift's dying groans, within fight of his pierced, mangled, and racked body, and had unconcernedly turned your back, and paffed all without notice, would ye not fay, he had been just had he turned you off that place quick into hell? Here ye have the fame fight; and if ye behold it unconcernedly, ye act a most unworthy part, and oppose yourfelves to the most direful effects of his vengeance.

2. Who communicate without love to Chrift in exercife. Here is reprefented a king's fon in love with a beggar, loving her, and dying for her. O miferable mifcreant ! does not this affect thy heart, who art this beggar? Can there be greater love? John xv. 13. What hellifh cold has frozen thy affections, that this fire cannot warm, nay, melt them ! What a heart of a devil haft thou, that Chrift, in his glorious apparel, his red garments, cannot captivate? Be aftonifhed, O heavens, be horribly afraid; tremble, O earth; rent, O rocks; be ftruck blind, O glorious fun in the firmament, when ye fee the communicants fitting without love to Chrift, when he is facramentally lying before them, broken, wounded, and pierced with the envenomed arrows of God's curfe, and all for them !

3. Who communicate impenitently. Have ye pierced him? How unworthy will ye be, if ye do not "look upon him whom ye have pierced, and mourn for him, as one mourneth for an only fon, and be in bitternefs for him, as one that is in bitternefs for his first born," Zech. xii. 10. Will ye come to the table without the tear in your eye? O! unworthy communicants, what has petrified your hearts, turned you into flones harder than the adamant, which the blood of the goat will diffolve? Chrift's dying groans rent the rocks, and raifed and alarmed the dead; and wilt thou fit stupid? Where forrow for fin and hatred of it is wanting at a communion-table, there is eating and drinking judgment, which, when it begins to work within you, will make you mourn bitterly, either here or in hell.

Fourthly, Confider the bread and the wine is offered and gi-Vol. 111, X x ven ven to you at the table of the Lord, in token of Chrift's offering himfelf to you, with all his benefits, 1 Cor. x. 16.; and your taking of both, cating and drinking, declares your acceptance of the offer and application of Chrift to your fouls. Surely then it is meet, i. That ye believe that Chrift is willing to be yours. 2. That ye do fincerely and cordially accept of the offer.

1. They are unworthy communicants who partake doubting of Chrift's willingnefs to be theirs, with all his faving benefits. Will ye not believe him when he gives you a fealed declaration of his mind? To doubt of this is, to fay he is but mocking and folemnly cheating you; fo that no wonder we fay, "He that doubteth is damned if he eat." What though ye be moft unworthy? he flands not on that. Though your fins be many, the fea of his blood can drain them all, 1f. i. 18. Mic. vii. 18. If the devil get in thus far on you, it will be an error in the first concection; and till ye get over it, it is impossible to communicate aright, or get good of the factament.

2. Who taking the elements, yet do not take Chrift by faith. Then it may be faid, as John i. 11. "He came unto his own, and his own received him not." Is the bread or cup offered to you, then ? by that Chrift fays, " Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlafting doors, and the King of glory shall come in," Pfal. xxiv. 7. Therefore we ought to fet our hearts wide open, clafp him in the arms of faith, embrace and welcome him into our fouls. To take the bread in your mouths, and yet to hold Christ out of your hearts, is to put a folemn cheat upon the King of glory, which will bring upon you the curfe of the deceiver, Mal. i. 14. " which hath in his flock a male, and voweth and facrificeth unto the Lord a corrupt thing;" and the cheat will be difcovered, if ye repent not, before the whole affembled world at the great day, to your everlafting confusion. This is to betray Christ, with a witness. Either, then, meddle not with thefe facramental fymbols, or take him by faith. And if ve take him, ye must let your lufts go.

Fifthly, Confider this ordinance is a feal of the new covenant, t Cor. xi. 25. "This cup is the new teflament in my blood." Chrift has covenanted and left in his teflament to his people all things neceffary for them. His word in itfelf is fufficient fecurity; but guilt is a fountain of fears; and we are guilty, and therefore fearful fouls. And therefore, fore, that it may be more fure to us, he has appended this feal. It is meet, then, 1. That they be in the covenant who partake. 2. That we take the facrament as a feal of God's covenant to us. 3. That we believe more firmly.

1. They are unworthy communicants who are not in covenant with God, and yet come to his table. It is a profaning of God's feal to fet it to a blank. It is a feaft for friends, not for enemies, Cant. v. 1.; and if ye come in a flate of enmity, ye can expect no kind entertainment; "For can two walk together except they be agreed?" Amos iii. 3.; yea, ye will get a fad welcome, fuch as the man got who wanted the wedding-garment, Matth. xxii. 11. 12. If there be not a mutual confent, it is no marriage; and if there be no marriage, ye have nothing ado with the marriage-feaft.

2. They that use it as a feal of their covenant with God, and not of God's covenant with them. Surely the facrament is an obligatory ordinance to obedience; but this is not the principal end of it, but rather to be a feal of God's covenant with us. The reason why so many afterwards appear to have been unworthy communicants, is, that they go to that ordinance rather to oblige themselves to obedience, than to get a full covenant fealed to them for obedience. All our firength lies in Chrift; and worthy communicants go to Chrift in the facrament to get influences of grace fecured to them under his own feal, that they may in time of need afterwards know what quarter to betake themfelves to for supply.

3. They whole faith of the benefits of the covenant is not more confirmed. This is to fit down at the table, but not to tafte of the meat that is fet thereon. Why does the Lord give us fuch encouragement, and yet we grow never a whit ftronger in faith; and though he give us new confirmations, yet we have never a whit more confidence in him? Would not a man think himfelf affronted to be thus treated?

Sixthly, Confider this ordinance is appointed for ftrengthening of our fouls, for the nourifhing of the Lord's people, and their growth in grace. It is a fupper, a feaft where Chrift is both maker and matter, whole flefth is meat indeed, and whole blood is drink indeed. The Lord's p ople muft needs have food to nourifh the new man, and grace will decay unlefs it be recruited. If this be fo, then it is meet, $X \ge 2$ I. That 1. That communicants be fpiritually alive. 2. That they actually feed fpiritually at this holy table.

1. Gracelefs fouls must needs communicate unworthily. Where there is no grace there can be no ftrengthening of There can be no communion betwixt a holy God it. and an unholy finner, Prov. xv. 8. God will not make Nebuchadnezzar's image of myftical Chrift. We must be born from above ere we can be capable to feed on Heaven's dainties. It was the cuftom of Egypt, not of Canaan, to bring dead men to feafts. They are rather to be buried out of God's fight. An unregenerate foul at the Lord's table is a monfter that hath not a hand to take his meat, nor a mouth to eat it, nor a ftomach to digeft it, Heb. xi. 6.; and all that can be expected, is, that he will come away twice dead. Therefore " examine yourfelves, whether ye be in the faith ; prove your own felves: know ye not your own felves, how that Jefus Chrift is in you, except ye be reprobates ?" 2 Cor. xiii. 5.

2. They that do not actually feed at this table ; for which caufe grace in exercife is neceffary. He is an unworthy gueft that does not eat his meat. It is dangerous to be in a fpiritual fleep at the Lord's table; therefore the church prays, Pfal. Ixxx. 18. " Quicken us, and we will call upon thy name." Now, the food fet before us there is Chrift's body and blood, John vi. 55.; that is, Chrift himfelf as crucified for our fins. By faith we feed upon him ; faith realifeth the fufferings of Chrift; it looks upon Chrift as the common treafury of all grace, as the principle of life, and root of holinefs. It eyes the promife for the conveyance of grace into our fouls; looks on the facrament as the golden pipes conveying the golden oil; and thus applies Chrift, his inerits and benefits to the foul, getting into his wounds, the clefts of that Rock that was fmitten to give nourifhment.

Seventhly, It is appointed for the remembrance of Chrift. Chrift is gone to heaven; and his people are apt to forget him. This ordinance is a memorial of his death, and herein he is to be remembered. If fo, then it is meet, 1. That they who fit down at his table know him; for there can be no remembering without knowledge of and acquaintance with him. 2. That he be remembered gratefully.

1. Those partake unworthily who are ignorant perfons, and are unacquainted with Chrift. Those that have been always blind, cannot remember the light. Ignorant fouls will,

will, as blind men, deal blows at the Lord's table, making themfelves guilty of the body and blood of Chrift. It is not only neceffary that we have the knowledge of the principles of religion, but that we be taught the fame by the Spirit, and in conversion be acquainted with the Master of this feast. Ignorant people cannot difcern the Lord's body.

2. Who do not remember him affectionately. To remember his dying love is our great work; to remember how feafonably he undertook the work of faving finners, Pfal. xl. 7.; how faithfully he performed all, how willingly and conftantly he obeyed and fuffered. What do men fit down at the Lord's table for, if they neglect this? And this cannot be done aright, but the foul will be fuitably affected.

Laftly, It is appointed to be a fign and token of the communion of faints, to fignify, not only our communion with Chrift, but with one another; not only our union with Chrift by faith, but with one another by love, I Cor. x. 17. It is meet, then, that we fit down at this table in love.

They partake, then, unworthily who fit down at this table with malice and envy in their hearts againft others, Matth. v. 24. 25. If we forgive not others their injuries to us, God will not forgive us. This leaven muft be purged out, if we would be a holy lump. Some will make a fathion of reconciliation before the facrament; and when that is over, they are juft as they were before: but God will not be mocked.

II. The next general head is to fhew, what judgments unworthy communicating exposes people to. It exposes them,

1. To bodily ftrokes, as the Corinthians felt, 1 Cor. xi. 30. "For this caufe many are weak and fickly among you, and many fleep." One falls into a decay of ftrength, another takes ficknefs after a communion, another flips off the ftage. Some give one reafon for it, and fome another. But, O! unworthy communicating is often the procuring caufe of all. What a dreadful diftemper feized Belfhazzar when he was abufing the veffels of the temple! Dan. v.; but the fin of unworthy communicating is more dreadful.

2. To fpiritual ftrokes, ftrokes upon the foul, blindnefs of mind, hardnefs of heart, fearednefs of confeience, &c. The Lord will not hold him guiltlefs that taketh his name in vain; he will let guilt lie on him. Hence fome after communions are let fall into feandalous fins; fome meet with greater greater darknefs and deadnefs than ever before, and fome with fharp defertions.

3. To eternal ftrokes. As to fuch as are out of Chrift, unworthy communicating will damn them, as well as großs fins in the life and outward conversation, and no doubt will make a hotter hell than that of Pagans. Murder is a crying fin, but the murder of the Son of God is most dreadful, and the Mediator's vengeance is most terrible.

And they are faid to eat and drink judgment to themfelves; which, I conceive, imports,

1. That the hurt which comes by unworthy communicating comes upon the perfon himfelf, not on Chrift, whofe body and blood he is guilty of; for themfelves has a relation not to others, but to Chrift. They may eat judgment to minifters and feilow-communicants, if they have a finful hand in bringing them to the table. Only, though the flight is given to Chrift, yet it rebounds upon the man himfelf, and lies heavy on him with its confequences. They do interpretatively murder Chrift, in fo far as they abufe the fymbols of his broken body and fhed blood; but they can do him no harm; they kick againft the pricks, which run into their bodies and fouls.

2. That they themfelves are the authors of their own ruin. They take their death with their own hand, like a man that wilfully drinks of a cup of poifon, and fo murder their own fouls. And O what a dreadful thing is this for a man to perifh by his own hands !

3. That they shall be as fure of judgment upon them for their fin, if repentance prevent it not, and cut the thread, as they are of the facramental bread they eat, and the wine they drink. Death is in the cup to them, and it will go down with the elements into their bowels.

Use. Beware then of unworthy communicating. Profane not the holy things of God by your rafh aproaches to this ordinance. If the love of the Lord Jefus will not allure you to a confcientious performance of this duty in a holy manner, let the terror of God affright you. Behold life and death is fet before you. Venture not on the fwordpoint of vengeance, even the vengeance of his temple. O finner ! hold thy hand. Do not wound the Lord of glory, and bring innocent blood on thy head. O wound not your own fouls with the wound of an enemy ! Provoke not God to give you blood to drink.

Object. 1.

Object. 1. We had better bide aback than run fuch a rifk. Anf. If you cannot think on parting with your lufts, but you muft either communicate keeping them ftill, or not at all, then affure yourfelves, God will avenge this contempt of himfelf and his Son upon you, and ye thall fall into the hands of the living God through eternity, Luke xix. 27. If ye think of being better difpofed afterwards, ye deceive yourfelves; for the longer ye keep your fins, it will be the harder to part with them. And who knows if ever your eyes may fee another fuch occafion? But if ye mind to part with your fins now, and be in earneft for communion with God in that ordinance, then ye will make confeience of, and fincerely endeavour worthy communicating, which will be accepted; for it is a gofpel, not a legal fitnefs, that we urge.

Object. 2. But that terror confounds me when I think of approaching the Lord's table, left he be provoked to ftrike me dead on the foot, or I get my damnation fealed. Anf. Satan labours either to make us feed without fear, or elfe to fear fo as we cannot feed. But look ye to God through the vail of the flefh of Chrift, and fo you will fee an atoned and pacified God. If fuch fear feize thee, then acknowledge God is just if he should do to you as you fear : but because you need a Saviour, and he has commanded you to accept of him, take him, though with a trembling hand; and having nothing to bring with you, come to get all. Say, Lord, if thou shouldst confound me before all the people, thou art just; but I plead mercy through Christ; and if thou wilt give me thy grace, I am content to be a monument of grace. I have nothing, but I am content to be thy debtor for all. And fo you will find a reviving.

I fhall only fay, 1. Examine yourfelves as to your ftate, your frame, your graces, your wants, &c. and know how matters ftand with you. Take a look of your former ways, and turn to the Lord with your whole heart.

2. Put away the ftrange gods that are among you. Look what fin has been indulged, and let this be the parting time; for one leak will fink the fhip, Pfal. lxvi. 18.

3. Employ Chrift for fuitable preparation. Ufe the means, but look to him alone for the bleffing.

4. Lafly, Do this work that ye would do if ye were to die on the communion-fabbath. Sacramentum et articulus mortis æquiparantur. In death we go to Chrift, in the facrament he comes to us: And who knows but some of us may get our our provision there for another world, either in mercy or in But happy they who fet themfelves for dying furwrath? niture.

THE NATURE OF FRAYER.

Eph. vi. 18. -- Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perfeverance, and fupplication for all faints.

PRAYER is a duty of natural religion, and by God's appointment is one of the chief means by which Chrift communicates the benefits of redemption to finners; and this important duty is enjoined in these words. In which we have,

I. The duty itfelf, praying. This is recommended and enjoined to all, as ever they would fland, and not be ruined by their fpiritual enemies.

2. The amplification of this weighty fubject; where notice,

(1.) The time of it, always, or at every feafon. We must always be in a praying frame, and mifs no feafon wherein God calls for it, but in every feafon of prayer be praying, 2 Sam. ix. 7.

(2.) The kinds of prayer, all prayer, i. e. all forts of prayer, public, private, fecret, ordinary, extraordinary, &c.; petitioning prayer, for good things, here called prayer in a ftrict fenfe; fupplicatory prayer, deprecating evils, called fupplication.

(3.) The manner of prayer. [1.] It must be in the Spirit; not with the lip, tongue, and memory only, but with the heart, or inward man, or rather by the Spirit of God, with his affiftance. [2.] With watchfulnefs, keeping the foul in X 2 a wakerife difposition for it, and in it, that the heart wander not. [3.] With all perfeverance, continuing inftant in it, whatever may occur to difcourage us.

352

(4.) Those we are to pray for, all faints; not only for ourselves, but others, especially, though not only, for the children of God.

The text affords the following doctrine.

DOCT. "Prayer is a duty always neceffary, to be performed in the feveral kinds of it, and in the right manner, and in which we are to be concerned, not only for ourfelves, but for others."

To difeover the nature of prayer, which in our Catechifm is faid to be "an offering up of our defires to God, for things agreeable to his will, in the name of Chrift, with confeffion of our fins, and thankful acknowledgement of his mercies," I will confider the parts of prayer in general, and in particular.

I. Prayer, generally confidered, confifts of three parts.

1. Petition, or prayer ftrictly and properly fo called, whereby one defires of God the fupply of one's wants, begs the good neceffary for himfelf or others, and deprecates evil inflicted or feared. Praying always with all prayer, &c.

2. Confession of fin, Dan. ix. 4. It is fo very natural that finners coming to God to ask mercies should make confesfion, that it is a very necessary part of the finner's prayer; and prayer is fo called, Neh. ix. 3. And the deeper one is in confession, he readily speeds the better in prayer.

3. Thankfgiving for mercies, Phil. iv. 6. God prevents us with his benefits, we are deep in his debt, ere we come to afk of him; and therefore it is neceffary that thankfgiving have a place in our prayers. And it also is called "praying," Luke xviii. 11.

II. Let us confider the parts of prayer in particular. Thefe are,

1. Prayer properly fo called, or petition.

2. Confeilion of our fins.

3. Thankfgiving for mercies.

FIRST, Prayer properly fo called, or petition.

Here I shall shew,

1. Wherein the formal nature of prayer confifts.

2. To whom we are to pray. Vol. III. Y y

3. In

3. In whole name we are to pray.

4. By whofe affiftance acceptable prayer is performed.

5. For whom we must pray.

6. For what we are to pray.

7. How we are to pray, if we would pray rightly and acceptably.

8. Whether all fuch prayers are accepted, heard, &c.

FIRST, Wherein does the formal nature of prayer confift? It lies precifely in offering up our defires to God, for things that we need. It is a motion of our hearts towards God, to move him as it were to look favourably on us. Pfal. Ixin. 8. a pouring out our heart before the Lord; a lifting our foul to him, Pfal. xxv. 1.; a prefenting our fupplications to him, as petitioners, Dan. ix. 18.

We command our inferiors, we demand of our equals; we may by fome deed of our own lay an obligation on, and fome way excite an inclination in, any man, even our fuperior, to help us: but none of thefe ways can work with God. What then remains but a religious and fubmifive offering of our defires to God, for his help, who knows our hearts? And this is what we call prayer. Hence,

1. There may be prayer made to God without words. The defires of the heart offered to God, though not clothed with words, is prayer, truly and properly fo called, Exod. xiv 15. Words are not neceffary from the nature of prayer, but on the account of ourfelves, to affect us the more, and to honour God with our bodies as well as our fouls.

2. There can be no prayer, properly fo called, without the defires of the heart going out to God. Prayer without intention, fays the Jews, is like a body without a foul. A flourish of the best chosen words, without fuitable affections going along with them, is not prayer before the Lord, but the carcale of prayer, wanting the foul and life.

SECONDLY, to whom we are to pray? We are to pray to God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghofl, and to God only; not to faints, angels, nor any creature whatfoever. For,

1. Prayer is an eminent part of religious worship, Joel ii. 32.; and religious worship is only to be given to God, Matth. iv. 10. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou ferve." The holy angels refuse it, Rev. xxii. 8. 9.; and the faints also, as in the case of Peter, Acts x. 25. 26.

2. The object of prayer and faith are the very fame, Rom. Rom. x. 14. For the ground of prayer is faith. Therefore, fince we are to believe in God, and not in the creature, we mull pray to him only. So our Lord directs us, "Our Father, which art in heaven."

3. Becaufe God only is qualified (if I may fo fpeak) for hearing of prayer. He only is able to fearch the heart and know it, 1 Kings viii. 39. He only is omniprefent to hear every where, Pfal. lxv. 2. 'He only can pardon the fins, and fulfil the defires of his people, Pfal. cxlv. 18. 19.

THIRDLY, In whole name are we to pray? In the name of Jefus Chrift, and of no other, neither faint nor angel, John xiv. 13. "Whatfoever ye fhall afk in my name, Jays he, that will I do." We must go to the Father, not in the name of any of the courtiers, Col. ii. 18. but in the name of his Son, the only Mediator, I Tim. ii. 5. Here confider,

I. What it is to pray in the name of Chrift.

2. Why we must pray in his name.

First, Let us confider what it is to pray in the name of Chrift.

1. Negatively. It is not a bare faithlefs mentioning of his name in our prayers, nor concluding our prayers therewith, Matth. vii. 21. The faints ufe the words, "through Jefus Chrift our Lord," I Cor. xv. 57.; but often is that fcabbard produced, while the fword of the Spirit is not in it. The words are faid, but the faith is not exercifed.

2. Politively. To pray in the name of Chrift is to pray, ift, At his command, to go to God by his order, John xvi. 24. "Hitherto have ye afked nothing in my name, fays be: afk, and ye fhall receive." Chrift as God commands all men to pray, to offer that piece of natural duty to God; but that is not the command meant. But Chrift as Mediator fends his own to his Father to afk fupply of their wants, and allows them to tell that he fent them, as one recommends a poor body to a friend, John xvi. 24. juft cited. So to pray in the name of Chrift, is to go to God as fent by the poor man's friend, So it imports,

(i.) The foul's being come to Chrift in the first place, John xv. 7. "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." He that would pray aright, must do as those who made Blastus the king's chamberlain their friend first, and then made their fuit to their king, Acts xii. 20.

(2.) The foul's taking its encouragement to pray from Y y 2 Jefus Jefus Chrift, Heb. iv. 14 .- 16. " Seeing then that we have a great High Prieft, that is paffed into the heavens, Jefus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. For we have not an High Prieft which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without fin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need." The way to the throne in heaven is blocked up by our fins. And finners have no confidence to feek the Lord. Jefus Chrift came down from heaven, died for the criminals, and gathers them to himfelf by effectual calling. He, as having all intereft with his Father, bids them go to his Father in his name, and afk what they need, affuring them of acceptance. And from thence they take their encouragement, viz. from his promifes in the word. And he gives them his token with them, which the Father will own, and that is his own Spirit, Rom. viii. 26. 27. " Likewife the Spirit alfo helpeth out infirmities : for we know not what we fhould pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itfelf maketh interceffion for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. And he that fearcheth the hearts, knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, becaufe he maketh interceffion for the faints according to the will of God."

2*diy*, It is to direct our prayers to God through Jefus. Chrift, Heb. vii. 25. "Wherefore he is able alfo to fave them to the uttermost, that come unto God by him, feeing he ever liveth to make interceffion for them." Chap. xiii. 15. "By him therefore let us offer the facrifice of praife to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name ;" depending wholly on Chrift's merit and interceffion for accels, acceptance, and a gracious return.

(1.) Depending on Chrift for accels to God, Eph. iii. 12. "In whom we have boldnefs, and accels with confidence by the faith of him." There is no accels to God but through him, John xiv. 6. "No man cometh unto the Father but by me." They that attempt otherwife to come unto God, will get the door thrown in their face. But we mult take hold of the Mediator, and come in at his back, who is the Secretary of heaven.

(2.) Depending on him for acceptance of our prayers, Eph. i 6. "He hath made us accepted in the Beloved." Our Lord Chrift is the only altar that can fanctify our gift. If one lay the firefs of the acceptance of his prayers on his frame, enlargement, tendernefs, &c. the prayer will not be accepted accepted. A crucified Chrift only can bear the weight of the acceptance of either our perfons or performances.

(3.) Depending on him for a gracious return, I John v. 14. "And this is the confidence that we have in him, that if we afk any thing according to his will, he heareth us." No prayers are heard and anfwered but for the Mediator's fake; and whatever petitions agreeable to God's will are put up to God, in this dependence, are heard.

Secondly, Why must we pray in the name of Christ? The reason of this may be taken up in these two things.

1. There is no accels for a finful creature to God without a Mediator, If. lix. 2. John xiv. 6. Sin has fet us at a diftance from God, and has bolted the door of our accels to him, that it is beyond our power, or that of any creature, to open it for us. His juftice flaves off the criminal, his holinefs the unclean creature, without there be an acceptable perfon to go betwixt him and us. Our God is a confuming fire; and fo there is no immediate accels for a finner to him.

2. And there is none appointed nor fit for that work but Chrift, 1 Tim. ii. 5. It is he alone who is our great High Prieft. None but he has fatisfied justice for our fins. And as he is the only Mediator of redemption, fo he is the only Mediator of interceffion, I John ii. I. "If any man fin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jefus Chrift the righteous." The fweet favour of his merit only is capable to procure acceptance to our prayers, in themfelves unfavoury, Rev. viii. 3. 4.

FOURTHLY, By whole affistance is acceptable prayer performed? By the help of the Holy Spirit, Gal. iv. 6. Rom. viii. 26. There are two forts of prayers. (1.) A prayer wrought out by virtue of a gift of knowledge and utterance. This is beflowed on many reprobates, and that gift may be useful to others, and to the church. But as it is merely of that fort, it is not accepted, nor does Chrift put it in before the Father for acceptance. For, (2.) There is a prayer wrought in men by virtue of the Holy Spirit, Zech. xii. 10. " I will pour upon the houfe of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerufalem, the Spirit of grace and of fupplications :" and that is the only acceptable prayer to God, Jam. v. 16. effectual, Gr. inwrought. The right praying is praying in the Spirit. It is a gale blowing from heaven, the breathing of the Spirit in the faints, that carries them out in the prayer, which comes the length of the throne. Now, the Spirit helps to pray,

i. As a teaching and inftructing Spirit, affording proper matter matter of prayer, caufing us to know what we pray for, Rom. viii. 26. forecited; enlightening the mind in the knowledge of our needs, and those of others; bringing into our remembrance these things, fuggesting them to us according to the word, together with the promises of God, on which prayer is grounded, John xiv. 26. "The Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost,—thall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I have faid unto you." Hence it is that the faints are fometimes carried out in prayer for things which they had no view of before, and carried by fome things they had.

2. As a quickening, exciting Spirit, Rom. viii. 26.; the Spirit qualifying the foul with praying graces and affections, working in the praying perfon fenfe of needs, faith, fervency, humility, &c. Pfal. x. 17. "Thou wilt prepare their heart." The man may go to his knees in a very unprepared frame for prayer, yet the Spirit blowing, he is helped. It is for this reafon the Spirit is faid to make interceffion for us, namely, in fo far as he teaches and quickens, puts us in a praying frame, and draws our petitions, as it were, which the Mediator prefents.

This praying with the help of the Spirit is peculiar to the faints, Jam. v. 16; yet they have not that help at all times, nor always in the fame measure; for fometimes the Spirit, being provoked, departs, and they are left in a withered condition. So there is great need to look for a breathing, and pant for it, when we are to go to duty: for if there be not a gale, we will tug at the oars but heartlefsly.

Let no man think that a readinefs and volubility of expreffion in prayer, is always the effect of the Spirit's affiftance. For that may be the product of a gift, and of the common operations of the Spirit, removing the impediment of the exercife of it. And it is evident one may be fearce of words, and have groans inftead of them, while the Spirit helps him to pray, Rom. viii. 26. Neither is every flood of affections in prayer, the effect of the Spirit of prayer. There are of those which puff up a man, but make him never a whit more holy, tender in his walk, &c. But the influences of the Spirit never mifs to be humbling but fanctifying. Hence fays David, "Who am I, and what is my people, that we fhould be able to offer fo willingly after this fort? for all things come of thee, and of thine own have we given thee," I Chron, xxix. 14.; and favs the apoftle, "We have no confidence in the flefh," Phil. iii. 3.

FIFTHLY, For whom must we pray? Firb, Negatively.

1. Not for the dead. David cealed praying for his child when once dead, 2 Sam. xii. 21.—23. It is vain and ufelefs; for as the tree falls, it must lie. We have neither precept nor promife about it; and it was raifed upon the falle opinion of purgatory. But the dead are in an unalterable flate, Heb. ix. 27. "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment."

2. Nor for those who are known to have finned the fin against the holy Ghost, I John v. 16. for God has declared that fin to be unpardonable. This is very rare, and therefore one would beware of rashness in this matter.

Secondly, Politively.

1. In general, we are to pray for all forts of men living, "for kings, and all that are in authority," I Tim. ii. 1. 2. for Chriftians, Jews, Mahometans, Pagans, noble and ignoble, &c. They are capable of God's grace and favour, and we are to defire it for them. But we are not to pray for every particular perfon whatfoever, I John v. 16. "There is a fin unto death : I do not fay that he fhall pray for it." So that it is an unwarrantable petition, that God would have mercy on, and fave all mankind, for the contrary of that is revealed. Yea, we fhould pray for all forts of men who fhall live hereafter, as our Lord did, John xvii. 20. " Neither pray I for thefe alone, but for them alfo which fhall believe on me through their word." But,

2. În particular, we are to pray, not only for ourfelves, as Jacob did for deliverance from the hand of his brother Efau, Gen. xxxii. 11. but for,

(1.) The whole church of Chrift upon earth. Hence fays the text, Praying always with all prayer,—and fupplication for all faints. To no party muft we confine the communion of prayers, to whom God has not confined his grace. All the members of the myftical body muft fhare particularly in our prayers, because they are the members of Chrift, whatever difference be betwixt us and them in leffer things. The fympathy betwixt the members of the fame body of our Lord requires this. And it is a fad fign not to be fo affected, Amos vi. 6. "They are not grieved for the affliction of Jofeph."

(2.) Magistrates: "Kings, and all that are in authority," I Tim. ii. 2. It was about 300 years after Christ cre the magistrates were Christians, nevertheless the apostle bids pray for for them; becaufe the quiet and peace of the commonwealth and kingdom depends much on their management; and infidelity, or difference in religion, does not make void the magiftrate's juft and legal authority, nor free the people from their due obedience to him. Their hearts are in the Lord's hand, Prov. xxi. 1. Their influence is great, fo is their work, and fo are their temptations; and if they be evil men, there is the more need to be earneft with God on their behalf. Let us blefs God that we have a Proteftant King on the throne, remembering how fcafonably the Lord fent him, and how much depends on his fafety, and the fafety of his royal family.

(3.) Minifters, Col. iv. 3. Pfal. cxxxii. 9. There is a near relation betwixt the people of God and their minifters. They have a weighty work in their hands, which, if it mifgive; will not only be their own lofs, but the people's. People may have a minifter fo ftraitened, as to do them no good, Col. iv. 3. Though he be not fo, yet he may be ufelefs to them; therefore, fays the apoftle, 1 Thefl. v. 25. "Brethren, pray for us." I leave it with that, Rom. xv. 30. "Now I befeech you, brethren, for the Lord Jefus Chrift's fake, and for the love of the Spirit, that ye ftrive together with me in your prayers to God for me."

(4.) Our Christian acquaintance, Jam. v. 16. "Pray one for another." Communion of prayers is a fpecial benefit of Christian friendship and acquaintance. And it is no small mercy and encouragement to have interest in their prayers, who have interest at the throne of grace.

(5.) The place and congregation we live in, and are members of. The captives at Babylon were to pray for the place they lived in, Jer. xxix. 7.; how much more fhould we pray for a Chriftian congregation whereof we are members? The better it be with them, it will be the better with you; and fo contrariwife.

(6.) Our families and relations. The nearer any ftand related to us, we have the more need to be concerned for them at the throne of grace. We find Job facrificing for his family, Job i. 5.; a mafter praying for his fervant, 2 Kings vi. 17.; and a fervant for his mafter, Gen. xxiv. 12.

(7.) Lafly, We must pray for our enemies, Matth. v. 44. This is hardeft to bring men to. But we have the express command of Chrift for it, and his example, Luke xxiii. 34.; followed by the martyr Stephen, Acts vii. 60. Nay, forgiving them is is neceffary to our forgiveness: "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors." There may be much felfishness in praying for those that love us; but that kindly concern for our enemies makes us liker God, Matth. v. 45.

SIXTHLY, For what are we to pray?

We are to pray for things agreeable to God's revealed will, and for fuch things only, I John v. 14. " And this is the confidence that we have in him, that if we alk any thing according to his will, he heareth us." We may not prefent unto God unlawful defires, nor petitions in favour of our lufts, Jam. iv. 3. Thefe must needs be an abomination, and a daring affront to a holy God. And indeed wicked things are fo much the more wicked, as they are brought into our addreffes to a holy God.

The matter of our prayers must be regulated by the word of God, wherein he has fhewn what is pleafing to him, and what is not fo. The fignification of God's will and good pleafure as to the good to be beltowed on men, and our prayers, are to be of equal extent. Wherefore, let us fee that whatever we pray for be within the compais of the command or the promife.

Such are all things tending to the glory of God, Matth. vi. 9. or to the welfare of the church, Pfal. cxxii. 6.; to our own good, temporal, fpiritual, or eternal, Matth. vii. 11.; or that of others, Pfal. cxxv. 4.

SEVENTHLY, How are we to pray, if we would pray rightly and acceptably?

1. Understandingly, understanding what we fay, 1 Cor. xiv. 15. Therefore they must be in a known tongue. And to repeat words before God, while we know not what they mean, can never be prayer indeed.

2. Reverently, Eccl. v. 1. We must maintain an outward reverence in expression, voice, and gesture; since in prayer we are before the great God : an inward reverence efpecially, having an awful apprehention of the majefty of God, before whom we appear, Pfal. 1xxxix. 7. Heb. xii. 28. Fear and trembling becomes a creature, much more a guilty creature, before a holy God. And fearlefs prefumptuous addreffes to God are the produce of a hard heart. 1

3. Humbly, Pfal. x. 17. with a deep fenfe of our own unworthinefs and finfulnefs on our fpirits. In prayer we come to beg, not to buy or demand our right, and therefore should be sensible of unworthiness, Gen. xxxii. 10.; and the more grace, the more unworthy will we be in our Vol. III. Zz own own eyes, Gen. xviii. 27. And going to God, we must turn our eyes inward, with the Publican (Luke xviii. 14.), on our own evils of heart and life.

4. Feelingly, being deeply affected with a fenfe of our needs, like the prodigal, Luke xv. 17. 18. 19. Alas! what does it avail to go to God with an infenfible heart; to fit down at his table without fpiritual hunger; to come to his door rich and increased with goods, in our own conceit! Such are fent empty away. Therefore it is a piece of very neceffary preparation for prayer, to look over our wants, ere we go to prayer.

5. Believingly, Matth. xxi. 22. "All things whatfoever ye fhall afk in prayer, believing, ye fhall receive." He who prays acceptably muft be endued with faving faith, Heb. xi. 6. An unbeliever cannot pray acceptably, Rom. x. 14. Hence the prayers of the unrenewed man are all loft in respect of gracious acceptance. Moreover, the believer muft be in the exercise of faith in prayer, which muft be mixed with faith.

One must have a faith of particular confidence in prayer, as to the things prayed for, Mark xi. 24. "What things foever ye defire when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall receive them." For where that is altogether wanting, the prayer can never be accepted, Jam. i. 6. "Let him ask in faith, nothing wavering." Since it must needs be highly difhonouring to God, to come to him to ask, without any expectation from, or trust in him, as to what is asked.

Queft. How may one have that faith? Anf. By applying the promifes, and believing them. If the things be abfolutely neceffary, the promife makes thefe very things fure to them who come to God through Chrift for them, as peace, pardon, &c. If they be not, then the promife fecures God's doing the beft, that either he will give the very thing defired, or what is as good. And we are to believe accordingly.

6. Sincerely, Pfal. cxlv. 18. Hypocrify and diffimulation in prayer, when the heart goes not along with the lips, mars the acceptance of prayers. There are feigned lips, Pfal. xvii. 1. when the affections do not keep pace with the words in prayer; when fin is confeffed, but the heart not humbled under it; petitions are put up, but no ferious defire of the things afked. See Jer. xxix. 13.

7. Fervently, Jam. v. 16. Cold, lifeless, and formal prayers.

brayers, are not of the right ftamp. We fhould, as in a most weighty matter, be boiling hot, Rom. xii. 11. Importunity in prayer is most pleasing to God. It confists not in a multitude of words, Matth. vi. 7.; but in a holy earneftnefs of heart to be heard, Pfal. cxliii. 7.; and pleading with the Lord, by allowable arguments, as one who is in deep earneft, Job xxiii. 4. A heart warmed by a live coal from God's altar will produce this.

8. Watchfully, watching unto prayer, as in the text; taking heed to our fpirits, that they do not wander. Wandering thoughts in prayer mar many prayers. They come on like the fowls on the carcafe, and will devour it, if not driven away. A carnal frame of heart is the mother of them, and rafh indeliberate approaches to God help them forward.

In that cafe one should be like the builders of the wall, having the trowel in the one hand, and the fword in the other, refolutely to refift vain thoughts, and refuse to harbour them. Nay, turn the cannon on the enemy, confider them as affording new matter of humiliation, and a clamant occasion of plying the throne of grace more closely. If they be ftriven against, they will not mar your acceptance; but if not, they will.

9. Perfeveringly; watching thereunto with all perfeverance, as in the text. When we have tabled our fuit before the throne, we must not let it fall, but infist upon it, Luke xviii. 1. Hold on, with one petition, one prayer, on the back of another, till it be granted, If, lxii. 1. " In due time ye shall reap, if ye faint not."

Lafly, Dependingly, waiting upon the Lord with humble fubmiffion to his holy will, and looking for an anfwer, Micah vii. 7. We must come away in a waiting depending frame. No wonder those prayers be not regarded which we never look after, and are not concerned for the answer of.

EIGHTHLY, Are all fuch prayers accepted, heard, and anfwered?

1. An unrenewed man cannot thus pray, neither are fuch a one's prayers at any time accepted, Prov. xv. 8. " The facrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the Lord." John ix. 31. "God heareth not finners."

2. God's own people do not always thus pray, neither are all their prayers accepted. For, fays the Pfalmift, Pfal. lxvi. 18. " If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me."

. 3. But all fuch prayers, being the produce of God's Spirit Z 2 2 in in the faints, are prefented by the Mediator; and are accepted, heard, and anfwered by the Father, though not prefently anfwered, Pfal. xxii. 2.; yet they fhall be anfwered in due time, either by granting the very thing defired, I John v. 15.; or fomething as good, Gen. xvii. 18. 19.; 2 Cor. xii, 8. 9.

SECONDLY, The fecond part of prayer is confession of our fins. Here we shall shew,

I. What fins we are to confels.

2. The neceflity of confession.

3. How we are to confess fin.

Firsh, The fins we are to confess are, original and actual fins, fins of omiffion, commission, heart, lip, and life, Pfal. li. 4. 5. In a word, all our fins, fo far as we are capable, (for "who can understand his errors?" Pfal. xix. 12.), but effectially those which must wound the conficience, we are to be particular in, with their aggravations.

Secondly, Let us confider the neceffity of confeffion. (1.) It is neceffary to clear the Lord's juffice in proceeding againft us, Pfal. li. 4. "Againft thee, thee only have I finned, and done this evil in thy fight: that thou mightft be juffified when thou fpeakeft, and be clear when thou judgeft." (2.) The nature of the thing requires it, in order to obtain pardoning mercy, Prov. xxviii. 13. "Whofo confeffeth and forfaketh his fins fhall have mercy."

Thirdly, How are we to confess fin ?

1. Fully, without hiding of any thing wilfully, Prov. xxviii. 13. "He that covereth his fins fhall not profper." God knows all our fins, and all the circumstances of them: fo that it is in vain to mince our confession, and it speaks a heart not duly humbled.

2. Freely and voluntarily, pouring out the heart like water, and not merely making the confession as extorted. Whenever grace touches the heart, it will make it come freely away.

3. Sincerely, confeffing it with fhame, forrow, hatred of it, and a real purpole of reformation; otherwife it is but a mock confeffion.

THIRDLY, The third part of prayer is thankfgiving for mercies. Here I shall shortly shew,

1. What is the matter of this thankfgiving.

2. The necessity of it.

3. How we fhould give thanks.

Firf, The matter of it is,

1. Spiritual

1. Spiritual mercies, Eph. i. 3. Thefe are mercies for our fouls, and lead to everlafting happinefs; and therefore are most to be prized. They challenge the warmest and the most grateful acknowledgements from all who have received them.

2. Temporal mercies from the womb till now, Pfal. cxxxix. 14. These call for the most thankful acknowledgements every day, for they are new every morning. And we ought to be thankful for mercies conferred, not only on ourfelves, but alfo on others, particular perfons or focieties. So did the apostle as to Philemon, Phil. ver 4. "I thank my God, making mention of thee always in my prayers." And fo he did as to the Philippians, chap. i. 3. "I thank my God, upon every remembrance of you."

Secondly, Let us confider the neceffity of thank fgiving.

1. It is all that we can render to God for good or benefits received, Hof. xiv. 2. namely, to acknowledge debt, and be thankful. Ingratitude among men is reckoned a great fin and fcandal, and fixes an odious character on the perfon: but how much greater a fin and fcandalous offence is it to be unthankful to God for the mercies which we enjoy, and that we never deferved at his bountiful hand ! It is the character of heathens, Rom. i. 21. O let it not be that of Chriftians !

2. It is the way to get more. Unthankfulnefs mars the courfe of divine communications; but to the thankful it is opened, Phil. iv. 6. Ingratitude among men provokes the liberal perfon to with-hold his hand; and fo does it provoke the holy God, the giver of a'l good, to reftrain his favours. Alas! it is more natural to us to afk than to give thanks, Among ten feekers (the lepers), whom Chrift cured of a very inveterate difeafe, there was but one thanker; and he is fpecially noticed in the gofpel-hiftory. We fhould never beg a mercy from the Lord, without heartily thanking him for all we have formerly received, as this is the ready way to procure more.

Thirdly, How fhould we give thanks? With enlarged hearts, wondering at undeferved goodnefs; with deep humility for mercies conferred on fuch mean and unworthy creatures; with hearty refolutions to improve them for God's glory and honour; and with warm defires to receive more favours from the hands of God, our bountiful benefactor.

I shall conclude with a few inferences.

1. To live without prayer is a godlefs and gracelefs life, It is no better than the life of beafts, unfuitable to the ratiozal nature of man, contrary to the defign and end of his creation, tion, and highly unbecoming one who is a candidate for infmortality. It exposes the finner to the feverest strokes of God's justice; and, persisted in, will land him in hell. O let us all be excited to a life of prayer, remembering that we cannot be Christians without it. To pretend to be a Christian, and not to live a life of prayer, is a palpable contradiction.

2. The mifling of the anfwers of prayer is our own fault, we pray amifs. If we always prayed in faith, and in the manner formerly obferved, we would not be difappointed. Let us then be induced to pray in a right manner, and wait particularly on the Lord for gracious acceptance, and a favourable anfwer.

3. It is through Jefus Chrift that the communication with heaven is opened and obtained. Let us then pray in his name, depend upon his interceffion, and prefent all our petitions to God through him : for him the Father heareth always.

4. We need the Spirit of prayer, in order to our praying aright. Let us then cry inceffantly for the Holy Spirit, and his influences; for we know not what to pray for as we ought. Let us look for his quickening influences to quicken our dead hearts, and warm our frozen affections, that we imay fend up our hearts unto God, and wing our defires to heaven.

5. Be exhorted to give yourfelves unto prayer in all the forts of it. Be men of prayer, as David was, Pfal. cxix. 164. "Seven times a day do I praife thee." How may this fhame many Christians who pray but twice a-day? And how does it condemn all who reftrain prayer before the Lord? O let us be induced to make conficience of this important and delightful duty; without the exercise of which, we behave no better than the beafts that perifh, and are a company of ungrateful monfters, that shall be turned into hell, with all the nations that forget God. Pray evening and morning, and at all convenient feafons. Be always in a praying frame, and be devout and lively in all your applications to the throne of grace. Omit no featon of it, not even amidit your daily employments; for even then ye may fend forth pious thoughts towards heaven, and maintain communion with God while you are engaged in your daily labours : " Pray without cealing."

I might have spoke of occasional and stated prayer; of public, public, private, and fecret prayer; and of ordinary and extraordinary; but I fhall drop all thefe, and only give you next a difcourfe on fecret prayer.

A DISCOURSE ON SECRET PRAYER.

Matth. vi. 6.— But thou, when they prayels, enter into the clofet, and when thou half that the door, pray to the Father which is in fecret, and the Father which feeth in fecret, feall reward thee openly.

AVING opened up unto you the nature of prayer in general, before 1 proceed to the explanation of the Lord's prayer, it will not be improper to difcourfe a little of that too much neglected duty, fecret prayer; concerning which our bleffed Lord gives directions in this paffage of fcripture. And this he does negatively, ver. 5. cautioning againft performing that important duty with vanity and oftentation, to gain the applaufe of men. (2.) Pofitively, in the text. Wherein confider,

1. The duty itfelf urged by the Lord. And in it we may obferve, (t.) The duty fuppofed: When thou prayeft. That this is to be underflood only of fecret prayer, is manifeft from the text, and the preceding verfe. Public prayer cannot be meant; for where elfe is that to be performed but in the congregation? Not family-prayer, which is not performed in a clofet, and which muft be done by more than one. Not ejaculatory prayer, which may be done any where, in any company, an? whatever one be doing, as in the cafe of Nehemiah, chap. ii. 4. Therefore we muft underfland here folemn fecret prayer; which, in the text, the Lord takes it for granted that his difciples made conficience of.

2

(2.) The

(3.) The care that we fhould take leaft our fecret place become public: Shut thy door, fo as others may not fee thee, and fo thou fall a facrifice to hypocrify, vanity, and often-tation.

(4.) The duty itfelf commanded: Pray to thy Father which is in fecret. Where we have, [1.] The object of prayer, thy Father, namely, in Chrift; intimating to us, that when we go to God, we fhould go to him as he is our Father in Chrift, able and ready to help us, and reconciled to us in him. [2.] A defignation which the Father gets, which is in fecret; who knows as well what thou fayeft in a fecret place as what thou fayeft in public; for he is omnifcient and omniprefent.

2. The motive whereby he preffeth fecret prayer, viz. God's reward, who will openly reward fervice done in fecret, which the world knows not of. And those who make conficience of this duty in faith and fervency, are no ftrangers to those rewards and advantages that are to be met with in this heavenly traffic.

The text affords the following doctrine.

DOCT. "Secret prayer is a neceffary duty incumbent on all."

In difcourfing from this fubject, I shall,

I. Confirm the doctrine.

II. Shew the neceffity of fecret prayer.

III. Anfwer fome cafes relating to this duty, in order to elear it further to you.

IV. Make fome practical improvement.

I. I am to confirm the doctrine, or fhew that fecret prayer is a neceffary duty incumbent on all. This will be clear, if ye confider,

1. Christ's express command in the text, which is to us instead of all reasons. His will is a sufficient ground of our duty. He commands nothing but what is just and right in itself, good for us, and conducive to his glory. And the command of God should be a prevalent motive with all to practife practife conftantly this duty, which is attended with fo much pleafure and profit.

2. The Spirit of God, by the apofle, Eph. vi. 18. calls for it, "Pray with all praying," viz. all forts of prayer, of which fecret prayer is one. There are many exhortations to this daty in holy foripture, which manifelly flew the importance and neceffity of it; fuch as that, I Thefl. v. 17. "Pray without ceasing;" which muft denote fecret prayer, as well as other kinds of that exercise.

3. The practice of our Lord Jefus Chrift, who hath fet a fair and firiking example of this duty to all his followers. He was in strict propriety a man of prayer, and fpent much time in this delightful exercife ; as we may fee from Matth. xiv. 23. " And when he had fent the multitude away, he went up into a mountain a part to pray: and when the evening was come, he was there alone." Mark i. 35. "And in the morning, riting up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a folitary place, and there prayed." Thus he retired from his public labours to converse in fecret with his heavenly Father, and prevented the dawning of the day, to hold communion with heaven. Compare 1 John ii. 6. "He that faith he abideth in him, ought himfelf alfo fo to walk, even as he walked." The neglect of fecret prayer is an incontestable evidence of one's being a stranger to Chrift.

4. The practice of the faints of God, who were all dili. gent in the performance of this excellent duty. Thus the Pfalmift fays, Pfal. v. 3. " My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up." And how often this holy man was employed in this exercife, he tells us, Pfal. lv. 17. " Evening and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud: and he shall hear my voice." Which practice of his may make even the beft of us blufh, who ufually confine our fecret devotions to the morning and evening, and perhaps on very flight occasions intermit fometimes one of thefe feafons. But this pious man, though a crowned head, and involved in much bufinefs, was yet oftener at the throne of grace; for he fays, Pfal. cxix. 164. " Seven times a-day I will praife thee." O that we could imitate fo noble an example of fequefiration and retirement from the world ! Thus alfo Daniel "kneeled upon his knees three times a-day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God," chap. vi. 10. and that at a time when prayer to God was made a capital crime. VOL. III. 3 A Thus

Thus also we find, that Cornelius the Roman centurion, a profelyte to the Jewish religion, was one that " prayed to God always," Acts x. 2.; and that it was secret, and not family-prayer, in which he was employed, when the angel appeared to him, is evident from ver. 7.; for on the departure of the heavenly meffenger from him, who certainly fpoke to him in a retired chamber, he called fome of his domeftics, to difpatch them for Peter to come to him, as the angel had directed. Thus likewife we find, that good King Hezekiah was no ftranger to this delightful exercife; for when the prophet Ifaiah was fent with a heavy meffage to him, announcing his death, " he turned his face toward the wall, and prayed unto the Lord," If. xxxviii. 1. 2. Compare Cant. i. 7. And indeed to which of the faints can we turn in any age, who neglected this duty? Habitual neglect of prayer is not the fpot of God's children. No fooner docs grace take poffeffion of the foul of any perfon, but behold that perfon will pray, as Saul did at Damafcus, after the extraordinary appearance of the Lord Jefus to him on his journey to that city, Acts ix. 11.

Thus we have express divine precepts, apostolical injunctions, and the approved practice of our Lord Jefus, and of all the faints, to recommend this duty to us; and wo unto us if we neglect it.

II. I proceed to fhew the neceffity of fecret prayer. It is not neceffary in regard of merit, as if we could procure heaven by it. The only ground of eternal life in the manfions of blifs is the righteoufnefs of a crucified Redeemer. Beggars pay no debts, but confefs infufficiency, faying with the prophet, Dan. ix. v. "We have finned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts, and from thy judgements." But it is neceffary,

1. In regard of the command of God. He by a plain and express command requires it; and that command binds it as a neceffary duty upon us. To neglect it, therefore, is a direct violation of a command of the great God and Lawgiver; and to make conficience of it is a neceffary and proper act of obedience to the divine will.

2. To give God the glory of his omnifcience and omniprefence. When we pray to our Father which is in fecret, we plainly declare, that we believe he knows and fees all things, that that the darknefs and the light are alike unto him; and that he is the witnefs and infpector of all our actions, and will call us to an account for all our thoughts, words, and actions, which are well known to him.

3. To evidence our fincerity, that it is not to be feen of men that we pray; that we are not acted from motives of oftentation and vain-glory, but from regard to the divine command, and a fincere defire to ferve God: though indeed it will not hold that all fuch as pray in fecret are fincere; for, alas! men may be very affiduous in this duty, and yet be far from being fincere Christians, or accepted of God therein.

4. In regard that none know our cafe fo well as ourfelves: and therefore, though the mafter of the family pray in the family, yet we ought to pray by ourfelves, in order to make known our particular cafe and wants unto God, which none other can know, and to aik fuch bleffings and mercies of him as we find in need of, and are fuitable to our circumflances.

5. In regard that, if we know our own hearts, we cannot but have fomewhat to fay unto the Lord, that we cannot, nor would it be at all proper to fay before others, refpecting both confeffion of fins and fupplication for mercies. Hence the fpoufe fays, Cant. vii. 11. 12. "Come, my Beloved, let us go forth unto the field: let us lodge in the villages. Let us get up early to the vineyards, let us fee if the vine flourifh, whether the tender grape appear, and the pomegranates bud forth : there will I give thee my loves."

6. In regard of our wants continually recurring on our hands, and daily and hourly temptations, that may call for this exercife, when family-prayer cannot be had. What man is fo well fupplied, both as to temporal and fpiritual bleffings, as to have no occafion for afking fupplies from above? Man is a needy and indigent creature in all refpects; as a creature he lives on the bounties of providence, and as a Chriftian on the grace which is in Chrift Jefus; and therefore he muft daily apply to the throne of grace for neceflary fupplies in both. And as we are daily furrounded with temptations, and have no firength to refift or repel them, we muft fetch in firength from God in Chrift by prayer, left we fall and be overcome by the temptations in our way.

Thus it appears from these confiderations, that prayer is a neceffary duty incumbent on all. And furely all who have tailed that the Lord is gracious will make conficence of this important and ufeful exercise.

3 A 2

have

III. I proceed to anfwer fome cafes concerning this duty, which will tend to clear it further unto you.

 $2\mu\epsilon/l$. 1. What is the proper feafon of this duty of fecret prayer? or when are we called to this exercise?

Anf. 1. We are doubtlefs to be very frequent in this duty. Thus we are called to "pray always," Eph. vi. 18.; and "without ceafing," I Theff. v. 17.; that is, at all proper times, and to be continually in a praying frame, or to pray inwardly, though we utter not a word with our lips.

2. Whenever God calls us to it, putting an opportunity in our hands, and moving and inciting us to it, then we are to go about it. Thus, when the Lord Jefus fays, "Seek ye my face;" our hearts fhould fay unto him, "Thy face, Lord, will we feck," Pfal. xxvii. 8. And thus we have daily calls and invitations to this duty, which we fhould carefully regard, and confcientioufly embrace, left we quench the Spirit, and provoke the Lord to harden our hearts from his fear.

3. The faints in feripture have fometimes been more, fometimes lefs frequent in this exercife. Thus David was fometimes employed thrice, fometimes feven times a-day in prayer, Pfal. lv. 17. and cxix. 164.; and Daniel three times, even at a very perilous juncture, Dan. vi. 10. From whofe practice the frequency of performing this duty evidently appears.

4. Morning and evening at leaft we fnouid pray, and not neglect this duty. This appears from our Lord's practice, Mark i. 35. Matth. xiv. 23. both cited above; from the practice of the faints in scripture, Pfal lv. 2. and v. 2. formerly quoted; and from the morning and evening facrifice under the legal difpenfation, which were daily offered, and fhould excite us to offer up unto God daily the morning and evening facrifice of prayer and praife. And the very light of nature teaches us fo much ; that when we are preferved through the filent watches of the dark night, and from the perils we may be exposed unto in that gloomy feafon, we fhould acknowledge the goodnefs and kindnefs of God therein; and that when we are preferved through the day, from the many fnares and temptations we are liable to amidft the cares and diffractions of our bufinefs, we fhould blefs God for his preferving and protecting mercy, and commit ourfelves, ielves, and all our concerns, into the hand of God, when we are going to take neceffary reft, that we may fall alleep under a fenfe of his love, and may rife again to refume the bufinefs of our callings with his bleffing and favour.

Queft. 2. What is the proper place for fecret prayer?

Anf. A fecret place is the most proper place for this exercife; and though every body has not a closet, or retired apartment, into which he may go in and that the door, yet any place where we may be retired from the view and obfervation of others, answers the purpose; though in other refpects it be a public place, yet if it be dark, and the voice kept low, it is justly a fecret place. And to a place of that fort did our Lord retire for fecret prayer, Matth. xiv. 23. perhaps not having proper conveniency in the place where he lodged all night. And indeed there is not a perfon but may meet with fuch a fecret place every day, if he have a disposition for this exercise.

Queft. 3. What gefture are we to use in fecret prayer?

Anf. 1. Holy feripture does not bind us to any gefture particularly; but we find thefe four geftures of the body in prayer fpoken of there, viz. ftanding, Mark xi. 25.; lying along on the face, Matth. xxvi. 39.; kneeling, Dan. vi. 10. Eph. iii. 14.; and fitting, 2 Sam. vii. 18.

2. Whatever the gefture be, let it be a reverent one, that may express a humble and reverent frame of fpirit. Hence we are commanded to "glorify God in our bodies," I Cor. vi. 20.

3. I shall fay these two things for the further determination of this queffion. (1.) Let it be fuch a gesture as is conformable unto, or flows natively from, the prefent difpofition of the heart. Thus in extraordinary cafes we find the faints were wont to fall on their faces, 2 Sam. xii. 16. And fo likewife did the Lord Jefus in the garden, on the eve of his fufferings, Matth. xxvi. 39. (2.) Yet let it be always to edification; and let that gesture be chosen which is most conducive to devotion, and occasions left distraction in the duty: As if kneeling be dangerous for the body, and fo may tend to difturb the mind, let another gesture be chosen that is not attended with thefe inconveniences; though kneeling is certainly the most eligible gesture, and expressive of that humility which must ever accompany this exercise. And the fame thing we may fay of clofing the eyes, or keeping them open; though praying with the eyes thut is certainly to be preferred.

Quef.

Quef. 4. What are we to fay of the voice in fecret prayer?

Anf. 1. The duty may be performed without ufing the voice, as was done by Mofes in the firait the children of Ifrael were reduced to, after their efcape from Egypt, when high and inacceffible mountains were on each fide of them, the Red Sea before them, and the Egyptian hoft at their heels ready to cut them off. In this dilemma we find that great man crying to the Lord, though not with an audible voice, Exod. xiv. 15. Thus the voice is not to be ufed when people cannot do fo without being heard, or when through weaknefs of body, or difquiet of mind, they are unfit for fpeaking with the tongue.

2. Yet where the voice may be ufed, and that with convenience and propriety, it fhould be made ufe of ; and that, (1.) Becaufe we are to glorify God with our bodies ; and particularly our tongue is given to be an inftrument of glorifying God ; "Awake, my glory," fays David, Pfal. lvii. 8. (2.) Becaufe the voice is of good ufe in fecret prayer, to ftir up the affections, and to ftay the mind from wandering. Yet an affected loudnefs of the voice, whereby the fecret prayer is made public, is a fad fign of great hypocrify, which every ferious Chriftian will guard againft.

Quest. 5. Is fecret prayer a fure mark of fincerity? or can one pray in fecret, and yet be an hypocrite?

Arf. This is not out of the reach of the hypocrite. A hypocrite may come this length, and much farther. Judas was among the reft whom our Lord taught to pray in fecret, and ye all know what was his fate. But though a hypocrite may continue a long time, nay, many years, in the practice of fecret prayer; yet it is fcarcely to be thought that he will always do fo, if he live a long life: For, fays Job, "Will he [the hypocrite] always call upon God?" chap. xxvii. 10. It is not to be thought that he will, as he has no communion with God in the duty. And therefore, adds the fame holy man, "Will he always delight himfelf in the Almighty?" It is communion with God that is to be enjoyed in fecret prayer, and the delight the foul has in it, that inclines a perfon to perfevere in that exercife.

 $I_{n/l}$. But if one pray not to be feen of men, can he be a hypocrite?

Anf. Yes, he may. For the terrors of God feading the conficience, and a delire to lay the ferment thereby brought into the mind, may excite one to the duty, and put the applaufe plaufe of men entirely out of the mind. But fecret prayer, conficientioufly practifed, and attended with manifestations of the Lord's love and favour, smiles of his face, returns of what was asked, and continued faith and fervency, are undoubted figns of fincerity.

374

I come now to the improvement of this jubject.

Use I. Of information. It fnews us,

1. That they have great reason to suspect themselves, who are firangers to this duty of secret prayer; and that on the following grounds.

(1.) Becaufe they come not the length of many hypoerites, who fhall never come the length of heaven. There are many fuch who will not, for any confideration, omit their fecret prayers every day: which is a thing good in ittelf, but they make them the ground of their acceptance with God, and fo will perifh notwith thanding. How much more muft those perifh who live in the habitual neglect of this duty!

(2.) Becaufe they look not like the faints, whofe difpofition has been to feek communion with God in fecret, as in the cafe of the fpoufe, Cant. vii. II. and many others. What ! can ye pretend to be faints, and yet live fo very unlike them ?

(3.) Becaufe it feems they are very unacquainted with themfelves, that know nothing to confefs to, or afk of God, but what they can do before any. Did men know their mifery and their wants, and had a fuitable fenfe thereof, they would not be ftrangers to fecret prayer.

(4.) Becaufe it looks too hypocritical-like to have others to be witneffes to all our duties.

2. Then there is much hidden work in religion. True religion is not all exposed to the view of others. Attending on public ordinances in the church, and going the round of family-worship, is not that in which the whole of religion confists: for many may be diligent enough in these exercises, and yet ftrangers to vital heart-religion. But they that are truly religious in the eye of God, are such who not only perform outward duties, but worship God in spirit, and hold communion and intercourse with him in secret prayer, without which they can no more live, than without bread and water.

Use II. Of exhortation. Be exhorted then, all of you, to fet about this duty of fecret prayer. And this exhortation Feddrefs to you who never yet began this exercise, and to you who, though ye have perhaps formerly done fomething this way, yet now have left it off. To prefs this, I offer the following motives.

VO!

1. It is a piece of worfhip expressly commanded of God in the text, and it is directly required by him, Eph. vi. 18. Will ye then counteract God's express command? If ye do, it will be at your peril.

2. Are ye not engaged to this duty? Are not the vows of God upon you for the performance of it? Were ye not baptifed in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft, to worthip them, and that in all parts of worthip, of which prayer is a principal one? Have not fome of you been admitted to the Lord's table, when ye profeffed to renew your baptifmal engagements? And perhaps fome of you have fick-bed vows on you to that purpofe.

3. Have ye not fecret fins, fecret wants, and fecret temptatious?, and fhail ye not have fecret prayers adapted to each, requefling of the Lord the pardon of your fecret fins, the fupply of your fecret wants, and grace to refift and overcome your fecret temptations?

4. Laftly, This is your known duty; and therefore remember, that " the fervant that knew his mafter's will, but did it not, fhall be beaten with double ftripes." Wherefore, I charge you, as you will anfwer to God at death and at judgement, and as you love your own fouls, and would not eternally perifh, to fet about this neceffary and important duty.

But fome are ready to multer up a variety of objections against this duty; the chief of which I shall endeavour to obviate.

Object. 1. I have no time for fecret prayer, for my work and builnefs. Anf. 1. This is thy greateft work, even the falvation of thy foul, in comparison of which all thy other work is a mere trifle : and wilt thou take time for thy other work, and not for this work, that challenges thy utmoft care and attention ? 2. Fools hafte is no fpeed. To rife out of the bed, and to go immediately to fecular work, is foolish curfed hafte. How canft thou look for a bleffing on thy work without prayer ? 3. Rife the fooner every morning, that you may not be ferimped as to time for this exercife, as our bleffed Lord did, Mark i. 35. How wilt thou answer to God at the great day, for ipending that time in fleep, which thou fhould thave spent in fecret prayer? Daniel would not omit this exercife, though at the hazard of his life.

Object,

Object. 2. We are fo wearied with our work through the day, that we are not able to pray in the evening. Anf. I. What difference is there betwixt you and the beafts that take their eafe when their work is done, without any more ado? 2. You will take your meat for your bodies, though ever fo weary; and why will ye not think of and provide meat for your perifhing fouls? John iv. 6. 32. 3. Notwithstanding ye may be tired, do what ye are able. We are not commanded to tell you to make your prayers fhort or long; but by no means to neglect fecret prayer altogether, which is very dangerous. But I fuppofe, that when you fay your body is not able to fubfift with fecret prayer, that yet if ye could gain a fixpence at that very time, you would fpend twice much more time for that paltry gain; and yet flight the concerns of your fouls, under this frivolous pretence.

Object. 3. We have no convenient place for fecret prayer. Anf. Find out once a willing heart for this exercife, and I thall engage for it you thall find a place. Are there not barns, byres, out-houfes, and fields, for you to retire to? Will not thefe rife up and witnefs againft thee that neglecteft this duty, at the great day? For my part, I would rather go to prayer, even within a dwelling-houfe, in the place where the beafts ftand, or behind a bed, or at the back of a houfe, ere I thould neglect it. God requires all men to pray, but he does not require all men to have chambers and clofets.

Object. 4. But there are prayers in our family, and I join therein; what needs more? Anf. Poor foul! haft thou no more to fay of thyfelf to God, but what the mafter of the family fays? Alas! thou knoweft not thyfelf, and the dreadful cafe thou art in by nature; which if thou didft, thou wouldft not think joining in prayer with others enough. Thou thinkeft it fufficient that the mafter of the family pray for thee, and the other members of his family, and thou lieft by without concerning thyfelf about duty for thyfelf: wilt thou think it enough, that he go to heaven for thee, and thou be fhut out for ever?

Object. 5. But (fays the mafter of the family) I pray with my family, and I hope that is enough for me. Anf. In this command in the text, Chrift has not excepted thee, neither dare I. Again, doft thou fo well difcharge family prayer, that thou haft no efcapes or failures to be matter of fecret prayer? I tell you plainly, that God will not have his worthip halved : He will have either the whole or nothing. Vol. III. 3 B Being Being confcientious in family-prayer is good, but can never excufe the neglect of fecret prayer, which is as much thy duty. Yea, the more thou art helped to difcharge familyduty, the more wilt thou be inclined to the practice of fecret duty. The falfe mother was for dividing the child, not the true one.

Object. 6. Some women that have children to nurfe and wait on, think that frees them from this duty. Anf. It is a fad obfervation of many women, who, while they are unmarried, and are not involved in the cares and troubles of a family, have fome profession and practice of religion; but as foon as they get a houfe to manage, and have the care of young children efpecially, they caft off all religion, as if they had no more concern therein. But furely the very fight of the child whom thou haft conceived in fin, and brought forth in-iniquity, fhould remind thee of thy original guilt and corruption, and incite thee to apply to the blood and Spirit of Chrift for pardon and cleanfing, and be a powerful fpur to thee to fet about this great duty of fecret prayer. And remember, that the welfare of thy own foul, and that of the child, is more than that of the child's bodily welfare, which deferves but the fecond care in comparison of the other. would not have you by any means to caft off the care of the young one's temporal welfare; but thou mayft fo obferve times and feafons, as thou mayft take time for this duty morning and evening, though it be not immediately after thou rifeft, or before thou lieft down. Thou mayst even do it when thou art rocking the cradle, or fuckling the child. Alas ! it had been telling many, that they had had the womb that never bare, and the paps that never gave fuck.

Object. 7. God knows the heart, and what needs fo much ado about praying in fecret, as if God knew not what we wanted, or what we would be at, till we fit down on our knees, and tell him? Anf. God knows the heart of fuch an objector to be a gracelefs heart, and his end to be deftruction, Matth. vii. 15. 20.; and his heart to be a foolifh atheiftical heart, that will not call upon God, Pfal. xiv. 1. Again, what is this but to argue God's command to be foolifh? He bids you pray, and you fay it is needlefs. O daring prefumption ! Though the Lord not only knows your heart, but has a mind to give bleffings to poor finners, he will have you feek them by prayer: "For these things," fays he, " will I be inquired of by the houfe of Ifrael, that I may do it for them," Ezek. xxxvi. 37. God never confers fignal mercies on his people, without first pouring out on them the Spirit of faith and prayer, and determines them to feek ardently the very thing he has a mind to grant them. And this method is for the glory of his name, and for our real benefit.

Object. 8. Age and infirmity will not fuffer me to go about that duty. Anf. Will it fuffer you to do your bufinefs in the world, and will it not fuffer you to manage your foul's bufinefs, which is of infinitely greater importance? It would feem, that the nearer we draw to the grave, the more active we should be in preparing for it. It were good, that old people would mind heaven more, and the world lefs, as they have fo fhort a time to ftay here. The concerns of the other world fhould mainly ingrofs their care aud attention, and they fhould then redouble their diligence in improving their fpan of time, and doing that which perhaps they too much neglected in the days of health and vigour. "The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteoufnefs," Prov. xvi. 31.; " But the finner being an hundred vears old shall be accurfed." If. 1xv. 20. Let this found an alarm to all the old finners among you, that ye may yet apply to the merciful Redeemer, who fets even fome to work in the vineyard at the eleventh hour. It is fad to be tottering under the miferies and infirmities of old age, and yet to have no profpect of a happy landing. Fly then to Chrift, thou old decrepit finner, while his call reaches thee, left thou fpeedily perifh without remedy.

Object. 9. I am too young to mind fecret prayer. Anf. You are too old never to have entered on God's fervice. Rememher that Jofiah, when he was but eight years old, began to feek the Lord God of his father David. Obadiah, Ahab's fteward, feared the Lord greatly from his youth. John Baptift was fanctified from the womb; and fo was the prophet Je-Timothy knew the holy fcriptures from a child. remiah. You can never begin to be religious too foon. None ever repented that they fought the Lord; but all have repented that they did not begin to feek him fooner. You are as liable to death as the oldeft perfon here, have a foul as precious as theirs, and as much need to mind your beft and eternal interefts as they. Up then and be doing, without putting off a moment longer.

Chjeët. ult. I cannot pray. Anf. The truth is, thou wilt not pray, Pfal. x. 4. If thou hadft a will to the duty, thou wouldft foon learn. But if thou wouldft learn to pray, go to God, that he may teach thee, as Chrift taught the difciples; and confider the absolute need thou hast of divine instruction in this matter. Use the one talent, and God will increase it. Wherefore fet about this weighty duty, and neglect it not. Think ferioufly with yourfelves, whether those who are now in hell, and when they lived neglected fecret prayer like you, would do fo ftill if they were in the world again. I fcarce think they would. Pray now, therefore, left ye repent your neglect, when it will be too late, and ye are tormented in the lake of fire and brimftone. Again, think with yourfelves how you will get this criminal neglect digefted on a deathbed, when ye are ready to leap into eternity, without having once prayed for God's mercy through Chrift to your fouls; and how you will get it digefted before the awful tribunal of God, when he will drive you from his bleffed prefence for ever. Think with yourfelves how precious time is, and what a fad bufinefs it is to fpend it in purfuing the world and lying vanities, and neglecting communion with God, wherein lies the life of the foul. What ! will ye delay it yet a while ? O do it not ! for delays are dangerous. Will ye be fo foolifh as to venture all to two or three words on a fick-bed or deathbed? Perhaps you will not get one, but may be hurried away in a moment. Confider that awful paffage, Prov. i. 24-28. "Becaufe I have called, and ye refufed, I have ftretched out my hand, and no man regarded; but ye have fet at nought all my counfel, and would none of my reproof: I alfo will laugh at your calamity, I will mock when your fear cometh; when your fear cometh as defolation, and your deftruction cometh as a whirlwind; when diffrefs and anguish cometh upon you. Then fhall they call upon me, but I will not anfwer ; they fhall feek me early, but they fhall not find me."

Exhort. 2. Be frequent in this duty, morning and evening at leaft, and at other times when your conveniency will allow, and go not only to it now and then. Confider,

1. God's exprefs command, which ties you to pray always, continually, and without ceafing. This does not mean, that you fhould do nothing but pray, or fpend your whole time in this exercife. No; but denotes frequency, and embracing every opportunity that offers for fo delightful and profitable a duty. It fays you fhould be always in a praying frame, never having your minds fo much ingroffed in worldly concerns, as to be indifpofed to call upon God in prayer.

2. Frequency in this duty is a good fign of a good frame, and an excellent mean to maintain and preferve it. They who are not frequent in this exercife, do thereby fhew that their frame and difpolition is not fpiritual, but carnal, much under the conduct of fenfe, and attachment to fenfible things. Whereas, if a perfon were frequent in this duty, it would be a token of a heart weaned from the world, and much converfant in the things of God.

who

2. Lafly, It is dangerous to grow flack and remifs in this duty, as mournful experience has teftified in the cafe of many. They who having been for years frequently employed in this heavenly exercife, do at last turn careless, restrain praver before the Lord, or but now and then bow a knee before him, do thereby declare they have loft the life and relifh of the power of religion, and are in the high road to apoftafy. There are not wanting inftances of fuch having returned with the dog to his vomit, and with the fow that was walhed to her wallowing in the mire. Others have been made fignal monuments of judgment, and fet up as beacons to backfliders. And fome who have had the root of the matter in them, have had fuch a ftorm raifed in their confciences, as has made them a terror to themfelves, and all around them; and it has coft them much and fore wreftling with God ere they recovered the light of his countenance. For the Lord's fake, then, and your own fouls fake, be frequent in this exercife, and grow not remifs therein, left ye feel the vengeance of God's temple.

Exhort. 3. To parents and mafters of families. I befeech and intreat you, by the mercies of God, by the love ye bear to the Lord Jefus, and the regard ye have to the fouls of your children and fervants, not only to pray in fecret yourfelves, but by all the means that are competent to you, by command, advice, exhortation, &c. to ftir them up to this duty of fecret prayer. For motives confider,

1. It was the practice of John the Baptift, yea, and of Chrift himfelf, the great Prophet of the church, Luke xi. 1. Thus this duty comes recommended by the beft authority, and the most excellent approved patterns. Chrift taught and urged his difciples to pray, and for that end gave them an excellent directory, fuited to their then state; and which ye would do well to make your rule in instructing your children and fervants.

2. God exprefsly commands it, Deut. vi. 7. "Thou fhalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and fhalt talk of them when thou fittelt in thine houfe, and when thou walkeft by the way, and when thou lieft down, and when thou rifelt up." up." Thus they were to be daily employed in this duty, not only to let their children know what they were bound to do, but to prefs them to the performance of it. And this command being of moral obligation, is equally incumbent upon you that are Chriftian parents and mafters of families; and ye have far fuperior advantages for this exercife than the Ifraelites had, a fmall part of the Bible having been then written; whereas ye have the whole of it among your hands.

3. God commends the practice in Abraham, Gen. xviii. 19. "I know him," fays Jehovah, "that he will command his children, and his houfehold after him, and they fhall keep the way of the Lord, to do juffice and judgment." Thus, if thou make confcience of this duty, thou wilt tread in the fteps of the father of the faithful, and receive tokens of the divine approbation, by the Lord's bleffing thy family, and profpering thy outward concerns, and be an example to others to excite them to their duty. This will be the ready way to have dutiful and affectionate children, and obedient and careful fervants.

4. Confider the engagements which thou tookeft on thee at the baptifum of thy children, to train them up in the good and holy ways of the Lord; to inform them of their natural depravity, impotency, and averfion to what is good, of the method of falvation by the obedience and death of Chrift; and to prefs them to yield themfelves to the Lord, by taking hold of his covenant by faith. Thou became then engaged to inftruct them in the principles of our holy religion, to fhew them their duty to God and man, and to obferve his ordinances and commandments. And canft thou fulfil thefe thy engagements, unlefs thou be at pains to inftruct them, and effecially to ftir them up to the practice of fecret praver.

5. Laftly, Their fouls are committed to thy charge; and if they perifh through thy neglect, their blood will be required at thy hand. Ah! my friends, Papifts and others will rife up in judgment againft you, who take more pains on their children, to breed them up in their falfe and corrupt doctrines, and their idolatrous and fuperfittious courfes, than ye to inftruct them in the pure doctrines and precepts of religion. If thou now neglect their religious education and inftruction, thy loft children and fervants fhall curfe the day that ever they faw thy face, who tookeft no more carc of them than of thy beafts. Oh! let this melancholy confideration excite and flir thee up to thy duty now, left thy thy children and fervants rife up in judgment against thee, and be a dreadful addition to thy condemnation.

382

What fhall we do then ? may ye fay.

1. As foon as they can fpeak perfectly, give them a few words to fpeak to God upon their knees every morning and evening, and fee that they do fo. Let thefe words confift of a fhort confeffion of fin, an acknowledgement of God's goodnefs in prefervation, and an application for pardon through the blood of Jefus.

2. When they advance farther in years, give them the help of a form, composed chiefly in fcripture-words, and particularly that which Chrift taught his difciples. And be fure to vary and enlarge any form you give them, from time to time; and in a little time, by reading the Bible, and duly confidering their own cafe and wants, they will be able to pray without a fet form : for it is often observed, that where young ones make conficience of practifing the helps that are given them, and take pleasure in the duty, the Holy Spirit ftrikes in with his affiftance, and lays fuitable matter of prayer before them; fo that even fome very young perfons have been found to pray with great fluency and fervour, to the admiration of those who happened to overhear them.

3. Pray frequently with your children; which will be an excellent means to inftruct them both as to the matter and manner of the duty, and have a powerful influence upon them to induce them to pray for themfelves. And indeed I muft fay, if parents made more confcience of this practice, in praying with their children, the young ones would not difcover fuch averfion to the duty as many do; nor would there be fuch a numerous fry of young prayerlefs finners among us, who, though they have not learned to pray, yet are great proficients in fpeaking vain and idle words, and in curfing and fwearing.

4. Furnish them daily with proper materials of prayer, which ye can extract from the Lord's word, your own obfervation of the ftate and temper of your fouls, the difpofition and inclination of your children, the fins and vanities they are most addicted to, your knowledge of their peculiar wants and defires, and what appears to be fuitable to their circumftances and fituation.

5. Lafly, Carefully obferve, whether they perform this duty or not; that you may encourage them when they do well, and check and rebuke them when they neglect it. Shew Shew them that you are influenced by a regard to the command and authority of God, and are actuated with a hearty zeal and concern for the falvation of their fouls, in all you do in this matter, whether refpecting the encouragements and advices you give them, or the rebukes and chaftifements you administer to them, in case of non-compliance, neglect, or careles performance, of the duty enjoined. This will have no fmall influence upon them to comply with your instructions and directions, and by degrees conquer their aversion to the exercise; and you may come, through the divine bleffing, to fee the happy fruit of your labours and endeavours.

Thus I have endeavoured, as briefly as I could, to lay before you the nature, importance, and neceffity, of this excellent duty of fecret prayer, and have removed the moft material objections that can be made againft it. If any of you, then, fhall continue in the habitual neglect of this exercife, and fo perifh, your blood will be upon your own head, for I have delivered my own foul. But I hope better things of you, and things that accompany falvation, though I thus fpeak : and I hope there will no more henceforth be a prayerlefs perfon among us. Which God, of his infinite mercy, grant.

OF THE RULE OF DIRECTION IN PRAYER.

Matth. vi. 9. — After this manner, therefore, pray ye, Our Father, Sc.

OUR Lord Jefus Chrift, in his fermon on the mount, whereof this chapter is a part, retrieves religion from the falfe doctrines, and the corrupt and hypocritical practices, tices, which the Scribes and Pharifees brought into it. They were not wanting in the matter of external duties, but they were far from the right manner of performing them. Wherefore, in the first four verses, he teaches them the right manner of doing alms. In the next place, he teaches them the right manner of praying. He taxes two faults in the manner of praying: (1.) Hypocritical oftentation, ver. 5. and points them to the right manner in this point. (2.) Idle multiplying of words, ver. 7. 8. In the text, for helping of this fault, and others about prayer, the Lord, being to give us a prayer to ferve for a pattern, and to direct us in praying, bids us " pray after this manner ;" i. e. in the manner following in the form of prayer here fet down; not binding us to the very words, but to the manner of it, that we must pray after this manner, and to this purpose.

384

The right manner of performing the duty of prayer, is what God requires, and we fhould be concerned for. The Lord knows his people's weaknefs, and how ready they are to go wrong in this, and how much they need direction; and therefore gives this form and pattern of prayer, for their direction in that weighty duty: After this manner addrefs yourfelves to God in prayer. He had not left them without direction altogether before : they had the word formerly written, but this is added as a fpecial rule of direction.

The text offers this doctrine :

Doct. "Though the whole word of God is of use to direct us in prayer, yet the special rule of direction is that form of prayer, which Christ taught his disciples, commonly called the Lord's Prayer."

Here I shall shew,

I. That we need direction in prayer.

II. What rule God hath given for our direction therein.

II. Whether these rules are fufficient to enable us to pray ac eptably.

IV. Deduce fome inferences.

I. I am to fhew, that we need direction in prayer. This is evident from,

1. God's greatnefs. It is to him who dwells in heaven that we muft addrefs ourfelves in prayer: therefore, "be not rafh with thy mouth (fays Solomon), nor let thine heart be hafty to utter any thing before God: for God is in heaven, and thou upon earth : therefore let thy words be few," Eccl. v. 2. Rafh and fearlefs approaches fpeak unbecoming thoughts of God, and low thoughts of the throne in heaven, which one prefents himfelf before. And to fuch may be faid, "Thefe things haft thou done, and I kept filence; thou thoughteft that I was altogether fuch a one as thyfelf: but I will reprove thee, and fet them in order before thine eyes," Pfal. l. 21. Who of us, approaching the prefence of our prince, to prefent our petition before him, would not feek direction as to the right and acceptable manner of doing it? How much more fhould we, who have petitions to prefent to him who is God of gods, and King of kings, afk direction as to the right manner of prefenting our petitions?

VOL. III.

and

2. Our own guiltinefs, Luke xviii. 13. Whoever would be rafh or carelefs in approaching his prince's prefence, one would think that a rebel, a traitor, and a criminal, would fee well to the manner of his addrefs, and would be very cautious. This is our cafe, and therefore that fhould be our way. Therefore the prodigal thinks before-hand what he will fay to his offended father, Luke. xv. 18. 19.

3. The weight of the matter we go upon. Our errand to the throne is, to worfhip God, who " will be fanctified in them that come nigh him, and before all the people willhe be glorified," Lev. x. 3.; which is awful and folemn work, and gives ground for that queftion, " Wherewith fhall I come before the Lord, and bow myfelf before the high God," Micah vi. 6. It is to prefent our fupplications for our needs for time and for eternity. And if he help us not, all the world cannot do it. Our fouls lie at ftake, eternity is before us; and to treat with God on the bufinefs of eternity, is bufinefs that needs direction.

4. Our weaknefs and aptnefs to miltake and miltarry in the approach, Job xxxvii. 19. "Teach us what we fhall pray unto him: for we cannot order our fpeech by reafon of darknefs." We have no fkill to manage the weighty matter; and we will be perfuaded of it, if we know ourfelves. We are ready to go wrong in the matter of prayer, Rom. viii. 26.; to afk of God things not agreeable to his revealed will, being blinded with our own paffions and prejudices, Luke ix. 54. And we are apt to go wrong in the manner of prayer, by infincerity, formality, and carnality, Jam. iv. 3. If. lxiv. 7.

5. Laftly, The danger of miftaking and mifcarrying in prayer, either of the ways. It may provoke the Lord against us,

386

us, and bring down a curfe inftead of a bleffing upon us, Mal. i. ult. "Curfed be the deceiver, which hath in his flock a male, and voweth and facrificeth unto the Lord a corrupt thing: for I am a great King, faith the Lord of hofts, and my name is dreadful among the heathen." Exod. xx. 7. "Thou fhalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltlefs that taketh his name in vain." At leaft it will fruftrate our prayers, fo that they will be rejected and not heard, Jam. iv. 3.; our petitions caft over the bar. Or what we feek not agreeable to his will, may be given us with a vengeance, Pfal. cvi. 15.

II. The fecond head is, What rule hath God given for our direction in prayer? Our gracious God has not left us without direction in that matter. We have from himfelf the rule which we are to walk by in our addreffes to the throne: and how elfe could we know it? who elfe could teach us how guilty creatures fhould prefent their fupplications to the moft high God? And, Firft, There is a general rule given us for that end; and that is the whole word of God, the fcriptures of the Old and New Teftament, in which God's will is revealed, as to all things to be believed or done by us, I John v. 14. By our Bible we may learn to pray; for there we are furnifhed with all forts of helps and directions for this duty, as to matter, manner, and words; and therefore it is a complete directory for prayer.

1. It furnishes us abundantly with matter of prayer, in all the parts of it, petition, confession, &c. Phil. li. 4. 5. Phil. iv. 6. And whofo has the word of God dwelling richly in him, will not want of matter for prayer, for himself or for others. There is a storehouse of it there, of great variety; and we are welcome to the use of it, agreeable to our own case.

2. It fully directs us as to the manner of prayer : as, for inftance, that we must pray with fincerity, Heb x. 22.; with humility, Pfal. x. 17.; in faith, Jam. i. 6.; and with fervency, Jam. v. 16. And there is no qualification neceffary in prayer, but what we may learn from the holy word.

3. It furnishes us with the most fit words to be used in prayer. Do ye want words to express your defires before the Lord? He has given us his own words in the Bible, that we may use them according to our needs, Hos. xiv. 2.

Secondly, There is a fpecial rule given us by Jefus Chrift 3 C 2 for for that end, namely, that form of words which Chrift taught his difciples, commonly called " the Lord's prayer ;" that excellent pattern and example of prayer, composed by Jefus Chrift himfelf for our direction, in the text, which every Christian is obliged to receive with the utmost reverence, as the Lord's own word. But it was never imposed by Jefus Christ, or his apostles, as a fet form to which his church is bound, to pray in these very words, and no other. It is true, in the year 618 the Council of Toledo imposed it on the clergy, under the pain of deposition; but then Antichrift had mounted the throne, and the Papifts fince have fuperftitioufly abufed it to this day. I would all Protestants could plead, Not guilty. To clear this matter,

1. The Lord's prayer is given us as a directory for prayer, a pattern and an example, by which we are to regulate our petitions, and make other prayers by. This is clear from the text, After this manner pray ye, &c. And it is a most ample directory in few words, to be eyed by all praying perfons, if fludied and understood. There we are taught to pray in a known tongue, and without vain repetitions, to God only, and for things allowed ; to have chief refpect to the glory of God, and our own advantage.

2. It may also be used as a prayer, fo that it be done with understanding, faith, reverence, and other praying graces. So we own the very words may lawfully be ufed. Matth. vi. 9. compared with Luke xi. 2. See Larger Catechifm, queft. 187. and the Directory for Public Worship, under the title, Of Prayer after Sermon, parag. 5. Who can refuse this, fince it is a piece of holy scripture, of the Lord's own word? And they who are fo weak, as that they cannot conceive prayer, do well to use this holy form ; though they fhould endeavour to make further progress in prayer. And fometimes knowing Chriftians, under great defertions, not able to conceive prayer, have used it with good fuccefs. But.

3. Our Lord hath not tied us to this very form of words when we pray to God. This is evident,

(1.) Because the prayers afterwards recorded in the fcripture, were neither this form of words, nor yet concluded with it. Chrift himfelf ufed it not in his prayer at Lazarus's grave, John xi. 41.; nor in his last prayer, John xvii. Nor did his apoffles, Acts i. 24.; nor the church, Acts iv. 34. &c.

(2.) This prayer is diverfely fet down by Matthew and Luke₂

388

Luke, the only two evangelists that make mention of it. And though it is obvious, that there is an entire harmony between them, as to the matter and fenfe of the words; yet it is equally obvious, to all who compare them together, that there is fome difference as to mode or manner of expreffion; particularly as to the fourth and fifth petitions; which crtainly there would not have been, had it been defigned for a form of prayer. In Luke, the fourth petition runs thus, "Give us day by day our daily bread ;" but in Matthew, it is thus expressed, "Give us this day our daily bread." The latter contains a petition for the fupply of prefent wants; and the former for the fupply of wants as they daily recur upon us : fo that both accounts being compared together, we are directed to pray for those temporal bleffings which we want at prefent, and for a fupply of those we stand in need. of as they daily recur : which thews a confiderable difference in the expressions. In Luke, the fifth petition is, "Forgive us our fins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us;" whereas, in Matthew, the expression is very different, viz. "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors." Again, Luke leaves out the doxology, "For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen;" which Matthew adds. From whence it may be justly inferred, that our Lord's defign, in furnishing his disciples with this prayer, was not, that they fhould confine themfelves folely to the manner of expression used therein, without the least variation; for then undoubtedly the two evangelists would have recorded it in the very fame words; but he rather intended it as a directory respecting the matter of prayer. So that it is impoffible to keep by the form of words precifely, fince it is not one. It is faid, Luke xi. 2. "When ye pray, fay," &c. Here we are tied to the form of words, fay our adverfaries. Anf. By this phrase is to be understood the manner, viz. Say this on the matter, pray after this manner. Compare Matth. vi. o. If it is to be underftood otherwife, then, (1.) According to Matth. x. 7. " Go, preach, faying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand ;" the difciples preaching was confined to these very words, which we are fure it was not. (2.) It would be unlawful to pray in any other words, which no Christian dare affert. (3.) Neither Papists nor Epifcopalians flick to these words in Luke, but use the words in Matthew; by which they give up the caufe.

Further, it may be observed, that our Saviour chiefly intended this prayer as a directory, respecting the matter of our our petitions, rather than a form; becaufe it does not explicitly contain all the parts of prayer, particularly confeffion of fin, and thankful acknowledgement of mercies. Again, there is no explicit or direct mention of the Mediator, in whofe name we are to pray; nor of his obedience, fufferings, and interceffion, on which the efficacy of our prayers is founded, and their fuccefs depends: which things are to be fupplied from other parts of fcripture; all which, taken together, give us a complete directory for prayer.

From the whole, I think it is evident, that a prayer formed upon the model of this excellent pattern, having the fubflance of the feveral petitions interfperfed through it, though expressed in other words, is a true foriptural prayer; and that there is no neceffity to conclude with the Lord's prayer. And therefore, I cannot but think, that Papists, and many Protestants, who conclude their prayers with the very words of the Lord's prayer, make a very fuperstitious use of it; causing people imagine, that the bare recital of the words of the Lord's prayer fanctifies their other prayers; and that no prayer can be accepted of God where this, I cannot but call it vain, repetition is omitted.

III. Whether are thefe rules fufficient to enable us to pray acceptably? Anf. They are fufficient in their kind, i.e. as external directions and helps. But befides, the inward grace and affiftance of the Spirit are neceffary for that end_p Rom. viii. 26*.

I fhall conclude with a few inferences.

Inf. 1. How gracious and ready to hear prayer is our God, who has been pleafed himfelf to direct us how to pray to him ! We ought to be duly thankful to him for his great goodnefs in this matter, and diligently attend to the excellent rules he has given us on this head.

2. Let us acquaint ourfelves with the bleffed word, that contains fuch a full rule of practice as well as faith; and ftudy the holy feriptures, that we may be the better inftructed to pray. The Bible is a noble guide for prayer, both for the matter and manner thereof; and if we diligently ftudy it, it, we will not be in hazard of uttering any thing contrary to or inconfiftent with it, or of using the words he has given us without knowledge or understanding.

390

^{*} The author afterwards preached a courfe of excellent fermons on this fubject, from the text here quoted, which have fince been publithed, and forms a very proper appendix to this and the fubfequeny diffeourfes.

3. Those who neglect prayer on any pretence, and particularly on that pretence that they cannot pray, or those who flick by a mere form, without endeavouring to improve in the duty, are highly culpable⁴ and inexcufable, as they have fo many and fuch excellent helps fcattered throughout the whole word of God. Herein they fin against God, and wrong their own fouls.

Loftly, See the abfolute neceffity of prayer in the Chriftian life. Be convinced, that ye cannot be without that which the Lord is at fo much pains to bring you to, by not only teaching you what to pray, but promifing his Holy Spirit to affift you therein. Apply yourfelves diligently to this duty, that you may be often with God, guiding yourfelves therein by the direction of the word; and plead importunately for the quickening power and influence of the Holy Spirit, for his help and affiftance. He will fhew thee thy wants, to give thee matter of petition; thy fins, to give thee matter of confeffion; the mercies and bleffings of God, to yield thee matter of thankfgiving; and the church's miferies and neceffities, to furnifh thee with matter of interceffion.

THE PREFACE OF THE LORD'S PRAYER.

Matth. vi. 9.-Our Father which art in heaven.

THE Lord's prayer confifts of three parts, the preface, petitions, and conclution. The preface is in the words which I have read, defigning the object of worthip, and particularly of prayer, namely, God himfelf. And we are directed rected to addrefs ourfelves in prayer to him, (1.) As a Father;
(2.) As our Father; and, (3.) As our Father in heaven. The words afford this doctrine.

Doct. "If we would pray acceptably, we must address ourfelves to the Lord in prayer, as our Father which is in heaven."

Here I shall shew,

I. What our being directed to call God Father in prayer doth teach us.

II. What our being directed to call God our Father teaches us.

III. What we are taught by our being directed to addrefs ourfelves to God as our Father in heaven.

IV. Deduce fome inferences.

I. I am to fhew, what our being directed to call God Father in prayer does teach us. It teaches,

1. The children of God to be those who only can or are capable to pray acceptably: for they only can indeed call God Father. We cannot pray acceptably unless he be our Father, and we his children, namely, by regeneration and adoption, John ix. 31. How can one plead the privileges of the family, if he be none of the members thereof, but of his father the devil, a stranger to the covenant of promise? Therefore, if we would pray aright, our state must first be changed, Jam. v. 16.

Queft. May none pray, then, who cannot call God, Father? An... There are two forts of these.

(1.) Unregenerate perfons, who are yet in the flate of black nature, who have no ground to plead this faving relation to God. They may, yea, ought to pray, though they cannot pray acceptably; becaufe prayer is the natural daty of all, which all are bound to, and the neglect of which God will punifh them for, Jer. x. ult. And prayer is not a fin, but a duty, though, as it is by them managed, it is turned into fin, as all other duties are. But the neglect of it is a greater fin.

Object. But it is needlefs for them to pray, fince they cannot pray acceptably. Anf. No: for it is a mean of grace, and an ordinance of God; and though God have no refpect to it as it is their performance, yet he may have refpect to it whit is his own ordinance, and do good to them by it. The matter lies here; they are neither to continue in their finful ftate, nor to fatisfy themfelves with their praying in that condition, but come out of it, and join themfelves to God's family, and fo they will come to pray acceptably.

ter

392

The Preface of the Lord's Prayer. 393

(2.) The children of God, who cannot differ their relation to him. Thefe not only may pray, but pray acceptably; Pfal. cili. t_3 . "Like as a father pitieth his children, fo the Lord pitieth them that fear him." But it is their duty to endeavour to affure their hearts before him, to advance their hunger and thirft after him, to an actual acceptance of God to be their Father in Chrift, and thereupon to believe he is their Father.

2. That it is through Jefus Chrift we have accefs to God in prayer, Eph. ii. 18.; becaufe it is through him alone that God becomes our Father; by him, for his fake, we are adopted into the family of heaven, John i. 12. When we hear that a company of guilty creatures, who ftood before God as their terrible Judge, trembling for fear of his fentence of condemnation, change their note, and call him by the kindly name of Father, and confidently apply to him as children, we muft own this to be owing to the mediation, obedience, and death of his Son, John xx. 17. And therefore,

3. That coming to God in prayer, we must come in the name of his Son, as the alone foundation of all our confidence in and expectation from God, John xiv. 13. Being married to the Son, we call God Father, and make bold in his houfe, by virtue of our relation to him, through our Lord and Husband. And on the continuance of this relation to Chrift depends the continuance of this relation to his Father; and bleffed be our immortal Husband, that the marriage with him can never be diffolved.

4. That the Spirit of adoption, the Spirit of Chrift in his people, is the principle of all acceptable praying to God; for by him it is that we are enabled to call God Father, Gal. iv. 6.; and therefore it is called "inwrought prayer," Jam. v. 16. He it is who excites his people to pray, moves them to go to God with their whole cafe, Pfal. xxvii. 8. He furnifhes them with acceptable matter of prayer, Rom. viii. 26. and with praying grades and affections, ib. And without the Spidwelling and acfing in us, we cannot pray acceptably; and the more we have of the Spirit, we will pray the better.

5. That we flould draw near to God in prayer with childlike difpolitions and affections towards him.

(1.) Though he be very kind, and admit us into familiarity Vol. HI. 3 D with with him, yet we must come with a holy reverence, Mal. i. 6. 4 If I be a Father, where is mine honour?" Familiarity must not breed contempt. The character of a father bears not only kindnefs, but reverence and fear in it. It is a mixture of love and awful authorty; and the ingenuous child will regard both. Slavish fear is to be laid afide, but child-like reverence is neceffary, Heb. xii. 18.

(2) Though we have offended God, and be under the marks of his difpleafure, we muft come with confidence, whatever we want, whatever we need, hph. iii. 12. While he bids us call him Father, he requires of us confidence in him for the fupply of all our wants. For fatherly affection is tender, the child's trouble touches the father nearly, and his intereft is the father's intereft, which is ground of confidence, Pfal. ciii. 13. forecited. If. lxiii. 9. "Surely they are my children" Zech. n. 8. "He that toucheth you, toucheth the apple of his eye."

(3.) That God is ready and willing to help us, and we fhould come to him in that confidence, Matth. vii. 11. " If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more fhall your father which is in heaven give good things to them that afk him ?" We should pour out our hearts into his bofom, in full confidence of his pity. Whom can a child expect help of, if not of a father? But no father has the bowels of compaffion that God has towards his own. If the mother's tenderness towards the child be ordinarily greater than that of the father's, yet the Lord is still more, If. xlix. 15. 16. " Can a woman forget her fucking child, that the fhould not have compation on the fon of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee. Behold I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands, thy walls are continually before me." And there is no fuch prefent help as he is.

Object. But is not the heavenly Father often far from helping his children? Anf. The children of God often think fo, when their trouble is continued, and the deliverance comes not quickly. But he is their Father : therefore, (1.) He defigus their good by all the hardfhips they meet with, Rom. viii. 23. "All things fhall work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpofe." (2.) He pities them under their hardfhips. (3.) He is a God of judgment, knows beft when to remove them, and will do it in due time. The child cries, "Father, remove this affliction, or this trial, for it pains nie." The Father Father pities, but his judgment leaves it till it be good for the child that it be removed.

II. I proceed to fhew, what our being directed to call God our Father teaches us.

Negatively, Not that we may not pray, faying, My Father, or that we are always to fpeak plurally, faying, We pray. For we have feripture-examples for praying in the fingular number, Ezra ix. 6. Luke xv. 18. 19. But,

1. That we are not only to pray fecretly by ourfelves alone, but with others, joining with them in public and private. And hence may be brought no inconfiderable argument for that too much neglected duty of family-prayer; which the guilty would do well ferioufly to confider.

2. That we are to pray, not only for ourfelves, but for others also, according to feripture-example and precept, Acts xii. 5. 1 Tim. ii. 1. 2.

Praying with and for others is a piece of the communion of faints. And it is one of the privileges of God's family on earth, that they have the prayers of all the family there. God is a rich Father, who has bleffings for all.

III. I come now to fnew, what we are taught by our being directed to address ourfelves to God as our Father in beaven.

1. That we are to eye his fovereign power and dominion over all, in our addreffes to him, believing that he is able to help us in our greateft ftraits, that nothing is too hard for him, but he can do whatfoever he will, Pfal. cxv. 3. This is a noble ground for faith. Our fathers on earth may be unable to help; but our Father in heaven is almighty, and has power to help in every cafe.

2. That we should be filled with heavenly affections in prayer, Pfal. exxiii. 1.; and that God's glorious greatness above us should strike an awe upon us in our approaches to him, Eccl. v. 2.

3. God's glorious and wonderful condefcention, who vouchfafes to look from his throne in heaven unto us poor worms on earth, If. lxvi. 1. 2.

4. Lafly, That we go to God as those who are ftrangers on this earth, and to whom heaven is home, because it is our Father's house, 1 Pet. i. 17.; looking on this world as the place of our pilgrimage, and the men and manners of it as those we define to leave, that we may be admitted into the fociety of angels, and confort with the fpirits of just men made perfect.

3 D 2

the

I shall conclude with a few inferences.

Inf. 1. Let us fee here the miferable condition of those who have no ground to call God Father. They were never adopted into the family of heaven, but are of their father the devil, ftill members of the family of hell; and if they be not delivered from that hellish fociety, they must perish for ever. They have never yet prayed aright; for none can pray in a proper manner but those who have the Spirit of adoption. O cry to God, that he may be graciously pleased to translate you from the family of Satan into the family of God, and invest you with the privileges of the children of his family.

2. There is no right praying without faith. For without faith it is impoffible to pleafe God; and whatever is not of faith is fin. We cannot call God Father, nor love or reverence him without faith: nor can we have any fellow thip or communion with him, but by faith in him as our father in Chrift.

3. Hence fee the happine's of the faints in the love of the Father, who is their Father; of the Son, who has made them the children of God; and of the Holy Spirit, who teaches them to call God their Father. How happy muft those be who are fo nearly related to all the three perfons of the adorable Trinity, and are loved by, and have communion with each of them! O feek above all things to become the children of God, and ye shall be thus happy!

4. There is no cafe a child of God is much to mean in, in the world, as long as he has a Father in heaven, to whom he can have accefs by prayer, at all times and in all cafes, whether it be in life or in death, Micah vii. 7. The believer's Father is a very prefent help in trouble; and when all help fails, he will never fail his own children; but will fanctify their troubles, be prefent with them in their greateft ftraits and afflictions, (upport them under them, and deliver them, as he fees it will be for his own glory, and their good. O! then, let us plead our intereft in him as our Father, and engage his Spirit and prefence to be ever with us, in every circumfance of life, and in the awful fcenes of death and the grave, which we fhould view, not with terror, but with joy, as the meffenger fent to convey us to the houfe of our Father which is in heaven.

THE

THE FIRST PETITION.

Matth. vi. 9 .- Hallowed be thy Name.

N the Lord's prayer are fix petitions, whereof three are for God's honour, and other three for our own good. Those which concern the honour of God take the lead of what concerns our good; for it is highly reasonable that the creature's interest vail to God's interest. The first of these petitions relates to the name of God, and the ballowing of it, or fanctifying of it, that is, the glorifying of it. So the first petition is for the glory of God's name. This is first of all put in our mouths, because of all things it should lie nearest our hearts.

In difeourfing further from this fubject, I shall shew,

I. What is meant by the name of God.

II. In what fenfe God's name is to be hallowed, or fancti-fied.

III. Why hallowed or fanchified, rather than glorified, fince it is evident, that it is the glorifying of his name that is intended.

IV. What is the import of this petition.

V. Why this is the first petition that is put by our Saviour in our mouths.

VJ. Deduce fome inferences.

I. I shall thew, what is meant by the name of God.

1. God himfelf. So names are put for perfons, Rev. iii. 4. "Thou haft a few names in Sardis;" that is, a few perfons. And the name of God is put for God himfelf, Deut. xxviii. 58. "— that thou mayft fear this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY GOD." Accordingly, as we pray pray here that God's name may be hallowed, or fanctified, to he tells us " he will be fanctified," Lev. x. 3.

2. Every thing whereby he makes hinfelf known to his creatures, Pfal. viii. 1. " O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth !" Thefe are his names, Jehovah, I am. &c. though there is no word fufficient fully to express what he is; therefore his name is fecret, wonderful, or incomprehenfible, Judg. xili. 18. His titles ; Old-Teftament tities, as " Hearer of prayer ;" New-Testament ones, as, " The God of peace, the God of patience and confolation," Rom. xv. 33. 5. His attributes or perfections, Exod. xxxiv. 5. His word and ordinances, Pfal. cxlvii. 19. 20.; and his works, Job xxxvi. 24. In a fpecial manner, Jefus Chrift, by whom, and through whom, and in whom God manifefts himfelf to us, John i. 18. And God's name is in him. But of the various fenfes in which the name of God is taken, I fooke more largely in the exposition of the third commandment.

H. I am to fhew, in what fenfe God's name is to be *hal*lowed, or functified.

1. Not effectively, by making holy. "Holy is his name." He is infinitely holy, and cannot be made more holy. Whatever he is, whatever he fays, whatever he does, is perfectly holy, and cannot be made more fo, I John i. 5. Indeed he functifies his creatures by making them holy; but himfelf is originally and eternally holy, incapable of any addition.

2. But manifeftatively and declaratively, viz. when the holinefs of his name is manifefted, declared, fhewn, and acknowledged, If. xxix. 23. "They fhall fanchify my name." The holy name, in the dark parts of the earth, and in the dark men of the earth, is a candle under a bufhel; it has a glorions light, but it is not feen: the bufhel being removed, and the felendour breaking forth to open view, it is hallowed: men then thew, declare, and acknowledge it.

III. I come to thew, why God's name is faid to be hallowed, or fanctified, rather than glorified, fince it is evident that it is the glorifying his name that is intended.

 through all the other. It is that vein of infinite purity, that goes through the feveral letters of his name, and makes them thine in glory. Wherein hes the glory of God's wildom, power, mercy, &c.! Why, it is in this, that his infinite wildom is holy wildom, his infinite power is holy power, &c. It is observed, that above thirty times in feripture God is called The kely One. And when the angels would pick out an attribute to glorify God most by, it is that of his holinefs, If. vi. 3.

2. Becaufe it is the manifering of his holinefs, in the communicating of it to the creature, that brings in the greateft revenue of glory from the creature to God. The truth is, none are fit to glorify him but thofe who are holy, 1 Pet. ii. 9. God ftamps the image of his power and fovereign dominion upon one man, and fets him upon a throne; hence is the phrafe, Ye are gods. He ftamps the image of his holinefs on another, and fets him on a dunghill. I fay, God's name is more glorified by the holy poor man, than by the unholy monarch. The unholy man may glorify God paffively, but the holy man glorifies him actively. And in no other way can God be actively glorified, but by the creature's first receiving a ftamp and imprefilon of his holinefs on the heart.

IV. I proceed to fhew, what is the import of this petition.

To clear this, confider that God's name is hallowed two ways.

1. By himfelf, manifefting the glory of his own holy name. And this he doth in all the difcoveries which he makes of himfelf to his creatures.

2. By his creatures, they contributing to his glory, by fhewing forth his praife, and declaring the glory of his name. So we pray in this petition,

1/l, That God would, by his over-ruling providence, hallow his own name, and glorify himfeif, John xii. 28. The fins of men and devils are opposite to the honour of his name; the children of God in this petition put it in his own hands, to caufe it thine forth notwithftanding, to difpofe all things to his glory. Which may be taken up in three things.

(1.) That he would make the honour of his name to break through all impediments in the way of it, laid by men or devils, Pfal. lxxix. 9. "Help us, O God of cur falvation, for the glory of thy name," fays the church; that he would drive his triumphal chariot over all the opposition made to it in the world, and appear unto men in his majefly and glory.

it

(2.) That he would make the honour of his name break forth from thefe impediments themfelves, over-ruling the difhonour done to his name, to his honour, fo bringing meat out of the eater, and fweetnels out of the firong. This he will do, Pfal. lxxvi. 10. "Surely the wrath of man fhall praife thee." And this his people pray for, Pfal. lxxxiii. 17. 18. "Let them be confounded and troubled for ever, yea, let them be put to fhame and perifh: that men may know, that thou, whofe name alone is JEHOVAH, art the Moft High over all the earth."

(3.) That God would remove all these impediments, and shove off all the rubbish which the fins of men and devils have cass upon the honour of his name, that it may show forth for ever without let or hinderance. And so it looks as far as the accomplishment of that passage, Rev. xx. 14. "And death and hell were cass into the lake of fire."

2*dly*, That God would, by his powerful grace, caufe the fons of men, ourfelves and others, to glorify him and hallow his name: q. d. Let thy name be hallowed by us. This fuppofes,

(i.) That it is our duty to glorify God, I Cor. x. 31.— "Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatfoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." It is our main duty, and the chief work we have to do in the world. And whofo negle& it, are ufelefs in the world; for their main work is negle&ted. They anfwer not the end of their creation.

(2.) That we cannot of ourfelves do it, 2 Cor. iii. 5.— "We are not fufficient of ourfelves to think any thing as of ourfelves; but our fufficiency is of God." We are weak and powerlefs, and fo unfit for it; we are perverfe and felfifh, and fo unwilling to it. Our ftrength for it is in God himfelf.

(3.) That God can fit and difpofe us for it, Phil. iv. 13. "I can do all things," fays the apofle, "through Chrift which itrengtheneth me," Grace can make us both able and willing. There is no perfon in any flation whatfoever, but free grace can make of them happy inftruments for honouring of his name; which should be a powerful motive to induce us to pray forvently for it, otherwife we will never actively glorify him.

Therefore we pray here, that grace may be beflowed on ourfelves and others, whereby we and they may glorify him, which which is the leading duty we have to mind in this world and that,

[1.] Internally, by knowing, acknowledging, and highly efteeming him, his names, titles, attributes, ordinances, words, and works, and fo every thing whereby he makes himfelf known, Pfal. lxxvii. 2. 3. This is to hallow that name in our hearts.

[2.] Externally, in our words and actions, fpeaking and living to his praife, Phil. i. 11. "Being filled with the fruits of righteoufnefs, which are by Jefus Chrift, unto the glory and praife of God."

V. Why is this the first petition put by our Saviour in our mouths? The reason is, because the glory of God, or honour of his name, is the chief end of our being, and of all others. And therefore it should lie nearest our hearts, Rom. xi. 36. "For of him, and through him, and to him are all things. To whom be glory for ever." God's glory is his own end in all his works, and it ought to be ours. We can no other way approve ourselves to him.

I shall conclude with fome inferences.

Inf. 1. The diffionour done to God, by one's own fin and the fins of others, muft needs go near the heart of a faint, Pfal. li. 4. "Againft thee, thee only have I finned," fays David, " and done this evil in thy fight." And again, Pfal. cxix. 136. "Rivers of waters run down mine eyes; becaufe they keep not thy law." And to be grieved for our own lofs by fins, and not for the diffionour done to God thereby; and to be unconcerned at the diffionour of God in the world by others, does not look like the difpofition of a child of the family of heaven.

2. Habitual profaners of that holy name are none of the children of God, whofe main care is to get that name hallow-And how many fuch profaners of the facred name of ed. God are to be found in our day! They are fo far from making confcience of hallowing that dreadful and fearful name, that they are daily employed in difhonouring it by the moft horrid oaths and imprecations, and pouring upon it all the contempt they can, in open violation of the third command-How many do profane it by Atheifm, Sabbathment. breaking, uncleannefs, perjury, intemperance, injuffice, oppreffion, lving, stealing, backbiting, and other grofs abominations, as if they had fold themfelves to commit open hofilities 3 E VOL. III.

ftilities against the King of heaven, and run defperately upon the thick bosses of his buckler! They wear the devil's mark on their foreheads, and openly declare to the world, that they are none of God's children.

3. Holinefs is the creature's glory, and its greateft glory, for it is God's glory; and therefore unholinefs is its difgrace and difhonour. Ah! unholy finners, ye have left your glory; fin has difgraced you, and made you contemptible to God and all his holy family. O feek to be fanctified by the Holy Spirit of Chrift, that fo you may recover your forfeited glory, and no more lie under difgrace. It is only the faints that are the moft excellent in the earth. Seek ye to be like them, by having the image of God drawn on your hearts, and walking holily as God is holy.

4. It is not the language of a child of God to fay, "Am I my brother's keeper ?" as wicked Cain did: What is my bufinefs how fuch an one live or die? Why truly, if thou belongeft to God, it will be matter of thy hearty concern and prayer, that God may be honoured by others as well as by thyfelf. Without this concern a man cannot be a Chriftian; he is not a child of God; for every true believer ardently wifhes and prays that God may be glorified; and as far as his power, authority, influence, and example, can reach, he will ufe his utmost endeavours to induce others to glorify the name of his God. Were it in his power, he would leave no means uneffayed to engage the whole world in this delightful work, that "fongs might be heard from the uttermost parts of the earth, even glory to the righteous."

5. It is the difposition of a child of God, to submit his lot and condition in the world to the Lord, to be cut and carved as may ferve his glory. Without this one cannot be a child of God. For it is inteparable from the character of such an one, in whatever state he is, therewith to be content. Hence the apostle Paul could fay, "As alway, fo now allo, Christ shall be ungnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death," Phil. i. 20.

6. It is the duty of all men to fanctify the holy name of God, to reverence, adore, and honour it, in their hearts, lips, and lives. O! let us then be excited to the practice of this duty, confidering that it is the end for which God gave us a being; that if we do not hallow it, we contradict this very petition, praying for a thing we have no mind to comply with; that if we live in the neglect of this duty, God will get honour to himfelf by inflicting heavy judgments upon us in this life, and by making us eternal monuments of his vengeance in the next; that when we come to encounter with the king of terrors, it will tend to fweeten the awful profpect, that we have made it our bufinefs to glorify the name of God; that we will lofe nothing, but be great gainers, by honouring the name of the Lord; for they that do fo fhall be reckoued among his jewels, and be a royal diadem in the Lord's hand; they fhall be happy in death, and be fafely conveyed to Immanuel's land, where glory dwells. Let us then make it the principal bufinefs of our lives to glorify God, that fo we may come to enjoy him for ever.

in

THE SECOND PETITION.

Matth. vi. 10.—Thy kingdom come.

S the first petition relates to the name of God, this fecond relates to the kingdom of God, the kingdom of our Father which is in heaven; the coming of which, that is, the advancement thereof, is defired by all the children of God. And that is the great mean of glorifying his name; for then is his name hallowed, when his kingdom comes, is advanced and carried on, till it come to perfection.

In difcouring further from this fubject, I shall shew,

I. What is meant by the kingdom of God.

II. What is the import of this petition, for its coming.

III. The reafons of the concern of the children of God for the coming of his kingdom.

IV. Apply

I. I am to flew, what is meant by the kingdom of God. There is a fourfold kingdom of God mentioned in feripture.

1. The kingdom of his power, which reaches over all the world. The fubjects of this kingdom are all creatures whatfover, Pfal. ciii. 19. " His kingdom ruleth over all." It reaches from the highest angel to the meanest worm that creeps on the earth. It is a vaft dominion, comprehending heaven, earth, feas, and hell, and all that in them is. He made them all, and therefore has dominion over them all; and to him they must all submit themselves, willing or unwilling, Rom. xiv. 11. " As I live, faith the Lord, every knee fhall bow to me, and every tongue fhall confeis to God." Compare Phil. ii, 10. 11 .- " At the name of Jefus every knee fhall bow, of things in heaven, and things on earth, and things under the earth; and every tongue thall confeis that Jefus Chrift is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." In this refpect God is univerfal Monarch, and all the kings and emperors of the world are but his vaffals.

2. The kingdom of his golpel, Matth xxi. 43. "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you," fays Christ to the Jews. This is not fo large as the former. It is erected within it, but comprehends the whole visible church, in which God has fet up the light of his golpel, and Christ's name is known, and men profess subjection to him.

(1.) The fubjects of it are all members of the vifible church, whether godly or ungodly, fincere or hypocrites, (Matth. xiii. 47.), with their children. Even the world of them are privileged perfons, in comparison of those of the world without the church, Pfal. cxlvii. 19. 20. "He sheweth his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt fo with any nation: and as for his judgements, they have not known them."

(2.) The King of it is Jefus Chrift, Pfal. ii. 6. "Yet have I fet my King upon my holy hill of Zion." He is the alone Head of it, and only fupreme in it. And neither Pope nor King can pretend to the fupremacy over it, without invading his royal prerogative, to their own coft, Eph. i. 22. 23. "God hath put all things under his feet, and given him to be the Head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fulnefs of him that filleth all in all." And his glory he will not give to another.

(3.) The laws of it are the word of God. The Bible is the book of the laws of the kingdom, which great and fmall within the kingdom are equally bound to walk by, If. viii.

20.

20. "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." These laws are attended with the most weighty fanction; and as they have the promise of eternal life of free grace to those who obey him, to they have the threatening of eternal wrath to the disobedient, fuitable to the majesty of the King, Mark xvi. 16. "He that believeth shall be faved; but he that believeth not shall be dammed."

(4.) The ordinances of it are gofpel-ordinances, inftituted by the King himfelf, bearing his own fignature, Matth. xxviii. 20. "Teaching them to obferve all things whatfoever I have commanded you." And for men to pretend to add or alter, as if they were not bound up to the divine inftitution, is the product of their own blindnefs, and enmity againft Zion's King, a faying in effect, "We will not have this man to reign over us," Luke xix. 27. "For the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver, the Lord is our King," If. xxxiii. 22.

Laft/y, The officers of it (ordinary) are, paflors and teachers, for the work of the miniftry, Eph. iv. 11. 12.; ruling elders for government, I Tim. v. 17.; and deacons for the care of the poor, Acts vi. As for prelates or bifhops, archbifhops, metropolitans, &c. whatever is to be faid of their perfons, their offices belong not to the kingdom of Chrift, but of Antichrift, as well as priefts, cardinals, and popes, there being no inflictution of them in the book of the manner of Chrift's kingdom.

3. The kingdom of his grace, Matth. vi. 33. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God," &c. This is yet narrower than any of the former, and comprehends only the invisible church; for it is not an external, but an internal kingdom, in which grace, faving grace, reigns in the hearts of those who belong to it; for, fays Christ to his disciples, "behold the kingdom of God is within you," Luke xvii. 21.

(1.) The fubjects of it are believers, true faints, and they only; and they commence fubjects of this kingdom in the day of Chrift's power on their hearts, their new birth-day, Pfal. cx. 3. Well may it be called a kingdom, for it is a kingdom of kings, Rev. i. 6. as all the fubjects of it are "made kings unto God." Out of prifon (their natural ftate) they come to reign over their fpiritual enemies.

(2.) The King of it is Chrift, dwelling in their hearts, Eph. iii. 17.; fitting in their hearts as on his throne, and all things che elfe made his footftool, Luke xiv 26. The gofpel comes with power to the elect fouls, Pfal. xxiv. 8. The everlafting doors are lifted up, and the King makes his triumphant entry, and receives the crown at his entrance, Cant. iii. ult.

(3.) The laws of it are the laws of the Bible, but written over in their hearts, Heb. viii. 10. What others have in their book only, they have in their book and heart too; that is, inclinations of foul fuited to the word are framed in them, which is a new nature, naturally difpoing them to obedience without force. This is the law of their mind, Rom. vii. 23.

(4.) The ordinances of it are the fame golpel ordinances, but obferved in a fpiritual manner, in fpirit and in truth, John iv. 24. Phil. iii. 3. For this kingdom confifts not in outward obfervances, but inward graces, Rom. xiv. 17. whereby the foul is conformed to the image of Chrift, and the inner man ferves the Lord Chrift, as well as the outward man; for it is " not in word, but in power."

Laftly, The Administrator of it is the Holy Spirit of Chrift, John xiv. 16. 17. He teaches the fubjects the laws of the kingdom. So they are taught of God. He enlivens excites, and ftrengthens them to obedience. He leads them out to the war against their spiritual enemies, inspires them with courage and resolution in the conflict, and crowns them with victory. He makes use of the word for all this, and brings every thought into obedience, 2 Cor. x. 5.

4. The kingdom of his glory, 1 Cor. xv. 50. This is the bleffed flate of eternal happines in the other world. This kingdom is now a-gathering, but shall fully come at the fecond coming of Christ.

(1.) The fubjects of it fhall be all the elect, being prepared for it by conversion, regeneration, justification, fanctification, and perfeverance. This is the end of the golden chain, Rom. viii. 29. 30. (And the elect angels make up a part of this kingdom too). However long any of them lie among the pots, there fhall none of them be left there, nor miffing in that kingdom. There they fhall be in body and foul too. For Christ will fummon death to deliver him his own, and then he will deliver up the kingdom to the Father, and prefent them fpotlefs.

(2.) The King of it is God the Father, Son, and Holy Gholt, reigning most glorioufly over all the kingdom, without the least degree of rebellion or uneafinefs under the government government among all the fubjects, and without any mixture of enemies or malcontents among them, Luke xx. 36. This, then, is the kingdom by way of eminency, where the Lord reigns for ever and ever. The kingdom of his power has many malcontents in it, ready to quarrel with their Maker and his administration. The kingdom of the gospel has many adversaries, without and within men, and is held out of many nations. The kingdom of grace has no access to the hearts of many who hear the gospel; and where it is fet up, ill neighbours, corrupt lufts, mar the progrefs. But in the kingdom of glory there are no fuch things.

(3.) The laws of it are the eternal law of righteoufnefs, indelibly engraven on their hearts, without the leaft blot. There is no Bible needed there; for the rule of conduct is written on the mind, and the writing neither waxes old, nor can be erazed.

(4.) The ordinances of it are perpetual praifes and hallelujahs, never-ceafing fongs to God and the Lamb. There is no temple there, for God and the Lamb are the temple thereof. There is no need of preaching or prayer; for perfect knowledge takes place, and every faint is made perfect and full, fo as to feek no more. Want is a ftranger there; faith is fwallowed up in vision, and hope in fruition.

Laftly, The Administrator of this heavenly kingdom is the Holy Spirit, but without any external means. He trained up the faints while in the world for this royal ftate, and at once, by his internal agency and invisible operations, difposed, fitted them for, and ever presides over them, in the delightful employments of the kingdom of glory, John xiv. 16. From what has been faid,

USE. 1. Submit yourfelves contentedly to the difpofals of Providence. If God be King over all, is there any fault in the administration; nay, is not all well done, yea, best done? Let his fovereignty filence us; should it be according to thy mind? His infinite wisdom should fatisfy us, who knows better than we do what is best for us, and can over-rule all things for his glory and our good.

2. Submit yourfelves to the gofpel-fceptre. Arc ye fubjects of the gofpel-kingdom? Then it becomes you to be fubject to the laws, to observe the ordinances, and to be fubmiffive to the officers of the kingdom. The contempt poured on these falls on the Prince of the kingdom. Bewarc, then, of transpression of the difference of the kingdom. Bewarc, then of transpression of the difference of the kingdom of the second cur the guilt of high treasfor against the majefty of Heaven, and and the ftone cut out of the mountain without hands fall upon you, and cruth you to pieces. Anfwer the gofpel-call, and let it have its due effect upon you, in fubmitting to the fceptre of Jefus Chrift as King of Zion, and refigning yourfelves wholly to him, as your Prophet, Prieft, and Sovereign, to be taught his will for your falvation, to be redeemed by his blood, fanctified by his Spirit, and to be ruled and governed by his laws as in the hand of the Mediator.

3. Let our royal Mafter have your hearts for his throne, and fet up his kingdom of grace there. Let him fit enthroned there, without any rivals or competitors, and without any fquint looks to any other fovereigns that may have had dominion over you, whether the devil, the world, or the flefh. Lie no more to him with your lips, nor offend him with any finful or corrupt practices. Give him your hearts, and let them be his for ever, to meditate on his word, and delight in his laws. There is no getting to the kingdom of glory without this. For all the loyal fubjects of this kingdom are abfolute nonconformifts to the world, and are conformable to Chrift their King in righteoufnefs and holinefs; and it is their fludy to be conformed to him more and more; and they are grieved that they are not fo perfectly.

 $L_{a/lly}$, Labour and be reftlefs till ye get your intereft in the kingdom of glory fecured. And this is done by clofing with Chrift for all the ends for which he is given of God. It is dangerous to delay this. Therefore kifs the Son, left he be angry. Now is the time, now or never.

II. I proceed to fhew, what is the import of this petition for the coming of the kingdom of God. Here it is to be observed concerning this fourfold kingdom, that they are fweetly linked together, and ftand in a line of fubordination, the end of which is the kingdom of glory, the kingdom of grace being fubordinated to it, the golpel-kingdom to that of grace, and the kingdom of power to the kingdom of the gospel. Therefore I must begin with the kingdom of glory.

Firfl, What is the import of this petition with reference to the kingdom of glory? It imports,

1. That the kingdom of glory is not come yet, I John iii. 2. " It doth not yet appear what we shall be." The King has not yet erected that kingdom. The King's coronationday for that kingdom, 2 Thess. i. 10. is not yet come. That is a kingdom of perfect light and uninterrupted day. But the the King's glory is yet under a vail in this world, through which only fome rays are darted forth. It is night ftill, and till the day break, and the fhadows flee away, the King has betaken himfelf to the mountains of myrrh, and to the hills of frankincenfe, Cant. vi. 6. And many of the defigued fubjects are yet lying among the pots, fome of them yet in the devil's kingdom, fome of them in their pilgrimage, fome of them are got home indeed, but only half-home, having their fouls in heaven, but their bodies in the grave.

2. That it will come. The King really defigns it. From eternity he decreed it, John xvii. 24. "Father, I will that they also whom thou batt given me be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me : for thou loved it me before the foundation of the world." He is gone to heaven, but he will furely come back again, and he will fet up this kingdom, Acts i. 11. There are two things one may fay with full affurance about it, though it is not come yet.

(1.) It shall certainly come up. It is impossible it can fail to be erected. The Father's truth, the Son's blood, and the Spirit's feal, are pledges of its erection. The Father has promised it, the Son purchased it, and the Spirit fealed it on the fouls of all the faints. The King shall receive that crown, and the subjects theirs too, as low as fome of them fit at this day, Matth. xxv. 31.34.

(2.) It fhall never come down, but laft for ever. Many, fometimes famous, kingdoms in the world are now no more. The Affyrian, Chaldean, Perfian, and Roman monarchies, as they came from below out of the fea, fo they are all come to ruin. But this kingdom, as it is from above, fo it fhall never be deftroyed, never fwallowed up, nor fucceeded by another, Dan. vii. 27. "His kingdom is an everlafting kingdom, and all dominions fhall ferve and obey him."

3. That it is the duty and disposition of the faints and children of God, to defire the coming of this kingdom, and that themselves and others may be brought into it, 2 Tim. iv. 8. And this their defire comprehends these four things.

(1.) The King's coming to receive his kingdom at the laft day, Rev. xxii. 20. "He which teffifieth thefe things, faith, Surely I come quickly." The Spirit in the hearts of the faints, that cries, "Abba, Father," cries alfo, (as Judg. v. 28.), "Why is his chariot folong in coming? why tarry the wheels of his chariots?" They would have fwift time that runs like a poft, and never halts, to put wings to its feet, to haften their King's coming.

VOL. III.

(2

(2.) The deftruction of the laft enemy, death, I Cor. $xy_{...}$ 26. It is the laft that will ftand in the way of the erection of this kingdom of glory. But the King's fummons, by the found of the laft trumpet, put in the hands of the grim tyrant, will give him the conquering ftroke, caufe the doors of the grave fly open, and loofe his grips for ever of the bodies of his faints. And this they long for, and joy in the faith of it, I Cor. $xy_{...}$ 57.

(3) The everlafting complete happinels of themfelves and others in that kingdom, Pial. xiv. ult. Col. iii. 2. 3. 4. Every thing defires its own perfection, and therefore grace is natively carried out in defire after glory. If it were at the faint's choice, he would not live always, Job vii. 16.; and therefore is coming up out of the world in affection or defires, Cant viii. 5.

Laftly, The coming of the kingdom of grace, in order to all this. Which brings me to the fecond thing. But before I enter on that, I mult answer a Cafe. If this be the disposition of the faints, I am none: for Christ's coming is a terror to me, and how can I defire it? Anf. (1.) If this temper of spirit rife in thee from an habitual tatteleffnefs and unfavourinefs of holy, fpiritual, and heavenly things, and from a reigning relifh of the things of this prefent world, no wonder that Chrift's coming be a terror to thee, and thou canft not defire it, more than any thing can defire to be out of its element, as fifh to be dragged out of the fea. And while it is fo with thee, I can Ipeak no comfort to thee, Phil iii 18 .- 20. " For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the crofs of Chrift; whofe end is deftruction, whole god is their belly; and whole glory is in their thame, who mind earthly things. For our convertation is in heaven, from whence allo we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jefus Chrift."

(2.) But if holy, fpiritual, and heavenly things have the predominant relift habitually in thy heart, and that fin and the world's vanities are unfavoury, in comparison of these; then, though it is often a terror to thee when thou thinkest on it, yet thou dost really define it, though not expressly, yet interpretatively, ver. 20. And this I prove upon thee by two arguments.

1. Doit thou not defire to be perfectly freed from, and fet beyond the reach of, fin and death! And doft thou not know, that that will never be till that day? Wherefore that defire defire to be freed from fin and death, has the defire of Chrift's coming in the bosom of it, as the defire to have the festered member cut off, for the fafety of the life, implies a defire of the furgeon's coming, who is to perform the operation, though it be a terror to the perfon.

2. Doft thou not defire communion with God, and full and complete communion with him in his glory, in foul and body? Thou knoweft that that cannot be till he come, that all fin and forrow will not be taken away, and this abfolutely perfect happinefs obtained till then. Wherefore this defire implies, that

Your terror may arife either from natural caufes, or want of evidence of intereft in Chrift, or both together. Wherefore labour to affure your hearts before him by believing, If. XXXV. 4.

Secondly, What is the import of this petition with reference to the kingdom of grace? There is no getting into the kingdom of glory but by coming through that of grace. So that defiring the coming of the former, is defiring the coming of the latter too. It imports,

1. That all men naturally are without this kingdom, under the dominion of Satan, Eph. ii. 2, 3. " In time past ye walked according to the courfe of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the fpirit that worketh in the children of difobedience. Among whom alfo we had our conversation in times past, in the lusts of the flesh, fulfilling the defires of the fleth, and of the mind; and were by nature the children of wrath, even as others." These other lords have dominion over them. And as they are not fubjects of, fo they have nothing to do with, the privileges of the kingdom of grace.

2. That we cannot bring ourfelves or others into it, John vi. 44. " No man can come to me, except the Father, which hath fent me draw him." God alone can do it, Col. i. 13. It is he who " translates us into the kingdom of his dear Son," One will lie under the iron yoke for any thing he can do, till the power of grace break it. When one is brought into it himfelf, he cannot bring his nearest relations along with him. He may use the means, exhort, excite, &c. but can do no more.

2. That we cannot, where it is fet up, maintain and advance it, against the enemies of it, 2 Cor. iii. 5. "We are not fufficient of ourfelves to think any thing as of ourfelves."-Satan, the world, and corrupt lufts, are the enemies of this kingdom, kingdom, fighting againft it continually, to extinguifh it, and do retard its progrefs, Gal. v. 17. "For the flefh lufteth againft the Spirit, and the Spirit againft the flefh: and thefe are contrary the one to the other; fo that ye cannot do the things that ye would." And if there be not another power than our own to balance the opposition, it will give way before them.

41 I

3 F 2

4. Loft/y, That it is the duty and difpolition of the children of God to defire, that the Lord himielf may bring forward this kingdom, as Paul faid to King Agrippa, " I would to God that not only thou, but alfo all that hear me this day, wereboth almost, and altogether fuch as I am," Acts xxvi. 29. This extends to.

(1.) The deftruction of the power of fin and Satan over the hearts and lives of men, Pfal. lxviii 1. 18. "Let God arife, let his enemies be fcattered : let them alfo that hate him flee before him. Thou haft afcended on high, thou haft led captivity captive : thou haft received gifts for men : yea, for the rebellious alfo, that the Lord God might dwell among them." Every faint grudges the fiway which thefe enemies bear in the world, and prays it down.

(2.) The convertion of finners to God, 2 Theff. iii. 1. " Pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free courfe, and be glorified." Converts are the church's children, for which the travails in birth, in her ministers and members, as naturally longing for the conversion of fouls, as a travailing woman to fee the fruit of her womb.

(3.) The preferving and advancing to perfection the frate of those who are in it already, ourselves or others, 1 Pet. v. 10. "The God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Chrift Jesus, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, fettle you. It is the joint defire of all who are brought into this kingdom, to be carried on and through, till they come to the kingdom of glory, both themselves and others.

Laftly, In order thereto, the coming of the kingdom of the gofpel. This brings me to the Third thing, What is the import of this petition with reference to the kingdom of the gofpel? It is by the kingdom of the gofpel that one is brought into the kingdom of grace. So defiring the coming of the one, we defire also the coming of the other. It imports,

1. That there are many impediments in the way of the propagation and efficacy of the gofpel, which we cannot remove. The devil is the main agent against it, 1 Theff. ii. 18. "Satan ⁴⁴ Satan hindered us," fays Paul. Under him, the chief agents are the Turk and Antichrift; and every wicked man that has accefs to put hand to that work, all the world over; corrupt lufts in every man's heart, Luke xix. 14.; and even the untendernefs and unwatchfulnefs of good men.

2. That the Lord himfelf can thevel all the impediments out of the way, and make the golpel triumph over them all, perfons or things, fins or troubles, that are laid in the way to hinder it, If. lvii. 14. "Caft ye up, caft ye up, prepare the way, take up the flumbling block out of the way of my people."

3. That it is the duty and difposition of the children of God to defire the advancement of the kingdom of the gospel. It extends to,

(1.) The removal of the impediments out of its way in the world, 2 Theff. iii. 1. It is the define of the faints, that Satan's power in the world may be broken. And they fhould all pray for the downfal of the Turk and Antichrift, for the purging of the church of corruptions, fcandals, and divitions, and whatfoever hinders the progrefs of the gospel; and that peace and truth may be maintained.

(2.) The propagation of the gofpel through the world, that it may be carried through all nations; that the Jews may be brought in, Rom. x. 1.; and the fulnefs of the Gentiles, Pfal. lxvii.; and that Chrift may be King in all the earth.

(3.) The efficacy of it, to fet up the kingdom of grace in men's hearts, 2 Thefi. iii. 1.; and that all things may be ordered to the advantage of it; the Spirit poured out from on high, the church furnished with gospel officers and ordinances, countenanced and protected by the magistrate, ministers made powerful and lively in their work, and the people tender and orderly in their walk, &c.; all these things contributing to the fuccess of the gospel.

 L_{a} fly, That God would exert his power for all this; which brings me to the Fourth thing, What is the import of this petition with reference to the coming of God's kingdom of power? It is by the power of God that all these great things must be brought about. So the defiring of the coming of the gospel, is the defiring of the coming of this kingdom too. It imports,

1. That thefe things will not be done, unlefs Omnipotency interpofe. The work is great, the hands employed in it are feeble. feeble, and there is great opposition. It will flick, if heaven put not to a helping hand.

2. That it is the duty and difpofition of the children of God, to defire that God would exercise the kingdom of his power in the world, as may best conduce to these ends, If. lxiv. 1. 2. " Oh that thou wouldst rent the heavens, that thou wouldst come down, that the mountains might flow down at thy prefence. As when the melting fire burneth, the fire cause the waters to boil, to make thy name known to thine adversaries, that the nations may tremble at thy prefence."

Use. Shew yourfelves of the family of heaven, by your concern that the Lord's kingdom may come, even that of glory, grace, the gofpel, and power. For this is the language of those who cry unto God, "Abba, Father." Let this be a petition in every one of your prayers, private or fecret. And contribute ye your best endeavours for promoting this glorious end. And let your life and practice shew to the world, that ye have the interests of God's kingdom at heart.

III. I proceed to fhew, the reafons of the concern of the children of God for the coming of his kingdom.

1. The new nature in them moves that way, If. xliii. 21. "This people have I formed for myfelf; they thall thew forth my praife." It is from heaven, and afpires to heaven, and is heavenly in its motions, Phil. iii. 20. "Our convertation is in heaven." Rom. viii. 5. "They that are after the Spirit do mind the things of the Spirit." As by our first birth we join and addict ourfelves to the interests of hell, Pfal. lviii. 3. "The wicked are estranged from the womb; they go astray, as foon as they be born, speaking lies;" fo one by the new birth joins interests with heaven. So that the meanest faint has a natural concern for the kingdom of Christ's thriving, the Spirit put in them being a public spirit.

2. It is their Father's kingdom. How then can the children not be concerned for it? Matth. vi. 9. 10. Their Father's honour must be dear to them, Mal. i. 6 " If I be a Father, where is mine honour?" The further on his kingdom goes, the more his glory is advanced; and they have the more fatisfaction, as children, in their father's honour.

3. Their own intereft lies in it. They are willing fubjects of the kingdom of his power. They are fubjects, not only of the kingdom of the gofpel, but of the kingdom of grace, and defigned fubjects of the kingdom of glory. So in in its good their own is wrapt up. See Jer. xxix. 7. Their all is in this fhip. No wonder, then that they be concerned that it come fafe to land When it does, they are made up for ever : if it were possible that it could be cash away, they are ruined.

4. Their brethren's intereft lies in it too, Pfal. cxxii. 8. All the faints are born brethren. The more the kingdom is advanced, it is the better with them; and the more it is retarded, it is the worfe, Pfal. ciii. 16. 17. For be it foul or fair, their lot is in it, and it fares with them as with it. Their brethren yet unborn, all the elect not yet converted, fome of them come, fome but coming into the world, Cant. viii. 8. Should the kingdom of God be taken away, what fhould become of perifhing fouls? If the net of the gofpel be folded up, how fhall the fifh be caught? If the Lord leave our mother, how fhall children be brought forth unto God?

5. Laftiy, The ruin of the enemies intereft lies in it too. Every kingdom has its enemies. There is an irreconcileable war betwixt the devil's kingdom and Chrift's. It was proclaimed in paradife, Gen. iii. 15. "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy feed and her feed." It never was, nor will be, taken up by a peace; it muft end in the ruin of one of the two. As the one goes up, the other goes down; and the perfection of Chrift's kingdom will be the deftruction of the other. No wonder, then, that all the King's children cry, Thy kingdom come.

I shall now make some practical improvement of this subject, in uses of information, trial, and exhortation.

Use 1. Of information. From what is faid, learn,

'I. The excellency, afefulnefs, and neceffity of the glorious gofpel. It is the kingdom of God.

(i.) It is a most excellent thing, precious in itfelf, and in the eyes of all the faints, 2 Pet i. 4. It is more excellent than all the kingdoms of the earth; for it is the kingdom of God, Matth. xxi. 43. It is a field wherein a treafure lies, which, whofo difcover, will part with all, if it were crowns and kingdoms, to gain it, Matth. xiii. 44. And a thousand times happy the man, who can call the field his own.

(2.) It is most useful; for it is the way by which one is brought into the kingdom of grace, and fo to glory, Acts xxvi. 18. It is the fword of the Spirit, by which finners are are fubdued to Chrift, the devil's neft is rifled, his power over finners broken, and his kingdom brought down. It is the finners life, the faints health, and the inftrument of all fpiritual good to them.

(3) It is most necessary, as the kingdom of God among men, without which they are in a miferable plight, the devil ruling among them at his will, Pfal. lxxiv. 20. " The dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty." It is the key of the kingdom of grace, and opens the door of accels to heaven. The world might better want the fun in the firmament, than want the golpel. It is the "light fhining in a dark place," 2 Pet. i. 19. to guide our feet in the way to eternal happinefs.

2. That the cry for the ruin of the kingdom of God, can be no other but the cry of the family of hell. Yet many join in it, faying, "Let us break their bands afunder, and caft away their cords from us," Pfal. ii 3. "We will not have this man to reign over us," Luke xix. 14. The gofpel-kingdom is the great eye-fore to the devil; and if he could reach it, he would deftroy it. Sometimes his chain is lengthened, and his forces are raifed to raze the temple of God among men. And then multitudes of great and fmall list themselves in his fervice, in the unholy war against the church. And then they " roar in the midit of the congregations; they fet up their enfigns for figns:" and " they break down the carved work thereof at once, with axes and hammers," Pfal. 1xxiv. 4. 6. But their cry is the cry of hell.

2. That the kingdom of our Lord will triumph over all its enemies, and drive over all oppofition. For if what two agree on earth, as touching any thing that they shall ask, Matth. xviii. 19. fhall be done for them, much more what all the faints on earth make their joint request. The devil's kingdom, and Antichrift's kingdom, though malignants lend their hand to carry it on, thall fall before the prayers of all the faints, and they in the ruins of it, if they quit not the Antichriftian intereft. If Chrift's kingdom were ever fo low, the joint pravers of the faints will raife it up.

4. No wonder that moth men's prayers be not heard, for their hearts and lives contradict them quite, Prov. xxviii. 9. " He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer thall be abomination." They pray, that God's kingdom may come; yet they will not fubmit to it themfelves. They cannot be bound with the laws of the kingdom dom of the golpel, they are firangers to that of grace, and the kingdom of glory is not their choice, if they could do otherwife. Chrift fays to fuch, "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I fay?" Luke vi. 46. Remember, Sirs, that "the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power," I Cor. iv. 20. The devil's kindly fubjects may pretend a great concern for the kingdom of God. But what matter is that? It is but a pretence, while the kingdom of God is not within them, but fin reigns in their hearts

5. Laftly, It is fad work to be employed in hindering the advancement of the kingdom of God, whether men purfue it openly or covertly. For it is driving contrary to the prayers of all faints. Perfecution is a fad piece of work, but the devil is known there by his cloven foot. But fcand lous practices, and fiery divisions, in the church, are apt to do more mifchief to the kingdom of Chrift. For whatever zeal for it the authors of them do pretend, one thing is evident, that the way to the getting good of the gofpel is filled full of flumbling-blocks, and the poor blind gracelefs world are thereby taught to defpife the means of grace. It muft needs be fearful oppofition to the kingdom of Chrift, that is thus written in the blood of perifhing fouls.

USE 11. Of trial. Try by this whether ye be of the family of God or not Have ye a kindly concern for the coming of his kingdom? Do your hearts fay within you, t by kingdrm come? If it be not fo, God is not your Father; but if fo, he is How thall that kindly concern be known? If it be of the right fort,

1. It will be a judicious deliberate concern, on a fair view of the nature of the kingdom, Matth. xiii. 45. 46 Many have a concern for the kingdom of Chrift, who indeed know not what it is. The Jews had a mighty zeal for it, upon a miftake: and when it came to them, not anfwering the notion they had formed of it, they opposed it with all their might. But if ye be concerned for it, on a right view of it from the Lord's word, as a kingdom of true holinets, it is well.

2. An univerfal concern for it, for the kingdom of power, the gofpel, grace, and glory. Ye will be concerned that God would exercife his power, for the advancing of the gofpel; that the gofpel may have its due effect on yourfelves and others; that Chrift may fway his feeptre in your hearts; and that holinefs may be perfected in glory.— You will not only be concerned for the kingdom without Vol. III. 3 G you, you, but for the kingdom within you; not for the kingdom within you only, but without you too.

3. An active concern for it, not in wifhing and woulding only, but putting to your hand to get it forward, 1 Cor. iv. 20. "For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power." And this ye will do, as ye have accefs in the world, and particularly in your own hearts and lives. It will fet you to keep up a conftant war with the enemies, the devil, the world, and your own lufts.

4. Lafly, A fuperlative concern for it, maftering and fivallowing up all other concerns. You will fay as the captives in Babylon did, " If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerufalem above my chief joy," Pfal. cxxxvii. 6. For if ye belong to God, your chief intereft is in that kingdom; and where your treafure is, there will your heart be alfo.

Use III. and laft, Of exhortation. I exhort you to join iffue this day with Zion's King, to have common friends and enemies with him, come what will. Set yourfelves againft the kingdom of fin and Satan in the world and your own hearts; Pfal. ii. ult. "Kifs the Son, left he be angry, and ye perifh from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little." And do ye exert heart and hand, that his kingdom may come. In this matter ye cannot be neutral: "For he that is not with me," fays Chrift, " is againft me; and he that gathereth not with me, fcattereth abroad," Matth. xii. 30. Therefore, if ye be not with heart and hand fet for the advancement of this kingdom, 1 declare you enemies to it. Come then, Firfl, Be concerned that the kingdom of God's power may come; that he may firetch out his almighty arm, and gain ground to himfelf in the world.

1. It is an univerfal kingdom. All is in his hand. He can reach to the ends of the earth. It extends over all perfons and things; and he can make all things fubferve his purpofes. He can didplay his glorious arm in bringing in fhoals of volunteers into the kingdom of grace, and utterly root out all the legions of hell that are in combination againft him.

2. It is an uncontroulable kingdom. None can refift him, more than the clay can refift the potter, Dan. iv. 35. "He doth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth : and none can ftay his hand, or fay unto him, What doft thou?" He will work, and who can let it? It is in vain to contend with this almighty Sovereign; for he can eafily conquer all his enemies, as eafily as he caufed the Red Sea fwallow up Pharoah and all his hoft. He can baffle all the machinations and plots of his adversaries, difconcert their best-laid projects, and make them retreat with fhame and confusion Thefe are great encouragements for this concern.

Secondly, Be concerned that the kingdom of the gofpel may come. For motives, confider,

1. That it is not an univerfal kingdom, but a narrow one, and that it is to be enlarged. For Chrift has declared, that this golpel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, for a witnefs unto all nations," Matth. xxiv. 14. Though now this kingdom be confined within narrow bounds, yet it fhall, according to Chrift's promife, have a more diffufive fpread; and the time will come when the Jews shall be brought in with the fulnels of the Gentiles, and the kingdoms of this world thall become the kingdoms of the Lord, and of his Chrift.

2. It is a moveable kingdom. It may be taken from them that have it. Chrift may remove his throne, as he did from the Jews, Matth. xxi. 43. and as he has done in many once famous churches. Where are now the feven churches in the Leffer Afia ? and where are many of those churches that were planted by the apostle of the Gentiles? Alas! their candleftick has been long ago removed out of its place, and the delutions of Mahomet prevail in those places where once the pure doctrines of the gofpel were preached. Though Chrift will always have a church on earth, yet it is confined to no particular country or place. And therefore, we in this land fhould earneftly pray, that the kingdom of the gofpel may come more illustriously among us, and that it may continue with us to the end of time, that we may ftill fee many days of the Son of man, and that the candle of gofpel-light may ever fhine brightly among us. These confiderations thould influence us always to pray, that Chrift's gofpel-kingdom may come among us, and be ipread through the world.

Thirdly, Be concerned, that the kingdom of grace may come. Confider,

1. It is a kingdom that eafily gets a back-fet, Cant. ii. 15. It may be thriving in a foul this moment, and the next going to decay. There is need of much faith and watchfulnefs for preferving and maintaining it. A multitude of formidable foes are fill oppofing it, and all the fubjects of it have ng no power to refift them. They muft look to their Captain-General, and be firong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. It is only through him that they can do valiantly; for it is he alone who treads down their enemies under their feet. And through him they fhall be more than conquerors. Truft ye then in the Lord for ever; for with the Lord Jehovah is everlafting firength. Be fober, then, and watch unto prayer, left ye fall into temptation. Cry unto your King, for he will fave you, and gradually overcome all your enemies.

3 G 2

2. Yet this is a kingdom that can never be overturned, never removed, Heb xii. 8. It is a fpark of fire in the midtt of an ocean, that can never be quite drowned or extinguished. The bruifed reed shall not be broken, and the fmoking flax thall never be quenched. All the combinations of adverlaries, however formidable, shall never overturn this kingdom; for the gates of hell shall never prevail against it. It is built on the Rock Chrift, and all the furges and waves of the dragon's flood shall never overturn the edifice. The name of this city is, "The Lord is there." Of this kingdom of grace, it may well be faid, " Affociate yourfelves, O ye people, and ye shall be broken in pieces; and give ear, all ye of far countries: gird yourfelves, and ye shall be broken in pieces; gird yourfelves, and ye fhall be broken in pieces. Take counfel together, and it shall come to nought; speak the word, and it fhall not ftand: for God is with us," If. viii. 9. 10. These are powerful confiderations for inducing you to a hearty concern for the coming of this kingdom of grace.

Fourthly, Be concerned that the kingdom of glory may come. Confider,

I. Sin and trouble will have an end put to them there. The ftage of fin and vanity will then be put down for ever, and none of the fcenes that have fo much vexed the righteous here, will ever be exhibited again. All corruptions, temptations, and backflidings from God, will then come to a final period. All bodily trouble and fpiritual diffrefs thall ceafe, and never more be heard of.

2. Grace and happinefs will then arrive at their full perfection. The myftery of God will then be finished. Then will God's kingdom of power, of the gospel, and of grace, fully obtain their end; and all the subjects of Christ shall be completely bleffed in the full enjoyment of him for evermore Let us all then tay, Let the kingdom of glory be hastened. Amen.

THE

THE THIRD PETITION.

Matth. vi. 10.-Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.

THIS third petition relates to the will of God, the doing of which is defired by all the children of God. And as by the coming of his kingdom his name is hallowed, to by doing of his will his kingdom comes, or is advanced, and we own him to be our King, Heb. xiii. 21. So all thefe three petitions meet in one great defirable point, viz. the glory of God. This is the fcop^o of them all.

Obferve here, by the by, that we are directed to fpeak to God in prayer as to one, Hallowed be thy name, not your name; Thy will be done, not your will. Wherefore, then, fhould any forfake fuch a form of found words, for fuch a harth one, as speaks to God by ye and your, your Majefty, ye know all things, &c.? I will not infift on what may be faid to defend it, from the plurality of perfons in the Godhead, the manner of fpeaking to kings, and from common converfation, (those who use it, I suppose, doing it rather from cuftom than judgment). But it is not the fcriptureway of fpeaking to God; it is not the way of this pattern of prayer; it is offentive to, and grating in the ears of the most part of Christians, as favouring of the opinion of the plurality of gods, and therefore ought to be forfaken. may well fay in this cafe, " But if any man feem to be contentious, we have no fuch cuftom, neither the churches of God," 1 Cor. xi, 16.

In difcourfing from this petition, I fhall fhew,

I. What is meant by the will of God.

II. By whom is God's will done in heaven.

III. What is the import of this petition.

IV. The reafons why the faints have fuch a concern, that the will of God may be done in earth as it is in heaven. V. Apply.

I. I am to fhew, what is meant by the will of God. By it we are to understand the will of his commands, and the will of his providence.

First, The will of God's commands, Heb. xiii. 21. "Make you perfect in every good work to do his will." Matth. vii. 21. "He that doth the will of my Father which is in heaven." His is the kingdom over all creatures; he fits on the throne of his power, and gives out his will to all the rational world, which they are bound to obey, as the King's will, and laws of his kingdom, determining what they ought to do, and what to forbear. The church has that will of the King in all points in the Bible. In heaven, all do it; in hell, none do it; in earth, fome do it, others not; and those who do it, do it but imperfectly. So we pray, Thy will be done.

The will of God's commands is exceeding comprehensive, Pfal. cxix. 96. "Thy commandment is exceeding broad." It is but one will of God; but the objects of it, the things willed, are many: but as as many as they are, fincere Christians do fincerely fulfil them, though not perfectly, Acts xiii. 22. "I have found David,—a man after mine own heart, which thall fulfil all my will," Gr. " all my wills." This whole will of God, however, may be reduced to two heads, viz. faith, and holinefs.

1. Faith, 1 John iii. 23. "This is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jefus Christ." And this is comprehended in that, Matth. vii. 21. " Not every one that faith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Ye are to look on it as the Father's will, the will of God, that ye believe in his Son, 2 Cor. viii. c. " They gave their own felves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God." It is the great thing which he wills you to do, John vi. 29. " This is the work of God, shat ye believe on him whom he hath fent." His dinner is prepared, he wills you to come to the marriage, Matth xxii. 4. This answers all the objections, I may not, I dare not, I will not be welcome. It is God's will that ye come forward. And ye have the prayers of all the faints to help you forward, I by will be done. And the croffing of this will of God will enfure your ruin, more than any thing elfe, John iii. 18. " He

"He that believeth not is condemned already." Mark xvi. 16. "He that believeth not fhall be damned."

(1.) Faith is the first and leading will of God, I John iii. 23. forecited. If ye would do any part of the will of God, believe: for ye can do none of it, if ye do not this, Heb. xi. 6. "For without faith it is impossible to please God." John xv. 5. "Without me ye can do nothing." If ye do not begin with believing, all that ye do is nothing. As in arithmetic, if a thousand cyphers be fet in a line, they are nothing, but if begun with a figure, they are all fomething; fo believe, and the reft will be the obedience of faith.

(2.) Faith is the laft will of God. It is the Lord's laft will, that ye believe in Chrift, Mark xvi. 16. "He that believeth fhall be faved." John iii. 16. "God fo loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whofoever believeth in him thould not perith, but have everlafting life." The Lord's will to man at first was, "Do this and live." Now he cannot do that; but that he may not perifh, his will now in the fecond covenant is, "Believe, and ye fhall be faved." The first not being complied with, the fecond came for man's help: but this fecond is the laft. If ye do not believe, there is no third to be looked for, but first indignation, Heb. x. 26. 27.

2. Holinefs, 1 Theff. iv. 3. "This is the will of God, even your fanctification." God is a holy God, and cannot will unholinefs. It is Satan's will, and your own corrept will, that ye be unholy. But therein ye contradict the will of God, Rom. viii. 7. "Becaufe the carnal mind is enmity againft God: for it is not fubject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. Every unholy thought, word, or action, is a going crofs to the will of God, and therefore finners are faid to "vex his Holy Spirit," If. Ixiii. 10. as men are vexed when their will is ftill contradicted and croffed. Holinefs is,

(1.) The will of God's nature, I Pet. i. 16. "Be ye holy, as I am holy." God has willed men to be holy; and it was inconfiftent with his nature to have willed them to be unholy. Faith in a crucified Redeemer is God's will of free choice. He did not will innocent Adam to believe in a Mediator. He might, if he had pleafed, never have provided that object of faith, and fo there might never have been fuch a thing as faith in a Redeemer. But having once made man, he could not but will him to be a holy man. And fire and water may fooner agree than God's will and unholinefs.

(2.) The will of his whole law. It is all pure, Pfal. xix. 8.

A vein of holinefs runs through the whole of it, and through every part. All the ten commandments are fo many laws of holinefs; all the enlargements on them in the Bible are fo many directions and inftructions for holinefs of heart and life. There the Lord has parcelled out his will in fo many particulars, but holinefs is the fcope of them all.

(3.) The will of God to all men, yea, all the rational creatures. That reafon, "Be ye holy, as I am holy," I Pet. i. 16. reaches all. The devils will not be condemned becaufe they do not believe in Chrift; they have no warrant to believe in him, the gofpel-offer is not made to them, Heb. ii. 16. Prov. viii. 4. but becaufe they are unholy. The Pagane will not be condemned neither for their unbelief, Rom ii. 12. for the gofpel is not revealed to them, but becaufe they are unholy, Rom. i. 18. "The wrath of God is revealed from heaven againft all ungodlinefs and unrighteoufnefs of men."

Secondly, The will of God's providence, Pfal. cxxxv. 6. "Whatfoever the Lord pleafed, that did he in heaven and in earth, in the feas, and all deep places." He fits in heaven univerfal monarch of the world, and has the ditpofal of all his creatures, and all that concern them, in his hand, and is accountable to none for his difpofals, Dan. iv. 35 forecited. They are all his own, as being created by him, and for him; and fo he may do with them as the potter with his own elay, Matth. xx. 15 Now, this will of God's providence may be confidered two ways.

I. As directing to duty, Pfal. xxxii. 8. " I will inftruct thee, and teach thee in the way that thou fhalt go," God speaks by his works as well as by his word. The whole world have this fort of fpeech made from heaven to them, Pfal. xix. 1 .-- 3. " The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament fleweth his handy work. Day unto day uttereth fpeech, and night unto night fheweth knowledge. There is no fpeech, nor language, where their voice is not heard." Providence ferves to point men to particular pieces of fervice, Gal. vi. 10. " As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the houfehold of faith." And therefore we must not be idle fpectators of Providence, Pfal. cvii. ult. " Whofo is wife, and will obferve these things, even they shall understand the loving-kindnefs of the .ord." But we must obferve the language and meaning thereof, proving what is the good and acceptable will of God to us in it.

3

2. As

2. As ordering and difpofing of events about ourfelves and others, Matth. x. 29. 30. " Are not two fparrows fold for a farthing? and one of them fhall not fall to the ground without your Father. But the very hairs of your head are all numbered." The world is a great family, under the conduct and management of an infinitely wife Mafter. And, for as broad and wide as it lies, his eye is in every part of it, and his hand too. And there is no perfon or thing but is under his providence; and whatever befals them is their portion or lot appointed by the great Mafter.

This all-difpoing will of Providence reaches particulars, with refpect to men, to us innumerable, even all that concerns them. But they may be reduced to two heads.

(1.) Smiling providences, in favourable difpenfations, Rom. ii. 4. The unthankful world is filled with thefe, for he doth good even to the unthankful and the unholy. Every day his table is fpread, and he loads men with his benefits; though the mefs of fome may be double to that of others, yet all feed at his coft.

(2.) Frowning providences, Micah vi. 9. "The Lord's voice crieth unto the city.—Hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it;" and this in afflicting difpenfations. It is the fame God who draws the white lines in one's lot, that draws the black ones too. It is the fame hand that puts on the crown of profperity, that pulls it off again. The fame God who gives the fair weather, alfo fends the foul, and after the blink the fhower, and the clouds after the rain. If it go ill with a land, with a congregation, or with one's houfe, it is the will of the Lord that it fhould be fo.

And to all we are to fay, Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.

II. I proceed to fhew, by whom is God's will done in hea-

1. By the bodies of heaven, the heavenly bodies, the fun, moon, and ftars. God their Creator, when he made them, appointed their ends, motions, and courfes; and thefe they have fteadily obferved from the time of their creation, Pfal. cxix. 89. 91. "For ever, O Lord, thy word is fettled in heaven. They continue this day according to thine ordinances: for all are thy fervants." The fcoffers obferve this, 2 Pet. iii. 4. "All things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation," though they make a very bad ufe of it. Though in the heavenly fabric, thefe bodies are Vol. III. 3 H hugely hugely great, and there are fo many of them that men cannot number them, yet have they all, from the beginning to this day, obferved and kept their motions and courfes. without any breach of order, or any deviation whatfoever. the mean time it is notorious, that engines made by men, and confifting of many wheels, with a variety of motions, are very hard to be kept right long, but they go out of their courfe. But thefe do the will of God fteadily, evenly, and unweariedly, Pfal. xix. 5. 6. " The fun is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a ftrong man to run a race. His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof." The fun and moon's ftanding ftill in Joshua's time, was no faltering nor diforder in their courfe, but it was in obedience to a particular will of God. And thus they caft us a fair copy of doing the will of God on earth.

2. By the angels of heaven. Thefe glorious fpirits, attendants of the great King, are obedient to the nod of their Maker, and fall in with every the least intimation of his will, Pfal. ciii. 21. They " do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word." Though they " excel in ftrength," they entertain not the leaft thought of difputing his orders, ver. 20. They never put in an exception against the meaneft piece of fervice that God puts in their hands, but are well coutent to minister unto worm man, Heb. i. ult. " Are they not all ministering spirits, fent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of falvation ?" They never use any fhifts or offputs in the doing of his will; but when he fpeaks the word, it is done by them ; the orders are readily and cheerfully complied with. Thus they also cast us a fair copy of doing the will of God, a copy of rational obedience. The faints in heaven do his will alfo after the fame manner, Rev. vii. 5. having got a full answer of this petition as to themfelves.

III. I fhall now fhew, what is the import of this petition, both with refpect to the will of God's command, and his will of providence.

FIRST, I am to fhew the import of this petition with reference to the will of God's command. It imports fomething confeffed, profeffed, and defired.

First, Something confeffed. The children of God coming to him with this petition, confefs, that, t. The will of God is not done on earth as it is in heaven. There is no queftion but that all men on earth are obliged to do it with the fame perfection as those in heaven do it, Matth. v. ult "Be ye perfect, as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." But, alas! it is not done. God has given men on earth his commands, and notified his will to them; but it is not complied with. Though the higher world abides to this day in obedience to its Maker, yet the frame of the lower rational world is quite marred and unhinged. Though above there is a perfect calm, yet below a most unnatural rebellion is raifed and continued, fo that it is a region of diforder and confusion.

1. The

1/1, Moft men make their own will, and not God's, their law, and the rule of their actions, Rom. viii. 7. "The carnal mind is emnity againft God: for it is not fubject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." All unregenerate men have fhaken off the yoke of fubjection to God, and inftead of ferving God, "ferve divers lufts and pleafures," Tit. iii. 3. If at any time they fall in with what is materially the will of God, they do it, not becaufe it is God's will, but becaufe it is their own, and ferves their own ends, as the Pharifees did in their almfgiving and prayers, &c. Matth. vi. 1.

2dly, The beft men carry the yoke of fubjection to the will of God very unevenly, Gal. v. 17. Though they are fincere, they are far from being perfect in doing the will of God. Their own will carries them afide in many things : though they fincerely defign the fhore for Immanuel's land, they keep not a ftraight courfe. The wind of temptations, and their own unruly pafilons, oft-times blow them afide, fo that they are in danger of fplitting on the rocks.

2. There is in all men naturally an utter indifposition and unfitness for the will of God's command. There was a fweet harmony betwixt the will of God and the powers of man's foul at first, Eccl. vii. 29. but that is gone. Sin has broken the concord, and marred the harmony; so that there is a fad jarring betwixt the two now. They are indisposed,

1/2, For knowing it, for differing what the will of God is, I Cor. ii. 14. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolifhnefs unto him : neither can he know them; becaufe they are fpiritually differned." Sin has raifed a mift, fo that the travellers cannot know the way, but are apt to chufe by-paths of deftruction, inftead of the King's high-way; to call evil good, and good evil; to put bitter for fweet, and fweet for bitter. 2d/y, For doing it, Pfal. xiv. 3. "There is none that doth good, no not one." They are bunglers at that work, at beft, They have loft the holy art of going by that rule. They have no fkill of fteering their courfe to the fhore of Immanuel's land. Man naturally is under a threefold indifposition to it.

(1.) An inability to know or do the will of God. He has no head for it, 1 Cor. ii. 14. juft above quoted. Like Samfon, we have loft our two eyes in that point. The gofpel is a doctrine of myfteries, that requires a faving illumination to understand it, Eph. i. 17. Even the law itself in its spirituality is not different without a new light from the Lord, Rom. vii. 9. And we have no hands for it neither, John xv. 5. 2 Cor. iii. 5. It is above our natural reach.

(2.) An unwillingnefs to know or do it. As we have neither head nor hand for it, fo we have no heart for it neither, till a day of power change our hearts, Pfal. cx. 3. And hence it is that the truths of God which are practical are neglected, as not defired, Job xxi. 14. And when they force their entry into the head, they are held prifoners there, that they may not exert their efficacy in the heart, Rom. i. 18. And much more unwilling are we to do it, Hof. iv. 16. "Hrael flideth back as a backfliding heifer."

(3.) A bias in the will to the wrong fide, a bent and propentity to follow our own will, and the lufts of our own heart. Pfal. xiv. 1. "There is no God," is the language of every man's heart by nature. They would fet up themfelves for their own rule and their own end, and contend with their Maker for the fovereignty, that it fhould be according to their own will with them, and not according to his. Again, it imports,

Secondly, Something profeffed. The children of God, coming to their Father with this profeffion, profefs, that,

1. It is the grief of their hearts, that God's will is not done by themfelves or others, as it is done in heaven, Matth. xxi. 29. Pfal. cxix. 136. A gracious perfon has the law written in his heart. He knows it, and efteems it to be righteous in all things, the doing of it to be both one's duty and intereft, Pfal. cxix. 128. The heart inclines to the doing of it, though corruption and temptation drive him by it, Gal. v. 17. Hence proceeds forrow of heart, that it is not done.

2. That God, by the power of his grace, is able to reform this, and to frame the fouls of men on earth to the doing his will, as in heaven, Prov. xxi. i. He can new-frame men's will. will, give it a new bent of conformity to his own, and fix it too therein, Ezek. xxxvi. 26. So they put their own and others hearts in God's hand, that he may fet them in a way of obedience, Pfal. cxix. 36. It imports alfo, Thirdly, Something defired. And there are two things here defired of God by all the faints.

1. That he would by his grace remove from themfelves and others all fpiritual blindnefs, and caufe them to know his will, Eph. i. 17. 18. There can be no doing of God's will, without first knowing what it is, Rom. xiv. ult. For fuppofe one to do what God requires, who yet does not know that he requires it, it is plain that one in fuch a cafe does it, not becaufe it is the will of God, but becaufe it is his own. There is a natural blindnefs in all, and the remains of it are in the regenerate. This hides the will of God from them in many particulars, and fo hinders them from doing it. But the children of God defire to know it in all things.

This defire to know the will of God is a mark of fincerity, if it be attended with these two properties.

(1.) If it be univerfal, if the foul really defires to know the whole will of God, Rom. vii. 22.; not only fome fhreds of the law, but the whole law, Pfal cxix. 6. Hypocrites may defire to know fome parts of God's will, which are moft a-greeable to their own ends and inclinations. But happy they whole fouls are opened to receive the intimations of the divine will in all things.

(2.) If it be practical, if they defire to know his whole will, that they may conform themfelves to it, Pfal. ciii. 18. There may be a defire of the knowledge of God's will for fpeculation, to know it for the fake of knowledge, which may be found in the ungodly. But to defire the knowledge of it for the fake of practice, is a mark of fincerity.

Such a defire is a fure mark ; becaufe,

[1.] It evidences a heart reconciled to the whole will of God, Heb. viii. 10. The unrenewed heart is never fo reconciled, Rom. viii. 7. And therefore, fince they have no inclination to let in the whole law into their heart, they do what they can to keep it out of their heads, and are willingly ignorant of what they are unwilling to practife, Job xxi. 14.

[2.] It evidences a heart ready to part with every known fin, with any thing whatfoever, upon the difcovery of its contrariety to the will of God, Pfal. xix. 12. It is an evidence of an honeft heart to be content to be fearched, Pfal. cxxxix. 23.; but those who harbour deceit, will be unwilling to let in the difcovering light, Jer. ix. 6.

2. That

2. That God by his grace would remove from themfelves and others all weaknefs, indifpolition, and perverfenefs, and caufe them to obey and do his will, as it is done in heaven, Pfal. cxix. 35. So this defire extends to,

(1.) The removal of the impediments of dutiful obedience to the will of God. The children of God are fentible of the obligation lying on all to conform to the will of God in all things; but withal, that there is in them,

[1.] A weaknefs, obfructing their obedience, which they would fain have removed, Eph. iii. 16. The weak knees, the feeble hands, fail them when they would ever fo fain do his will. Thefe are their burden, and thefe they lay before the Lord daily for ftrengthening, longing for the day when the executive power fhall be anfwerable to their will, and their will to the will of God.

[2:] An indifposition, hindering their obedience, which they would fain be rid of, Matth. xxvi. 41. The gracious heart itself has such a mixture of corruption, that there is always a fpice of backwardness to compliance with the will of God, and an inclination to the wrong fide, which they have to ftrive with. This is as iron fetters on them, out of which they would be enlarged, to run the way of God's commandments.

[3.] A perverfenefs of fpirit, whereby one is inclined to refift and go quite contrary to the will of God. Ephraim complains of this, Jer. xxxi. 18. " I have furely heard Ephraim bemoaning himfelf thus, Thou haft chaftifed me, and I was chaftifed, as a bullock unacuftomed to the yoke: turn thou me, and I fhall be turned; for thou art the Lord my God." And the remainders of it in the beft occafion them many a fad ftruggle; by which the heart of a child of God is like a field of battle; the new nature endeavouring to take on the yoke, the corrupt nature refifting, and fhifting, like an untamed ox.

(2.) God's advancing them to, and fixing them in a courfe of dutiful obedience to his own will, that they may do it as it is done in heaven. They look on perfect holinefs as what would be their happinefs. They fee the will of God how it is done in heaven; they approve and love that way of it, and condemn their own, and would fain be brought up to the way of heavenly obedience, being wearied of their own earthly heartlefs way of doing it.

Queft. What fignifies their praying for it, fince they cannot obtain it while here ? Anf. It fpeaks,

1. Their

1. Their fenfe of duty in that cafe, and of their failings in their beft performances. It is certain that perfection as well as fincerity of obedience is our duty, though we cannot reach it, Matth. v. ult. " Be ye perfect," &c. And when the faints have firetched out to the utmost, they fit down fighing, that they cannot get the length they fheuld, Luke xvii. 16.

2. Their defire of perfection, which is accepted of God, 2 Cor. viii. 12. They would do the will of God on earth as it is in heaven, if they could. That is the bent and difpofition of their new nature, and they would as fain be rid of the remainders of corruption, as ever a prifoner was defirous of being rid of his chains, Rom. vii. 24. while others pleafe themfelves therewith as with golden chains.

3. Their fincere endeavour to get forward to that perfection. Though, the formy wind blowing in the face of the weak creature, they cannot hold pace with those in heaven in doing the will of God; yet they are ftill following them at a diftance, if at length they may get up with them, Phil. iii. 13. 14. And here, 2s in a glass, we may fee what fort of doing of the will of God the faints aim at, and defire. It is,

(1.) To do it evenly, without flumbling or changing their courfe. So the heavenly bodies and the angels are uniform in their courfe, Pfal. cxix. 91. But, alas! what an unevenlinefs is there in the walk of the beft! Sometimes they are warm in obedience, and again key-cold. Sometimes they are tender with refpect to the leaft of fins, and fometimes untender in great matters, according as grace or corruption gets the maftery. But all the faints are afhamed of this, and groan under the burden of it, longing for the day wherein they fhall keep a ftayed even courfe of obedience, as it is in heaven.

(2.) To do it unweariedly. Thus it is done in heaven, Pfal. xix. 5. "The fun is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a firong man to run a race," Rev. vii. 15. "They are before the throne of God, and ferve him day and night in his temple." There is no wearying of this doing of the will of God in heaven. But, alas! how foon are we on earth weary of well-doing? Even when the fpirit is willing, the clog of earth which the foul is fixed to often fets up, and can go no farther. This often makes them long to be diffolved, that without wearinefs they may be capable to ferve the Lord day and night in his temple.

(3.) To do it univerfally. So the angels do it, knowing 2 all, all, and doing all in perfection, without the leaft failure, Pfal. ciii. 21. But which of the commandments do we not break on earth ? what part of God's will is done by us in every point as is required ? None at all. But the faints hope and long for the day, when they fhall be able to know and do the whole of it in every point.

(4.) To do it humbly. When the angels have wings to fly on God's errands, yet they have alfo wings to cover their face and their feet, If. vi. 2. There is no riting of pride in their hearts upon the doing of their duty, nor to keep them from any duty. But how does pride of heart keep us back from many duties as too low for us! and how often does it arife upon the doing any thing well! 2 Cor. xii. 7. This is a heavy piece of the body of death, which the faints long to be rid of.

(5.) To do it cheerfully, Pfal. ciii. 20. So the angels do in heaven. It is no burden to them to do his will; there is no heavy driving in the courfe of their obedience. This alfo is our duty, Pfal. c. 2. But, ah! how often are our hearts to be dragged to duty! what backwardnefs to the doing of God's will, like the cutting off of a right hand! How defireable is it to a holy heart to be able to obey cheerfully!

(6.) To do it readily, without delay. So the angels are reprefented with wings, to fhew their readinefs and fpeed in obeying their Lord. So fhould we, Pfal. cxix. 60. "I made hafte, and delayed not to keep thy commandments." But, alas! how far from it are the beft many times! God fpeaks once, yea, twice, but we perceive it not. How often are we ruined with delays, and our work is marred in our hand! It is the defire of all the godly to be rid of this indifposition.

(7.) Laftly, To do it conftantly. So the heavenly bodies do it without intermiffion, without interruption : and fo do the angels. So the faints defire to do, Pfal. cxix. 112. "I have inclined my heart to perform thy ftatutes always, even unto the end." But, alas! how fickle and inconftant are they now, through a lightnefs of heart, which is heavy, heavy to every gracious foul?

SECONDLY, I fhall fhew, what is the import of this petition with reference to the will of God's providence. It imports, Firfl, A confession, (1.) Of a natural aptness in all men to quarrel, repine, and murmur against the methods and dispofals of Providence, Numb. xiv. 2. No king's management is to freely canvassed and censured by the subjects, as the King of of heaven's management in this world is by the hearts of men. An all-wife Providence guides the world, in every particular; but where is the man that has not fome quarrel or other with it?

[1.] Kind providences towards others are grudged, Matth. xx. 15. Though God is the Sovereign Lord of all, and all things are his own, and he is debtor to none, men are prone to quarrel the difpolal of his benefits, as if they would teach him on whom to befow his favours.

[2.] Afflictive providences towards one's felf are quarrelled. The foolifh heart fpeaks as one of the foolifh women, Job ii. 10. Though the worft we meet with in the world is flort of our delervings, yet how does the heart rife against the fmalleft evils laid upon us! When the yoke of affliction is wreathed about one's neck, the unfubdued heart rages under it, like a wild bull in a net.

(2.) Of a natural backwardnefs to fall in with the defigns of providence of one fort or other. God teaches by kind providences, and afflictive ones too. But fuch is the perverfenefs of human nature, that it foorns to be led by the one, Rom. ii. 4. or to be driven with the other, Jer. v. 3. Whether God write men's duty in white or black lines of providence, the heart is difposed not to fall in with it, Matth. xi. 16. 17.

Secondly, A profeffion, (1.) Of the faints forrow for this difpofition of heart crofting the will of God. It is a burden to them, and the renewed nature hereby enters a differt against this quarrelling of the corrupt nature against the will of God, Jer. xxxi, 18. They condemn themicities for not fubmitting cheerfully to, and falling in readily with the divine will in all things. It is one of the greatest ftruggles which a child of God has, to get his will conformed to the will of God.

(2.) Of the faith of the power of grace to fubdue the will to this conformity. So they hereby put their frony refractory heart into the heart-changing hand to melt it down, and make it pliable, Jer. xxxi. 13. forecited. And it is the comfort of all the faints, that there is a remedy of fufficient grace in Jefus Chrift, for the removing of the natural perveriencies of their wills.

Thirdly, A defire of grace for a thorough compliance with the will of God's providence. Which extends to,

1. A fubmiflion to the will of God in afflicting providences. This is our duty, whatever be our trial, Pfal. xxxix. 9. "I Wel. III, 3 Ι was was dumb," fays David, " I opened not my mouth; becaufe thou didft it." But it is a difficult duty, becaufe of that corrupt felf-love which cries for eafe, and fo much prevails in all men; becaufe of that blindnefs of men's minds, whereby they take that which is really for their good to be for evil to them, and becaufe we are all fo much wedded to our own will. Therefore the faints defire the removal of thefe impediments by God's grace, and the fubduing of their hearts to a fubmifien.

2. A thankful acceptance of merciful and kind providences, Luke 1. 38. This is our duty alio; but it is the natural bias of our hearts to factifice to our own net, and to forget and overlook God's goodnets in thefe; to fit down to the covered table of kind providence, not looking up with due acknowledgements to him who has provided it. So it is the faints defire to have grace to enable them to receive thankfully.

3 A compliance with the defign of providences of all forts. We must act according to the will of providence, Acts xiii. 36.; and we have need of grace for it. When God by his providence puts work in our hands, and gives us abilities and occations to ferve him, we are obliged to employ all for his fervice, elfe we answer not the defign. Mercies and rods have a call. And every one is by providence put in fome particular fration, with fome talents, lefs or more, for the duties of that fration. He does the will of God's providence, that employs his interest, gifts, and abilities in his calling, moving in his own fphere prudently, conftantly, and vigoroufly, as those in heaven do.

Fourthly, A confent to the will of God, a yielding of the heart to that it may be done. Our Lord gave us a copy of this refignation to the will of God in his bitter fufferings, Matth. xxvi. 42. "O my Father, if this cup may not pais away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done." And the church in Paul's cafe wrote after this copy, Acts xxi. 14. faying, "The will of the Lord be done." And whatever befalls the church, ourfelves, or others, by the will of providence, there ought to be a humble refignation to the will of God in it all.

IV. I fhall give the reafons why the faints have fuch a concern that the will of God may be done in earth, as it is in heaven.

1. Becaufe it is most just, holy, reasonable, and equitable,

in

in all things, and they fee it fo, Pfal. cxix. 128. " I efteem all thy precepts concerning all things to be right." Pfal. cxlv. 17. " The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works." God is holy and just in his own nature, and can command, demand, or inflict nothing that is unjust. He can do no wrong to the creature, nor can he bid the creature to do any thing wrong. He is infinitely wife, and knows how to guide the world beft. What wonder, then, they be concerned his will be done, fince it is the best that can be done?

2. Because the glory of God, which of all things is dearest to the faints, is deeply interested in this matter, God is perfectly glorified in heaven, becaufe there his will is done perfectly: but he is dithonoured on earth, becaufe his will is not obeyed and fubmitted to there. It is by this that his Spirit is vexed, his will being croffed and contradicted by vile worms.

3. Becaufe this would make a heaven on earth. If there was fuch a harmony betwixt earth and heaven, that God's will were done in the one, as in the other, it would make on earth.

(1.) A heaven for beauty and order of all things. There is a comely order in heaven, becaufe all there keep their own place, and follow the will of the Creator in all things. But fin has filled the earth with confusion and diforder, which will never be rectified till those on earth return to move according to rule, viz. the will of the Creator. What would become of us, if the fun and moon were as irregular in their motions as we are?

(2.) A heaven for happinefs. The happinefs of men lies in their affimulation to God; and they are fo far like him as they conform to his will. Were our will perfectly conformed to the will of God, we could never be miferable; for if God's will were our will, nothing could befal us against our will; we would be pleafed with all that we meet with.

USE. Are we directed thus to pray? Then,

1. We ought to be very careful to know what is the will of God in the feveral paffages of our life, Eph. v. 10. Left we miftake his will, or overlook it, we thould ftudy his word, that we may do it; and fludy his works, that we may comply with the call of them. For we can never be doers of the will of God, if we know it not. It is impoffible that an ignorant perfon can do the will of God; and therefore it behoves behoves us, if we would do his will, carefully to fearch the feriptures, and narrowly confider the works of God.

2. Let us be careful to do the will of God's commands, in fuch fort as we may most nearly refemble those in heaven, doing it evenly, unweariedly, universally, humbly, cheerfully, readily, and constantly, as you heard the faints defire to do. And let us never forget to comply with this great commandment, of believing in the name of Jefus Christ; for if this be not done in the first place, we cannot possibly do the will of God in any other thing. Faith is the foundation of all acceptable obedience to the will of God, leads to it, and animates the foul therein. For motives, confider,

Mot. (1.) We are under the greateft obligations to the doing of the will of God. God is our Creator, our Sovereign Lord and Ruler, and therefore has a just title to our obedience. The Creator's authority, and the Redeemer's love and grace, fo amply difplayed in the work of our redemption, loudly call for our obeying the will of God. The law is given us as the matter and rule of our obedience; and we are redeemed by Chrift, that we may be holy, and comply with the whole will of God revealed to us.

(2.) It is only the doers of his will that fhall get to heaven, Matth. vii. 21. There is a reward of grace to be reaped afterwards for it. "In keeping of the divine commandments," fays the Pfalmift, "there is great reward." None are fit or qualified for the work and employment of heaven but holy perfors, and none can be holy without doing the whole will of God. Obedience to his will is an infallible evidence of holinefs, without which no man fhall fee the Lord.

(3.) Since his will is manifefted to us in his word and works, the neglect of it will lay us open to double ftripes, Luke xii. 47. Since God has been pleafed to write to us the great things of his law, and to reveal his will refpecting both matters of faith and practice, we can have no pretence for ignorance, nor room to pleaf that we know not what is our duty. All pleas of ignorance are as inexcufable as those of neglect, which fhall be rejected at the great day, and all neglecters of the will of God punished with everlafting deftruction.

3. Lefly, Let us be careful to comply with the will of Divine Providence. And,

(1.) Let us confider what the difpenfations of the day towards the church, and towards ourfelves, do call for, and comply therewith. While the Lord's hand is firetched out, and and he threatens to take away his peace from us, [1.] Let us examine ourfelves, fmiting on our breafts, and faying, What have I done to kindle the fire of the Lord's anger? [2.] Let us pray for the peace of Jerufalem, and have a deep concern for the prefervation of truth and peace; that the Lord may fupport his own caufe, blefs the gofpel for the conversion of finners, and the edification of all who have given their names to Chrift.

(2.) Let us be fubmiffive under all afflicting providences, laying our hands on our mouths, accepting the punifhment of our fins, and juftifying God in whatever we meet with.

THE FOURTH PETITION.

Matth. vi. 11.—Give us this day our daily bread.

THE former three petitions respect God's glory, and the latter three our own welfare. In the first three we are directed to pray for the advancement of his name, kingdom, and will, and in the last three for own temporal and spiritual good. The order is divine, and teaches us this

Doct. "That it is the duty of all, and the difpolition of God's children, to prefer God's honour to all their perfonal and private interefts." It is preferable,

1. To our own temporal welfare: Thy name be hallowed, Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done; and then, Give us this day our daily bread. It fpeaks the difposition of God's children in three things.

(1.) They defire that God's glory may be advanced, whatever come of their bread or provision for this life. Their life life itfelf is by them put in fubordination to God's honour, much more the outward comforts of it, Acts xxi. 13. If the chariot of God's honour cannot drive forward, but it must drive over their table, they bid it welcome to drive on, though it cast down their table, making its way over it, Luke xiv. 26.

(2.) They defire not bread in a way inconfiftent with the glory of God's name, the coming of his kingdom, and doing his will, Heb. xi. 25. If they cannot have it, but out of the ruins of thefe, they will rather want it: it is too dear bought at the expence of the profanation of his name, wronging and marring the progrefs of his kingdom, and going over his declared will.

(3.) In purfuing the honour of his name, the advancing of his kingdom, and doing of his will, they will caft themfelves on their Father for their bread, in confidence that he will furnish them with what they need of it for those great ends, I Cor. ix. 7. "Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and cateth not of the milk of the flock?" They have his promife for it, Pfal. xxxvii. 3. "Verily thou shalt be fed." And he will be as good as his word: it is a ruled cafe, Luke xxii. 35. "When I fent you without purfe, and forip, and shoes, wanted ye any thing? And they faid, Nothing."

2. To our own spiritual welfare : Thy name, &c. Thy kingdom, &c. Thy will, &c. Then, Forgive us our debts, &c. It fpeaks the disposition of the faints in fubmitting even their fpiritual comforts and eafe unto the glory of their Father. An eminent inftance of this we have in David, 2 Sam. xv. 25. 26. " And the king faid unto Zadok, Carry back the ark of God into the city : if I fhall find favour in the eyes of the Lord, he will bring me again, and fhew me both it, and his habitation. But if he thus fav, I have no delight in thee : behold, here am I, let him do to me as feemeth good unto him." And we have another eminent inftance of it in David's Lord, Pfal. xxii. 1. 2. 3. " My God, my God, why haft thou forfaken me? why art thou fo far from helping me, and from the words of my roaring? O my God, I cry in the day-time, but thou hearest not ; and in the nightfeaton, and am not filent. But thou art holy, O thou that inhabiteft the praifes of Ifrael." To this holy fovereignty Mary was required to ftoop, and fhe did it, John xx. 17. "Jefus laith unto her, Touch me not : for I am not yet afcended to my Father : but go to my brethren, and fay unto them, them, I afeend unto my Father and your Father, and to my God and your God." And why fhould not all the children of God fubmit the whole of their fpiritual comforts, and the way of their travelling through the wildernets, unto their heavenly Father, that he may difpof- of it to his own glory, and according to his will? I make no queftion, but men are to fubmit their eternal falvation to the honour of God; but as foon as one is brought into God's family, that is fecured, and put beyond a poffibility of lollog.

The reason of this point is, that God is man's chief end, and the chief good. All things are from him, and fo must be for him, Prov. xvi. 4. Rev. iv. ult. And to alter this order, is for men to make God's honour the means, and their own welfare the end; which is to lift up themselves very proudly above God.

Use 1. This fpeaks death to those who make the interest of God's name, kingdom, and will, lacquey at the foot of their perfonal private interests; and who cut and carve in their religion, as may be most subservient to advance their own interest, Phil. ii. 21. They will drive over God's honour, conficience, justice, and equity, to compass their own ends, and facrifice all that is facred to their own worldly interest.

2. It fpeaks comfort to those who first feek the kingdom of God in the habitual conduct of their lives, Matth. vi. 33. These feek in the order prescribed, and so cannor mils to come speed. Heaven is a top with them, and earth under their feet. They confent to the cutting and carving of their own lot, as may be most subfervient to God's honour. They look mainly to God's honour, and God will see well to their welfare.

In the text God is reprefented as the univerfal Benefactor, Maintainer, and Supporter of all, out of whofe hands every one must receive his portion; and to whom Christ tends rich and poor, to beg their bread of him. And here fee,

1. What we are to feek of him, for our bodies, bread; i. e. all the means of life, neceffaries and conveniences; for a man may be killed with thirft, and flarved with cold, though he had abundance of other things, if he want things neceffary in these cafes.

2. What bread, daily bread; i. e. a competent portion of the good things of this life; God as the great Steward giving to all their portion meet for them, as a matter or fteward of a family gives to every member his frated allowance.

3. What fort of daily bread, our own; fuch as we hawfully con.e

come by; for what is unlawfully gotten, and we have no right to by God's gift, Satan puts it in men's hands, not God.

4. When we are to feek it, this day; i. e. every day. God keeps all men hanging on him for every day's provision. In refpect of God, those who have the greatest fulness live from hand to mouth; and they are indebted to God for every day's mercies, as well as the poor.

5. How we are to feek it, Give us; i. e. by way of free gift. We cannot plead the merit of a crumb; but grounding our plea on mercy through Chrift, we may feek all we need.

6. Laftly, For whom we are to feek, us; i. e. for ourfelves and others; for we are one needy company, and must be all furnished from the fame hand.

Before I proceed to a particular confideration of this petition, I shall observe this point of doctrine from it, viz.

Docr. " Men depend wholly and entirely on God's bounty, for all the means and comforts of life." There are fome who are quite broken, have nothing left them, and can do nothing for a livelihood : how do they live? they hang on about their friends hands, and they have nothing but what they give them. That is the cafe of all men with refpect to God, the beft friend of the creatures; and have what ye will, ye know not your own flate, if ye know not that ye thus depend on him.

'To confirm this point, confider,

1. God is the Creator of all things. He made us and all things, and particularly those which contribute to the support and comfort of our lives, Pfal. c. 3. What a precious thing is the life of man, for which fo many hands are fet on work to maintain it? They that have a great family to maintain, will have feveral hands employed in feveral pieces of work, and all to provide for them. All mankind depend on God; his family of nature is a vast one: and he has made the hands to be employed in it accordingly. He made the corn, and the beasts of the earth, for this cnd; the earth itself to produce the one, and feed the other; and the heavens, with the glorious bedies therein, to influence the earth for that effect. For this cause the fun, that great fervant of the world, is constantly going about, making day and night, feed-time and harvest, &c. and all for the support of the family.

2. He preferves them all in their being, Heb. i. 3. The whole whole frame of the univerfe, and all the creatures in it, are upheld by him, as a ball in the air; which would prefently fall down, if he fhould withdraw his fupporting hand. The being of the creatures is in a continual flux; there is no neceffary connection betwixt their being one moment and another; fo that if God fhould withdraw his hand, they would immediately dwindle into nothing. Our food would all evanifh, the beats difappear, the whole globe of the earth go like afhes in the wind, and the fun go out like a candle burnt to fnuff, without his fupporting influence.

3. He is the Proprietor of us, and of all the creatures that we have the benefit of, in heaven or earth. He has given you the ufe of them, but the property remains with him : he is the true Owner and Lord of all. Have you got the corn into your barns or barn-yards to feed you, and the wool to clothe you? remember, God fays, it is "my corn and my wool," Hof. ii. 9. Have you the hills plenifhed with your ftore? remember, God's mark is upon them all, fmall and great, Pfal. 1.10. As is is his earth that bears us, and his air that we breathe, fo it is his food that maintains us, and his raiment that clothes us.

4. All things that have life are maintained on his charges, man not excepted, Pfal. cxlv. 15. 16. "The eyes of all wait upon thee, and thou giveft them their meat in due feafon. Thou openeft thine hand, and fatisfieft the defire of every living thing." He makes grafs to grow for the cattle, and feeds the young ravens that cry. The fame heavenly Father whom we feek our daily bread from, feeds the fowls of the air, Matth. vi. 26. If God thould clofe his hand upon the creatures that wait on him for their food, where would man's comforts be, that are drawn from them, for the fupport of his body?

5. All the ufefulnefs and comfort of the creatures to us depends on God, Matth. xix. 17. Whatfoever good is in them is dropt into them from the fountain of goodnefs. The creature is a mere empty nothing in itfelf, and is foilonlefs without the bleffing from the Lord, Matth. iv. 4. No creature can be more to another than God makes it to be, Hof. ii. 21. 22. The corn cannot hear Jezreel, nor the earth the corn, nor the heavens the earth, unlefs God hear first; and then the heavens will hear the earth, the carth the corn, and the corn Jezreel.

6. Wherefore God has a negative on all the creatures. Vol. III. 3 K Should Should they all fay Yea, if he fay No, nothing can be done. Lam. iii. 37. He is the fpring that fets all the wheels of the creation a-going. Should he ftop, and deny his influence, then all of them are motionless that moment. Thou hast bread; but what will it avail thee without his bleffing? if he withdraw it, thou mayft eat, and not be fatisfied, Hof. iv. 10. Thy clothes could not warm thee without it. Ye might plough and fow, and get nothing for your pains, if he but lay his charge on the earth to deny her fruits. Ye might tend your cattle and flocks, and do your beft for them, and all to no purpofe, if he keep back his own, Pfal. xcv. 4.; which ye cannot crave as debt. Ye might rife early, and fit up late, and ply your bufinefs with the utmost diligence; but when thou haft done all thou canft do by art or industry, remember what Mofes fays to the Ifraelites, Deut. viii. 17.18. " Thou fay in thine heart, My power, and the might of my hand, hath gotten me this wealth. But thou fhalt remember the Lord thy God: for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth." And confider what the Lord fays, Pfal. exxvii. 1. 2, " Except the Lord build the houfe, they labour in vain that build it : except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain. It is vain for you to rife up early, to fit up late, to eat the bread of forrows : for fo he giveth his beloved fleep."

7. Lafly, Our comforts and fupports of life are never out of God's reach. If they were in ever fuch a flourishing condition, he can blaft them to us in a moment. One day faw Job exceeding rich and poor to a proverb, Job. i. 13. &cc. having feven thousand sheep in the morning, and not a living one among them all at night. How often has it been, that a fair braird has brought little into the barn-yard? When it has been ready for the hook, or cut down in the field, fhaking winds and rotting rains have made it little worth, Hof. ii. 9. When it is brought to the barn-floor, even then we are not fure of it, Hof. ix. 2. " The floor and the wine-prefs shall not feed them, and the new wine shall fail in her." When the corn is made in bread, " the Lord can take away the whole flay of bread," If. iii. 1. When it goes down the throat, he can make it choke us; and when it is in the belly, he can "turn it," and make "it the gall of afps within us," Job xx. 14.

I proceed to the petition itfelf, in which we pray, "That, of God's free gift, we may receive a competent portion of the the good things of this life, and enjoy his bleffing with them."

In difcourfing from this petition, I fhall fnew,

I. What is meant by bread in it. II. What is the import of this petition for bread. III. Apply.

I. I am to fhew what is meant by bread in this petition. Not the fpiritual bread, which is Jefus Chrift; that we pray for in the fecond petition. Not the facramental bread neither; that is prayed for in the fifth petition, being a feal of the pardon of fin. But, as I have already obferved, bread for the fuftenance of our bodies, bread for our own tables, for nourifhing the clay bodies in their prefent earthly ftate. So this petition concerns our bodies. Hence, Obferve, That we are allowed to be concerned for our bodies, and their fuftenance. The neglect of it is a fin againft God, Col. ii. ult. And the care of it is neceffary to fit us for ferving God in our feveral flations, as the horfe mult be feen to by him who would make out his journey. And if we be the Lord's children, our bodies are the Lord's by a peculiar title; they are the members of Chrift, and temples of his Spirit. And therefore we owe them a particular honour and regard.

Yet there is but one petition here for the body, while there are two for the foul, "Forgive us our debts," &c. "And lead us not into temptation," &c. Whence,

Observe, Our main concern should be for our fouls; and fo it is indeed with the faints. This is that better part of the man, which is worthy of double honour, double care and concern, Matth. xvi. 26.

1. The body is of the earth, the foul is from heaven. By the body we are allied to the beafts, but by our fouls to the angels. The one is the brutal part of the man, the other the angelical part. And as heaven is above the earth, fo fhould the care of our fouls be beyond that of our bodies.

2. Our bodies are mortal, but our fouls immortal. When one dies, his body goes to fleep in the duft till the refurrection; but his foul goes to God who gave it, to live either in heaven or hell. Shall we not then have a greater concern for the immortal inhabitant, than the clay cottage, the weak tabernacle in which it dwells?

3. Caring

3. Caring chiefly for the foul, we fecure the happinefs of the body too, in this life, Matth. vi. 33. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteoufnefs, and all thefe things fhall be added unto you;" and alfo in the life to come, Rom. viii. 11. "But if the Spirit of him, that raiied up Jefus from the dead, dwell in you; he that raifed up Chrift from the dead, fhall alfo quicken your mortal bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you" But caring chiefly for the body, we lofe the f ul and the body too, Matth. x. 39. "He that findeth his life fhall lofe it." And there is no compenfating of this lofs.

USE. How far are the most part of men from this duly divided concern ! Alas ! does not the body get the double portion of defires, cares, and concern ; and is not the foul admitted only to the least part? For the quantity it gets more, and for the quality too; we being vigorous and lively in our concerns for the body, but careles and indifferent in those for the foul : which is the very reverse of the frame which grace puts the heart into.

Under the name of bread here is comprehended not only bread firifily fo called, but generally the good things of this life for the fupport of our bodies.

1. Neceffaries, without which life cannot be fuffained, viz food and raiment. For, as I formerly noticed, a man may be killed with thirft, and flarved by cold, though he had plenty of other things, 2 Tim. vi. 8. Thus the feripture uses the word bread, Eccl. xi. 1. " Cast thy bread upon the waters : for thou shalt find it after many days."

2. Conveniencies, which one cannot live comfortably without, Prov. xxx. 8. "Feed me with food convenient for me." God does not pen up his people to what is abfolutely neceffary for keeping in their life, but allows them for conveniency and delight, both as to defire and ufe. This varies according to the feveral flations in which men are placed in the world, that being abundance to one which would quite hamper another. And fo in this men are allowed to beg of God, fuch a portion of the good things of this life, as is agreeable to the condition which he has placed them in.

Now, all neceffaries and conveniencies of life are comprehended under bread : (1.) Becaufe bread is, generally fpcaking, the moft pecefibry fupport of life. (2.) The moft common and ordinary, the entertainment of the poor and of the rich, and what, by a fpecial providence fo ordering it, men are leaft apt to loath. II. I proceed to flew what is the import of this petition for bread. That I may the more diffinely handle this, I thall confider it in the feveral parts thereof, by thewing the import of the words, Give bread, Give us bread, Give us our bread, and Give us our daily bread.

First, I thall thew what is the import of these words, Give bread. Our Lord teaches all his people to come unto God, and fay, Our Father—give us bread. It imports,

1. That we are allowed to lay our temporal concerns and wants before the Lord in prayer, as well as our fpiritual concerns, Prov. iii. 6. "In all thy ways acknowledge him." The praying Christian is a trader with heaven, and he may trade there in fmall things as well as in great things; nay, he ought to do it. For the covenant comprehends the fmall things of this life, the bread and the water, If. xxxiii. 16. diferention in managing of his affairs, Pfal. cxii. 5.; and the fuccefs of his management, Pfal. i. 3.; as well as the great things of eternal falvation, 1 Tim. iv. 8. And much of God may be feen in anfwers of prayers of that kind. Gen. xxxiii. 10.

2. That men depend entirely on heaven for the means and comforts of life. Our country in this world is nourifhed by the King's country; and if the communication betwint them were flopt, we would all flarve, Hof. ii. 21. 22. He is the Creator, Preferver, and Proprietor of all the creatures, and their Provifor. There are fome who, having nothing of their own, do live by hanging on about the hands of their friends. And that is the cafe of all men with respect to God, the great Friend of the creatures.

3. That we need bread. While we are in this world, we will need it. The clay tabernacle in its prefent flate. We an old ratched houfe is fill needing reparation : but in a little time we will need no more. Death puts an end to all thefe needs; and after the refurrection our bodies will be fupported without thefe things which are now neceflary.

4. That it is God who giveth us bread. The necellaries and conveniencies of life are diffributed by his hand, Pfal. cxlv. 16. Though you get your bread by your labour, you have it from God; for it is God that gives fuccels to your labours. Though others give it you of their own, it is from God; for it is he that opens their hearts to beflow it on you, Deut. viii. 17. 18. Neither your induffry nor interest can procure it without him.

Lafly, That our bread is God's free gift of mercy, without any merit of ours, Gen. xxxii. to. The leaft rag for our clothing, crumb for our food, breathing in God's sir, &cc. is what we deferve not at the hand of God, Luke xvii. 10. In Adam we forfeited our right to God's creatures, Gen. ii. 17.; and by that fin of breaking the first covenant, and many other rebellions against the Sovereign God, we have deferved to be stript of all our comforts : So that all that we get is God's free undeferved gift.

Queft. What needs one pray for bread, when he has it already? He that has it in his houfe, yea, upon his table, has good reason to pray for it; because,

I. Without the efficacy of the divine appointment, it cannot be bread to us, it cannot nourifh us, Matth. iv. 4. Without that our bread will not ftrengthen us, more than afhes, if God break the ftay and ftaff of it, If. iii. I.

2. Without God's good-will and favour with it, there is a curfe in it, Mal. ii. 2. And curfed bread makes but a fad meal.

Secondly, What is the import of these words, Give us bread? It imports,

1. That we may and ought to look to the Lord, not only for our own provision, but for the provision of our families, 1 Pet. v. 7. He that has laid it on mafters of families to provide for their families, will make them welcome to pray for their provision. They who have had nothing to provide them with, have got them provided this way: and those who have had enough for them, little or nothing of it has come to their hand, when God has feen it meet to make it fo.

2. That we fhould be concerned for others alfo, that they may have bread as well as we. Good men are merciful men, and will give to others that need, and much more with them well, Jam. ii. 15. 16. We are all of one common nature, which requires this fympathy; and it well becomes those who are full to remember those who are hungry.

Thirdly, What is the import of thefe words, Give us our bread? There are three things imported in it, as defired by us.

1. That whatever portion of the good things of this life be belowed on us, we may have a right to them, and fo may look on them as our own bread.

(1.) A covenant-right to them, through Jefus Chrift, by whom the loft right to the creatures is reflored to believers, I Cor. iii. 22. For if one be in Chrift, he enjoys his bread by by a new tenor, the tenor of the covenant, If. xxxiii. 16. And that makes dry bread fweet.

(2.) A civil right to them, that it be fuch bread as we come lawfully by; that it be our own, not another's coming to us in an unjuft way, 2 Theff. iii. 12. One had better want, than be fuftained on the gain of injuffice; for upon that one can never expect God's bleffing.

(2.) That God would blefs our lawful endeavours for bread. That is a promife of the covenant; and what God has promifed we may pray for, Pfal. cxxviii. 2. "Thou fhalt eat the labour of thine hands." One muft not think to get his bread by praying for it, with folded hands, Prov. x. 4. "He becometh poor that dealeth with a flack hand." Nor is working for it without prayer to God, the way to obtain it, Hag. i. 6. 9. But God's bleffing and man's induftry muft go hand in hand towards it.

3. That our bread thus brought to our hands may be bleffed of God to us, I Tim. iv. 4. 5. As an ingenuous child loves rather to take his bread out of his father's hand, than to take it to himfelf; fo the bread which is ours, as aforefaid, the children of God do by prayer put again into God's hand, that they may receive it out of his hand again with his bleffing. Lord, do thou give us our bread.

Fourthly, What is the import of praying for daily bread? It imports,

1. That we are to confine our defires of the good things of this life to a competency, and not extend them to wealth and riches, Prov. xxx. 8. "Give me neither poverty nor riches." We are to pray for daily, not weekly and yearly bread. Riches are a fnare to our corrupt hearts, Matth. xix. 23.; and they who are anxious for them, court their own harm, 1 Tim. vii. 9. If God lay them to your hand, as he has done to fome of his own, ye are to be thankful for them; but beware the heart go not out after them, but ufe them for the honour and fervice of God.

2. That we are to be content to live from hand to meuth, having daily bread, without anxiety for the time to come, Matth. vi. 34. Surely we have enough, if God provide for every day as it comes.

Fifthly, What is the import of praying, Give us this day our daily bread? It is not, Give us to-morrow our daily bread. It teaches us,

1. That we are not to be anxious about to-morrow's provision, Matth. vi. 34.

2. That

2. That God will have us every day coming to him for the fupply of our needs. He likes to have his people about his hand; and therefore never furnishes them fo one day, but they need to come again another day.

2. That we are not fure of to-morrow. Every day may be our laft. "For what is our life? It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away," Jam. iv. 14. We may die this day, and need no more. So that there is no occasion for praying for any more than provision fuitable to the day when it comes.

I conclude this fubject with a few inferences.

Inf. 1. Let us be thankful to God for what we enjoy of the good things of this life. We owe it all to him; and therefore let us take all we have as out of his hand, whatever we do for it : for it is at his charges we live. Let us then be thankful to God, and own ourfelves debtors to him, for all our mercies; for he it is that giveth rain and fruitful feafons. That there is food for man and beaft among us, is the effect of his free bounty. And it is owing to the fame caufe that we have peace to enjoy the fruit of our labours. and that God has not put it in the hands of enemies to eat it up. Let us admire his bounty to a finful generation; and fee and notice with wonder, how he does good to the unthankful and unholy, and how firifly he observes his promife, Gen. viii. ult. "While the earth remaineth, feedtime and harvelt, and cold and heat, and fummer and winter, and day and night, shall not cease." That year the general deluge happened, there was no feed-time nor harveft; but fince they have never failed.

2. Let us look to God, and depend by faith on him for future mercies; and particularly look to him, for his bleffing on the winter and fpring feafon, on which fo much depends with us. Whatever firait he may be pleafed to bring, let us accept it humbly off his hand, fince he owes us nothing, and may do with his own what he will. Look to him for removing of it, and patiently wait his time. Pray for his Liefling on your fubftance, and on the work of your hands. You fee the petition is put in your mouths for it every day. And therefore being offered through Chrift, it will be accepted.

3. Let us be content with the measure he fees meet for us. Though others may have more than we, we have more than we can crave as debt; and it becomes us not to pretend tend to teach the Ruler of the world, to whom he should give more, and to whom lefs, Matth. xx. 15.

4. Let us make God our friend through the mediation of his Son, Acts xii. 20. Repent, and turn from your fins; and reform yourfelves and families. Sin is the only makebate betwixt God and us: put that away, fince ye depend entirely on him for all you have. It is a ftrange thing to be provoking him, and grieving his Spirit, by a courfe of fin, on whom we depend for all things.

5. Beware of abufing God's good creatures to gluttony, drunkennefs, fenfuality, and luxury. Be not like the horfe that kicks againft him that feeds him : and fight not againft the Lord with the benefits he puts in your hands. Many to whom the Lord has given plenty of wordly good things, look on themfelves as entitled to a greater liberty than others : but know, that the more ye have, ye are the more in God's debt; and as your receipts are more than others, your reckoning will be deeper.

6. Let us ferve God joyfully with what he gives us. Let not men take God's gifts, and beflow them on their lufts, as those who use their worldly good things to the difhonour of the name of God, and the feeding of their pride, fenfuality, and other brutal passions. Sobriety becomes us; and as our Lord has flinted us to ask no more than a day's provision, let us use what he gives for every day foberly, with thankfulnes; and improve it to his honour, in doing his will.

7. Let us not be anxious about provision for this life, nor go out of the road of duty or righteoufnels to get it. For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulnels thereof; and they that keep his way, he will fee to their provision. Let us be diligent in our feveral callings to maintain ourfelves in an honeft way, without anxious folicitude and carking cares about the event; but leave the fuccefs to God, taking thankfully whatever he fends, and craving his bleffing upon it.

8. Laftly, Let us from the fame God, through Jefus Chrift, look for eternal life, and the means leading thereto. Be concerned for your fouls, and for the bread of life to there's Little bread will ferve us till we will need no more. Many of us have eaten most of our bread already, and lefs may ferve us than we are aware of. Our fouls must have food too, and live for ever; therefore be especially concerned for them.

VOL. III.

THE

THE FIFTH PETITION,

Matth. vi. 12.—And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.

THIS petition concerns our fouls, as the former did our bodies, and relates to the pardon of fin, which we are here taught to pray for.

In difcourfing from this fubject, I fhall confider,

I. The order of this petition, and the connection of it.

II. The petition itfelf.

III. Deduce fome inferences.

I. I fhall confider the order of this petition, and the connection of it. Concerning the order of it, two things may be obferved.

1. That it follows the petition for daily bread. Not that bread is comparable, far lefs preferable to pardon; but that the time of this life is the feafon of pardon, Heb. ix. 27. Now or never we must be pardoned. When we have no more ado with bread, death taking away the necessfity of it, we have no more ado with pardon.

2. That it is the first of the petitions for spiritual bleffings. Because pardon of fin is a leading benefit, and while fin remains unpardoned, the communication betwixt God and the finner is stopped, Amos iii. 2. "Can two walk together, except they be agreed?" While God has a controversy with the finner, he pursues it in greater or leffer measure, Pfal. lxvi. 18. And the removal of guilt is the opening of the spring of spiritual bleffings, to run abundantly; it is the taking the stone off the mouth of the well.

As to the connection, this petition is knit to the former

by

by the particle " and, Give us this day," &c. " And forgive us," &c.; which speaks this, that, in giving of bread without forgiving of fin, there is death in the pot, Pfal. iv. 6. & xvii. 14. There can be little fap or fweet in the bread of the condemned, though, alas ! many eat it cheerfully. Like the rich man, Luke xii. they eat, they drink joyfully, while the fword of juffice hangs over their head by a hair. It is becaufe they fee it not. The looks of an angry Judge, the frowns of a Father, in giving the bread to us, will make it very faplefs, to those who difcern them. A pardon is the beft feafoning to any meal, Eccl. ix. 7. Compare Acts ii. 37. 46.

II. Let us confider the petition itfelf, wherein we pray, " That God, for Chrift's fake, would freely pardon all our fins; which we are the rather encouraged to ask, because by his grace we are enabled from the heart to forgive others." In which we may fpeak of two things.

1. The thing petitioned.

2. The argument backing it.

FIRST, Let us confider the petition itself, Forgive us our debts. This is the petition, strictly speaking. Upon which I am to inquire,

1. What is meant by debts.

2. What is meant by our debts.

3. Who are meant by us.

4. What is meant by forgiveness.

5. What is the import of this petition.

Firft, What is meant by debts? Sins are the debts here prayed to be forgiven, Luke xi. 4.; the worft debts in the world.

1. Why is fin called a debt? Not becaufe it is a non-payment of God's dues, a non-performance of duty, as fome fay; thefe things anfwer not the notion of debt : far lefs becaufe we owe it to God. But fin is called debt, becaufe it is a taking away from God fomething for which we owe him an equivalent, an as-good, Pfal. lxix. 4. " Then I reftored that which I took not away." This notion is the common notion of debts. Sin is a robbing God of his honour, and an owing him a reparation.

So in fin as a debt four things are to be confidered. (1.) The debtor, which is the finner. Every finner is a debtor, owing more than he is able to pay. (2.) The creditor is God, at whofe mercy the finner lies. (3.) The valuable thing thing which the finner has got away from God for his own ufe, or rather abufe, is God's honour. (4.) The as-good which the finner owes on that account to God, is the reparation of God's honour.

2. What fort of a debt is fin?

(1.) It is a drowning debt, a debt fo great as no mortal is able to pay, Matth. xviii. 24. 25. And all mankind had died in it, if a cautioner able to pay it had not been found, Pfal. lxxxix. 19.

2. It is a differentiating debt for the prefence of God. As an infolvent debtor has no will to come in his creditor's fight; fo the finner has no will to come into God's fight till he be brought, Matth. xviii. 24. This is the reafon why many, otherwife jovial and merry, when they come into God's prefence in duties, are quite heartlefs.

(3.) It is a debt that the finner is very ready to count down, Luke xvi. 6. As he is unable to pay, fo naturally he is unwilling to confefs it, and make fair count.

(4.) It is a debt that in the end will be fairly and exactly flated, and not the leaft article forgotten or mifcounted. The creditor has given his oath upon it, Amos viii. 7. " The Lord hath fworn by the excellency of Jacob, Surely, I will never forget any of their works." And the debtor, nill he will he, fhall be convinced of the juftnefs of the accounts.

(5.) It is a debt that muft be paid one way or other. The debtor has but three choices, Pay, Find a cautioner, or Go to prifon, Matth. v. 25. None can pay, few will employ the cautioner, therefore muft go to prifon.

(6.) It is a growing debt. While it is not taken courfe with, the intereft runs on, and the great fum to-day becomes greater to-morrow, Rom. ii. 5.

Lafly, When it is purfued, it is purfued on the debtor's expence. The purfuit is at the finner's coft, and he is made to bear the weight of it.

Secondly, What is meant by our debts, or fins? All fins which we are any manner of way chargeable with, and accountable for, before the Lord. Now, fin becomes ours four ways.

1. By imputation. So Adam's fin is our fin, Rom. v. 19. and therefore must be pardoned to us, otherwise we will be ruined by it, as the heir is ruined by his father's debt.

2. By inhefion in us: So the fin of our nature conveyed to us from Adam, confifting in a bent to evil, and backwardnefs to good, is our fin as fubjected in us, Pfal. li. 5. This will will ruin us allo, if it be not forgiven as to the guilt of it; for "the wages of fin is death," Rom. vi. 23.

3. By perfonal omiffion or commiffion, Jer. xvi. 10. Thus all our omiffion of duties, and commiffion of fins, are our fins, which we abfolutely need to be forgiven, as treafon perfonally done by us againft the King of heaven.

4. By acceffion any manner of way to the fins of others, I Tim. v. 22. Thus other men's fins, which we become acceffory to by commanding, counfelling, approving, and the like, become our fins, and involve us in guilt, which we need to be forgiven.

Thirdly, Who are meant by us, for whom forgiveness is asked?

1. Ourfelves; for every man is, in the first place, to be concerned for his own pardon. Yet not ourselves only,

2. But others also; not only those who are already of God's family, but all forts of men living, I Tim. ii. I.; those only excepted who have finned the fin unto death, I John v. 16. The faints are daily orators at the throne of grace, for the rest of the world, and are concerned for pardon to those who are not concerned for it to themselves. Thus our Lord cass the copy, Luke xxiii. 34. "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." And Stephen the first martyr followed it, Acts vii. 60. "Lord, lay not this fin to their charge."

Fourthly, What is meant by forgiveness or pardon? It is the removal of guilt, which is an obligation to punishment. Guilt is twofold; the guilt of eternal wrath, and the guilt of temporary fatherly anger. Guilt is removed two ways, formally and declaratively. Pardon is threefold.

I. Pardon of the guilt of eternal wrath. Thus every foul, upon its first closing with Jefus Christ in the gospel, is pardoned, Rom. v. 1. The condemning fentence of the law, binding them over to vindictive justice, to go to the prison of hell, and lie there till they have paid the utmost farthing of their own debt, is removed, Rom. viii. 1. "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jefus."

2. Pardon of the guilt of temporary firokes and fatherly anger, 2 Kings xxiv. 4. The law of grace fays, "If his children forfake my law, and walk not in my judgments; if they break my ftatutes, and keep not my commandments: then will I vifit their tranfgrefilon with the rod, and their iniquity with ftripes. Neverthelefs, my loving-kindnefs will I not utterly take from him, nor fuffer my faithfulnefs to fail," Pfal. lxxxix. 30.—33. So the children of God, who are beyond the reach of eternal wrath, are oft-times liable to temporary fatherly wrath, which they need a pardon for, as the child needs the father's pardon. And upon their frefh application to the Lord Jefus Chrift, they obtain it.

3. A declarative pardon, which is the pardon manifefted to the foul, a fenfe of pardon, Luke vii. 47. 48. "Wherefore I fay unto thee, Her fins, which are many, are forgiven; for the loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the fame loveth little. And he faid unto her, Thy fins are forgiven." She was a pardoned finner before, for that is evident from her love to Chrift; but now the pardon is intimated to her. The debt is not only forgiven, but the debtor gets the difcharge of it.

This threefold pardon is here meant, and each of them is given for Christ's fake, and we obtain them by faith apprehending his obedience and death, Eph. i. 6. 7. Therefore the fea of glass is represented as betwixt the throne and the elders, Rev. iv. 6. See Zech. xiii. 1.

Fifthly, Let us confider the import of this petition. This we take up in these three things.

1. A confeffing of debt. The faints own themfelves and all others God's debtors, Dan. ix. 5. "We have finned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts, and from thy judgments." They will not deny the debt, nor mince it. They fee that God is fpoiled of his honour by themfelves and others, and that they are bound to a reparation. They confefs their folly with fhame and forrow.

2. A pleading poverty, an utter inability to pay the debt, Pfal. cxxx. 3. 4. " If thou, Lord, fhouldft mark iniquities, O Lord, who fhall ftand? But there is forgivenefs with thee, that thou mayft be feared." Who among all the fons of Adam is able to repair God's honour taken away by fin? There is an infinite evil in the leaft fin, which no creature is able to expiate, far lefs Adam's broken family, where the party has nothing to pay, whether he be owing ten talents or ten thoufand.

3. A defire of free forgivenels for Chrift's fake, Dan. ix. 17. "Now, therefore, O our God, hear the prayer of thy fervant, and his fupplications, and caufe thy face to fhine upon thy fanctuary that is defolate, for the Lord's fake." What can the debtor do, who is not able to pay? He muft plead plead to be forgiven, or he is a ruined man. And it is to free forgivenefs that the faints do all turn, Pfal. cxxx. 3. 4. forecited. And it is a forgiving of the debt to us, though Chrift merited it; for we can do nothing to procure it to ourfelves. Our pardon indeed flood dear to Chrift, but it cofts us nothing, Rom. iii. 24. "We are justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Jefus Chrift."

Now, the pardon which the faints are taught here to defire daily, is to be confidered agreeably to the flate of the parties for whom it is defired.

1. Pardon of the guilt of eternal wrath, is defired for those who are yet out of Christ, and in an unjustified ftate. Not for the faints themselves, who being already justified can never be more actually liable to eternal wrath, Rom. viii. 1. forecited. They are not under the law, but under grace, the threatenings of which extend no farther than rods, &c. Pfal. lxxxix. 30. &c. forecited. It is one thing, what a faint may pray for, apprehending himself liable to eternal wrath, and another what Christ bids him pray for.

2. Pardon of the guilt of temporal ftrokes, is defired for the faints themfelves. For under that guilt they may fall; and being duly confidered, it is dreadful, as comprehending all miferies confiftent with the love of God.

3. Declarative pardon is alfo defired for themfelves, that they may be delivered from doubts, and fears of eternal wrath, Pfal. iv. 6. "Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us."

SECONDLY, Let us confider the argument backing the petition, as we forgive our debtors. This is not put in our mouths, to move God to forgive us, but to move ourfelves to believe that our prayer shall be heard, and fo to encourage us.

Here I shall shew,

1. Who are meant by our debtors.

2. What is meant by forgiving them.

3. What is meant by our forgiving as we forgive.

4. What encouragement one can draw from his forgiving others, to hope that God will give the forgiveness defired.

First, Who are meant by our debtors? All fuch as have finned againft, or wronged us any manner of way, 1 Sam. ii. 25. For fin may reach both God and man at once; and in refpect of the injury done to us by the fin of others, they are our debtors, owing us a reparation of the injury, which many times they either cannot or will not do.

Secondly,

Secondly, What is meant by our forgiving them? It is our hearty forgiving them the injury done to us, (to forgive the injury against God is not in our power), entertaining no hatred or malice against them, but loving them with a love of good-will, heartily wifhing their good, and being ready to do them good, Matth. v. 44. 45. " But I fay unto you, Love your enemies, blefs them that curfe you, do good to them that hate you, pray for them that defpitefully use you, and perfecute you; that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven, for he maketh his fun to rife on the evil and on the good, and fendeth rain on the just and on the unjust." But it does not extend to a love of complacency and delight in them, in whom there appears no ground for that, either as men or as Chriftians, Pfal. xxvi. 4. " I have not fat with vain perfons," fays David, " neither will I go in with diffemblers," Thirdly, What is meant by forgiving as we forgive ?

1. It does not denote the defire of a perfect equality or likenefs betwixt God's forgiving and ours, for at beft ours is but lame, and is neither fo free nor full as we would defire of God. But the reality of our forgivenefs, that it is real and fincere, though imperfect (Matth xviii. ult.), for which we can appeal to God.

2. It denotes our forgiving to go before the forgiveness here afked of God for ourfelves, Luke xi. 4. " Forgive us our fins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us." And this a demonstrative proof, that the forgiveness the faints here afk for themfelves is only the pardon of the guilt of fatherly anger, and the manifestation of pardon, and not the pardon of the guilt of eternal wrath, which concerns their ftate. For till this laft be obtained, one cannot fincerely forgive others, Matth. xviii. 32. 33. " Then his Lord, after he had called him, faid unto him, O thou wicked fervant, I forgave thee all that debt, becaufe thou defiredft me : Shouldft not thou also have had compation on thy fellow-fervant, even as I had pity on thee ?" No man can fincerely forgive his brother, who does not fo love him; and none can love his brother, but he who loves God; and none loves God, but he who is forgiven of God, Luke vii. 47. " Her fins, which are many, are forgiven; for the loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the fame loveth little."

Fourthly, What encouragement can one draw from his forgiving others, to hope that God will give the forgiveness defired?

I. When

I. When we find that we, who are fuch evil and malignant creatures, fo hateful and ready to hate one another, are by the power of God's grace enabled to forgive thofe who have injured us, we have ground to hope that the moft gracious God will forgive the injury against himfelf, even to those who are under the guilt of eternal wrath, it being easier for him to forgive a talent, than for us to forgive a mite.

2. From our difposition to forgive, we may confirm our confidence in God as our God, and therefore firmly believe that our feet shall be washed, where our whole body has been washed before.

I fhall conclude with fome inferences.

Inf. I. Beware of fin, as ye would be of contracting a debt which ye are unable to pay; and make fure your intereft in the great Cautioner in time, left ye be arrefted ere ye are aware.

2. See your debts, and mourn over them, and apply to the blood of Chrift for the pardon of them all, your imputed, your inherent, and your actual fins.

3. Pretend not to pay your debt by your good hearts, works, mourning, repentance, &c. but betake yourfelves to free grace for forgiveness. If ever ye obtain pardon, it will be in the way of free grace.

4. An unforgiving, irreconcileable difpofition, and revengeful fpirit, unfits men for praying. Forgive, if ye would be forgiven. And fo it unfits for other duties, and particularly for the Lord's fupper, the feal of forgivenes.

Lafily, Come to God through Chrift for pardon. He is a forgiving God. Why does he teach us to pray for pardon to ourfelves and others, but that there is a fulnels of mercy for pardon with him?

VOL. III.

3 M

THE

THE SIXTH PETITION.

Matth. vi. 13,—And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.

HIS is the fecond of those petitions which concern our fouls, and it relates to temptation, for warding off that great evil, as the former for the enjoyment of a great good, the pardon of fin. Thus all that we are to feek for our perfonal, fpiritual good, is deliverance from fin, from the guilt of it, petition fifth; and from the power of it, petition fixth. For these being obtained; the foul is happy, fince nothing can hurt us but fin.

In difcouring from this fubject, I shall shew,

I. The connection of this petition with the former, in the particle and.

H. The petition itfelf.

III. Apply.

I. I am to fhew, the connection of this petition with the former, in the particle and. This teaches us, that,

1. No man can with a good conficience fue to God for pardon, nor will he obtain it, who is not refolved to fight againft fin in time coming, and to beware of it, Pfal, lxvi. 18. There are two things frightful to a penitent, the guilt of paft fin, and the power of fin for the future. He is equally concerned for juftification and fanctification. They who feparate them, act hypocritically, and therefore cannot come fpeed at the thrope of grace. They are unreafonable, in that they would be faved from death, and yet lie under the power of the difeafe. ease. Unchristian, in that they would make Christ the minister of fin, and his pardon a sconce for a sinful life.

2. A pardoned finner is not paft danger. He is in a fickly country; and though he be recovered he is in danger of a relapfe. He is ftill in the field of battle; and though he is cured of one wound, he will be fair to get another, if the Lord do not fhield him. Therefore he is to pray, Forgive our debts; And lead us not into temptation, &c. Nay, Satan will be most apt to bait the pardoned finner, Acts xin. 8.

II. Let us confider the petition itfelf, in which we pray, "That God would either keep us from being tempted to fin, " or fupport and deliver us when we are tempted." It confits of two parts.

I. The first is for preventing grace, Lead us not into temptation.

II. The fecond is for affifting grace, But deliver us from evil.

The FIRST is for preventing grace, Lead us not into temptation.

Here I am to fhew,

I. What is meant by temptation.

2. What by leading us into temptation.

3. What is the import of this part of the petition.

FIRST, What is meant by temptation? In general, it is a trial made on a man to fee what is in him, and what he will do; and fo the matter it is defigned to bring forth may be good as well as evil. Thus "God did tempt Abraham *," Gen.

* The author, in his manufcript treatife on Genefis, of which feveral extracts have been already given, thus renders and comments on thefe words: " The God himfelf ; he tried, Abraham ; i. e. the true God, and no other, the God who had made him the promife of Ifaac, and fulfilled it, who had promifed to establish the covenant with him, and had declared, that in him only, Abraham (hould be called a feed; even he tried Abraham, and tried him exquifitely, by calling him to facrifice, that his fon, thereby difcovering him, and, as it were, opening him out like a Lanner difplayed to public view, whereby his most firm faith in God, and absolute refignation unto him, were laid open to the view of all, to whole knowledge this his trial might at any time come. The word by which the trial is expressed, doth never, io far as I have obferved, fignity to entice unto fin. Neither was the thing fin which Abraham was by the trial carried to the very point of accomplifning of; fince he had thereto the call of God, who was abfolute Lord of the life of Ifaac, as of all other men; and might veft whom he would with authority take it away, as he has 3 M 2 vefted

Gen. xxii. \mathbf{r} . But ordinarily it is taken in an evil fenfe; and fo it is here meant of temptation to fin, which is the plying of a man with fome engine or other to draw him into fin. So in temptation four things are to be confidered.

1. The party tempted, or liable to temptation.

2. The parties tempting, the black inftruments of temptation.

3. The bait wherewith the hook of temptation is bufked.

4. The mifchievous defign.

First, The party tempted, or liable to temptation, viz. ourfelves and others, who live in this world of pits and fnares, Cant. iv. 8. Those who are in the upper house are beyond the reach of temptation; no hiffing terpent is there; they are not within bow shot of Satan. But here he rangeth up and down, I Pet. v. 8. here he has the length of his chain. Adam vefted magistrates in other cafes. But the matter was fo fufpicious. like, that the infinitely holy Author of the trial is, by the facred penman, indicated in the ftrongeft terms, for to cut off all fuspicion of delution in the cafe. He tells us, it was the GOD, is e. the true God; and that word is in effect doubled, q. d. the true God, even the true God. And after all there is an emphatical flop after it, the GOD; he, &c. So that, with good reafon, the force of that term is, with Junius and Tremellius, thus expressed, GOD himself, to the exclusion of all other. Moreover, that term looks backward, q. d. the fame who had made fo great promifes with reference to Ifaac; all which were hereby threatened to be quite overthrown and buried in oblivion. The word, he tried, is also emphatically pointed to fhew it to have been a most exquisite trial, far surpating all that Abraham had met with before. Niffah, he tried. It is of the form Pihei, and doth not clearly appear to be used in Kal at all. It notes an attempt, or effay, as David had not tried, viz. to go with Saul's armour, 1 Sam. xvii. 39.; whether more full; as God tried Ifrael, Jud. iii. 1.; and the Queen of Sheba did Solomon, 1 Kings x. 1.; or more flight, as the delicate woman had not tried the fole of her foot, to fet it on the earth, Deut. xxviii. 56.; made by fome means, as by the nations, Jud. iii. 1.; by hard questions, I Kings X. I.; for difcovering and taying open the object to view, as God tried the people, whether they would go in his law or not, Exod. xvi. 4.; and Hezekiah, for to know all in bis beart, 2 Chron. xxxii. 31.; even as a banner displayed is let forth to view, for it is akin to Naja, to lift up, and to Nafas; whence Nes, a banner or ftandard. It differs from Bahban, to prove, as an action incomplete from itfelf as completed : Niffab, importing only the difcovering or laying open of the object; Babban, not only that, but alfo the judgment formed upon the difcovery made. Hence, Plal. xcv. 9. Your fathers tried me : they proved me, &c. From all which, the formal notion of Niffab appears to be to Srv."

Adam in paradife was tempted *, and the fecond Adam too; the one able to have flood, the other one who could not fall. What wonder then that he attack us, in whom he has bofom friends!

Secondly,

* The temptation and feduction of our first parents is justly con-. fidered as the devil's mafler-piece, and a most glaring demonstration of that infernal fpirit's implacable malice and defperate hatred against God and his innocent creatures. It was at the fame time attended with the most interesting confequences to the guilty pair, and their defcendants. It may not therefore be improper to give here feveral particulars relating to this remarkable event, felected from the author's notes on part of the fecond and third chapters of Genefis. As the effay on this book was written posterior to this Illustration, and as thefe remarks contain many firiking and important things concerning the grand temptation, and the effects thereof, it was judged expedient to infert them here, though not the most proper place, rather than omit them altogether, as they were not adverted to when the difcourfes on the fall of our first parents, and on the first fin in particular, vol.4. were printing. And it is prefumed, their getting a place in this work will not only be a valuable addition to it, but of no fmall advantage to the reader, as the extracts undoubtedly contain feveral obfervations new and uncommon, and which appear to have escaped the notice of former commentators, all tending to fhew the evil and horrid nature of fin, and the riches of fovereign grace in the falvation of ruined man, difcovered to him immediately after his fatal transgreffion; as well as they afford no mean specimen of the author's learning and fkill in facred criticifin.

" Gen. ii. 25. Now they two were naked. Here begins the hiftory of the fall of man; and this fhould have been the beginning of the third chapter. Though the division into verses is of divine authority, the division into chapters is not fo. --- The man, and bis wife. They were naked, not only in prefence of one another, but feparately wherever they were .- But they would not have been afbamed of themfelves, notwithstanding of their nakedness. The manner of expresfion bears, that fo it was during the happy flate they were in, but that it lafted not, that was foon over, and now is gone. The diffinctive in thefe words is emphatical; q. d. But they would NOT, have, &c. i. e. they would not at all, in the leaft, have been, &c. Bofch is to be ashamed. If, therefore, it were used in Pib. it would be to shame, act. as the root in Kal is neuter. Here it is in Hithp. the relative of Pib. and therefore fignifies formally to fhame one's felf. It is no where elfe ufed in this form, which is here purpofely cholen, not only to intimate that our fhame arifeth from a certain fecret motion within our own breafts, but alfo, and chiefly, in opposition to Satan's endeavouring to flame them, on the account of their nakednefs, which will appear by the fequel.

Gen. iii. 1. And the ferpent, was fubtil, from every, wild beaft of the field; which Jebovah God had made: i. e. And the old lerpent the devil, was fubtil, nicely obferving, and artfuliy improving, what might make for his mitchievous defign against mankind; and in his attack he argued fubtilly, from the flate and cafe of the wild beafts; every Secondly, The parties tempting, the black inftruments of temptation.

1. The grand tempter is the devil, Matth. iv. 3. He was an angel of light, but is now turned to a tempting devil. An apoftate every one of which he observed to have been made covered, none of them naked, though not of an erect poflure, as man was; and withal that they were left to range up and down in the field, at their pleafure. So Satan pitching upon the cafe of the wild beafts, as the great engine for the ruin of mankind, to be made effectual for that purpofe, by a comparison inftituted, with hellish fubtility, between it and the cafe of our first parents, found in it a double topic, which he improved to the actual ruining of them, and of all their pofferity in their loins. The first of these was the nakedne/s of our first parents, while the wild beasts were all covered, and created fo. Their nakedness, he would perfuade them, was fhameful and indecent; and that the wild beafts were, in that respect, in better cale than they. This was the first temptation, as Mofes shews us in these words, making up the sirit hemistich of this verse. And this is the plain literal fense of the words, as thus pointed. Compare Job XXXV. 11. Teaching us, from beafts of earth? and from flying thing of the heavens, &c.; with which compare chap. xii. 7. Come now afk thou beafts, and it (i, e. every one of them) will teach thee: and flying thing of the heavens; and it will tell to thee. Accordingly the context doth not obfcurely intimate the nakednefs of our first parents to have been the first topic Satan made use of in his attack on them. God himself afles Adam, ver. 11. Who told him of his nakednes? which is no obfcure indication, that the devil told them of it. Mofes takes notice, ver. 7. that, after eating of the forbidden fruit, their eyes were opened, and they knew they were naked, really needing clothes to hide their thame, which Satan would have perfuaded them they were in need of before, and which they could not fee while they flood in their integrity, there being really no fuch thing as the tempter alledged. Thus the connection is natural : The two were naked. ---- And the ferpent, was fubtil from the wild beafts of the field, to improve their cafe againit the naked pair. This is confirmed from the words used by the infpired penman. He tells, chap. ii. ult. They two were Gnarummim (naked), and here, The ferpent was Gnarum (fubtil). Thus also, the last claufe, which Jebovah God had made, affords a more efficacious fense than otherwile, viz. being underftood, not of God's making them fimply, but of making them covered. And hereunto fitly agrees the Lord's clothing the finful naked pair, with the fkins of beafts; which was a humbling memorial to them, of the fpring of their ruin. Nahhasch, the ferpent. Whether it is from the verb Nabbafch, or the verb is from it, is all a cafe in this point. But the verb does import, fubtil obfervation, learning by obfervation; particularly it is used of obferving of omens, chap XXX. 27. & Aliv. 45. 2 Kings xxi. 6. And fince Nabhalch is not the only name of the ferpent in Hebrew, it would feem that primarily and originally it was the name of the devil, the old ferpent, given him from this fatal event, and communicated to that animal, as having been the influment apoftate from God, for whom there is no hope; and being God's irreconcileable enemy, goes about withdrawing men from their allegiance to their fovereign Lord. He is an expert tempter; and has now had the experience of feveral ftrument of the devil in this mischief. Gnarum, fubtil; for the word is indifferent, either to good, as Prov. xii. 16. 23. or evil, as Job. v. 12. Now, it is true the Hebrew forms its comparative phrafes, by the prepofition from, which in that cafe may be rendered above, as Judg. xi. 25. Good good, [art] thou; from (i. e. above) Balak. i. e. [Art] thou better, better; than Balak? So Prov. viii. 11. Hag. ii. 9. Eccl. iv. 9. & vii. 1. 2. 3. 5. 8. If. liv. 1. Pfal. cxviii. S. 9. Prov. xxv. 7. But the comparative fense cannot be admitted here. For, (1.) The reading offered is the primary and literal one, therefore not without necessity to give place to another. (2.) The comparative phrase is elliptical. And no ellipsi is to be admitted without necessity neither. (3.) The word from all, doth not immediately relate to the adjective fubtil, but to the fubftantive verb was, as the principal word of the part referred to : fo the confiruction is not, The ferpent was fubtil; [fubtil] from, &c. but, The ferpent, was fubtil; [he was fo] from, &c. If the comparative phrase had been defigned, I conceive the adjective would have been fet before the fubstantive verb; that fo it might have related immediately to the word from-all : thus, The ferpent, fubtil was; from, &c. i. e. fabtil from, that is, more fubtil than. And in all the above-cited texts, bearing the comparative phrase, the adjective is so posted; being either the only, or the first, word of the claufe, or part of the claufe, in which it is found : by which fituation it plainly relates to the word that hath the preposition .---- And he faid unto the woman'. then, how bath God faid. Ye fhall not eat of all, tree of the garden ? The phrafe not all is used for not any. Thus the woman underftood it, as appears from the following verie. And io Satan was a liar, in the frietest fense, from the beginning. Here is the second topic Satan made use of, viz. the restraint our first parents were laid, under in respect of their food, while the wild beafts were at liberty in that point. In what words he proposed this fecond temptation, is here recorded; though his fpeech on the first is not. But that he did speak on this mischievous defign, and unto the woman too, before he uttered the words here recorded, the text itfelf doth plainly intimate. The words Then how, q. d. More than that, in the next place, thew that there was a foregoing speech he had to her. Accordingly the text faith, He faid, unto the woman', q. d. unto the woman unto the woman; i.e. he faid unto the woman words agreeable to the narration foregoing, and he faid unto the woman the words following. Accordingly the word He-fuid, is by the diffinctive fitted to be conftructed after this manner. Comp. 2 Sam. xi. 8. And faid David, to Uriah'; Go down to thy house. And it is generally owned, that Aph ki, the first words of the devil which are here recorded, is never put in the beginning of a fpeech ; and that fome words of the tempter did go before thefe. I conceive, then, the holy text itfelf intimates to us, that the devil in the ferpent fpoke to the woman to this purpofe. S. WLat ral thousand years in the hellish trade. He has his devices for entrapping of poor mortals, and knows how to fuit his temptations, as they may best take.

2. Men are tempters to one another. Satan fo prevails with them,

"What can be the defign of God in this! How is it, that when "every wild beaft of the field hath a covering put upon it by his own hand, though they do withal look downward; yet ye are naked, and that in an erect pofture, in the which there is a fhameful indecency, that ye would manifeftly fee if your eyes were opened: Then, in the next place, How is it, that, whereas they are at full liberty, in the open fields, ranging up and down at their pleafure, eating freely whatever is before them, ye are under a notable re*flraint* as to your food, that ye may not eat of any tree of the gar-" den?" Thus food and raiment were early fnares to mankind.

Ver. 2. And the woman faid, who the ferpent: Of the fruit of trees of the garden, we may eat. Thus the repels this temptation, directly contradicting what Satan advanced concerning the reftraint laid on them as to their food: and the alfo had repelled the other, continuing unafbanned of her nakednefs.

Vcr. 3. But of the fruit of the tree which [is] in the midfl of the garden. This part of the woman's answer is elliptical: and the ellipfis is of that fort, which is caufed by horror arising from the fubject mentioned; q. d. But of the fruit of the tree which [is] in might of the garden! Supply, for the fenfe, we may not cat, of it its faid left ye die. The laft member of this verfe, by the pointing, refers to both the preceding; and that points us to the latter part of the words underftood, as the foregoing words, to the former part of them .- God bath faid, Te fhall not eat, of it; and fhall not touch on it: namely, the fruit of the forbidden tree. They were forbidden, not only to eat of it, but even to touch it at all, though never fo lightly. From these words, directed to a plurality of perfons, it appears, that God repeated, in the hearing of Adam and Eve together, the law concerning the forbidden fruit, together with the grant of the fruit of the reft of the trees of the garden; and confequently, that Eve had the revelation of the divine will and pleafure, in this matter, from the mouth of God himfelf. And the repetition of this law and grant, which were first given to Adam alone, chap. ii. 16. 17. feems to have been made at the folemnity of God's bringing in the woman unto the man : for it natively takes place, in connection with chap. i. 29 .--Left ye die. These words import no doubting, being the Lord's own words repeated by Eve.

Ver. 2. And the ferpent faid, anto the woman: 2e fhall not dying, die; i. e. 2e fhall not at all, die. Satan flatly contradicts the divine threatening; and that with an air of great confidence, for the ftop between thele two words is emphatic. That this is the fence of the phrafe, appears from Pfal. xlix. 8-7ths, He cannot redeeming redeem; i. e. He cannot at all, or by any means, redeem. The negative here doth primarily and directly affect but one of the verbs, as Exod v. 23. & xxxiv. 7. In the phrafe refpecting the certainty of the thing, it affects them both in conjunction equally, as Jer. xxxviii. 15. Will

30

them, as to act his part one against another. Sometimes they fet themselves to drive others into fin by force, Acts xxvi. 11.; fometimes gently to draw them into it, Gen. xxxix. 7. And Satan gets not only wicked men, but many times ye not, putting me to death put me to death, i. e. furely put me to death.

Ver. 5. But God he knoweth, viz. very well. Comp. the laft claufe of this verfe. Satan pretends to open up the mystery of the refiraint put upon man, as to the fruit of the forbidden tree. That in the day of your eating of it; then they shall be opened, [namely] your eyes: q. d. Your eyes are now that to the fhameful indecency of your nakednefs: but if once ye eat of that fruit, it will open your eyes, make you fo fharp-fighted, that ye fhall clearly fee the truth of what I fay. And therefore it is, ye are forbidden to meddle with it; that ye may still be kept in a mist. Thus Satan chains together the two temptations, ver 1. and fo makes an attack with both at once. And thus, from the beginning, he fported himfelf with his deceivings, the cheats put upon man, by him. ---- And ye shall be, as God, as God himfelf, appears from ver. 21.; whereas now ye are in fome refpect worfe than the wild beafts. Knowing, of good and evil; fingularly fkilful and expert in the matter. Thus the tempter promifeth, from the opening of their eyes by eating of the fruit, a vaft penetration as to good and ill. q. d. Not only thall ye know the particular, which I tee ye are now ignorant of, namely, the Jhameful indecency of your makednefs: but your knowledge will be univerfally improved, and that to a pitch.

Ver. 6. And the woman faw, that good was the tree for meat, and that lovely that [tree was] to the eyes: She faw it pleafant to the eyes, and her heart began to entertain a hankering after it. The demonftrative that is emphatic; and is here used to point out that fatal tree, to the minds of her posterity. An affection it put for a thing very much to be affected, the abstract for the concrete. The manner of expreflion, the course of words being precipitated, represents lively the infernal fire now flaming in the woman's breaft. And [that] the tree [was] defirable, for to afford wit; that is, to make them knowing of good and evil, ver. 5. fingularly skilful and expert in those matters. Thus the tempter was believed, and his lies received for truth. ____ And she took [fome] of its fruit, and ate [it]. Observe here the degrees of the woman's yielding to the temptation. (1.) Her mind and understanding went off by unbelief: she saw and judged the tree to be good for meat, though it had no word of divine appointment for that end, but on the contrary was forbidden as deadly. (2.) Her affection towards it rifeth, and the hankers after it, (3.) She is inflamed with the defire of it. (4.) She pulls it with her hand, and eats it with her mouth.—And fle gave alfo to ber hufband, with her, and be ate. Not, the gave to her hufband with her, as if he had been present with her, in her encounter with the serpent; no, Satan managed the matter more artfully : but, she gave to her husband, [to eat] with her, she plucked off so much of the truit, as ferved her to eat, for the time while fhe was at the tree; and not only fo, but the 3 N VOL. III. came times godly men, yoked to this his tempting work, as in the cafe of Peter, Matth. xvi. 22. 23.

3. The lufts of the heart are temptations to all, Jam. i. 14. This is the most dangerous enemy, as being within. These are came eating unto her hufband, and gave him alfo of it, to eat with her: and he ate with her accordingly. The word alfo is here emphatical; for in giving it to him, the deadly morfel was given to all mankind, the covenant being made with him, before the woman was in being, chap. ii. 16.

Ver. 7. Then were opened, the eyes of them both, viz. to fee what they never faw, nor could have feen, before, namely, the fbamefulnefs of their nakednefs: and fo were Satan's deceifful words, ver. 5. accomplified.——And they knew, they knew; i. e. they knew, alas' they knew to fad experience.——That nakedneffer (i. e. flark naked) they [were]. The abftract for the concrete in the fuperlative degree. They faw their nakednefs moft fnameful and indecent, and that they were greatly in need of a covering.

Ver. 8. And they heard, even the voice of Jehovah God, walking in the garden; i. e. the voice walking: for fo the words are by the pointing conftructed. This voice which they heard walking, was the WORD, the eternal Son of God, now entering upon the execution of the Mediatory office, and coming to difcover the eternal counfel concerning the falvation of finners.——At the wind of the day: i.e. in the cool of the day, when, the fun declining, there was a breeze of wind, which would quickly let the guilty couple fee the infufficiency of their fig-leaf coverings, for hiding their nakednefs. The Hebrew text mentions three parts of the artificial day, one of which is called the blowing of the day, Cant. ii. 17.; another, the warm of the day, Gen. xviii. 1.; a third, here, the wind of the day. The first is the morning, as appears from the text wherein it is mentioned : the fecond from morning to noon, and as long after it as before : the third from thence to the end of the day, otherwife called the fpace between the two evenings, Exod. xii. 6.; i. e. between three and fix of the clock in the afternoon ---- And the man hid himfelf, and his wife [hid herfelf], for fo the pointing flews the words to be constructed. The guilty couple, at hearing the found of the VOICE walking in the garden, ran afunder, he one way, she another, and hid themselves in different places, not together .--- From the face of Jebouah God : i. e. from the Schechinab, the visible fign of the divine prefence, the habitation of the divine majefty, from whence they were to have folemn communion with him.----In midft of tree of the garden. In fome groves or other, fome places where the trees were thick about them. The divine prefence, which before was the joy of their hearts, was now become a terror to them, being guilty.

[Extracts from the notes on ver. 9.— 14. must be omitted for want of rown].

Ver. 15. And I will fet enmity; between thee, and between this woman, viz: Eve, called the woman all along hitherto, and now ftanding as a criminal before the Judge, together with the ferpent. And this looks to the friendfine between that woman and the ferpent, in their joining together?

466

are Satan's truftees, which effectually lead us off the road, and rob us of our purity. They are deceitful lufts; and as the heart of man is furnished with them; it is deceitful above all things, Jer. xvii. 9.

Thirdly,

together, to the difhonour of God, and the ruin of mankind. q. d. And whereas you and this woman did confpire to violate my law, and to ruin this man, I will fettle an enmity, a lafting enmity, between you, for all time coming. And this is a promife of efficacious grace, to convert and bring the woman to repentance, fo that fhe fhould mortally hate, and feek the deltruction of, the power and works of the devil, in herfelf and others .---- And between thy feed, and between her feed : understand, I will fet ennity; therefore these words are in a claufe by themfelves, as being equally conftructed with the claufe concerning the woman, and the claufe concerning her feed: which fhews even the gracious woman's utter inability to convey that enmity into her feed, and an equal neceffity of efficacious grace for that end, to them, as well as to her. Hereby it was fecured, that this enmity fhould not die with that woman, but that it fhould be propagated from generation to generation; the Lord himfelf ftill fetting this enmity against the devil, into the heart of the woman's feed, to the end of the world. It is manifest, that the ferpent, the devil, can have no feed, but by imitation only: but the woman was capable of having a feed two ways, viz. (1.) By imitation. (2.) By generation of her body. Now, the woman's feed here mentioned is opposed to the ferpent's feed : and the ferpent's feed is the devil's angels, and wicked men, called his feed in refpect of their imitation of him. Therefore the woman's feed is believers in Chrift, called her feed, not in respect of natural generation, for the holy enmity, the enmity against the ferpent and his feed, goes not fo wide as that; but in respect of imitation, as followers of her faith : for the holy enmity is of equal latitude with that imitation; all and every one who become her feed, by believing as the did, being thereupon bleffed with true (evangelical) repentance, according to the promife of the Lord's fetting the enmity in the woman's feed. And in this respect Adam himself was one of her feed ; in tettimony whereof, he called her the mother of all living. Thus the believing Gentiles are Abraham's feed, to wit, by imitation, being followers of his faith. All this is agreeable to the fcripture phrafeology, in which one who is first in any thing, leading the way which others follow, is called the father of them, as chap. iv. 20. 21. --- That shall bruife away [to] thee the head ; i. e. bruife away thy head, as a thing that is bruifed into fo very minute particles, that it flies away, to be feen no more. That fhall do it, viz. the woman's feed : not, her feed by imitation, opposed to the ferpent's feed; but her feed by generation of her body, opposed ot the ferpent bimfelf. And that is the man Chrift Jefus only. He is the feed of the woman in a proper fense, yea, in the firstest propriety: and he only is fo; all other men being the feed of men. Believers only are the woman's feed, mentioned in the foregoing hemiftich, and not Chrift : for they alone are the feed in which the enmity is fet. Jefus Chrift being the speaker, ver. S. is the party who fets the enmity; not in the ferpent and his feed, for their enmity is not from God ; but in 3 N 2

Thirdly, The bait wherewith the hook of temptation is bufked. This is always fome feeming good, if it were but the fatisfying of a luft or a humour. In drawing or alluring temptations, the bait is fome feeming good to be got. Thus was in the woman, and her feed there mentioned: but he is none of those in whom the enmity is fet ; for the fetting of the enmity, being an introducing of a hatred, which was not before in the fubject, it cannot agree to him. But he is the woman's feed here meant, and he alone : for the bruifing away of the ferpent's head can agree to none other but him. The head of the ferpent, is that which holds together the venom, in its deadly, killing efficacy: and as long as it is hale, the ferpent can kill with his venom. Now, according to the apostle, 1 Cor. xv. 56. the firength of fin is the law. Wherefore the bruifing away of the ferpent's head, is the abolishing of the law as a covenant of works, armed with the curfe and threatening of eternal death, in respect of the woman and her feed by imitation; i. e. believers. This was a work competent to Chrift only: and he did it, by fatisfying the law fully, in their room and stead. Hereby he difarmed it of its curfe, and as it were grinded to powder the flones, on which the ministration of death was engraven, as to the woman and her believing feed: though as to others it ftill remains in its full force. Now, the ferpent's head being bruifed away, his venom is deftroyed, and he can kill no more; as when a cup is bruifed, the liquor in it perifheth. Sin is the ferpentine venom, most deadly, therefore metonymically called the head, Deut. xxxii. 33. Poifon of dragons, [is] their wine : and head of afps, cruel, i. e. venom of alps, (the containing being put for the contained), cruel venom, that is deadly and killing. So Jefus Chrift bruifing away the ferpent's head, by his full fatisfaction made to the law, fin is deftroyed; and fin being deftroyed, death is abolifhed; and death being abolished, the power of the devil is entirely ruined. The enemies mentioned in the first hemistich, are the ferpent, and his feed, on the one fide; the woman and her believing feed, on the other. An unequal match ! How then shall the victory fall to the fide of the latter? Why, an eminent One, the feed of the woman by generation of her body, as his brethren are by imitation of her faith, shall be more than match for the ferpent, and all his power, and quite deftroy it : fo thall the woman and her believing feed be more than conquerors through him. For he shall bruife away the serpent's head. Thus the woman's feed is taken collectively in the first hemistich, but here individually : and this agreeable to the phrafeology of the Holy Ghoft elfewhere, chap. xxvi 4. And I will make to increase even thy seed - - - - - : and they shall bles themfelves in thy feed ; all, nations of the earth. The former is meant of the collective body of Ifaac's feed, the latter of Chrift alone. So chap. xxii. 17. 18. & xxviii. 14. Thus, 2 Sam. vii. 12. I will fet up even thy feed, after thee ---- 13. That fhall build a houfe, for my name. That, to wit, Solomon, the feed of David by way of eminency. And thou fhalt bruife away [to] him the heel. i. e. bruife away his heel, that is, his body in the likeness of finful flesh, with which he trod on earth, liable to infirmities and death. Here is a vehement encounter, bruifing on both fides. But that feed of the woman bruifeth the

was the prefent world to Demas, and the thirty pieces of filver to Judas. In driving temptations, the bait is fome feeming good to be kept, by preventing of evil, as those fpoke of, Matth. xiii. 21. who, " when tribulation or perfecution arifeth the ferpent's head, where the bruife is deadly; the ferpent bruifeth not his head, but his beel, where the bruise is not deadly. This manner of expression looks to what goes before, touching the fin and punifhment of the old ferpent. And the heat of this battle was on the crofs. Upon that tree, that feed of the woman in an erect posture, and naked, (Heb. xii. 2.), bruised the head of the ferpent, and bruised it away, fully fatisfying the demands of the law, John xix. 30.; deftroying fin, Rom. vi. 6.; and abolishing death, 2 Tim. 1. 10.: while the ferpent, doomed to go upon the belly, and incapable to reach his bead, bruifed and bruifed away his beel, bringing his mortal body to the dust of death, to the darkness of the grave, never to be seen more, liable to death or infirmity, Rom. vi. 9. Here ends a closed fection. The woman believes the promife : 'the enmity, fet in by efficacious grace, commenceth : and the ferpent, in virtue of the curfe pronounced upon him, is hurried away from the place of this judgment. But the judgment is not yet over, though the judgment of death is, which the ferpent carries away upon him. [Compare the author's notes on the Marrow of Modern Divinity, edit. 1726, p. 41.]

[Extracts from the notes on ver. 16. 19. must also be omitted for want of room.]

Ver. 20. And the man called, the name of his wife, Eve. The name given her at first, was taken from man, she being called woman; or mannefs, chap. ii. 23.; for then Adam confidered her chiefly as a wife. as one made after his own likenefs. But the new name he gave her, after the awful folemnity before described, is taken from life; for then he eyed her chiefly as a mother, the mother of the living and lifegiving feed. And by his naming her fo, he declared his faith of the promife. And thus by the fame method, that God reconciled man to himfelf, he reconciled the man and his wife, namely, through that promifed feed .- When, the was, mother of all living, namely, of the life-giving feed and his brethren, who fhall live for ever. She was mother of these, when the got this name; but of no other. She had then been folemnly declared mother of the Meffias, the feed that fhould bruife away the ferpent's head; and had actually commenced mother of all that fhould believe in him, by believing first herfelf. And no other feed of hers had been as yet mentioned, as her feed, but what fhould be at enmity with the ferpent the devil. And what comfort could it have been either to Adam or ber, that fhe was to be the mother of others also; fince to them fhe was to be the mother of death, rather than of life ?

Ver. 21. And Jehovah God made, to Adam and to his wife, coats of fkin, and caufed them to put [them] on. Coats of fkin are fkin coats, or coats made of fkin. Thefe fkin coats were a humbling memorial to our first parents, of the first fpring of their ruin. Satan, by his fubtility, induced them to accufe God, of dealing better by the beafts of the field, than by them, in that these were covered, but they were left maked. feth becaufe of the word, by and by are offended." And it is no fmall advantage in temptation, to fee through the bait, that it is but a bait to deceive. For fo one will perceive, that it will not quit the coft, that by the bargain they will never better naked. Now they are covered like them; and inftead of being like God, are like beafts. Thus the backflider in heart shall be filled with his own ways. I make no queftion but this clothing of Adam and Eve, was a typical action. Sacrifices were offered by Abel, chap. iv. 4. And if by Abel, then by Adam too before him, from whom he learned it. And being an acceptable piece of fervice to God, they behoved to be of divine inflitution, which we can no where find, if not in this text. The fkins of the facrifices, by the law of Mofes, were given to the priefts, Lev. vii. 8.: the great promife of Chrift to come, which was all along confirmed by facrifices, was now made: the curfe was now laid on the beafts in man's ftead; and fo they were fitted to be made facrifices, as God himfelf fhould be pleafed to defign the kinds of them, to be fo used: God spake to Noah, before the flood, concerning clean and unclean beafts, as a diffinction well known to him, chap. vii. 2. being handed down from Adam; in token, whereof, it is marked, that Abel's facrifice was of the flock, viz. fleep or goats, which were clean beafts: it was after this that accefs to the tree of life, a feal of the first covenant, was blocked up, ver. 24.: it was at the wind of the day, ver. 8. that these things were transacted; the fame time of the day, at which Chrift, in the fulnefs of time, died a real facrifice for fin. From all which one may reafonably conclude, that the promife, the new covenant, being promulgated, and by our first parents believed and embraced, was instantly, by divine appointment, confirmed and fealed by facrifice ; by which means the tree of life was fuperfeded, as the paffover, by the inftitution and administration of the Lord's fupper; and the girdle of fig-leaves, by the fkin-coats.; and Chrift was typically flain from the foundation of the world, (Rev. xiii. S.), which is the date of the events of this open fection, Gen. ii. 4.: and that thefe beafts of whole fkins the coats were made, were clean beafts, which, Adam and Eve having firft laid their hands upon the heads of them, were offered in facrifice, by Adam as the prieft, to whom accordingly the skins were given, for his own use, and the use of his wife, whose recourse was to be to him, for what she wanted. Thus thefe fkin-coats fignified the righteoufnefs of Chrift; by which our fpiritual nakedness is covered, we are defended from the wrath of God, and adorned in his fight, If. lxi. 10. God himself made these coats; for it is the righteousness of God, Rom. iii. 22.: and they were put on for benefit by them : for it is the righteoufnefs of God, by faith of Jefus Chrift, ibid. They were made to the man and his wife; for it is unto all, ib. They were actually clothed with them, had them on them; for it is upon all them that believe, ib.; even Eve, as well as Adam; for there is no difference, ib. And in this matter, there is neither male nor female, they are all one in Chrift Jefus, Gal. iii. 28. The fame God who made them, caufed the man and his wife to put them on; for as the righteou/ne/s itielf is God's free gift, fo is faith alfo, by which it is put on and applied, Eph. ii. S. In these coats Adam. and Eve appeared like the beafts whole fkins they wore : and they who better their condition, Matth. xvi. 26. "For what is a man profited, if he thall gain the whole world, and lofe his own toul? or what fhall a man give in exchange for his foul?"

Fourthly, The mifchievous defign. The defign of the great who have m them the righteousness of Christ, appear in some meafure like him, in holinels of life, walking as he alfo walked, 1 John ii. 6. Thus the coats of fkin were garments of honour [put] upon their flefb, as Onkelos paraphrafes the text. — To this occafion allo, I would refer the original of eating of flefb, as brought in by facrificing. This This. agrees beft with the vanity and bondage (geograg) of corruption (or deftruction), which the creature was unwillingly made Jubject to, through the fail of man, Rom. viii. 20. 21. the chief branch of which bondage Peter expresseth, 2 ep. ii. 12. brute beasts made (15 gorpav) for destruction. So man's new diet would be of ufe to keep him in mind, that it was by eating of the fielh, and drinking of the blood, of the great facrifice, he was to have life, now that the first covenant was broken. Here ends this open fection, bearing an enlargement of the hiftory of the three last days of the creation, wherein there is a very particular account of man's creation, on the fixth day, the making of the woman, their fall, and their reftoration, all in a continued connection. Those who cannot believe that fo many various events, as are here related from chap. ii. 7. were crowded within the compass of one day, may confider the words of the Holy Ghost, Pfal. xlix. 13-12ths. Adam in honour, could not night, without receding from the propriety of the expression, till they have otherwife proved the neceffity of fo doing. And withal they may confider the variety of events, relative to the fecond Adam's death, recorded Luke xxii. 66. to the end, chap. xxiii. 1.-33. and elfewhere; and what time thefe events took place. There one finds, the fanhedrim is convened; Chrift is examined and condemned before them; they lead him to Pilate; he holds a court; Chrift is accufed, and anfwers for himfelf, before him; Pilate flicks, and will not go forward fo cleverly as the Jews would have him; he removes the caufe to Herod's court; they had about a mile to go to Herod, and Chrift appears before him; he is queftioned by him in many words. vehemently accused, mocked, arrayed in a gorgeous robe, and fent back to Pilate again; Pilate convenes the chief priefts, the rulers, and the people; there is a mighty itruggle between Pilate and them, about him, the former to fave him, the latter to get him condemned to the crofs; Pilate's wife fends to him; Jefus is fcourged, John xix. 1.; led by the foldier's into the common hall; they put on him a fearlet robe, Matth. xxvii. 27. 28.; they plat a crown of thorns, and put on his head, John xix. 2; Chrift is brought out again, and thewn to the chief priefts, as a spectacle of commileration, by Pilate, ver. 5.; Pilate prevails not, goes in again into the judgment-hall, examines him anew, ver. 9.-12.; Jefus is brought thence alfo, and Pilate fits down in a place called the Pavement, and there has a new encounter with the Jews, ver. 13 .- 15.; Pilate washeth his hands, declares the pannel innocent, Matth. xxvii. 24. and then fentenceth him to die; then they lead him out of the city to Calvary, and crucify him there: All thefe things were done in the fpace of half a day, men being the immediate great tempter, and the defign of the thing, is always the ruin of the party, by falling into fin, and mifery by fin. They are fnares and traps for ruin, 1 Cor. x. 12. and land men in the bottomlefs pit.

SECONDLY,

immediate actors in them: for Chrift was crucified about twelve o'clock, and hung upon the crofs more than three hours, Luke xxiii. 44.—46. [Compare the author's notes on the Marrow of Modern Divinity, edit. 1726, p. 40. 42.]

Ver. 22. And Jehovah God faid; Behold the man [who] was, as one of us, viz. being made after our image, chap. i. 26. 27. the image of God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft, which is one, and but one, in the bleffed Three; fo that he was, as it were, a fourth, a God upon earth, partaking of that image: fo groundless was the temptation, ver. 5. Te shall be as God. The plurality here mentioned cannot be God and angels, for the image of God and angels is not one, but two vaftly different; neither was man made after the image of angels, but of God himfelf, chap. i. 26. 27. Therefore not angels, but the three perfons of the ever-bleffed Trinity, are here meant. That there is here an ellipfis of the relative, appears from the pointing, which determines the word, the man to be the accusitive after behold, not the nominative before was: and the pointing being obferved, our lan-guage bears the ellipfis, as well as the Hebrew. Comp. Lam. iii. 1. I [am] the man, hath feen affliction. Pfal. lii. 9-7ths, Behold the man; would not, &c. i. e. the man [that], &c. as our translators rightly fupply it in both thefe texts .---- For knowing, good and evil. q. d. and particularly was as one of us, in the point of knowing good and ill; knowing ill as we know it, though not experimentally as now he does .-And now left he (hould put forth his hand; and take also of the tree of life; and eat, that he may live for ever. This verse is to far from being an irony, that it is a most pathetic lamentation of the Mediator over fallen man, with a most affectionate concern to prevent a fecond ruin. And in token hereof, the fentence is imperfect; fomething is fuppreffed, and ftopt as by a fob; as when David's grief fwelling, cut fhort his expression, Pfal vi. 4-3ds. The fame is to be observed in his lamentation over Jerufalem, in the days of his fiesh, when he uept over that city, Luke xix. 41. 42. The fenfe of the whole is, q. d. " Behold the man !" What a spectacle of commiferation is he now, who not long ago was as one of us, with our image in perfection upon him; who was as one of us, particularly for knowing of good and ill, knowing the fame as we know them, yet could not be content with that, but would needs otherwife be as God, knowing of good and ill; and for that end put forth his hand, and ate of the forbidden tree : how much more now that he is fallen, will he entertain the thought of making himfelf proof against dying, flight his own mercy, thinking to keep himself in this miferable life? and for that foolifh end, eat of the tree of life, with the fame fuccefs with which he did of the tree of knowledge, and by eating of it reject the covenant of grace he hath embraced, and, by betaking himfelf to the feal of the covenant of works, run back to that covenant where there is no life for him now? So then, left he put forth his hand again; and take alfo, of the tree of life, as he took 2

SECONDLY, What is meant by leading us into temptation? It is holy wife providence to ordering matters about us as we are attacked with temptation to fin, brought upon the ftage took of the tree of knowledge; and eat of the former, with a defige thereby to render himfelf immortal, as he did eat of the latter, that he might be as God, knowing of good and ill, and fo reject the new covenant, by eating of this tree, as he broke the first covenant by eating of the other tree, [I mull, I will fet him away out of paradife], to prevent his being ruined a lecond time. [Compare the author's notes on the Marrow of Modern Divinity, edit. 1726, p.19.

Ver. 23. And Jebovah God, did fet him away from the garden of Eden; i. e. obliged him to remove out of the garden. That no ignomy nor violence is imported in this word, whatever may be in fome things, of which it is used, appears in that it is the word Mofes constantly makes ufe of, in the name of God, to Pharaoh, in favour of the Ifraelites, Exod. iv. 23. v. 1. vii. 26. al. viii. 1. viii. 16. al. 20. ---- For to drefs even the ground; what he was taken away from; i. e. from whence he was taken away. Instead of dreffing the garden, chap. ii. 15. which was one inclosed plat of ground, he is fet to drefs the ground'; q. d. the ground the ground ; i. e. the ground in feveral plats here and there. The conftruction is, to drefs the ground; [to drefs] what (i.e. that which) he was taken away from. So he was fent back to the place, where he was formed, chap. ii. 7. From thence the Lord brought him in unto paradife, and there made the covenant with him : and now that he had broken that covenant, he is fent back to the place whence he came; there to drefs the ground, and as it were to dig his own grave; until he fhould return unto that ground, from whence he had been taken away.

Ver. 24. So he quite turned out, even the man. The Lord fet him away, Ver. 23. So he quite turned nim out of paradife, for good and all, never to come back again. As this is the genuine notion of the word, fo here it is most agreeable to the pathatic lamentation, and affectionate concern shewn for man, ver. 22. whereof this was the effect. And tince this word in Pibel denotes no violence, it can far less import any fuch thing in Kal. It is not more generally, than juitly, obferved; that these two words rendered fetting away, and turning out, are terms ufed in the law of divorce. The law, as the covenant of works, was, according to the scripture, the first busband, Rom. vii. Paradife was the house of that husband. But our first parents having once sinned, were no more able to live with the first husband : So the Son of God, as Supreme Lord, wrote the divorce, diffolved the relation, upon most weighty grounds, and turned them out of its houfe. And never was there a divorce and turning out fo great a mercy to any poor brokenhearted woman, who could have no comfortable life with a hufband, as this was to Adam and Eve in their lapfed flate, and will be to all who imitate their faith in Jefus Chrift, the fecond Hufband. And he made to inhabit on the eaft to the garden of Eden. - - - i. e. ealt in refpect of the garden. Now, the garden was on the east part of Eden, chap. ii. 8. And the dwelling of the cherubims here alligned them, was east in respect of the garden. Therefore this dwelling-place was Vbr. III. 3 0 without ftage to fight with temptations, fo as we may give a proof of ourfelves. Here confider,

How the Lord leads men into temptation; and how it confifts with his holinefs fo to lead them.

I. How

without Eden, or at leaft in the outmost part of Eden, to the east .--And even the fiame of the fword, [the fword] that turned itfelf. Flame of the found is a flame like a found, and therefore a real flame, but the fword not real .---- For to keep; even the way of the tree of life; i.e. he did this, that thereby he might keep the way leading to the tree, or trees, of life; that man might not come upon that way: for the two last clauses are, by the pointing, balanced with the two first of this hemistich. The pointing of the first word of this verse, and the manner of expression used through the whole, agreeing to the native cffect of that pointing, perfuade me, that the cherubims and the fiery fword were within the gatden before this time, as well as the man was : and that he being turned out, they were turned out too, in mercy to For the first word of the verse, being by a diffinctive separated him. from the fecond word, with which it doth undoubtedly agree in conftruction; that fnews it to be confiructed, not only with that fecond word, but also with what follows, fince the words themfelves will admit the fame ; q. d. And he quite turned out even the man : [And he quite turned out] and made to inhabit on the eafl - - - - the cherubims; and - - - flame, &c. I conceive, then, that Mofes here gives us an account of the Schechinah, the vifible fign of the divine prefence, called the glory of Jehovak, or of God, Ezek. x. 4. 19. there reprefented to be upon the cherubims; in respect of which God is faid to dwell between the cherubims, or, as the Holy Ghoft phrafeth it, to fit the cherubims, Pfal. lxxx. 2-ifts: fo that the removal of the cherubims was the removal of the Schechingh : that the fiery (word was an attendant on the Schechingh : that they both were within the garden, while man flood in his integrity : but that man having fallen, could no more enjoy the Schechinab there: neverthelefs, being reconciled to Ged through the blood of the new covenant, and fet away out of paradife; it was removed too, and the fiery fword after it : and that then the Schechinab inhabited, without the garden, on the eaft, next to the place where the man now was; and the fiery fword, between the Schechinab and the garden, according to the order of the text; that fo man might have access to the former, but no accefs any more to the latter. Accordingly, Mofes fpeaks of them, not as of things newly appearing, but in the fame manner of expression, as of the man, and of the tree of life. It is reafonable to think, that the Schechinab was in paradife before the fall; man being there in a flate of communion with God, and the tabernacle of God being faid to be with men in the heavenly paradife, Rev. xxi. 3.: and that the fiery fword attended it there; fince man was then in a flate of probation, not beyond the hazard of the fword of juffice, being capable to fin, and fall under the curfe. And the removing of the Schechinah from out of the garden, where man finned, unto another place, upon that occafion, is very agreeable to the method of the di-vine difpenfation in fuch cales. Now, the Schechinab being thus removed out of paradife, together with its attendant the fiery fword; man was effectually kept from returning into it, by the lively majefty υÊ r. How the Lord leads men into temptation. He does fo only two ways.

(1.) By a providential placing them in fuch circumfunces, as the heart may take occafion of fin from them. Thus innocent Adam was led into temptation, being placed within reach of the forbidden fruit; Jofeph, by being alone in the houfe with an adulterous woman, where yet he came fair off; Achan, by feeing the wedge of gold, and having an opportunity to take it, where he fell by it; Peter, by being in the high prieft's hall, where he was attacked. It is on this account that afflictions and perfecutions are called temptations, Jam. i. 2. becaufe there the man is befet with fuch things as are apt to work on his corruptions, and fo to lead him into fin, through fear or hope.

(2.) By permitting Satan or his inftruments to tempt them to in. God has them in a chain, but fometimes, for holy wife ends, the Lord lets them loofe, 2 Sam. xxiv. 1. compared with 1 Chron. xxi. 1. They need no politive order; if God do not reftrain them, they will fall on with all their might.

2. How it confifts with God's holinefs to lead men into temptation. This will appear from the confideration of three things.

(1.) God gave man a power to fland against temptation, if he would, Eccl. vii. 29. "God made man upright." 'Thus the flock was put in man's hand, and he is bound fill to fland out against it.

(2.) God is debtor to none, either to keep them out of fuch circumftances, as the heart may not take occasion of £n from thence, or to restrain Satan, or his instruments, from tempting them. Nay, it is just with him fo to do, fince men often of the one, and the terror of the other : for fhould he have attempted a return, he behaved to have turned his back on the Schechingh, and fet his face to the fiery fword; they being pofted in minner above obferved. Moreover, by this means, Adam, and the church in his time, were provided of a gofpel-paradile, a place of the world, where was the divine prefence, called the face of Jeboveb, from which Cain was afterwards banithed, chap. iv. 16. And thus was our Lord Jeins Chrift, the true Schechinab, Col. ii. 9. turned out of the vineyard, Matth. xxi. 39. and made to inhabit in the duft of death, by his burial : whereby all believers in him, are for ever after freed from the law as a covenant of works, Rom, vii. 4. By the connection of events narrated in the text, all this feems to have been done at that time of the day wherein Chrift was buried. often caft themfelves unneceffarily upon temptation, and will not be kept back from fin.

(3.) God can bring good out of it, for his own glory, the finner's profit, or both. Thus Hezekiah and Peter were checked for their pride and vanity, and humbled.

THIRDLY, What is the import of this part of the petition?

1. That we are in danger to be tempted to fin. Temptations are ready for us in this evil world; the devil, the world, and the flefh, are ready to attack us, and break in upon us, if the hedge whereby they are held off were but removed, x Pet. v. 8 We walk amidft armed enemies, amongft lions dens, amidft fparks of fire; were they but let loofc, they would fet on vigoroufly.

2. That no temptation can befall us without an over-ruling providence. Though the lion roar, he is in a chain, and cannot fet on us, but as he is permitted of God, Job i. 8.—10. He who rules the fea, when the waters thereof do roar, has an over-ruling hand over devils, men, and the corruptions of our hearts, that no flood can break out, but where the fluice is opened, he withdrawing the reftraint.

3. That when the Lord leads us into temptation, we will be ture of an attack. There is no hope in the mercy of our enemies, no hope that they will let an occasion of fighting us flip He that goes about feeking his prey, will not pass by it, when it is laid in his way. We are ready to let advantages against fin and Satan flip, but they will let none flip which they have against us.

4. That God may juftly lead us into temptation, and leave its under the power of them, Pfal. lxxxi. 11. 12. How often do we court temptations, and tamper with them, like the fly about the candle till its wings be burnt? How often do we grieve his Spirit, and cleave to our idols, over the belly of warnings? What wonder he fay, " Ephraim is joined to idols : let him alone?" Hof. iv. 17.

5. That we are not able of ourfelves to ftand against temptation, but if once we be engaged, we are fair to be foiled, Rom. vii. 23. 24. And fo much the more unable are we, that prefumption and felf-confidence is our ordinary plague in this cafe. So that there is much need of fear and trembling when entering into temptation, left we come foul off.

6. Lafly, That it is the duty of all, and the difpofition of the people of God, to defire they may be kept from engaging with temptations, as with an enemy too ftrong for them, Matth. Matth. xxvi. 42. "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation." It is their fouls defire that God would reftrain Satan, 2 Cor. xii. 8.; fubdue their lufts, Pfal. cxix. 133.; and over-rule all in this evil world, as they may be kept from the evil of it, John xvii. 15.

I fhall conclude this first part of the petition with a few inferences.

Inf. 1. Trials and perfecutions, though God may bring good out of them, are not to be defired, but the averting of them prayed for. For they are fharp temptations to fin, wherein, though God is much honoured by fome, he is much difhonoured by many, Matth. xiii. 21. forecited, compared with Luke viii. 13. "They on the rock are they, which, when they hear, receive the word with joy; and thefe have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away." And they that defire them are much of the temper of those difciples who would have prayed down fire from heaven, when they knew not what fpirit they were of. The defire of them is downright contradictory to this petition; for the language of it is, Lord, lead us into temptation.

2. To run into temptation, cannot be from God's Spirit, but from Satan, and a corrupt, blind, and prefumptuous heart. For it is a running into that which we fhould beg of God that he would not lead us into. If a man be called of God into a place where he is befet with temptations, he may look for grace to be kept up againft them, becaufe he is in God's way, and where he has his call to be, Pfal. xci. 11. "For he fhall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways." See i Kings xviii. 3. Obadiah was the governor of the houfe of Ahab, an idolatrous prince. But it is obferved of him, that "he feared the Lord greatly," even in fuch a corrupt court. But where a man fteps in among temptations without a call from God, he cannot expect fuch grace to be vouchfafed him. This rafhnefs, felf-confidence, and curiofity has coft dear to many.

3. "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation," Matth. xxvi. 41: Praying without watching is a tempting of God: watching without praying is a contempt of God and his grace. There is need to watch, for our enemies are ever lying at the catch, and they are ready to fteal a dint of us when we are not aware; and we cannot expect God's help, but when we are in the way of duty. There is need to pray; for watch as we will, our enemies are too ftrong for us, if the Lord himfelf do not fecond us. We muft have new fupplies of of grace, from the grace in Chrift Jefus, if we would ftand, What then God has joined, put not ye afunder.

The SECOND part of this petition is for affifting grace, But deliver us from evil. Here I shall shew,

I. What is meant by evil,

2. What by deliverance from it.

3. What is the import of this part of the petition.

First, What is meant by evil? By evil is meant,

1. Sin, which is the greatest of evils, the worst of evils, and the caufe of all other evils, Amos v. 15. "Hate the evil." There is no good in fin, it is an only evil. What makes the devil evil, the world evil, and the heart evil, but fin ? Strip them of fin, and there would be no evil in them.

2. Temptation to fin, or whatfoever draws the foul to fin; that is, " the evil of the world," John xvii. 15. The foulruining fnare that is in any thing, is the evil of it. For as fin is evil, fo every thing that has a native tendency to draw into fin is evil.

Secondly, What is meant by deliverance from evil? It ftands in two things.

I. To be brought out of it, by way of recovery when fallen into it, Pfal. li. 12. Temptation may get the child of God down, his foot may be fast in the snare, and he needs an omnipotent hand to rid him out of Satan's net.

2. To be kept from it, that he fall not into it again. The fnares are fo many, that it is hard to ftand; there is need of a divine power to keep back the finner's foul from the pit of fin, Jude 14. to take part with him when engaged with a temptation.

Thirdly, What is the import of this part of the petition ? We may take it up in these three things.

1. There is no efcaping of temptation, in greater or leffer meafure, while we are in this world. Though we should watch ever fo narrowly, fo as not to caft ourfelves into temptation; though by no fpecial providence we be led into temptation, yet the heart within is fo full of corruption, the world without is fo full of fnares, and Satan goes fo conftantly about, that we are in danger every where, and no where fafe.

In profperity we are apt to be proud, vain, carnal, fecure ; to forget God, and grow taftelefs of heavenly things, &c. In adverfity, we are impatient, and difcontented, and fretting, and dead to good things, Pfal. cxix. 107. In company we are apt to be infected, or to infect others; and in folitude to become become a prey to the tempter. House nor field, bed nor board, civil duties nor religious duties, are not fuch, but temptations will haunt us at them.

τ

2. God's children would fain be delivered from evil, from fin and temptation to it, Rom. vii. 24. "O wretched man that I am !" fays Paul : " who fhall deliver me from the body of this death ?" The new nature in them makes them long and groan for it, as ever the captive exile longs for deliverance from his captivity. And there is a threefold deliverance which their fouls defire here.

(1.) A deliverance in temptation, that God would powerfully fupport and enable them to ftand in the hour of temptation, 2 Cor. xii. 8.; that when they are engaged in the battle with Satan, the world, and the flefh, the Lord himfelf would come in for their refcue. They fee they are not man enough for their enemies; and they would fain have Heaven to interpofe, and caft the balance of victory to their fide.

(2.) A deliverance under temptation, Pfal. li. 8. Sometimes they are trod under foot by their lufts and paffions; they are lying in the mire, and cannot get out. But they look again towards the Lord, as Jonah out of the whale's belly, that he would afford them his helping hand, and fo fanctify their lot to them, as all may work for their good.

(3.) A deliverance completely from all fin, and temptation to it, Rom. vii. 24. forecited. And thus the petitions of this prayer end with a longing cry for perfect freedom from fin in another world. And this good the Lord brings out of the hard handling which his people get here, that thereby they are made to long for heaven.

3. They believe that God, and he only, can deliver them from evil. Without this faith they could not put up this petition; but the belief of the power and willingnefs of God to grant this deliverance to his people, daily excites them to cry unto him, Deliver us from evil.

I fhall conclude this part of the fixth petition with a few inferences.

Inf. 1. Sinning is more terrible than fuffering, in the eyes of the children of God. They pray to be delivered from fin abfolutely, at any rate, coft what it will. And they have good readon for it; for there is more evil in the leaft fin than in the greateft fuffering. In finning we are conformed to the devil, but in fuffering to Jefus Chrift. Let us then cry earneftly to God, that he may deliver us frem evil.

2. It is a black mark of one that belongs not to God, when when there is no parting betwixt him and his lufts. The word and providence works to the delivering the man from his fin, but he will not part with it; he is not content to let it go. It is not the fpot of God's children.

3. A carelefs, fearlefs way of going through the world, without daily care of being enfnared into fin, is an evidence that the man is at home, and is not travelling Zion-ward. For those who are going through this world as a wildernefs, are walking with fear and trembling through it, still faying, Lord, lead us not into temptation

4. Laftly, It is in the nature of all God's children, to defire to be home. Our Father which art in heaven,—deliver us from evil. They know that this will never be completely and fully anfwered till they be beyond the clouds: but from their hearts they defire it. Let us evidence ourfelves to be the children of God, by our ardent defires for this complete deliverance from fin.

· NATURAL SALES

THE CONCLUSION OF THE LORD'S PRAYER.

Matth. vi. 13.—For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever. Amen.

E come now to the conclusion of the Lord's prayer, which teacheth us, " to take our encouragment in prayer from God only, and in our prayers to praife him, aferibing kingdom, power, and glory to him. And, in teffimony of our defire, and affurance to be heard, we fay, Amen."

In this conclusion three things are to be confidered.

I. The connection thereof with the petitions. II. The concluding fentence.

III. The

11. The concluding word.

IV. I shall deduce tome inferences.

I. Let us confider the connection of this conclution with the petitions, in the particle for; which fhews it to contain arguments to be ufed in prayer for hearing: q. d. Lord, hear us, for the kingdom is thine, the power is thine, and the glory is thine : and teaches us, that when we pray, we fhould plead and pray, prefs our prayers, and enforce our petitions, with arguments and reafons, to be heard. I thall thew you,

1. The truth of it.

2. The reafon of it.

First, I shall shew you the truth of this pleading. And that it is fo, appears from,

1. The Lord himfelf's teaching us fo to do, which shews it to be acceptable to him, fince he himfelf directs us to it. We have the Mediator's direction for it in this pattern of prayer, petition 5. and conclusion. See also Luke xi. 5.-9. And the more of the Spirit that one has in prayer, he will have his mouth the more filled with arguments.

2. The practice of the faints. See how Mofes pleads and reafons with God in prayer, Exod. xxxii. 11.-13. " Lord, why doth thy wrath wax hot against thy people, which thou haft brought forth out of the land of Egypt, with great power, and with a mighty hand? Wherefore thould the Egyptians speak and fay, For mischief did he bring them out, to flay them in the mountains, and to confume them from the face of the earth? Turn from thy fierce wrath, and repent of this evil against thy people. Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy fervants, to whom thou swarest by thine own felf, and faidft unto them, I will multiply your teed as the ftars of heaven; and all this land that I have fpoken of, will I give unto your feed, and they shall inherit it for ever." See also how Ala pleads, 2 Chron. xiv. 11. " Lord, it is nothing with thee to help, whether with many, or with them that have no power; help us, O Lord our God; for we reft on thee, and in thy name we go against this multitude: O Lord, thou art our God, let not man prevail against thee." Job thought it a good way of praying, and longed to be at it, Job xxiii. 4. " I would fill my mouth with arguments," fays The woman of Canaan recovered her arguments, when he. they feemed to be answered, Matth. xv. 22 .- 27. " Have mercy on me," fays fhe, " O Lord, thou Son of David; my daughter is grievoully vexed with a devil. But he answered her Vol. III. 3 P her not a word. And his difciples came and befought him, faying, Send her away, for fle crieth after us. But he anfwered and faid, I am not fent, but unto the loft fheep of the houfe of Ifrael. Then came fhe and worfhipped him, faying, Lord, help me. But he anfwered and faid, It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to caft it to dogs. And fhe faid, Truth, Lord: yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their mafter's table."

3. The nature of the thing. In prayer men are upon bufinels of the greateft weight, and outmost neceffity, and should be in deep earness in it; and ordinarily the Lord does not answer but to importunity. Is it not very natural in such a cafe to plead? Yea, what cafe can men be in that requires more importunate pleading, than that which relates to God's glory, and their everlasting felicity?

Secondly, I come to flew the reafon of this pleading, why we fhould do fo.

1. It is not to move, perfuade, or bring over the Lord, to give us what we defire. Force of argument may prevail with man to change his mind, but the unchangeable God cannot be turned about with any reafon or thing whatfoever. For "with him there is no variablenefs, neither fhadow of turning," Jam. i. 17. "He is in one mind, and who can turn him?" Job xxiii. 13.

2. But it is to exercife and ftrengthen our own praying graces, faith and fervency, &c. So that the effect of the pleading is on ourfelves, not on God, though the confequent of it, by the divine purpofe, is prevailing in prayer. It is true, the defign of the pleading perfon is not on himfelf, though the effect is ; neither ought it to be upon God, to move him, but upon the thing itself, to lay it out before the Lord, in the neceffity and reafonablenefs of it. It is as if a hungry child fhould apply to his father for bread, and the father thould fay, " Child, wherefore flould I give you bread ?" and thereupon the child fhould fay, "Alas! 1 am pained with hunger, and who will give it me if you refule ? will it not be a reflection on your name, to fay your children faint for lack of bread ?" While the child pleads thus, the tear Arikes in his eye, and his earneftnofs increafes : whereupon he is answered. Here it is evident, that the effect of the pleading is not on the father; it would be but the child's weaknefs to think that the father is overcome with his arguments, though the confequent of the pleading is the child's getting bread : But the effect of it is plainly on the child himfelf.

himfelf, though the child defigns it not fo: And fuppofe the child to have fo much wit, as to know that his arguments are not needed to perfuade his father, his defign of pleading in that cafe is on the thing itfelf, to hold out the neceffity and reafonablenefs of it.

II. Let us confider the concluding fentence, Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever. Here I shall shew,

1. What is meant by the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever.

2. What is the import of this fentence.

FIRST, I am to fhew what is meant by the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever.

I. By the kingdom is meant, not the kingdom of grace, nor the kingdom of glory either; but God's effential kingdom, his univerfal fovereignty over all perfons and all things whatloever.

2. The power is not authority whereby God may do, but the ability whereby he can do what he will, in that kingdom.

3. The glory is not God's effential glory, but the declara. tive glory, arifing from what he doth in that kingdom, which will fhine forth for ever through eternity.

SECONDLY, I am to fhew, what is the import of this fentence. It is twofold, praife, and pleading arguments.

First, Praise. Hereby we praise him in our prayers, expreffing high and honourable thoughts of him : Thine is the kingdom, &c. Thus we exalt him above ourfelves, and all creatures whatfoever.

1. As the univerfal and abfolute Monarch of all the creation, and the only one, I Chron. xxix. II. " Thine, O Lord, is the greatnefs, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majefty : for all that is in heaven and in the earth, is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all." Univerfal and abfolute fovereignty are the flowers of the imperial crown of heaven, and belong to no other. There are many kings on earth, but they are all limited monarchs, and vaffals to the King of heaven, who can have no competitor: Lord, thine is the kingdom.

2. As the Omnipotent, and only Omnipotent, ibid. The power of men and angels is but a fhadow of power, weaknefs in comparison with God's. None of them all are capable to do do what they are capable to will. But his power and will are of equal extent.

3. As the chief end of all things, ibid. and the only chief end. It is the peculiar prerogative of God to fay, "For mine own fake, even for mine own fake, will I do it," If. xlviii. 11. All perfons and things are for God, God is for himfelf; and the glory of all redounds to him, and will do for evermore.

This teaches us, That in our prayers we fhould praife God, as well as petition him. Praife is a comely mixture in all the parts of divine worfhip. It is most directly tending to God's honour; and it is the piece of worfhip that will lak longeft; when prayers, &c. are laid by in heaven, praife will be there for ever.

Observ. This pattern of prayer begins with praife, and ends with it too. For it is neceffary, in the entrance, that we have our hearts awed with the divine glory, that fo we may be the fitter to pray on : and in the end, that we may carry away high thoughts of God, for the better regulating of our life, in the intervals of duty.

Secondly, Let us confider the pleading arguments in prayer: and they are all taken from God himfelf, For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever.

Observ. This teaches us to take our encouragement from God only in prayer, to draw our arguments from the confideration of what God is. This is a large field, to fill our mouths with arguments, and to furnish us with fuitable pleas in prayer.

Queft. May we not plead with God upon any thing in ourfelves? Anf. (1.) We may not plead upon any worthinefs in ourfelves or any other creature, Dan. ix. 18. " We do not prefent our fupplications before thee for our righteoufneffes, but for thy great mercies." I Tim. ii. 5. " For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jefus." (2.) Though in our pleading we may bring in both our evil and our good, yet the force of the plea or argument is not to be laid on either of them, but on fomething in God himfelf anfwerable thereto. David brings in the greatness of his fin, in his plea for pardon ; but the ftrefs of the plea lies not there, but on God's own name, to be magnified greatly by the pardon of great fin, Pfal. xxv. II. " For thy name's fake, O Lord, pardon mine iniquity : for it is great." Hezekiah brings in his upright walking in the plea for prolonging his life, If. xxxviii. 3. "Remember nov.

484

now, O Lord," fays he, " I befeech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy fight." But the ftrefs of it lay on God's faithfulnefs in that promife, 1 Kings viii. 25. " Therefore now, Lord God of Ifrael, keep with thy fervant David, my father, that thou promifedft him, faying, There shall not fail thes a man in my fight to fit on the throne of Ifrael ; fo that thy children take heed to their way, that they walk before me, as thou haft walked before me."

Now, the plea for hearing, here put in our mouths, is threefold.

1. The kingdom is the Lord's. The ftrefs of the argument from this is, Therefore thou mayeft do it, thou haft full authority to grant us whatfoever thou wilt, Matth. xx. 15. " Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own?"

2. The power is the Lord's. Therefore thou canft do whatfoever we afk, over the belly of all oppofition, and however hopeless it be in itself, Eph. iii. 20. " He is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we afk or think."

3. The glory is the Lord's. Therefore thou wilt do it, fince thou lovest thy glory, and wilt have glory for evermore from answering our petitions, Josh. vii. 9. " What will thou not do unto thy great name?"

III. Let us confider the concluding word, Amen. It imports two things. (1.) Our defire to be heard, q. d. fo be it, Rev. xxii. 20. " Amen. Even fo come, Lord Jefus." And the believer uses this word properly as a teftimony of his defire, when by faith he is enabled and emboldened to plead with God, that he would fulfil his requests, 2 Chron. xx. 6. 11. (2.) Our confidence and affurance that we shall be heard : q. d. fo certainly it shall be, Rev. i. 7. " Even fo. Amen." And the fincere Christian uses the word with great propriety in the conclusion of his prayers, in testimony of his affurance to be heard, when he is by faith emboldened quietly to reft upon the Lord, that he will fulfil the defires of his heart, 2 Chron. xiv. 11.

I conclude all with a very few inferences.

Inf. 1. Be fervent and importunate with God in prayer, and fet yourfelves to plead and pray, as men that are in the deepeft earneft about a thing on which their higheft interefts are suspended, Jam. v. 16. If earnestness and importunity are any any where required, here they are highly, nay abfolutely, requifite.

2. Let not complaints juftle out praifes from your prayers, but ftill remember that every day affords you as much matter of praife as of requeft. God's mercies are new every morning; let therefore the facrifice of praife be a part of the daily facrifice ye offer unto God. Never bow a knee unto God for fupplicating a mercy from him, without praifing him for what mercies ye enjoy. This is a very promifing way of obtaining the requefts ye make at the throne of grace in the confidence of faith.

3. Deeply confider what a God he is with whom you have to do, to fill your mouth with arguments. Pleas in prayer may be fetched, and faith will fetch them, from every divine attribute and perfection; and faith will improve thefe pleas in fuch a manner as to procure the good things it applies to the throne for. "What wilt thou not do unto thy great name?" is a ftanding plea for faith, which can never be rejected. Mercy, holinefs, juffice, truth, &c. all magnified by the obedience and fatisfaction of Chrift, will be never-failing pleas in the mouth of the prayer of faith.

4. Laftly, Use not Amen superficially at the end of your prayers, but with earnessness and faith. As for those who think it superstition to fay Amen, they are ignorant of the word of God; and I would recommend to them to confult their Bible and Catechism, in order to cure them of that fenseless conceit.

And thus, by the good hand of God upon me, I have finished what I intended by way of illustration of the great doctrines of the Christian religion, with respect to faith and practice, as compendized, from the Holy Scriptures, in our Shorter Catechifm. I am fenfible of many defects in the profecution of fuch a large work; for who is fufficient for these things? but I have endeavoured, according to the meafure of grace given unto me, to declare unto you what I am perfuaded is truth, agreeable to the word of God, the rule and ftandard of all religious truth. And I would now afk you, What entertainment have ye given to the great and important truths laid before you, from the Lord's word, in the courfe of these fermons, in which I have been engaged a confiderable part of feveral years? Do ye now believe? Have ye embraced these doctrines with a divine faith, a faith of the operation of God? have ye received the truths into your your hearts? and are your hearts moulded into the image of them? Are they become the food and nourifilment of your fouls, fo as ye are made to effect them more than the food that is neceffary for the fupport of your natural life? Are they written on your hearts, and impreffed on your confciences, fo as to become an effective principle of new obedience ? Is the effect of them the fanctification of your hearts. and lives? and is the refult of the whole an earnest defire to know the truth more fully and clearly, and to regulate every motion and defire of your hearts, every word of your mouths, and every action of your lives, by the truth, fo as ye may be enabled through grace to do the whole will of God? If thefe catechetical difcourfes have not produced fome fuch effects upon you, or any of you, alas ! they have been all loft as to any faving benefit to your fouls, and will be a fwift and terrible witnefs against you in the day of the Lord Jefus. O, Sirs ! confider, bethink yourfelves, recollect the great and important truths I have been laying before you, drawn from the pure and uncorrupted fountain of the Lord's word, and let them have a fuitable and lafting influence on your hearts. and lives. If ye imprifon the truth, and hold it in unrighteoulnels, by refifting and oppoling its effect, which is fanctification, John xvii. 17. and refufing to let it rule over you, and raifing up your lufts against it, and fo unrighteoufly fmothering and suppressing it, ye do fo at a terrible rifk : " For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodlinefs, and unrighteoufnefs of men, who hold the truth in unrighteoufnefs, Rom. i. 18. It is very probable, that many of you at leaft have acquired more knowledge of the principles of religion, than ye had formerly; and I am obliged to own, that your knowledge of the truths thereof is as much, generally, as ever I obferved in other places. But is it fanctifying faving knowledge, or only merely fpeculative, floating in your heads, without having a due and efficacious influence upon your hearts? Alas ! I must fay, that truth is held prifoner with a witnefs among us, and that our lives are not answerable to our light, and I am much asraid it bring wrath on the place. I therefore earneftly befeech and exhort one and all of you, to fludy to know the truth as it is in Jefus, to have a heart experimental knowledge thereof, a real feeling and fenfation of the fweetnefs, virtue, and excellency thereof, in your minds, fo as ye may tafte indeed that the Lord is good. This knowledge alone will be available to your falvation, while all other knowledge is quite ufelefs useless and unprofitable as to any falutary effect. For fays our Lord, John xvii. 3. "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jefus Chrift whom thou haft fent." But the further prefling of this experimental knowledge of Chrift, I must defer to another occasion, with which I shall conclude this work.

Of the Experimental Knowledge of Chrift. 488

A DISCOURSE ON THE EXPERIMENTAL KNOWLEDGE OF CHRIST.

Phil. iii. 10,-That I may know him .-

MERE speculative knowledge of Christ, and of the great doctrines of the gospel, however laboriously acquired and extensive it may be, is of fmall importance in itfelf, and quite vain and ineffectual, if it be not fanctified, and iffue in an experimental knowledge of Chrift, and a real feeling of the beauty, excellency, and efficacy of divine truth on the heart. A man may have a competent, nay, a very extensive acquaintance with the whole doctrines of the Chri-" flian religion, as laid down in the holy fcriptures, and of which we have an excellent compend in the Shorter Catechifm, which I have been endeavouring to explain to you for a feries of years; yet if you have not the experimental knowledge of Chrift, all your knowledge is in vain as to the falvation of your fouls. I therefore come, as a conclufion of the whole, to prefs this experimental knowledge upon you, as what alone will be available for any faving purpofes.

In the preceding verfe, the apoftle fpeaks of the gain he received in Christianity in point of justification, flowing from the the foul's clofing with Chrift, and renouncing all other; and here he fpeaks of that gain in point of fanctification. And firft, more generally, That I may know him. Might not the Philippians hereupon have faid, And do not you know Chrift, who have preached him fo long? There are two ways of knowing, one by hearing of a thing, another by fight and feeling; one by the relation of another, another by experience, as one knows honey, and all the virtues of it, by report, which he believes, another by tafting it himfelf. The apottle knew Chrift by faith, when he firft believed in him; and here he would have the fpiritual feeling and experience of him, finding by experience him to be what he has heard and believed him to be. He had fomething of this, but he would ftill have more.

2

The doctrine arifing from the text is,

Doct. " The experimental knowledge of Christ is the fam of practical religion," I Cor. ii. 2. "flowing from faith, to be fludied by all."

In handling this point, I fhall, I. Shew what this experimental knowledge of Chrift is. II. Confirm the point. III. Make application.

I. I am to fhew what this experimental knowledge of Chrift is. It is an inward and spiritual feeling of what we hear and believe concerning Chrift and his truths, whereby anfwerable imprefiions are made on our fouls, Pfal. xxxiv. 8.; like that of the Samaritans, John iv. 42. when they faid unto the woman, " Now we believe, not becaufe of thy faying : for we have heard him ourfelves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world." There is a fayoury report of Chrift fpread in the gofpel; faith believes it, and embraces him for what the word gives him out to be; and then the believing foul doth come and fee. There is a glorious scheme of the lovely perfections of Christ drawn in the Bible, and faith believes that he really is what he is faid to be; and then that fcheme begins to be drawn over again in the Christian's experience, and this is always drawing more and more till he come to glory. It is just as if some eminent physician should give a friend remedies for all difeafes he may be liable to; and when he leaves them with him, he lets him know that fuch a remedy is good for that Vor. III. diftemper. 3 Q.

diftemper, and another is good for fuch another, &c. Now, he knows them all; but he falls fick, and he takes the remedy fit for his difeafe, and it proves effectual. Now, the man knows the remedy by experience, which he knew before by report only. Even fo Chrift is given as all in all to a believer, and he makes use of Chrift for his case, and that is the experimental knowledge of him. I will illustrate this by fome inftances.

1. The fcripture fays of Chrift, He is the way to the Father, John xiv. 6. Now, the man that has tried many ways of attaining accefs to God, and communion with him, and ftill is denied accefs, and can find no way to come to God, at length comes by Jefus Chrift, renouncing all things elfe, leans only on his merit and interceffion, and he finds an open door of accefs to God, and communion with him. The flaming fword he finds removed, and him who was ftill before a confuming fire, he finds now a warming fun to his foul. Here is experimental knowledge of Chrift. Hence the apoftle fays, Rom. v. 1. 2. "Therefore being juftified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jefus Chrift. By whom we have accefs by faith into this grace wherein we ftand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God."

2. Chrift's blood " purgeth the confcience from dead works to ferve the living God," Heb. ix. 14. Now, the experimental Chriftian knows from experience, that unremoved and unrepented-of guilt defiles the confeience, leaves a fting in it, unfits him to ferve the Lord, as much as a man in filthy rags is unfit to ftand before a king; it breeds in the heart an unwillingnefs to come before God, and mars his confidence : he tries to repent, overlocking the blood of Chrift, but it will not do. He looks to an abfolute God, and his heart is indeed terrified, but nothing foftened. At length he looks to God in Chrift, throws the burden of his guilt, and dips his foul in the fea of Chrift's blood; and then the heart melts for fin, the fling is taken out of the confeience, the feul is willing to converfe with God, and is enabled to ferve him, as a fon doth a father.

3. Chrift is fully fatisfying to the foul, Pfal. lxxiii. 25. Hab. iii. 17. 18. We all know this by report; but the Chriflian experimentally knows it by a fpiritual fenfation in the innermost parts of his foul. Sometimes, when all his enjoyments have been flanding entire about him, he has locked with a holy contempt on them all, faying in his heart, Thefe are not my pertion. His heart has been loofed from them, and and he has been made willing to part with them all for Chrift, in whom his foul rejoiced, and in whom alone he was fatisfied. Sometimes, again, all outward things have been going wrong with him, yet he could comfort, encourage, and fatisfy himfelf in Chrift, as David did in a great strait, I Sam. xxx. 6. He has gone away to his God and his Chrift, and with Hannah returned with " a countenance no more fad," 1 Sam. i. 18.

4. Chrift helps his people to bear afflictions, and keeps them from finking under them; and he lifts up their heads when they go through thefe waters, If. xliii. 2. Now, the Chriftian meets with affliction; and he takes a good lift of his own burden, for it is the thing he thinks he may well bear. But his burden is too heavy for him. He wreftles with it; but the more he wreftles, it grows the heavier, and he finks the more. At length he goes to Chrift, faying, . Lord, I thought to have borne this burden, but I am not man for it; I will fink under it, if I get not help :' " Mafter, fave us, for we perifh." And fo he lays it over on the great Burden-bearer, and he is helped, Pfal. xxviii. 7. Now, the man, when he thought he could do all, could do nothing; and when he thinks he can do nothing, he can do all, 2 Cor. viii. q. 10.

5. Chrift is made unto us "wifdom," 1 Cor. i. 30. The experimental Chriftian finds, that when he leans to his own understanding, he mistakes his way at mid-day; and all that he reaps of it, is, that in end he has himfelf to call " beaft" and " fool" for his error. But when he comes into difficulties, that he fees he knows not how to extricate himfelf out of, and is wary, and lays out his cafe before the Lord, and gives himfelf up as a blind man to be led by the Lord, he finds he is conducted in the way he knew not; and the refult is, to " blefs the Lord who has given him counfel."

6. Laftly, Chrift is made unto us " fanctification," I Cor. i. 30. Now, the Chriftian falls fecure, does not make use of Chrift, and then ere ever he is aware, he is like Samfon without his hair. When he awakens, he fees his cafe is all gone to wrack, the course of fanctifying influences is ftopt, the graces are lying in the dead-thraw, and lufts are ftrong and rampant. He fails a grappling with them, but is worfted still; until he come to himfelf, and acknowledge his utter weakness to ftand in this battle, and renew the actings of faith in Chrift; and then "out of weaknefs he is made ftrong, waxes valiant in fight, and turns to flight the armies of the aliens," aliens," Heb. xi. 34. He flings down the confidence in himfelf, like the broken reed that has pierced his hand; and though the promife lie before him, like the rod turned into a ferpent, which unbelief tells him he would be too bold to meddle with, he ventures and takes the ferpent by the tail, and it becomes the rod of God in his hand.

3 Q 2

Let these fuffice for examples of experimental religion.

II. I proceed to confirm the point; or to fhew, that the experimental knowledge of Chrift is the fum of practical religion. Confider,

1. The fcripture-testimonies concerning this. To learn religion in the power of it, and in all the parts of fanctification, is to learn Chrift. Hence the apoftle fays, Eph. iv. 20.-24. "But ye have not fo learned Chrift; if fo be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jefus : that ye put off, concerning the former converfation, the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lufts: and be renewed in the fpirit of your mind; and that ye put on the new man, which after God is created, in righteoufnefs and true holinefs." There needs no more to be known, for that comprehends all, I Cor. ii. 2. "I determined not to know any thing among you," fays Paul, " fave Jefus Chrift, and him crucified." It is "eternal life," John xvii. 3. It is a pledge of eternal life; it is eternal life begun. Yea, Chrift is the fum and fubstance of a believer's life, Phil. i. 21. " To me to live is Chrift."

2. All true religion is the creature's conformity or likenefs to God, made by virtue of divine influences, transforming the foul into the divine image. Now, there can be no conformity to God but through Jefus Chrift; for he is the only channel of the conveyance of divine influences, and God can have no communication with finners but through him. He alone makes us partakers of the divine nature, 2 Cor. iv. 6.

3. Whatever religion or holinefs a man feem to have, that doth not come and is maintained this way, is not of the right fort. It is but nature varnifhed over : for " he that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father."

The foul's clofing with Chrift by faith, opens the way to this experimental knowledge of him; fo that whofoever would know Chrift thus, muft in the first place fo clofe with him.

(1.) Faith closing with Chrift, believes he is fuch an one as he is held out in the gospel, gives credit to the report; and it is the want of this that mars this knowledge, If. liii. 1.

(2.) Faith clofes with Chrift to that very end, that the foul may fo know him. The foul ftands in need of Chrift in all that wherein he is held out as useful to a finner, and faith takes him for that.

(3.) Faith unites the foul to Chrift, and fo makes way for this knowledge, which is the happy refult of this union.

I come now to a word of improvement, which I fhall difculs in an use of exhortation. O Sirs! labour to be experimental Christians, to have the inward feeling of what you hear and fay ye believe concerning Christ. Why will ye ftand in the outer court all your days? Come forward, and dip into the heart of religion. Come in where the world's ungracious feet could never carry them. And be not fatisfied with less of religion, than what the beloved disciple in the name of believers fays he felt, "Truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ," I John i. 3. This is a weighty and feasonable point. To enforce this exhortation, I offer the following motives.

1. Religion is not a matter of mere fpeculation to fatisfy men's curiofity, but a matter of practice. Men's eternal ftate lies at the ftake, which can never be brought to a comfortable iffue by a fpeculative knowledge, more than a man can be cured by the knowledge of a remedy, without application of it. An unexperimental profeffor is like a foolifh fick man, who entertains those about him with fine discourses of the nature of medicines, but in the mean time he is dying himfelf for want of application of them.

2. The fweet of religion lies in the experience of it: hence the Pfalmift fays, "My foul fhall be fatisfied as with marrow and fatnefs," Pfal. lxiii. 5. No man can have the idea of the fweetnefs of honey like him that taftes it, nor of religion like him that feels the power of it. One reads the word, and it is taftelefs to him; to another it is fweeter than the honeycomb; why, becaufe he feels the power of it on his fpirit, Pfal. xix. 11. Religion would not be fuch a burden to us as it is, if we could by experience carry it beyond dry faplefs notions: it would be a reward to itfelf, and fo chain the heart to it.

3. All the profit of religion to ourfelves lies in the experience of it, Matth. vii. 22. What avails all the religion men have in their heads, while it never finks into the heart? Knowledge Knowledge without experience will no more fanctify a man₂ than painted fire will burn, or the bare fight of water will wafh. Ah! what avails that knowledge to a man, by which he is never a whit more holy, nor lefs a flave to his lufts? True, it may do good to others, as the profit of the carpenters gift came to Noah, while they themfelves perifhed in the deluge. Light without heat ferves only to fhew the way to hell, where there is fcorching heat without light. Gifts without grace are like a fhip without ballaft in a boifterous fea, that cannot mifs to fink. And when fuch an one is finking into hell, his gifts will be like a bag of gold on a drowning man, precious in itfelf, but will only help to fink him the fafter.

4. The experimental Christian is the only Christian whole religion will bring him to heaven. Heaven in effect is but a perfect experimental knowledge of Christ, where the faints will for ever feed upon that fweetnefs they have heard to be in him. And there is no attaining of heaven, unlefs men first begin on earth to know Christ thus.

5. L_{afl} , It is abfolutely neceffary to qualify a man to go on and hold right in an evil time. And furely, if ever there was need for it, there is need now.

(1.) The experimental Christian is fitted thereby to fuffer for Christ, because he has the testimony within himself, that the way which the world perfecutes is the way of God. No arguments give such a certainty of the truth of religion as experience does.

(2.) When wickednefs profpers, and piety is oppreffed, experimental religion keeps a man from being led away with the error of the wicked, Mal. iii. 16.

(3.) When many flumbling-blocks are laid in the way, effectially in divisions and church-contentions, which make many wicked men think there is no reality in religion at all; yet the righteous, in fuch a time, fhall hold on his way.

This is a very weighty point; and to illustrate it a little further, I will,

1. Give evidence that experimental religion is very rare.

2. Point out fome caufes of it.

3. Shew how it may be obtained.

4. Prefs you to feek after it by fome confiderations.

First, I am to give evidences that experimental religion is very rare in our day.

1. The little reliff that men have of the word either preached or read. Experience makes the word favoury; hence David

wid fays, "I rejoice at thy word, as one that findeth great fpoil," Pfal. cxix. 162. How many are there to whom the word is taftelefs as the white of an egg? Their fancy may be tickled by the difcovery of fomething which they knew not before : but, alas ! they have no inward fenfation of the thing wrapt up in the words of truth.

2. The little knowledge of the word by experience. The beft commentary on the ills of the heart is the word, and the beft commentary on the word is experience. Thefe reflect light one upon another. The experimental Chriftian reads bis heart in the word; he gets it opened and anatomifed there, Heb. iv. 12. 13. It is the looking-glafs wherein he fees it. And he understands the word by experience, John ii. 17. and vii. 16. The doctrine of truth is according to godlinefs, and godlinefs, in the practice of it, makes truth thine the more into the foul.

3. The little precife and nice walking there is among profeffors, Eph. v. 14. Chriftians fhould "walk circumfpectly;" and it is the native effect of experimental religion, If. xxxviii. 15. And the reason is plain: The experimental Christian finds how a wrong ftep will provoke the Spirit to depart, and how communion with God cannot be kept up in a loofe and irregular way, Pfal. lxvi. 13. He fees how fmall a thing expofeth to the dint of the threatening; and that the way of getting the promife told out to him, is the way of tender walking, which counts no fin little. But, alas ! for that miferable latitude that prevails in the walk of the generation. who take fuch a woful liberty in their words and actions, as we may fay with the prophet, Mic. vii. 1. 2. "Wo is me, for I am as when they have gathered the fummer-fruits, as the grape-gleanings of the vintage : there is no clufter to eat : my foul defired the first ripe fruit. The good man is perified out of the earth : and there is none upright among men : they all lie in wait for blood : they hunt every man his brother with a net."

4. The little advantage religion has by the conferences of profeffors. People may go into many companies ere they get one from whence they may come forth with a heart more inflamed with love to God and Chrift, and the practice of godlinets, becaufe they can meet with few like him who faid, " Come and hear, all ye that fear God, and I will declare what he hath done for my foul," Pfal. lxvi. 16. Alas! there is little of heaven in the converfe of Chriftians at this day; which fays there is but little of it in their hearts. We have fat down on time's things; and as for the matters of another world, we have little relifh of them. A philosopher bade one fpeak, that he might fee him, Col. iii. 16.

495

5. Lafly, The general fecurity that prevails among all ranks. though we never faw the day wherein it was more unfeafonable. Did experimental religion prevail, we would be waiting on the Lord in the way of his judgments, as the church did. If. xxvi. 8. 20. God help us! Scotland's ftroke feems to be walking in the dark, with feet of wool, that we will never hear the found of, till we feel its iron hands. It is very like fome fearful furprife is abiding us. The difpenfations of our day are in their own nature roufing difpenfations : but we are not at all awakened by them, more than we were when there was not a pin in our tabernacle loofed. There are different opinions and practices in these matters; but whose heads foever are righteft, we think the hearts of all parties are wrong. And among all our unhappy differences, we have a more unhappy agreement in a fpirit of flumber that has feized all together. And what shall be the end of these things?

Secondly, I thall point out fome of the caufes of the fcarcity of experimental religion.

1. The Lord has a controverfy with our mother, and therefore has withdrawn, and it fares the worfe with the children. She was fome time Hephzibah, and her land Beulah; but now her gold is become drofs, and her wine mixed with water. She has forgotten her hufband, and has been gadding after other lovers. She hath caft herfelf into a loathfome difeafe; her kindly heat and warmth is gone; any thing of it that is left has firuck out to the outward parts, leaving a key-cold heart within. And, by all appearance, fhe will not be cured, till blood be let of her.

2. People's fpiritual fenfes are dulled with the lufcious fweets of a prefent world. Farms and merchandife take away people's appetites for the marriage-fupper, Matth. xxii. 4. 5. The devil makes birdlime of the things of the world to catch profeffors, that they find, when they would get upward, their feet stick in the mire. Many of us, I trow, when our worldly incomes were lefs, our fpiritual incomes were more. Or, if the world go against people, their spirits are fo embittered, that they find no fweetnefs at all in religion.

3. Religion is not made people's bufinefs, but just a byhand work. Men are like the mole, whole abode is in the earth ; and though fometimes it come above ground, it haftes in again to its hole, to be in its element. They will fay their their prayers indeed, evening and morning; but for walking with God in the interval of duties, they know nothing about it. Their religion is over when duties are over. They are like a man that takes phyfic indeed, but he jufts vomits it up again when he has got it, giving it no time to work, Gen. vi. 9. Religion's chance-cuftomers will never grow rich by it.

2

4. People's not holding hand to any attainment they make in religion, like " the flothful man, not roafting that which he took in hunting," Prov. xii 27. They are, it may be, at fome pains to earn fomething in religion, but they put it in a bag with holes. Sometimes they are in a fair way to gain experience of religion, they get fome tafte of it, but then they do not follow on, Hof. vi. 3. The fpark is kindled, but they let it go out; they do not feed it, and prefently they have a cold coal to blow at again.

5. Lafly, Formality in religion, when people content themfelves with outward worfhip, doing the work, but make it not their bufinefs to worfhip God in the fpirit; by faith in him, love, dependence, fear, hope, patience, &c. It is thefe and the like graces that bring in the experimental knowledge of Chrift and religion into the foul. Thefe are they that get forward to God, even to his throne. And duties without them are ufelefs and vain, like liquor that has loft all the fpirits.

Thirdly, I come to fhew, how we may become experimental Chriftians.

1. Let us labour to be Chriftians indeed, and lay the foundation well in a ferious and finceré clofing with Jefus Chrift. That is to fay, let us, under a conviction of the reality and neceffity of religion, give away and confectate ourfelves to the Lord Jefus Chrift. Let us forfake the world for him, and look on ourfelves as men bound to another world, under the conduct of the Captain of the Lord's hofts. And while we go through it with him, let us refolve to go lightly along, and not dip, Cant. iv. 8. Let us forfake fin for him, and leave thefe hufks to feed upon himfelf, for the manua will not fall till the Egyptian provision be done. And men need not think that the dainties of heaven will be brought to the table, where the foul is fitting at duft, which is the ferpent's meat. Labour to know them no more, not to feek your fatisfaction from them, and ye fhall know Chrift.

2. Receive the truths of the word by faith. If you would be experimental Chriftians, " let the word dwell in you richly in all wifdom and fpiritual underftanding." Hear it, and read it attentively, and with application; meditate on it; let it be your conftant companion and bofom-oracle, to which you may always refort for direction, caution, and encouragement. And ye will foon find the commandment is a light, and that by them ye are warned, and that the promifes have a fweet accomplifhment, in the way of duty, in the experience of the Chriftian. Labour to get the divine faith of the word. O, Sirs l it is not eafy to believe fcripture-truths, Luke xxiv. 25. Admit the conviction; look to the Lord for grace to believe, and keep up the ftruggle with unbelief.

Vol. III.

3. Be diligent observers of your own way, the way of your heart and life. A man that lets his heart run at random, and does not review what passfeth there, can never be an experimental Christian. But every ferious review of the heart would give you a new experimental confirmation of fcripture-truths. There are two great depths that the experimental Christian wades much in, viz. the depth of wickedness in the heart, and the depth of perfection and fulness in Christ. Be much in felf-examination.

4. Be careful observers of providence; the providence of God towards the church, and towards yourfelves in particular, Pfal. cvii. ult. Providence is a river that brings down the rich ore of experiences, which are to be gathered by Christian observation. The Bible is the word that God preacheth to the world; and providence is the application of the doctrine. In the Bible, the word is brought to our ears, and in providence it is fet before our eyes; though most of us are blind as moles, and fee it not; but the experimental Christian doth fee.

5. Lay it down for a conclusion, that religion is a thing that lies inwardly, and that it is quite another thing than a parcel of external performances; that it is a conforming of the foul to the image of Chrift, by a clofe application to him, and a real participation of his Spirit, and virtue of his blood. And therefore feek that, and feek it on till ye find bis truth comes not into your heart in word only, but in power, gradually killing fin and felf, and conforming you more to his image. And go not to duties as one that is only to hear or fpeak, but to feel or tafte. And when your hand is once in, that ye begin to tafte how gracious the Lord is, hold hand to it, and ye fhall find his going forth prepared as the morning.

Fourthly, I conclude with fome confiderations to flir you up to this exercise.

1. Experimental

c. Experimental religion is a fort of heaven on earth. Heaven is the eternal feeling of that goodnefs which is in God the chief good. It is his eternal pouring out of his goodnefs into the fouls of his people, making them drink of those rivers which they heard were at his right hand. Now, ye may begin it here with tasting of the word of life. That will make great delight, as the full enjoyment makes perfect jcy there.

2. There are none who being capable of that enjoyment on earth, that get the first taste of it in heaven. No; they all begin it here, John xvii. 3. For God first gives men a taste in Christian experience, and then they defire the full enjoyment of it, and they get it in heaven. And this is the reafonable way with the rational creature. Whosever taste not here, shall not drink above.

3. The experimental Christian has the counterpart of the Bible in his breaft, though imperfect. He has things old and new to bring out of his treafure, that answer to fcripture doctrines and promifes, as the copy to the original The experimental Christian is a walking Bible. He has a body of divinity formed of experiences, which is an excellent fort of learning, a thousand times preferable to all the raw unfelt notions of noify professions, that are like the founding brafs and tinkling cymbal.

4. The experimental Christian is fit to fail to heaven, whatever wind be blowing; for he has both fail and ballaft. He has experience of the goodnels and faithfulnels of God, and of the fanctifying power of truth; that is fail that will carry him through in all florms: and he has experience of the corruption of his own nature, the deceit of his own heart, and of his own pitiful weaknels; and that will be ballaft to him. For want of thefe in time of trial, few get through.

(1.) It is very hard, without experience of religion, to ftand in a time when the proud contemners of God feem to be moft happy; when the fun fhines bright on the way of wickednefs and apoftafy from God, and nothing but clouds and darknefs appear in the way of holinefs, Mal. iii. 15. 16. It is ftrange if thofe who never felt more fweetnefs in religion than in the world, do not at fuch a time turn their back on it altogether: but the experimental Chriftian will not do fo: For "the righteous fhall hold on his way, and he that hath clean hands fhall be ftronger and ftronger," Job Nvii, 9.

(2.) When

499

(2.) When the night of error overtakes a church, and errors like locufts fwarm abroad, how hard is it then to fland without experience ! 2 Theff. ii. 10. Where truth finks not into the heart, but floats in the head, it makes itching ears, to which novelties have eafy accefs. They to whom old truths are unfavoury, lie a prey to new notions. And hence it has come to pafs, that many noted profeffors have been carried away in fuch a time. But he that has tafted of the power of truth, will fay from his experience, "The old is better," Luke v. ult.

(3.) When divisions enter into a church, it is hard to keep right without experimental religion. Division is a great plague from the Lord, a ftain on the beauty of the church, and a dreadful fnare to men. When church-builders are like Babel-builders, how can the work thrive? It turns fome quite off from all religion; while they fee one going one way, and another another way, they know not whom to follow, and they caft off all together. Others, whofe religion was never fo deep as the bottom of their hearts; exhauft the whole of their vigour on the controverted points, and fo they become dead in the vitals of godlinefs. So that, unlefs people be experimental Chriffians, and exercifed to godlinefs too in the time, having the ballaft I fpoke of before, they will run into terrible excefs of felfiftnefs, judging not only practices, but hearts; a very unchriftian employment !

(4.) When great men and good men are falling, how hard is it to fland, unlefs men have a witnefs to the truth from within? God, in his holy providence, for the further trial of men, permits the fall of men of name for gifts and piety : And when thefe fall, readily they fall not alone, but as mighty oaks break down others about them, unlefs they be well rooted and grounded. And therefore they will never bring their religion to a good account, whofe religion is only to do as others do.

(5.) Laftly, When it comes to hard and fharp perforal perfecution, effectively to refifting unto blood. When extreme hardfhips, even death itfelf, are laid in the balance with an unfelt religion, it is hard to think how one fhould fland who has had no experience of the power of it. Should God give us up into the hands of a bloody antichriftian enemy, it would not be hard for them that have not been fealed by the Spirit, to refuse the mark of the beak.

But I shall give more particular directions towards attaining experimental religion.

1. Fix

1. Fix your eyes on the particular evils of your heart and life, and ply clofely the reformation of them by the Spirit. Alas ! what are we doing in the way of mortification of fin ? Experimental religion is a dying to fin, by virtue of our union with Chrift. What use have we for Chrift, if not to " fave us from our fins ?" Matth. i. 21. But the use many make of Chrift is to fave them and their fins. They will drink, fwear, lie, cheat, and do unjuftly still, and they will call thefe infirmities, or very little things, that need not difturb a man; and they will lick themfelves whole with their believing; and on a new temptation go just back again to them. Sirs, this is to make Chrift the minister of fin, and to fin because grace abounds. The running the round between fwearing and confeffing, will make men fall down at length into the pit, whence they will never rife again, Prov. xxix. 1. If Chrift cure thee not of thy difeafe, thou wilt never get life by him.

Therefore, I fay, ply reformation of heart and life clofely. It will not be withing that will do it; ye muft put your hand to the work. It will coft mourning groans under the weight of fin, believing looks, and vigorous endeavours againft it. Is there a thing that is your weak fide? pray remember thy foul is at flake; if it overcome thee, thy foul is gone; and if ever thou fee heaven, thou muft get above it, Matth. v. 29. Rev. iii. 21. O mind that paffage, Mark x. 21. "One thing thou lackeft," &c. Look to thy fpots in the glafs of the law, and quickly fet about purging of them. Thou haft, may be, a carnal worldly heart; fall on to get it fpiritual and heavenly; an ill tongue, get it bridled; or an offenfive carriage, get it mended.

2. Continue at the work, for the victory is not got but by degrees. The interruptions that take place in our plying the work of religion, make it fill the more difficult. The miferable halts we make in the exercise of godlines, do but weaken us, and give the enemy more time to recruit. And they that cannot digest the making religion their business, are not for heaven. Heaven is an eternal triumph; how can they be capable of it then that make it not their business to fight, or that are always overcome, instead of being overcomers? It is a reft, therefore it presuppose ha labour; not fo much the toil of business in the world, for the most carnal have as much of that as professers, but a reft from labour against fin.

3. Take

3. Take often notice what progrefs ye are making. Confider with yourfelves, Have I got any more victory over my paffions, my lufts, and my prevailing iniquity? Is there a cubit added to my fpiritual flature? Am I going backward or forward? Sirs, people that are at pains with a farm, they count their profit, to fee whether they be winners or lofers: if any thing has been mifmanaged to their lofs, they endeavour to mend it the next time; and if they find they are gainers, they are encouraged to redouble their pains. But, alas! what pains men are at about religion, is beftowed on it as if they cared not whether it profpered or not; and therefore they have no experience.

4. Look after the profit of duties. We fhould never hear a fermon, but fhould inquire, when we have come from it, Now, what have I made of this? where did it touch me? what evil of my heart has it difcovered? what influence has it had on me to fit me more for my journey and work? Sermons are not eafy to fome of you, that are far off from the place of public worfhip: ye would think it a great deal to go one mile, or two, three, four, or five miles in vain, in other cafes. Look after your prayers, as the Pfalmift did, Pfal. v. 3. Ye would think it much if ye were to afk a requeft of your neighbour, and yet get no anfwer, or a refufal. O why then do ye not confider how your prayers are accepted by the prayer-hearing God? I affure you, if ye would fall upon this way, ye would foon find the good of it.

5. Converse with experimental Christians about experimental religion. There is a wonderful diffidence that profeffors have in one another at this day, Matth. xxiv. 12. I verily believe this would be a good way to cure it, if those that have any experience of religion would modefully bring it forth to the edification of others. There is nothing that more endears Chriftians one to another than this. It is an unchriftian-like thing in profeffors to defpife converfe about practical godlinefs and Chriftian experience. And there is more of the wildom of the lerpent than the harmlefinels of the dove, in people's locking up in their own breafts all their fenfe of practical godlinefs, when it might be brought forth to the glory of God, and the good of others. I believe this way has been the caufe of fo much jealoufy, fulpicion, and division among professors; and has run out all Christian conference into vain jangling about the controverfies of the time.

6. Be

6. Be very nice as to the point of fin and duty, Pfal. exxxiii. 2. Sudden refolutions in matters which will allow deliberation, are often to be fuspected. Sometimes the matter of fin and duty is of that nature, that there is no time to deliberate; all that can be done is, to look to the Lord for immediate clearnefs, and the Christian shall have it, Prov. iv. 12. "When thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble." Compare Matth. x. 19. "But when they deliver you up, take no thought how or what ye shall speak, for it shall be given you in that fame hour what ye fhall fpeak." Sometimes the Chriftian may have time to deliberate, and then God's ordinary way is to clear men step by step, Prov. 10.12. "When thou goeft, thy fteps shall not be straitened." Say not, the way is plain at first glance in this cafe; for the Spirit of God bids thee "ponder the path of thy feet," Prov. iv. 26. If a way be fuch as our own heart at the very first inclines to, I fay it ought the rather to be narrowly examined, feeing in fcripture-language the way of our own heart is of no good name. And suppose the inclination of the man's heart does really fall upon the right fide in this cafe, yet this is no Chriftian refolution, but a flumbling on the right way, which God will never accept. Therefore men that would act as Chriftians in the point of fin and duty, should lay afide prejudices, trample their inclinations under foot, lay the matter before the Lord, and themfelves open to conviction there, as a piece of clean paper, on which God may write what he fees meet, pondering all things with a holy jealonfy over their own hearts, left they be biaffed by their own inclinations and preconceived opinions. I am fure much of God is to be found in this way.

7. Acknowledge God more in your temporal concerns, Prov. iii. 6. Are we Chriftians? let us depend on God for all things in this life and the other. We are directed to pray about them, the promifes are about them, and therefore we fhould wait on God for them. Many a fweet experience have the faints got in temporal things, when they have been helped to lay them before the Lord, and leave them there without anxiety, in the use of the means.

8. Laftly, Have a precife refpect to all the commands of God, and be truly ftrict in your lives; that is, deal with men as believing God's eye is upon you, and with God as if the eyes of men were upon you. Never look on the authority of the multitude as fufficient to make that no fault, which which will not abide ftrict examination by the word of God. Let the command of God prevail with you; and whatfoever liberty ye may take for ought that men can fay or do to you, let that be a fufficient reftraint. Thus may ye attain expemental religion.

504 Of Improving a Time of Sicknefs.

THE RIGHT IMPROVEMENT OF A TIME OF SICKNESS AND MORTALITY.

Two fermons preached on a congregational faft-day, at Ettrick, April 27. 1720, on occasion of the great fickness and mortality then prevailing.

Pfal. xc. 12.—So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wifdom.

THE SERMON IN THE FORENOON.

T HIS text is a prayer fuitable to the difpendation of this day. While we ftand and fee fo much ficknefs and mortality prevailing among us, they have ftout hearts indeed, who look not up to the Lord with this or the like petition in their hearts, So teach us, &c.

This pfalm was calculated for a dying time, being fuppofed to be penned upon the occafion of that fentence paffed in the wildernefs, Num. xiv. 28. &c. concerning the death of those from twenty years old and upward who came out of the land of Egypt, fo as none of them should enter Capaan, but Caleb and Joshua. It was penned, I fay, by Moses, 2 who who faw, in the fpace of forty years, fix hundred thoufand men fwept off by death, befides women and children.

There are three things infifted on in the body of this pfalm, and fummed up together, ver. 10. 11. A flort life, a fure death, and a fevere judgment. And here is the ufe of them, O to confider these for as to be wise for our fouls, O for a fanctified use of the fad dispensation. In the words there is,

1. A leffon defired to be learned, (1.) The leffon itfelf, of counting or numbering of our days; i. e. of confidering them duly and ferioufly, as he who tells any thing before him, looks to every one of the number, and makes a juft reckoning. (2.) The teacher of whom only we can learn this is God himfelf. It is a difficult leffon to learn to purpofe. Many good counters, who can dextroufly count great fums, are quite out in the calculation of their days, Luke xii. 19. 20. There is a neceffity of the teaching of the Spirit, in order to learn this divine arithmetic.

2. The ftandard of proficiency in this leffon, That we may apply our bearts unto wifdom; i. e. that we learn it fo, as we apply ourfelves to ferious godlinefs, which is the only wifdom: Heb. that we may bring in; a heart of wifdom, i. e. a wife heart. We have naturally light and foolifh hearts; but he, and only he, learns this leffon well, that brings in a ferious, religious, and wife heart, from the fchool of the word and providence, where that leffon is taught. All under this ftandard are but bunglers at the leffon, they have not yet learned it truly: though they can talk of it, viz. the flort all that, in refpect of their fouls; they have not yet got it by heart, but only by head; and therefore they are full the carnal, carelefs men they were before.

The words being thus explained, I fhall, as the fubject of this forenoon's difcourfe, obferve the following doctrine.

DOCT. " A time of mortality is a fpecial call to all rightly to number their days."

Sin brought in mortality into the world, Gen. ii. 17. compare chap. v. And it has never gone out of it fince; at all times fome are here and there flepping off: but there are fome times by way of eminency to be called "times of mortality," as that in the wildernefs, and as now amongft us in this land. This has a fpecial call.

3 S

VOL. III.

Here

Here I shall shew,

I. What it is to number our days.

II. That a time of mortality is a special call to this work.

I. I am to fhew, what it is to number our days. It imports,

Our days had a beginning, and we muft reflect on that, Pfal. xxii. 9. Every thing that is numbered muft have a beginning; and therefore God's duration is not liable to numbering. But we may foon perceive our beginning to be in the world; and thence learn and obferve,

(1.) That it is by divine appointment, and not by neceffity of our nature, that we continue to be. The latter is proper to God only; by the former, angels and men, and all creatures, are continued in being. For he that once had no being, can never claim a natural neceffity of continuing to be.

(2.) That every moment of our life hangs on the divine will and pleafure, Rev. iv ult. There is no neceffary connection betwixt your living this moment and living the next. The only bond betwixt them is God's word of appointment, Heb. i. 3. Loofe that, and remove it, our life goes, and our eyes shall never fee the next moment. No food, no physic, can prevent it, Matth. iv. 4. There is no outliving that word, Pfal. xc. 3. "Thou turness man to destruction. and fayest, Return, ye children of men," fo much as for one moment.

(3) That we must go the way of all flesh; for many of those we found in the world at our coming into it, are now gone, Zech. i 5. This world is always like a fair near the height, where fome are coming in, others going out, and those within in confusion, Eccl. i. 4. I doubt not but there may be fome in this house this day, who, if they will confider, shall not find one of all those that filled it at their first corning into it this day. But these are gone, and others have come into the room of them all. And shall not others reckon fo of us in a little time?

2. Our days will have an end, and we muft ferioufly confider that. Hence fays the Pfalmift, Pfal. xxxix. 4. "Lord, m ke me to know nine end, and the meafure of my days, what it is. Every thing that is numerable has an end; and therefore eternity cannot be numbered, fince it hath no end. But we may foon come to the end of our count, when when we are counting our days; and thence may learn and obferve,

(1.) That the fhored tree will be cut down at length. "I know that thou wilt bring me to death," fays Job, " and to the houfe appointed for all living," Job xxx. 23. When we were first planted in this world, the axe was laid down at the root of the tree, and we have grown up befide it. There is never a pain nor flitch, but it is a stroke of that axe, a pledge of a greater. Sometimes it has almost struck through, but in a little time it will go through for altogether. So that man shall lie down, and not rife till the heavens be no more.

(2.) We will need nothing for this life ere long. Dip not fo deep in the cares of this world as mott do, to the ruin of their fouls. Many have been auxious to provide for the day which they never faw, as the rich man in the parable did, Luke xii. 17 .- 20. The clods of earth will ferve for back and belly ere long, and we will have no portion in what is done under the fun; others will pollefs the houfes, lands, &c. which we now occupy,

(3.) See now how ye will begin eternity. It will begin with us when our days are come to an end ; and as we begin it, fo we will continue in it, Heb. ix 27. Our state now is alterable, but then it is unalterable for ever. Therefore now or never let us fecure a happy eternity. Learn your duty from the unjust theward, the ferious confideration of which I recommend to you, Luke xvi. 3 .- 8.

(4.) Working time for eternity will not laft. It clofeth with the end of our days : Therefore " whattoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might: for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wifdom in the grave, whither thou goeft," Eccl. is 10.

U/e. Be not idle spectators of the dispensation of this day. Number your days, fo as ye may apply your hearts unto wildom. If you will not take warning to prepare for eternity, by the removal of others, take heed left God make you a warning to others. Let the aged and young hear the voice of the rod, and ferioufly improve it.

3. Our days are few, and we must confider, that they are the number of a man, they may be counted. There are fome things not innumerable in themfelves, yet cannot be numbered for their multitude. But there is no fuch multitude of the days of our life.

(1.) Confider the counters the foripture affords us to count 3 5 2 our our days by. A web, If. xxxviii. 12.; it is fuch a web as one is ftill working at without intermiffion, and therefore will foon be cut out :-grafs, and a flower, foon withered, If. xl. 6. 7.; - green at morn, and cut down at night, Pfal. xc. 6. :-a vapour that vanisheth away, frail, uncertain, and of short continuance, Jam. iv. 14. :-fmoke, Pfal. cii. 3.:-a wind, a blass, or puff, Job vii. 7. :-a fleep, Pfal. xc. 5. :-a dream, Job xx. 8. :-a hand-breadth, Pfal. xxxix. 5. :-nothing, ibid. compare Eccl. iii. 2. Count with thefe counters, and the reckoning will be very fmall, which the fcripture alfo has cast up to our hands.

(2.) Confider the fcripture-reckoning of man's life. The higheft reckoning is by years, now brought down to a few fcores, Pfal. xc. 10. Nay, as we count the age of infants by months, fo is man's age reckoned, Job xiv. 5. As if months were too big a word, it is brought down to days, and a few days, Job xiv. 1.; yea, to one day, wherein there is but a morning, voon, and evening, Job xiv. 6.; and yet lower, to an hour, I John ii. 18.; aye, to a moment, that is paft ere one is aware, 2 Cor. xv. 17. Prov. xii. 19. So the fum of our days is very fmall.

From both ye may find that our days are few; and thence learn and obferve,

(1.) It is no fafe counting to count many years in to come, whatever ye be, left ye be out in your account, as the rich man was, Luke xii. 19. 20. Many whofe youth and firength feemed to give them ground for counting fo, have been forced to fee their miftake, and count again, little to their comfort, death coming ere it was looked for.

(2.) Our days will foon be at an end. We will quickly be over our hand-breadth. They fly like a fhadow, Job xiv. 2. And though a weaver's fhuttle is very fwift, in going from the one fide of the web to the other, our days are fwifter than it is, Job vii. 6. See what Job fays, chap. ix. 25. 26. "Now my days are fwifter than a poft; they flee away, they fee no good. They are paffed away as the fwift fhips; as the eagle that hafteth to the prey."

(3.) We have no time to be idle. Our work for eternity is great, for it is long, and our time is fhort. They who have much work, little time to do it in, little ftrength to do it with, and much opposition to wreftle against, had need to lose no time, John ix. 4. The shadows of the evening are ftretched out; we have made but little way; let us therefore mend our pace.

(4.) Lafily,

(4.) Logly, We must make a ferious bufiness of the confidering of our days. The counting of them to purpose will not do otherwise. It deferves it, for eternity lies upon it; a mistake in that may be fatal; and we are very ready to miscount our days. And,

[1.] Make it a work by itfelf. If one have but a few threads to count, they will let other work alone till that be done; for it is of that nature that it will not mix with other pieces of work. Surely at any time, and much more at this time, God calls us to take fome particular time for this work, Hag. i. 5.

[2.] Hold to it, till you have done it to purpofe. Counting is not a work to be done by fits and flarts. If it be broken off, readily all that is counted is loft, and one must just begin again, having loft his count. Fleeting thoughts of the fhortnefs and uncertainty of time are to little purpofe. The imprefilion they make is foon worn off.

[3.] Dip into the bufinefs, and be not overly in it. One that is counting will be loath to hear or anfwer a word fpoken to him, left he mifs his count. Satan and our ill hearts are apt to caft in diversions to those employed in counting their days; and by that means many times mar the work. But ye must flop your ears, and mind your bufinefs.

II. I proceed to fhew, that a time of mortality is a fpecial call to this work.

1. It fets death and eternity in a particular manner before the eyes of mortals, as appears from this pfalm wherein our text lies. It is a looking-glafs wherein every one may fee his own frailty; for the firength of the hale is no more the firength of ftones, nor their bones brafs, more than others whom death has cut down. What is the lot of one mortal to-day, may be the lot of another to-morrow; and that calls to confider it.

2. God, by laying his hand on fome, fpeaks unto others, as appears from what our Lord fays, Luke xiii. 1. and downwards, and warns them. And they that are wife will take warning, Micah vi. 9. And it is a fad evidence when people will not hear it. They look like those marked for destruction, who, in the face of God's judgments going abroad in zplace ftill do wickedly, If. xxvi. 11.

3. It is an evidence of the Lord's anger against a land or country-fide where it prevails, Amos iii. 8. And not laying g it to heart is a contempt of God, that he will furely avenge, Pfal. xxviii. 5. It fpeaks God to be rifen up from his place to punith; and who knows who may fall ere God's fword, once drawn, be returned into its theath?

U/e. Let old and young comply with the call of God by the prefent ficknefs and mortality: let every one be firred up thereby fo to count their days, as they may apply their hearts into wildom. For motives, confider,

1. We will be most inexcufable, if after all these warnings death find us unprovided. The dispensation of the day is fuch, that no body needs to pretend to be furprised with death's coming to their own door, fince it is carrying off fo many, both young and old.

2. It is a piece of that duty we owe to an angry God, as we would not inflame his anger more againft us, Pfal. xxviii. 5. Amos iii. 8. It is not true courage, but flupidity and obfinacy, not to be deeply affected with the hand of God gone out againft us. Let creatures defpife, if they will, the flroke of their fellow worms, but let them not defpife the flroke of God, Heb. xii. 5. It becomes faints of the higheft pitch to fear God finiting, Luke xii. 4. 5.

3. This would be the way to get the ftroke removed, or at leaft to get it fanctified, Hab. iii. 16. The defign of Providence in the ftroke is to ftir us up to this duty, and the anfwering of the call of the rod bids faircft for the removal of it, Lev. xxvi. 41. 42. If not, the venom will be taken out of it; and if one be taken away being fitted for it, he will exchange this life for a better.

4. Lafily, 11 this be mitimproved, it lays us open to a worfe, Amos iv. 11. 12. In a land fo full of fin, fo often threatened with defolating firokes, and to often delivered, but nothing bettered by deliverances, this firoke looks rather like the beginning than the end of forrows, rather like an earneft than the round fum, that might clear the accounts betwirt God and a finful nation.

THE SERMON IN THE AFTERNOON.

E are again met this day to humble ourfelves under the hand of God, gone out against the congregation and country-fide, in great fickness and mortality, and to deprecate the Lord's anger. I know no fuch expedient in our cafe, cafe, nor any thing that will bid fo fair for the removal of the faroke, as our coming up to the frandard of proficiency in the leffon in our text, which fails now to be spoken of, and which I shall caft into this doftrine.

510

Doct. "The right and neceffary improvement of a time of bodily fickness and mortality, is to become wife for our fouls."

The Lord is putting particular perfons and families among us, yea, all of us, to the fchool of affliction, fince the hand of God gone out against fome concerns all; and it is necessary we learn our lesson aright, and become wife thereby.

In difcourfing from this doctrine, I shall,

I. Shew what is that wildom we must learn thereby.

II. Condefcend on fome particular pieces of wifdom which fuch a time calls us to apply our hearts to.

I. I am to fhew, what is that wifdom we are to learn by a time of bodily fickneis and mortality. It is ferious godlinefs, or true religion. When one becomes ferioufly godly, leaving the way of fin, and entering on the way of faith and holinefs, then he has learned the lefton that God is teaching us this day, Job xxviii. ult. "Unto man he faid, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wifdom; and to depart from evil, is under-ftanding." This is the only true wifdom; and they continue arrant fools who do not arrive at it, whatever other wifdom they be mafters of. This is the wifdom taught at God's fchool of affliction, Heb. xii. to. The voice of the rod is, Be wife for your fouls. That this is the true wifdom, appears in that,

1. It is practical wifdom, wifdom for regulating a man's life in the way to happinefs, Hof. xiv. ult. How many are there accounted wife, who betray their folly in quite fhooting by the mark, in the way of life they chufe ! Jer. xxii. 13.— 16. Surely that is wifdom which fets men in the true way to happinefs, which is faith and holinefs, Mark xvi. 16. Heb. xii. 14. What avail carnal worldly wit, the profound fpeculations of natural men in the learned fciences, and the dry and faplefs notions of religion in formal profeflors! All thefe are but labor ous trifling, and making of a noife, doing nothing, while they never make them better men, though spore knowing.

2. It is wildom for one's felf, Prov. ix. 12. There is a fet of men, whofe wifdom is noted to be for others, but not for themfelves, refembled by boatmen, who ferry others over, but, during the whole time of their rowing, have their eyes fixed on the place whence they came, and, immediately after landing their paffengers, return to where they fet out. Such is the wifdom of all ungodly men: their wifdom may profit other men's fouls or bodies; but, alas! it profits not themfelves, I Cor. ix. ult. Matth. vi. 19. 20 But this is the excellency of real godlines, that " it giveth life to them that have it," Eccl. vii. 12. It cafts the foul into the mould of truth, fanctifies the heart and life in conformity to the didivine nature and will; and fo perfects human nature, raifing up a glorious fabric out of the ruins in which it was laid by the fall.

3. It is wifdom for one's latter end, Deut. xxxii. 29. The fool in the gofpel had wit enough to provide for many years life. But here lay his folly, he had nothing provided for his latter end, for a dying hour, Luke xii. 20. Many fuch fools are among us. It was one of the dying exprefiions of a learned man of the laft age (Grotius), Ab! vitam perdidi, operofe nibil agendo.

4. It is wildom for the better part, Luke x. 41. 42. The wildom of the world is but for the baler part of man, the body; it makes him uleful in bufinefs and civil convertation. But this reaches only the outworks, while in the mean time the foul's concerns lie by neglected. But this wildom advanceth the life and interests of the foul, infures one's title to heaven, and fets him on the way to eternal happinefs, Prov. viii. 35.

5. Lofly, It is wildom for the better world, Heb. xi. 14. 16. Our projects for this world, as to ourfelves, muft die with ourfelves, Pfal. cxlvi. 4.; but they who are wife for that better world, by being religious indeed, will find their measures wifely laid in time, to take and have their effect happily in eternity, Rev. xiv. 13. What they now fow, they thall then joyfully reap.

III. I proceed to condefeend on fome particular pieces of wifdom which fuch a time calls us to apply our hearts to.

1. To inquire ferioufly into the caufes of the Lord's controverfy with us, Job x. 2. When God's hand is firetched out, it will be our witdom to fearch wherefore it is fo, Lam: iii. 39. Surely there is a caufe; he does not finite without I good good reafon : and unlefs our eyes fee it, our hearts cannot rue it.

512

God has a controverfy with the congregation and country-fide: it were good we could lay it to heart. Two things feem to have the main hand in it.

(1.) Abuse and misimprovement of spiritual mercies and privileges. Thus the Lord threatened the Old-Teftament church, Deut. xxviii. 58. 59. " If thou wilt not obferve to do all the words of this law, that are written in this book, that thou mayeft fear this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY GOD; then the Lord will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy feed, even great plagues, and of long continuance and fore fickneffes, and of long This brought a fore fickness upon the continuance." church of Corinth, 1 Cor. xi. 30. The noted divisions, and deferting of ordinances, in the country, are the judgement and the fin of the corner, whereby contempt is poured on precious gospel-ordinances, the fuccess of the gospel marred by fo many hinderances laid in the way of fouls getting good of it; and thus gnats are ftrained at, and camels fwallowed down, in respect of the deep-died guilt in what it does to hinder the fpiritual good of perifhing fouls. Men will not fee it, but they shall fee. And, alas ! how evident is our unfruitfulnefs under means of grace! How few are bettered now by a preached gofpel? God's word is flighted, and ineffectual for our reformation, his holy name is profaned, his Sabbaths are violated, facraments are neglected by fome, and profaned by others with their unholy and untender lives. What wonder that for this caufe "many are weak and fickly among us, and many fleep?" I Cor. xi. 30. Warnings and reproots prevail not, conviction is rare, and conversion is more rare. Many have not a form of godlinefs left them; and few have any thing but a form of it. Many are crying out against the fins of others, while the vifible blots in their own lives do not make them finite on their own breafts, and fay, "What have I done!" God grant that the contempt and abufe of gofpelprivileges bring not a removal of the kingdom of God from us.

(2.) Abufe and misimprovement of temporal mercies. It is obfervable, that with the promife of plenty to the church, using their plenty in a holy becoming manner, the promife of the taking away of fickness is joined, Exod. xxiii. 25. Deut. vii. 12.-14. This fays that God punisheth abuse of plenty with ficknefs. God has given the country plenteous years; and what has been the iffue of it, but contempt of God and

VOL. III.

and the rules of righteoufnefs, increafe of pride and vanity, and drunkennefs, with an unordinary abufe of that fiery liquor, never ordained for ordinary drinking; mafters breaking the yoke, undermining and undoing one another through the country; fervants burfting all bonds, and turned quite unmanageable and unduiful? The laft year, a little before this time, I gave warning from the Lord's word againft thefe things particularly *: but I think there was never more of them, in my time, than followed upon the back of it. No wonder, then, that God has fhapen us out another piece of work this year.

Let there things be weighed in an even balance, as in the fight of God, by us all. And let particular perfons and families, effecially those who have been or are under the rod, inquire into the causes of God's quarrel with them, that they may fee why the Lord contendeth.

2. To be humbled under the caules of the Lord's anger, and to turn to a finiting God in Chrift. This would be our wifdom, Lev. xxvi. 41. 42. Mic. vi. 9. It is not time to frand in the way of finners, when God is rifen up to plead; it is high time to fall down before him in humiliation, and to fall off from God-provoking courfes by reformation. Hear the voice of the rod. It is crying two things loudly this day.

(1.) Improve a feafon of the gofpel. Some fermons have of late been the laft to them that heard them. Some heard the fermon on the Lord's day in health, that were in eternity ere the next Sabbath. This fays, Hear ye every day as if it were to be your laft.

(2.) Improve temporal mercies, left God be provoked to take them from you. Health and ftrength, and other temporal conveniencies, are to be wifely managed, for ye fee we have no tack of them, Eccl. ix. 10.

3. To be upon your guard, and manage fickerly for eternity, while you live. Remember the parable of the wife and foolifh builder, and how apt ye are to play the fool in thefe matters, while health and ftrength lafts.

(1.) Beware ye be not cheated out of your most valuable interests, by a deceitful heart, a treacherous world, and a wily devil. Satan goes about many a poor simple one, till they are tricked of their souls, their part of Christ and heaven.

* In a difcourfe preached March 19. 1719, from Jofh. ix. 14. which is printed in a collection of ten fermons of the author's, published in 1772. It is the ninth in that collection, and deferves a ferious perulat. ven, and all the happiness of another world, Matth. xvi. 26. And wherefore do they part with them, but for the gratifying of a luft, which is a practice more foolish than if one should part with an effate for a childish toy. So did Efau. Wherefore be wife in time.

(2.) Beware the best bargain fl.p not through your fingers, while ye are purfuing vanities, Prov. xvii. 16. Alas! there are not a few, who, being bufied with vanities of this world, which pass away with the using, mils the opportunity of making the treasure hid in the field of the gospel their own. Therefore be wife.

(3.) Beware of feeding yourfelves with dreams and fancies, wherein there is no reality. There are many foolifh virgins with lamps without oil, and foolifh builders on the fand. There are many whole life is but one continued dream, wherein they judge aright of nothing, neither God, heaven, hell, or the world. So that their awakening cannot be but terrible. But be ye wife.

4. To prepare timeoufly for death and judgment, Matth. xxiv. 44. It is certain that naturally we are quite out of cafe for that great change : and, alas! we are naturally unwilling to think of it, or provide for it. But neceffity has no law. We muft die; and we muft either be provided for death, or we are ruined : and if we be not timely provided, our capale may be put out ere our work be done.

(1.) Get habitual preparation for death, in a gracious frate, Rom. viii. 1. Be fure to get out of the frate of nature into the frate of grace. And then come death when it will, it will but transport you into the frate of glory. And there are two things here to be fecured.

[1.] Get your title to heaven fixed. None will get thither but those who have a right to it, Matth. xxv. 34. 2 Cor. v. 1. To others the door will be cast in their face. But, ye may fay, how may we get a title to heaven? Anf. Marry the Heir, and heaven shall be your dowry. The everlassing covenant is offered to you in the gospel, God to be your God in Christ, and Christ to be yours in all his offices. Therefore make a folemn deliberate transfaction with God this night, embracing Christ in the covenant, and confenting to it, with an eye to death and eternity.

[2.] Get a fitnels for heaven wrought in you. Col. i. 12. For ye cannot be meet for it, till your nature be changed. How may we get that fitnels? may ye fay. Anf. Believe and embrace Jefus Chrift, for his Spirit of fanctification, 1 Cor. i.

3 T 2

30.

30. There is a fulnefs of the Spirit in him to be communicated, and faith muft eye Chrift for his fanctifying Spirit. Put off the old man, and put on the new man : be new creatures, and let old things pafs away, and all things become new. In vain do men pretend to faith without this, 2 Cor. v. 17.; and in vain will men look for heaven without it, John iii. 3.

This is habitual preparation, which whofo have, if they fhould be ftruck dead in a moment, or immediately feized with delirioufnefs, and die raving, yet they are fafe; for "there is no condemnation to them which are in Chrift Jefus," Rom. viii. I.

(2.) Get actual preparation for death, in a gracious frame for dying, that ye may die comfortably.

[1.] Make fpeed with your generation-work. Whatever piece of work is put in your hand, for God's honour, difpatch it with all expedition, Matth. xxiv. 46.; for if ye delay it, ye may lofe the opportunity for ever.

[2.] Be habitually tender in your life, Acts xxiv. 16. And beware of any ftanding controverfy betwixt God and you; for if there be any fuch, it will readily ftare you in a dying hour.

[3.] Be weaned from the world, and hold a loofe grip of all you have in it, that it may drop like Jofeph's mantle.

(4.) Keep waking and watchful, Luke xii. 36. Be much in the thoughts of death, and the life to come, that ye be not furprifed *.

[5.] Laftly, To prepare for more public and general trials and calamities. This is a piece of wildom to be learned from fuch a difpenfation. For leffer ftrokes are ufually the forerunners of greater ones. Sodom and Gomorrah were tried with a leffer ftroke, ere they were deftroyed by fire from heaven, Gen. xiv. 10. And our Lord told the Jews, that unlefs they repented, they fhould perifh, Luke xiii. 5.; which threatening was accomplifhed in the deftruction of Jerufalem. The day may yet come, wherein men fhall praife the dead, that are already dead; and they may mifs this ftroke, who are referved for a worfe, and fhall meet with it ere all be done. In a time when the cup of God's anger is going through

* See these directions amplified and illustrated in the Fourfold State, flate 4. head 2. title, Directions how to prepare for Death, through a land, they that drink first usually fare best. How are we to prepare? may ye fay. Anf. Keep your garments clean from the fins and fnares of the day, and place where ye live, and take up your lodging in the fure and unalterable covenant of grace, and then no evil shall befall you.

TWO FORMS OF PERSONAL COVENANTING BY THE AUTHOR.

[As Mr Boston has in his writings accurately explained the nature, and warmly inculcated the duty and neceffity, of perfonal covenanting, or explicit entering into, or renewing covenant with God, by taking hold of God's covenant of grace; it will not be improper to fubjoin the two following fpecimens of that folemn tranlaction in his own practice: the firft, dated August 14, 1699, a little before his ordination to the ministry; the other, dated December 2, 1729, about two years and five months before his death. Both are printed from the original copies.]

Mr THOMAS BOSTON, preacher of the gospel of Christ, being by nature, apostate from God, an enemy to the great JEHOVAH, and fo an heir of hell and wrath, in myfelf utterly loft and undone, becaufe of my original and actual fins, and mifery thereby; and being, in fome measure, made fenfible of this my loft and undone state, and fenfible of my need, my absolute need of a Saviour, without whom I mute perifh eternally; and believing that the Lord Jefus Chrift, the eternal Son of the eternal God, is not only able to fave me, by virtue of his death and fufferings, but willing alfo to fave me (though most vile and ugly, and one who has given him many repulfes), both from my fins, and from the load of wrath due to me for them, upon condition that I believe, come to him for faivation, and cordially receive him in all his offices; confenting to the terms of the covenant : Therefore, as I have at feveral opportunities before given an express and folemn confent to the terms of the covenant, and have entered into a perforal covenant with Christ; fo now, being called called to undertake the great and weighty work of the miniftry of the gospel, for which I am altogether infufficient, I do by this declare, That I ftand to and own all my former engagements, whether facramental, or any other way whatfoever; and now again do RENEW my covenant with God; and hereby, at this prefent time, do folemnly COVENANT and ENGAGE to be the Lord's, and MAKE a folemn refignation and upgiving of myfelf, my foul, body, fpiritual and temporal concerns, unto the Lord Jefus Chrift, without any refervation whatfoever; and do hereby give my voluntary confent to the terms of the covenant laid down in the holy fcriptures, the word of truth ; and with my heart and foul I TAKE and RECEIVE Chrift in all his offices, as my PROPHET to teach me, refolving and engaging in his ftrength to follow, that is, to endeavour to follow, his inftructions : I TAKE him as my PRIEST, to be faved by his death and merits alone; and renouncing my own righteoufnefs as filthy rags and menttrous cloths, I am content to be clothed with his righteouinefs alone; and live entirely upon free grace; likewife I TAKE him for my ADVOCATE and INTERCESSOR with the Father: And, finally, I TAKE him as my KING, to reign in me, and to rule over me, renouncing all other lords, whether fin or felf, and in particular my predominant idol; and in the ftrength of the Lord, do refolve and hereby engage, to cleave to Chrift as my Sovereign Lord and King, in death and in life, in profperity and in adverfity, even for ever, and to ftrive and wreftle in his ftrength against all known fin; protesting, that whatever fin may be lying hid in my heart out of my view, I difown it, and abhor it, and shall, in the Lord's strength, endeavour the mortification of it, when the Lord shall be pleafed to let me fee it. And this folemn covenant I make as in the prefence of the ever-living, heart-fearching God, and fubfcribe it with my hand, in my chamber, at Dunfe, about one o'clock in the afternoon, the fourteenth day of August, One thousand fix hundred and ninety-nine years.

518

¢

T. BOSTON.

A SECOND PERSONAL COVENANT.

LORD, the God and Father of our Lord Jefus Chrift, I confess from my heart, that I am by nature a lost and undone finner, wholly corrupted, and laid under the curfe, in Adam, through the breach of the covenant of works; and have ruined myfelf more and more by my innumerable actual transactions, whereby my whole life appears in mine eyes this day a heap of vanity, fin, and foolifhnefs. I am fully convinced, and do from my heart acknowledge, that I am utterly unable to help myfelf, in whole or in part, out of this gulf of fin and mifery, into which I am plunged; and that it is beyond the reach of the whole creation to help me out of it; fo that 1 must inevitably perish for ever, if thine own ftrong hand do not make help to me. But forafmuch as there is a covenant of grace, for life and falvation to loft finners, established between THEE and thine own Son, the Lord Jefus Chrift, as fecond Adam; wherein, upon condition of his fulfilling all righteoufnefs, which is now performed, in his having been born perfectly holy, lived altogether righteoufly, and made perfect fatisfaction to justice by his death and fufferings, thou hast promifed that thou wilt be their God, and they shall be thy people, to the making of them holy and happy for ever; and that this covenant is, in Chrift the head thereof, offered and exhibited to me in thy gofpel, and thou calleft me into the fellowship thereof, in him: Therefore (adhering to my former acceptings, and taking hold of it, declared whether by word or writ before thee, without wilful miftaking of it, or known guile), upon the warrant of, and in obedience to, thy command and call, I, in myfelf a poor perifhing finner, and worthy to perifh, do now again TAKE HOLD of that COVENANT, for life and falvation to ME; believing on the name of Chrift crucified, the head thereof, offered and exhibited to me, as the great High Prieft, who, by the facrifice of himfelf, hath made atonement, paid the ranfom, and brought in everlafting righteoutnefs for poor finners. I CREDIT his word of grace to me, and accordingly TRUST on him, that he, with his righteoufnels, will be mine, and that, in and through him, God will be my God, and I shall be one of his people, to the making of me holy and happy for ever. O my God, I do by thy grace acquiefce in that covenant, as all my falvation, and all my defire. With $\mathbf{P}\mathbf{V}$ 2 my whole heart and foul, the SON incarnate is my only PRIEST, my Surety, my Interceffor, and my Redeemer; and, in him, the FATHER my FATHER, the HOLY GHOST my SANCTIFIER; GOD in CHRIST my God. I refign myfelf, foul and body, to him, to be faved by his blood alone; renouncing all confidence in mine own righteoufnefs, doings, and fufferings. With my whole heart and foul, he is my HEAD and HUSBAND : and I am his only, wholly, and for ever; to live by him, to him, and for him. I take him for my alone PROPHET, Oracle, and Guide; give up myfelf wholly to him, to be taught, guided, and directed, in all things, by his word and Spirit; and renounce mine own wifdom, and the wifdom of this world. He is, with my heart's confent, my alone KING and Lord. And I refign myfelf wholly, foul and body, unto him, to be refcued, by the ftrength of his mighty hand, from fin, death, the devil, and this prefent evil world, for to ferve him for ever, and to be ruled by the will of his command as to my duty, and the will of his providence as to my lot. I am, with my whole heart, content (Lord, thou knoweft) to part with, and do renounce, every known fin, luft, or idol, and particularly that fin which most easily befets me; together with my own foolish will, and other lords befides him; without refervation, and without exception against his cross: Protesting in thy fight, O Lord, that I am, through grace, willing to have difcovered unto me, and upon difcovery to part with, every fin in me that I know not: and that the doubtings and averfenefs of heart, mixed with this my accepting of thy covenant, are what I allow not: and that, notwithstanding thereof, I look to be accepted of thee herein, in the Beloved, thine only Son and my Saviour, purging away thefe, with all my other fins, by his precious blood. Let it be recorded in heaven, O Lord, and let the bed on which I leaned, the timber, and the ftones, and all other things about me here, in my closet, bear witness, That I, though most unworthy, have this fecond day of December, One thousand feven hundred and twenty-nine years, here taken hold of, and come into, thy covenant of grace, offered and exhibited to me in thy golpel, for time and eternity; and that thou art my God in the tenor of that covenant, and I am one of thy people, from henceforth and for ever.

T. BOSTON.

F I N I S.

